even though such a threat made to an adult citizen of normal intelligence would be too implausible to produce involuntary servitude. But the Padrone statute does not support the Court of Appeals' conclusion that involuntary servitude can exist absent the use or threatened use of physical or legal coercion to compel labor. Moreover, far from broadening the definition of involuntary servitude for immigrants, children, or mental incompetents, §1584 eliminated any special distinction among, or protection of, special classes of victims.”

You know who previously took advantage of PLAINTIFF’S special vulnerabilities in regard to his writing issues in Midyear? PETER STRZOK, ANDREW MCCABE, FBI, CIA, et al.

United States v. Kozminski, 487 U.S. 931 (1988) “Absent change by Congress, we hold that, for purposes of criminal prosecution under § 241 or § 1584, the term "involuntary servitude" necessarily means a condition of servitude in which the victim is forced to work for the defendant by the use or threat of physical restraint or physical injury, or by the use or threat of coercion through law or the legal process. This definition encompasses those cases in which the defendant holds the victim in servitude by placing the victim in fear of such physical restraint or injury or legal coercion. Our holding does not imply that evidence of other means of coercion, or of poor working conditions, or of the victim's special vulnerabilities is irrelevant in a prosecution under these statutes. As we have indicated, the vulnerabilities of the victim are relevant in determining whether the physical or legal coercion or threats thereof could plausibly have compelled the victim to serve. In addition, a trial court could properly find that evidence of other means of coercion or of extremely poor working conditions is relevant to corroborate disputed evidence regarding the use or threatened use of physical or legal coercion, the defendant's intention in using such means, or the causal effect of such conduct.”

The concurring opinion United States v. Kozminski, 487 U.S. 931 (1988) is far more illustrative for PLAINTIFF’S case and the following excerpts are from the concurrence:

“for the use of the master's whip and the power of the State to compel one human to labor for another were clearly core elements of slavery that the Thirteenth Amendment and its statutory progeny intended to eliminate. As the Government points out, however, the language of both the Thirteenth Amendment and §1584 simply prohibits "involuntary servitude," and contains no words limiting the prohibition to servitude compelled by particular methods. "[The Thirteenth] amendment denounces a status or condition, irrespective of the manner or authority by which it is created." Clyatt v. United States, 197 U. S. 207, 197 U. S. 216 (1905). To the contrary, it would seem that certain psychological, economic, and social means of coercion can be just as effective as physical or legal means, particularly where the victims are especially vulnerable, such as the mentally disabled victims in this case. Surely threats to burn down a person's home (See: The Roof is on Fire) or business or to rape or kill a person's spouse or children (See: An Anchor and a Pitchfork) can have greater coercive impact than the mere threat of a beating, yet the coercive impact of such threats turns not on any direct physical effect that would be felt by the laborer, but on the psychological, emotional, social, or economic injury the laborer would suffer as a result of harm to his or her home, business, or loved ones. And drug addiction or the weakness resulting from a lack of food, sleep, or medical care can eliminate the will to resist as readily as the fear of a physical blow (See: An Anchor and a Pitchfork and everything after 2017). Hypnosis, blackmail, fraud, deceit, and isolation (See:

the entirety of Narcoterrorism, Star Chambers, and An Anchor and a Pitchfork) are also illustrative methods -- but it is unnecessary here to canvas the entire spectrum of nonphysical machinations by which humans coerce each other. It suffices to observe that one can imagine many situations in which nonphysical means of private coercion can subjugate the will of a servant. Indeed, this case and others readily reveal that the typical techniques now used to hold persons in slave-like conditions (See: Miki's Tea Party, An Anchor and a Pitchfork, and everything after 2017) are not limited to physical or legal means. The techniques in this case, for example, included: disorienting the victims with frequent verbal abuse and complete authoritarian domination; inducing poor health by denying medical care and subjecting the victims to substandard food, clothing, and living conditions; working the victims from 3 a.m. to 8:30 p.m. with no days off, leaving them tired and without free time to seek alternative work; denying the victims any payment for their labor; and active efforts to isolate the victims from contact with outsiders who might help them. Without considering these techniques (and their particular effect on a mentally disabled person), one would hardly have a complete picture of whether the coercion inflicted on the victims was sufficient to make their servitude involuntary. Other involuntary servitude cases have also chronicled a variety of nonphysical and nonlegal means of coercion including: trickery; isolation from friends, family, transportation or other sources of food, shelter, clothing, or jobs; denying pay or creating debt that is greater than the worker's income by charging exorbitant rates for food, shelter, or clothing; disorienting the victims by placing them in an unfamiliar environment, barraging them with orders, and controlling every detail of their lives; and weakening the victims with drugs, alcohol, or by lack of food, sleep, or proper medical care. See, e.g., United States v. Warren, 772 F.2d 827 (CA11 1985); United States v. Mussry, 726 F.2d 1448 (CA9 1984); United States v. Ingalls, 73 F. Supp. 76 (SD Cal.1947). One presumes these methods of coercion would not reappear with such depressing regularity if they were ineffective.” Id.

All those coercive techniques happened to PLAINTIFF in the Sections of Narcoterrorism and Pravus Pravda (at least from 2006 through 2023) and those coercive techniques that were all undertaken against PLAINTIFF and those techniques had never stopped being a part of PLAINTIFF’S life in the entire 34 years he lived on this earth..

United States v. Kozminski, 487 U.S. 931 (1988) continued: “The solution, however, lies not in ignoring those forms of coercion that are perhaps less universal in their effect than physical or legal coercion, but in focusing on the "slave-like" conditions of servitude Congress most clearly intended to eradicate. That the statute prohibits "involuntary servitude," rather than "involuntary service," provides no small insight into the central evil the statute unambiguously aimed to eliminate. For "servitude" generally denotes a relation of complete domination and lack of personal liberty resembling the conditions in which slaves were held prior to the Civil War. Thus, in 1910 and 1949, Webster's defined "servitude" as the "[c]ondition of a slave; slavery; serfdom; bondage; state of compulsory subjection to a master. . . .” Id.

“In French and English Colonies of the 17th and 18th centuries, the condition of transported or colonial laborers who, under contract or by custom, rendered service with temporary and limited loss of political and personal liberty.” Id. PLAINTIFF was transported by the American Government rendered service with a loss of political and personal liberty in the process.

“Webster's New International Dictionary of the English Language. And in 1913 and 1944, Funk and Wagnalls defined "servitude" as "[t]he condition of a slave; a state of subjection to a master or to arbitrary power of any kind," and cited the same colonial practice. Funk and Wagnalls, New Standard Dictionary of the English Language. Our cases have expressed the same understanding." The word servitude is of larger meaning than slavery, as the latter is popularly understood in this country, and the obvious purpose was to forbid all shades and conditions of African slavery." Slaughter-House Cases, 16 Wall. 36, 83 U. S. 69 (1873). "[T]he term involuntary servitude was intended to cover those forms of compulsory labor akin to African slavery which, in practical operation, would tend to produce like undesirable results."

Do you know who argued that the State Department’s and White House’s power was arbitrary in which Congress couldn’t do anything because State and WH kept evading the limits that would have prevented arbitrary power from happening and the Courts would defer to State and WH? HAROLD KOH did before he approved “trade is in the offing.”

“I thus conclude that whatever irresolvable ambiguity there may be in determining (for forms of coercion less universal than physical or legal coercion) the degree of coercion Congress would have regarded as sufficient to render any resulting labor "involuntary" within the meaning of §

1584, Congress clearly intended to encompass coercion of any form that actually succeeds in reducing the victim to a condition of servitude resembling that in which slaves were held before the Civil War. While no one factor is dispositive, complete domination over all aspects of the victim's life, oppressive working and living conditions, and lack of pay or personal freedom are the hallmarks of that slave-like condition of servitude. Focusing on such a slave-like condition not only accords with the type of servitude Congress unambiguously intended to eliminate, but also comports well with the policies behind the statute, for the concern that coerced laborers will be unable to relieve themselves from harsh work conditions by changing employers is less likely to be implicated if that laborer has a normal job with time off, personal freedom, and some money, and has contact with other people.” Id.

Do you know who had complete domination over all aspects of the PLAINTIFF’S life and subjected and knowingly allowed PLAINTIFF to be subject to oppressive working and living conditions in which PLAINTIFF did not see even a dime of the $14,900,000,000+ DEFENDANTS made off of him? American Intel, White House, British Intel, Britain, Qatar, India, and Indian Intel—that is the hallmark of slave like condition of servitude.

Do you know who even the State Department said in March 2010 had a problem with human trafficking, routinely exploited the indentured,²⁷⁰ and had the police/intelligence apparatus engage in extrajudicial killings of people in custody and committed acts of torture and rape by police/intelligence? INDIA. This will come up again in An Anchor and a Pitchfork.

DEFENDANTS all knew. They absolutely did not give a single fuck.

United States v. Kozminski, 487 U.S. 931 (1988) continued: “Because the coercive impact of legal or physical coercion is less individualized than other forms of coercion, we need be less concerned about selective or arbitrary enforcement; and the defendant who intentionally employs physical or legal means to coerce labor has fair notice his acts may be criminal. The ambiguity justifying a restrictive reading is, moreover, not present when the means of coercion are those at the heart of the institution of slavery, and it seems clear that Congress would have regarded a victim working under a legal or physical threat as serving in a condition of servitude, however limited in time or scope. In sum, I conclude that § 1584 reaches cases where the defendant intentionally coerced the victim's labor by the use or threat of legal or physical means or the defendant intentionally coerced the victim into a slave-like condition of servitude by other forms of coercion or by rendering the defendant incapable of rational choice. I therefore concur in the judgment.”

Just in case things go sideways in which DoD and American Intel argue it was part of the selective service. NO. PLAINTIFF does not disagree that CONGRESS and POTUS have the power to raise armies nor does he disagree there is a right to call an army into existence counting alone upon the willingness of the citizen to do his duty in time of public need, that is, in time of war. That is all fine and well, where PLAINTIFF draws the line is that not once was PLAINTIFF ever notified he was officially undertaking missions on behalf of the DoD. Say beyond some stretch of the imagination that PLAINTIFF was somehow in the military during Sewanee. PLAINTIFF doesn't disagree with the notion that compelled military service is neither repugnant to a free government nor in conflict with the constitutional guaranties of individual liberty. Indeed, it may not be doubted that the very conception of a just government and its duty to the citizen includes the duty of the citizen to render military service in case of need, and the right of the government to compel it. PLAINTIFF is fine with the line. What PLAINTIFF is not fine with is if DoD conducted operations against PLAINTIFF in which PLAINTIFF was not made aware of the operation being undertaken against him. PLAINTIFF is going to look at some Army Manuals later, but PLAINTIFF doesn't believe the Army field manual would allow the United States Government to commit an act of international and domestic terrorism against their own soldier in which they would benefit $14,900,000,000 of that one act and all the future additional derivative proceeds from that.

It would be such an intolerable, incomprehensible, and completely unconstitutional argument that the United States Government be allowed to commit mail and wire fraud against PLAINTIFF and then force PLAINTIFF to labor for them, fraudulently conceal the value of his work from 2011 through the present moment, and then the United States Government themselves be allowed to utilize civil asset forfeiture and seize the value of the work that was fraudulently concealed by the United States Government. Even if it could be argued that there was a taking, PLAINTIFF never got just compensation of it.

Statute of Limitations Issues:

PLAINTIFF is filing his case in 2023 and “trade is in the offing” occurred in 2011, which puts PLAINTIFF out of the statute of limitations by two years. The key important facts are the following:

When PLAINTIFF left London-Heathrow, eventually got to Chicago, and from Chicago, ended up back in Sewanee, that is when PLAINTIFF decided to take a gander about the possible visa issue. What the true nature of the visa is about is the fact that it was just a giant red herring to keep PLAINTIFF distracted. All PLAINTIFF could have understood at the time concerning the ‘fraud’ of “trade is in the offing” was the allegation he had been denied continuing his flight on Qatar Airways because of an alleged visa issue red herring. That means Qatar Airways had PLAINTIFF'S school email account at kotevmm0@sewanee.edu or another one of PLAINTIFF'S email accounts and PLAINTIFF'S cell phone number which has not changed from 2008 (to the best of his recollection). In Qatar Airways system, what would have shown up is that PLAINTIFF bought tickets from London to India. PLAINTIFF listed his American address on the ticket and used an American passport. So PLAINTIFF purchased the tickets on Qatar Airways' website most likely than not (though there is a possibility it was a fabricated CIA website). PLAINTIFF probably had to put his passport number on the tickets he purchased on Qatar Airways' website. Now PLAINTIFF has no idea how Qatar Airways website system worked back then but wouldn't there be an alert system signifying to Qatar Airways prior to PLAINTIFF'S check-in at least the day before that PLAINTIFF was not clear to fly because of a visa issue? It would strike PLAINTIFF as most peculiar that the status of PLAINTIFF'S visa issues was only determinable in a post 9/11 world only at the exact time PLAINTIFF presented himself to the Qatar Airways check-in counter at London Heathrow airport and the Qatar Airways representative checked in PLAINTIFF in London when he purchased the tickets at least two weeks before. PLAINTIFF believes he got no email from Qatar Airways informing him of his visa issues any time before departure, but doesn't know for sure. Now PLAINTIFF could understand if the visa issues didn't come up only because he bought his tickets at the ticket counter to India right then and there, but that isn't the case here. So, if Qatar Airways' computer system alerted the Qatar Airways' representative then and only then, why didn't it alert PLAINTIFF or any internal mechanisms inside Qatar Airways any time before? What DEFENDANTS did know is that when PLAINTIFF purchased tickets to go to Europe prior to this, all PLAINTIFF did was put his information and passport number at the time of the sale in which the immigration check point was done at the immigration control point in the airport. Furthermore, it may have necessarily required Indian Intel to convey to Qatar Airways in London PLAINTIFF was not clear to fly.

DEFENDANTS are going to rely on the fact that maybe PLAINTIFF needed a visa, but that is not what the fraud was about and there was no way PLAINTIFF could have understood what the fraud was about in "trade is in the offing." PLAINTIFF searching for the visa was a red herring.

From the DOJ themselves: "Under the Federal doctrine of fraudulent concealment, the statutory limitations period will begin to run when the cause of action is discovered, or should have been discovered, by the exercise of due diligence. What one must plead and show to establish fraudulent concealment depends on the circumstances of each case. In actions not based on fraud, the plaintiff must plead with particularity and show (1) fraudulent concealment by the defendant; (2) the ignorance of the plaintiff as to the cause of action prior to the running of the limitations period before the commencement of the suit; and (3) that once on notice of the possible cause of action, the plaintiff exercised due diligence in discovering the facts of the claim. In actions based on fraud, the plaintiff need not plead fraudulent concealment if the concealment claim is based on the substantive fraud because the defendant is on notice of the fraud claim. When the defendant claims that the statute of limitations bars the suit, the plaintiff must establish the last two aforementioned elements. If the concealment does not involve the substantive fraud, the plaintiff must establish all three elements. For all types of cases, leave to amend is liberally granted with few exceptions."²⁷¹

First off, PLAINTIFF specifically asked the Indian embassy worker about the business visa. Whether a low level employee was manifestly aware of “trade is in the offing” in the Indian Embassy is up for debate; however,

This approach is exemplified by the case of New York v. Hendrickson Bros., Inc., 840 F.2d 1065 (2d Cir. 1988). held that “proof of the conspiracy itself sufficed to prove concealment by the coconspirators.” Id. at 1084. The self-concealing conspiracy approach is thus distinguishable from the other two approaches to fraudulent concealment, which both require a plaintiff to plead explicit acts of concealment carried out by the defendant.

The standard is exemplified by the case of State of Colo. ex rel. Woodard v. Western Paving Const. Co., 630 F.Supp. 206 (D. Colo. 1986), which involved an alleged bid-rigging conspiracy among highway construction companies. The court explicitly drew a line between “acts of concealment” and “acts taken in carrying out the conspiracy itself,” holding that fraudulent concealment requires that the defendant “[take] affirmative steps in addition to the original wrongdoing.” Id. at 210. (Emphasis added).

The court listed several acts that it considered to be part of the conspiracy itself: an executive’s nondisclosure of the existence of the conspiracy to employees not involved with the conspiracy, the submission of a bid giving the appearance of regularity in the bidding process, and the creation by an employee of a secret competitor contact list for purposes of coordinating bidding.

In a Louisiana unconscionability case, Succession of Molaison, 34 So. 2d 897 (La. 1948), the main point of the case was that a very disabled plaintiff was given a false belief about a certain transaction that was worth far more to the plaintiff than plaintiff could have ever understood at the time. The plaintiff. When the transaction happened, plaintiff testified that she did not know the value of the transaction. There was a judge who knew about the plaintiff in which “Judge Edwards did not explain to plaintiff her rights or the value of the [transaction]. Judge Edwards admits that he did not explain to her what her interests [were valued in the transaction]. He also admits that he did not show her the will or tell her the value of the [transaction]. She testified in effect that she relied on Judge Edwards to look after her interest in the matter. As we view Judge Edwards' testimony, he was evidently relying on the information he had received from the deceased and what [third parties] had told him. He did not discuss with the plaintiff her interests or inform her of the value of the [transaction]. He was evidently acting for the [the third party], because he could not be the attorney for opposing parties... At the time it was signed no inquiry was made of the plaintiff to ascertain whether she understood her rights or the effect of the instrument she was signing... The plaintiff testified that shortly thereafter she heard rumors to the effect that she had been defrauded of her rights. Upon hearing these rumors, she went to one of the attorneys representing her in this case and secured his services to investigate the matter for her... It appears that the attorney made several attempts to see the instrument and after being referred back and forth without avail, the attorney then brought proceedings in the court and secured an order and it was only after the instrument had been produced by order of court that he had an opportunity to see its contents.” Id.

The Court highlighted how the woman who had directed the transactions to be undertaken by her single act (i.e. death in this case and Hillary in “the offing”) that there was no doubt in the court’s mind that the woman who had directed the transactions did not want the plaintiff to participate in the transaction. At least in Molinson, the court noted how if the plaintiff displeased [the woman who directed the transactions] that she would receive nothing in which the plaintiff received something meaningful based on her financial circumstances. The court said: “It must be borne in mind that the plaintiff did not voluntarily go to the notary and the witnesses to pass the act and that, at the time it was passed, there was no inquiry made of the plaintiff to ascertain whether or not she understood her rights in the premises, or the import of the instrument she signed. The testimony of the notary and the two witnesses undoubtedly corroborates the plaintiff’s testimony and they are disinterested witnesses. The notary would not state that the plaintiff understood the act. One of the witnesses states that the plaintiff, when requested to sign the instrument, said, “I suppose so.” While the plaintiff was under the impression that Judge Edwards was representing her interests, it was error on her part because Judge Edwards could not represent her and those opposed to her interests at that time. In view of all the facts and the hasty manner and the circumstances prevailing at the time that the instrument was executed without the plaintiff having the advice of an attorney, this instrument should be annulled and set aside and the parties placed back in the position they occupied before it was executed. All the parties involved in this suit, except the plaintiff, have had extensive business experience and the plaintiff has had practically none. It may be that much was taken for granted when it was executed, but this does not relieve the situation because the plaintiff had a decided inferior mental capacity to the other parties.” Id. The Court ruled in the plaintiff’s favor in Succession of Molaison, 34 So. 2d 897 (La. 1948).

"The doctrine of unconscionability is used by the courts to protect those who are unable to protect themselves and to prevent injustice, both in consumer and nonconsumer areas... [U]nequal bargaining powers and the absence of a meaningful choice on the part of one of the parties, together with contract terms which unreasonably favor the other party, may spell out unconscionability." (Seabrook v Commuter Housing Co., 72 Misc.2d 6, 10-11; Frostifresh Corp. v Reynoso, 54 Misc.2d 119.) In this case, the defendant had a limited knowledge of the English language and no knowledge of the technical or legal tools of English. The plaintiff never provided an interpreter to explain the contract. The bargaining positions, therefore, were unequal. The defendant was and is, under these facts, unable to protect himself. Since he cannot protect himself, the court must protect him and thus this court declares the contract unconscionable and a nullity." Brooklyn Union Gas v. Jimenez, 82 Misc. 2d 948 (N.Y. Civ. Ct. 1975). PLAINTIFF, for all intents and purposes, did not know of the DC Double Speak and he may as well have been an immigrant from a foreign country in DC when DC Double Speak was actively happening and ongoing. DEFENDANTS never provided PLAINTIFF an interpreter how to understand the DC Double Speak nor provided PLAINTIFF information about “trade is in the offing.” The bargaining positions between Hillary Clinton & Harold Koh and PLAINTIFF were completely unequal and PLAINTIFF was not able to protect himself. If there is a contract, PLAINTIFF should be compensated for his work and DEFENDANTS are currently in breach of their contract by forcing PLAINTIFF to work for them without pay.

Now that the commercial activity under FSIA argument has been made, Let's grant arguendo "trade is in the offing" is a state act or decision.

Undoubtedly, the purpose of Defendants CBN and RN's alleged scheme was to defraud Plaintiffs (and perhaps Defendants Brown and Tomicich), and steal from them. Southway v. Central Bank of Nigeria, 198 F.3d 1210, 1217 (10th Cir. 1999)

2(A)XX: America's Political Purpose: Beyond Jurisdiction and Counterterrorism Jurisdiction and Precedent.

PLAINTIFF argued terrorism in the Chapter. So, terrorism could be done for political means and ideology that affected the course and conduct of government, which brings up a very important case on point. PLAINTIFF is intentionally, slightly, altering the vocabulary about a case because he doesn't want to be prejudiced by the case without the court understanding what PLAINTIFF is getting at by choosing that case. An action arose when there was an international act of terrorism committed against an American that was traveling somewhere else and had made a temporary stop at the location. The Plaintiffs in the case alleged that the foreign government at issue was liable for damages from the attack because it provided material support and assistance to the actors that undertook the act in which the organization's operatives planned and carried out the attack. The Plaintiffs in the case brought an action pursuant to the Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act ("FSIA"), inter alia, 28 U.S.C. § 1605(a)(7), which established subject matter jurisdiction for personal injury from acts of state-sponsored terrorism. The Court ruled in favor of the Plaintiffs finding DEFENDANTS liable for an international act of terrorism under these slightly altered facts in a certain case that PLAINTIFF will reveal below so that the Court could assess the reasonability of PLAINTIFF'S argument in light of a known case in which 95% of the facts are the same and are material in which any facts not included were immaterial so that the Court can be objective in evaluating PLAINTIFF'S claim.

PLAINTIFF is not going to say Individual 1's name as that would necessarily prejudice the claim.²⁷² "Individual 1 "relocated to a foreign country in the early 1990s, where he was welcomed by their President. Individual 1 lived in the foreign country from the early 1990s until the middle of the middle of the 1990s, when he was expelled from the country under international pressure. The President of the host country and Individual 1 shared a common ideological outlook. The President, who was dean at the foreign country's law school at one time, envisioned some balance to counteract a different individual's rights via powers granted militarily, economically, and politically. As the de facto leader, the President sought to impose a specific type of law, as the only source of law, a goal shared by Individual 1. Individual 1 agreed to help the President in the regime's ongoing war against a "Christian separatist" in the South (cough University of the South), and to invest the country's infrastructure. In exchange, the President provided Individual 1 with a sanctuary with complete legal immunity in the country within which it could freely meet, organize, and train individuals for operations such as an operation undertaken against a Christian "separatist" in the South."²⁷³

The Court in holding DEFENDANTS responsible for providing material support to a terrorist activity documented how: "Individual 1 established several joint business ventures with the Country's government that began to flourish [in which his company would regularly interact with the Country's government]. A State Department report highlighted that Individual 1 "formed symbiotic business relationships with wealthy [government] members by undertaking civil infrastructure development projects on the [country's] behalf." Individual 1's businesses in the country included 1) a company that built a highway and the country's modern international airport; (2) another construction company specializing in infrastructure to the country and a different modern international airport near a port city; (3) An import-export firm, along with a different company, that had cooperation of prominent government officials in which they secured a near monopoly over a country's exports; and 4) a real estate holding company that had large tracts of land near the capital and different parts of the foreign country. These businesses provided income to Individual 1, as well providing cover for the procurement of technical equipment and for the travel of Individual 1's employees. Even after leaving, Individual 1 continued to maintain his substantial business interests and facilities in the country."²⁷⁴

The foreign country enabled the act of terrorism because the Court discussed how "The foreign country allowed its banking institutions (or different institutions) to be used by Individual 1 to launder money or engage in regular commerce. The banking institution received a donation from Individual 1 in the value of approximately $50,000,000 in the 1990s. In the late 1980s, the country developed an institutional system that lacked the rigorous accounting standards or other standards. The lack of scrutiny associated with this system was ideal for Individual 1 because it allowed the group to move large sums of money in support of its operations without detection. Individual 1 couldn't have operated with that degree of freedom and openness if they had not been sanctioned by the central government to do so."²⁷⁵

So what was going on in Washington D.C in 2010 that relates to “the offing.”

Of importance to note is that BARACK OBAMA was going to INDIA on November 5th or 6th, 2010 or so, which means all White House staff knew about INDIA, “is in the offing” because it will be talked about, and any issues arising therefrom. Therefore, BEN RHODES, VALERIE JARRETT, CHERYL MILLS, et. al. can be all included from this moment on. Nothing in the prior emails PLAINTIFF referenced talked about, referenced directly or indirectly, PRESIDENT BARACK OBAMA leading up to 03/11/2011 or his trip to INDIA. It was all about “trade is in the offing.”

On Novmeber 2nd, 2010, DEFENDANTS HUMA ABEDIN, CHERYL MILLS, HILLARY CLINTON in an email/had a meeting that talked about INDIA, talked about “TRIP THREATS,” then talked about “More frequent meetings of EMBASSY emergency action committees in light of threat from parcel bombs” thereby utilizing emergency powers under USA PATRIOT ACT against PLAINTIFF, talked about how “Blackhawk helos will be ready for transfer to India” So the 22 Blackhawk Apache Helicopters were part of the “defense trade is in the offing.” Part of the “defense trade is in the offing” email was that the Indian military would receive Apache Blackhawk helicopters.²⁷⁶ PLAINTIFF believes that based on the article, it was 22 Apache Blackhawk helicopters. The 22 Blackhawk Apache Helicopters deal was made in full approval of Boeing Military Aircraft President Christopher M. Chadwick. What is extremely important later for An Anchor and a Pitchfork is the following: “WHA Costa Rica is reporting border dispute with Nicaragua to OAS.”²⁷⁷ This is the documented connection to An Anchor and a Pitchfork and INDIA and Miki's Tea Party.

31. Assassination and Outlawry.

It is especially forbidden * * * to kill or wound treacherously individuals belonging to the hostile nation or army. [Article 23(b) of the 1907 Hague Regulations][208]

This article is construed as prohibiting assassination, proscription, or outlawry of an enemy, or putting a price upon an enemy's head, as well as offering a reward for an enemy "dead or alive". It does not, however, preclude attacks on individual soldiers or officers of the enemy whether in the zone of hostilities, occupied territory, or elsewhere.

That doesn't seem relevant. But oh no, it is for this section as well as An Anchor and a Pitchfork.

Enter the three stooges. JOHN BRENNAN, JEH JOHNSON, and HAROLD HONGJU KOH.

ERIC HOLDER: “In the face of a threat so grave, we cannot afford to be passive. Rather, we need the benefit of investigative and prosecutorial tools that allow us to be preemptive in our approach to confronting this problem,” Holder said... “If we wait for our nations’ citizens to travel to Syria or Iraq, to become radicalized and to return home, it may be too late to adequately protect our national security,” he said. Holder called for a four-part approach to the problem, urging all countries to emulate the U.S. in adopting laws against conspiracy and enabling better undercover operations. In what has been a sticking point for some countries, he urged each nation to share traveler information through Interpol, the international police organization. Holder also urged an emphasis on community outreach. “We must seek to stop individuals from becoming radicalized in the first place by putting in place strong programs to counter violent extremism in its earliest stages,” Holder said.”²⁷⁸

Second, to talk about HAROLD HONGJU KOH.

On June 24th, 2009, the senate confirmed HAROLD HONGJU KOH to be a legal adviser to the State Department in the Obama Administration and a senior legal adviser to the Secretary of State, HILLARY CLINTON. HAROLD HONGJU KOH wrote a book entitled: Transnational Legal Problems (with Harry Steiner and Detlev Vagts, Foundation Press, 1994). PLAINTIFF doesn’t even have to read it and knows it involves issues of national jurisdiction. HAROLD HONGJU KOH left the State Department on December 12, 2012.

HAROLD HONGJU KOH made the argument and identified three elements that the United States Government considers when determining whether to authorize a specific targeted drone killing. What is a drone? It is a thing that can fly over national boundaries, lands in foreign countries, departs from foreign countries, or does activity within a foreign country--there seems to be some sort of apt relevant factual metaphor here.

What is a thing that can depart from the United States, flies over land, seas, and oceans, transcends national borders, does things in a foreign country, comes back home, and can involve counterterrorism and terrorism. HHHHHMMMMMMMM. HHHHHMMMMMMMM.

PLANES

HAROLD HONGJU KOH made an argument that identified three elements that the United States considers when determining whether to authorize a specific targeted drone killing:

- Imminence of the threat
- Sovereignty of other States involved; and
- Willingness and ability of those States to suppress the threat the target poses.

²⁷⁸ <https://www.latimes.com/world/middleeast/la-fg-holder-syria-terrorism-20140707-story.html>

Now before DoD and American Intel freaks “the fuck out” and tries to assassinate PLAINTIFF because PLAINTIFF has the right to challenge this, but PLAINTIFF says to them slow your roll, calm down, and please don’t do that because PLAINTIFF doesn’t pose an imminent threat to America. PLAINTIFF is trying to show some good faith here by not challenging it completely, PLAINTIFF is just asking for the admittance it wasn’t appropriate in PLAINTIFF’S utilization and that there should be some lines drawn in the law to prevent its future abuse against Americans on American soil. That’s all.

As HAROLD HONGJU KOH argued, “he concluded that the existence of this “ongoing armed conflict” grants legal authority to the United States to protect its citizens through the use of force, including lethal force, as a matter of self-defense...He reiterated the widely accepted conceptualization of an “organized terrorist enemy” as one that does not have conventional forces. Instead, such an enemy plan and executes its attacks while hiding among civilian populations, he said. As such, “that behavior simultaneously makes the application of international law more difficult and more critical for the protection of innocent civilians.”²⁷⁹

HAROLD HONGJU KOH stated that “the “rules” of targeting operations used by the United States are consistent with principles under the laws of war. He cited two well-known principles that govern the State’s use of force during an armed conflict: distinction and proportionality. These principles are designed to protect civilians once armed conflict has begun. They are recognized under customary international law as part of jus in bello (conduct during war). Yet, Koh omitted any reference to the role of distinction and proportionality in assessing the third principle of military necessity. He provided the well-established legal rules related to the two principles:

- Distinction
Requires that attacks be limited to military objectives and that civilians or civilian objects shall not be the object of the attack.
- Proportionality
Prohibits attacks that may be expected to cause incidental loss of civilian life, injury to civilians, damage to civilian objects, or a combination thereof, that would be excessive in relation to the concrete and direct military advantage anticipated.

Koh said that the United States adheres to these standards and that the United States takes great care in the “planning and execution to ensure that only legitimate objectives are targeted and that collateral damage is kept to a minimum.”²⁸⁰

It is not so bad in a lot of respects. Gotta keep the country safe, fine, PLAINTIFF agrees. PLAINTIFF can understand, but when you have PLAINTIFF’S history and ERIC HOLDER, JOHN BRENNAN, JEH JOHNSON making comments like these, there is a constitutional and legal line that is crossed that is not acceptable:

ERIC HOLDER said: “The unfortunate reality is that our nation will likely continue to face terrorist threats that at times originate with our own citizens,” Holder said in prepared text

²⁷⁹ https://www.insidejustice.com/intl/2010/03/27/asil_koh_drone_war_law/

²⁸⁰ https://www.insidejustice.com/intl/2010/03/27/asil_koh_drone_war_law/

released by the Justice Department. "When such individuals take up arms against this country and join al-Qaida in plotting attacks designed to kill their fellow Americans there may be only one realistic and appropriate response. We must take steps to stop them in full accordance with the Constitution. In this hour of danger, we simply cannot afford to wait until deadly plans are carried out -- and we will not... "Any decision to use lethal force against a United States citizen - even one intent on murdering Americans and who has become an operational leader of al-Qaida in a foreign land -- is among the gravest that government leaders can face," Holder said. "The American people can be -- and deserve to be -- assured that actions taken in their defense are consistent with their values and their laws.""²⁸¹

So this necessarily brings up Peachy Miami, Sewanee Sabotage, and Victoria Flight. Now let me give you the facts of the situation. In one of those, a woman comes completely out of the blue never to be seen again in which she asks PLAINTIFF what are some ways to stop a plane in which PLAINTIFF provides facts and tells her not to do it; GRIFFIN FRY induced Peachy Miami in which the DOJ and American Intel utilize perjured testimony, omitted facts, and used fabricated material against PLAINTIFF in Court and on warrants that SCOTUS subsequently covered up, and Sewanee Sabotage is about when PLAINTIFF gave an example of sabotage on campus in fighting back against false accusations in which American Intel and DOJ in which SEWANEE PD necessarily fabricated materially false evidence to support their accusation against PLAINTIFF and furthered RICO Enterprise 1. This should give some fucking pause about how unjust it was, but nonetheless continuing on with ERIC HOLDER:

"To these ends, the President has approved, and senior members of the Executive Branch have briefed to the Congress, written policy standards and procedures that formalize and strengthen the Administration's rigorous process for reviewing and approving operations to capture or employ lethal force against terrorist targets outside the United States and outside areas of active hostilities."²⁸² What the rigorous process was that American Intel DEFENDANTS utilized against PLAINTIFF was framing and fabricating materially false evidence to sustain convictions in Court to coverup how they furthered RICO Enterprise 1. Their rigorous processes for reviewing and approving operations were not rigorous, for if it was, it would have necessarily caught legal fraud in which American Intel would have apologized directly to PLAINTIFF. BUT THEY NEVER DID.

Maybe WARWICK ALLEN, to be discussed in An Anchor and a Pitchfork, was a foreign friendly New Zealand spy that worked on behalf of the United States as a member of 5 Eyes which is now a distinct possibility. That being said, WARWICK ALLEN and PLAINTIFF, to the best of PLAINTIFF'S recollection, actually watched this John Brennan clip in Fall 2014/Spring 2015. Either way, PLAINTIFF remembers watching it at least once, if not twice or more, prior to watching the clip again in August 2023, when John Brennan discussed the following at the Wilson Center on April 30th, 2012: (a year and a month after Miki's Tea Party)

“[Obama] said that we would carry on this fight while upholding the laws and our values, and that we would work with allies and partners whenever possible. But he also made it clear that he would not hesitate to use military force against terrorists who pose a direct threat to America. And he said that if he had actionable intelligence about high-value terrorist targets, including in Pakistan, he would act to protect the American people... And we have seen lone individuals, including American citizens, often inspired by al-Qaida’s murderous ideology, kill innocent Americans and seek to do us harm. It is a direct result of intense efforts made over more than a decade, across two administrations, across the U.S. government and in concert with allies and partners. This includes the comprehensive counterterrorism strategy being directed by President Obama, a strategy guided by the President’s highest responsibility, to protect the safety and the security of the American people. In this fight, we are harnessing every element of American power: intelligence, military, diplomatic, development, economic, financial, law enforcement, homeland security, and the power of our values, including our commitment to the rule of law. That’s why, for instance, in his first days in office, President Obama banned the use of enhanced interrogation techniques, which are not needed to keep our country safe. Staying true to our values as a nation also includes upholding the transparency upon which our democracy depends.”

So, DoD was utilized force against PLAINTIFF because of Peachy Miami, Victoria Flight, and Sewanee Sabotage and that is where JEH JOHNSON and PLAINTIFF intersect. What if that actionable intelligence is pure fabrication against someone, like PLAINTIFF in which legal fraud was perpetuated against PLAINTIFF? Do you see the caveat in the following sentence: “we have seen lone individuals, including American citizens, often inspired by al-Qaida’s murderous ideology, kill innocent Americans and seek to do us harm.” So there are lone Americans, who have not been inspired by Al-Qaida’s ideology, that have been framed by CIA and American Intel utilizing fabricated narratives in which they alleged that an American had an intent to kill. This is too close for comfort and applies to plaintiff in the respect of plans (and not actual murder because PLAINTIFF never murdered anyone). Do you know what is a result of intense efforts made across the United States Government and in concert with foreign allies and partners like India, Qatar, and Britain? THE OFFING. This is actually supported when JOHN BRENNAN elaborates further: there is counterterrorism strategy being directed by President Obama. Next, the previous allegations are true and everything PLAINTIFF alleged earlier is true because JOHN BRENNAN said: “we are harnessing every element of American power: intelligence, military, diplomatic, development, economic, financial, law enforcement, homeland security...” So American Intel harnessed with DoD that worked with foreign diplomats in England, Qatar, and India, development (i.e. PLAINTIFF) and “a rare development” in trade in which CIA/American Intel relied upon the materially fabricated False Identification in which perjured testimony and RICO predicate acts were necessarily relied upon to allege that PLAINTIFF would commit a specific plan in a specific place and use local law enforcement to booster the credibility of the false fabrication in which it was done under the auspices of DHS’ jurisdiction in DULLES. Do carry on JOHN O. BRENNAN, director of the CIA after LEON PANETTA who rejoined DoD on PLAINTIFF’S birthday on 4/28 and was part of Clintons’ Friends.

“A few months after taking office, the president travelled to the National Archives where he discussed how national security requires a delicate balance between secrecy and transparency. He pledged to share as much information as possible with the American people “so that they can make informed judgments and hold us accountable.” He has consistently encouraged those of us on his national security team to be as open and candid as possible as well. Earlier this year, Attorney General Holder discussed how our counterterrorism efforts are rooted in, and are strengthened by, adherence to the law, including the legal authorities that allow us to pursue members of al-Qaida, including U.S. citizens, and to do so using technologically advanced weapons... Stephen Preston, the general counsel at the CIA, has discussed how the agency operates under U.S. law.”²⁸³ PLAINTIFF was not shared a single piece of information in the “offing” and PLAINTIFF absolutely did not make an informed judgment. Thanks for proving JOHN BRENNAN lies. Can American Intel after reading everything above say that they adhered to the law and legal authorities? PLAINTIFF says Nay Nay! PLAINTIFF alleges that Stephen Preston did not read a single constitutional law book. Carrying On.

“These speeches build on a lecture two years ago by Harold Koh, the State Department legal adviser, who noted that “U.S. targeting practices, including lethal operations conducted with the use of unmanned aerial vehicles, comply with all applicable law, including the laws of war.” Given these efforts, I venture to say that the United States government has never been so open regarding its counterterrorism policies and their legal justification. Still, there continues to be considerable public and legal debate surrounding these technologies and how they are sometimes used in the fight against al-Qaida.”²⁸⁴ Sometimes they are only used against Al Qaeda, who else did they do it to? The ‘offing’ in Miki’s Tea Party. PLAINTIFF alleges that based on JOHN BRENNAN’S statements that LEON PANETTA, JEH JOHNSON, and HAROLD KOH were integral parties in “the offing.” Carrying on.

“I think the American people expect us to use advanced technologies, for example, to prevent attacks on U.S. forces and to remove terrorists from the battlefield. We do, and it has saved the lives of our men and women in uniform. What has clearly captured the attention of many, however, is a different practice, beyond hot battlefields like Afghanistan, identifying specific members of al-Qaida and then targeting them with lethal force, often using aircraft remotely operated by pilots who can be hundreds, if not thousands, of miles away. And this is what I want to focus on today. Jack Goldsmith, a former assistant attorney general in the administration of George W. Bush and now a professor at Harvard Law School, captured the situation well. He wrote: “The government needs a way to credibly convey to the public that its decisions about who is being targeted, especially when the target is a U.S. citizen, are sound. First, the government can and should tell us more about the process by which it reaches its high-value targeting decisions. The more the government tells us about the eyeballs on the issue and the robustness of the process, the more credible will be its claims about the accuracy of its factual determinations and the soundness of its legal ones. All of this information can be disclosed in some form without endangering critical intelligence.”

So lets see: American Intel harnessed their powers in conjunction with DoD that worked with foreign diplomats in England, Qatar, and India in which RICO predicate acts were necessarily relied upon to falsely allege that PLAINTIFF would commit a specific plan in a specific place and use local law enforcement like British Intel to booster the credibility of the false fabrication in which it was done under the auspices of DHS' jurisdiction in DULLES and British Intel's in HEATHROW in which American Intel identifies a specific member who can be a U.S. Citizen and targeted him by using aircraft operated by pilots who can be hundreds, if not thousands, of miles away from Washington DC. Carrying on the next part of the speech:

²⁸³ <https://www.wilsoncenter.org/event/the-efficacy-and-ethics-us-counterterrorism-strategy>

“Well, President Obama agrees.” Case closed.

JOHN BRENNAN continued: “And that is why I am here today. I stand here as someone who has been involved with our nation’s security for more than 30 years. I have a profound appreciation for the truly remarkable capabilities of our counterterrorism professionals, and our relationships with other nations, and we must never compromise them. I will not discuss the sensitive details of any specific operation today. I will not, nor will I ever, publicly divulge sensitive intelligence sources and methods. For when that happens, our national security is endangered and lives can be lost. At the same time, we reject the notion that any discussion of these matters is to step onto a slippery slope that inevitably endangers our national security. Too often, that fear can become an excuse for saying nothing at all, which creates a void that is then filled with myths and falsehoods. That, in turn, can erode our credibility with the American people and with foreign partners, and it can undermine the public’s understanding and support for our efforts. In contrast, President Obama believes that done carefully, deliberately and responsibly we can be more transparent and still ensure our nation’s security.”²⁸⁵

Too bad American Intel DEFENDANTS compromised PLAINTIFF in which they may or may not have damaged their own institutions by furthering RICO Enterprise 1 in the process. Thank you John Brennan for confirming that American Intel and British Intel Defendants intentionally failed to inform PLAINTIFF anything of “the offing” plan that was utilized against him thereby committing mail and wire fraud in the process. “Fear can become an excuse for saying nothing at all” did American Intel fear the truth involving PLAINTIFF and not inform him of anything or accept the truth of the facts. No falsehoods here, just truth. Thank You JOHN BRENNAN for confirming the deliberate and intentional acts of BARACK OBAMA. Carrying on.

“First, these targeted strikes are legal. Attorney General Holder, Harold Koh, and Jeh Johnson have all addressed this question at length. To briefly recap, as a matter of domestic law, the Constitution empowers the president to protect the nation from any imminent threat of attack. The Authorization for Use of Military Force, the AUMF, passed by Congress after the September 11th attacks authorized the president “to use all necessary and appropriate forces” against those nations, organizations, and individuals responsible for 9/11. There is nothing in the AUMF that restricts the use of military force against al-Qaida to Afghanistan.

²⁸⁵ <https://www.wilsoncenter.org/event/the-efficacy-and-ethics-us-counterterrorism-strategy>

As a matter of international law, the United States is in an armed conflict with al-Qaida, the Taliban, and associated forces, in response to the 9/11 attacks, and we may also use force consistent with our inherent right of national self-defense. There is nothing in international law that bans the use of remotely piloted aircraft for this purpose or that prohibits us from using lethal force against our enemies outside of an active battlefield, at least when the country involved consents or is unable or unwilling to take action against the threat.

Second, targeted strikes are ethical. Without question, the ability to target a specific individual, from hundreds or thousands of miles away, raises profound questions. Here, I think it's useful to consider such strikes against the basic principles of the law of war that govern the use of force."²⁸⁶

"Without question," there goes American Intel and DOJ again stifling dissent. PLAINTIFF has a question: "is it in accordance of the laws of America to further RICO Enterprise 1 on materially false fabrications against an American that poses no actual imminent threat to the United States and is completely out of proportion to anything that American has ever done in his life, in which American Intel's review process completely omitted legal fraud and truth in their decision to target that American in the United Kingdom with the consent of UK, India, and Qatar in which $14,900,000,000 would be made? The previous 200+ pages might disagree with JOHN BRENNAN.

"Targeted strikes conform to the principle of necessity, the requirement that the target have definite military value. In this armed conflict, individuals who are part of al-Qaida or its associated forces are legitimate military targets."

How did the strike against PLAINTIFF conform to any principle of necessity? Was the necessity in furthering RICO Enterprise 1? What substantial steps did PLAINTIFF take? What materials did he buy? The specific imminent plans PLAINTIFF had when he messaged Suresh on Facebook on February 27th, 2011 just a few days before March 10th, 2011 are the following:

"I would arrive on the 9th and return back home on the 16th/17th. I have done some research and would love to see somethings. Places I would love to see: Jama Masjid Sabarmati ashram of Mahatma Gandhi Swaminarayan Temple Sidi Sayed Mosque Jhulta Minara Adalaj Step-Well But the main thing is to experience the people, experience new ideas, experiencing the great things that made you, you. The simplitude of rural Tennessee, as lovely as it sometimes, does not help me understand truth further. I really do hope you have the time to allow me to come visit you, please let me know if you would enjoy my company. I really cannot thank you enough, Miki."

What terrorist plan did PLAINTIFF exhibit? If we are talking about Victoria's Flight, even if we grant American Intel their completely misleading claim about Victoria's Flight, what part of the message above conveyed PLAINTIFF had intended on stopping the flight? There is a specific arrival date and a specific date to return home. Is visiting a temple now considered terrorist activity? Is experiencing the people of India now considered terrorist acts? What terrorist camp was PLAINTIFF going to? What foreign allegiance did PLAINTIFF declare? Is experiencing new ideas now terrorism? Ironical PLAINTIFF talks about wanting to understand truth further, maybe JOHN BRENNAN, JEH JOHNSON, LEON PANETTA, HILLARY CLINTON, HAROLD KOH, American Intel, British Intel, Indian Intel should have picked up on the cue, but they did not. Actually there is an inference that American Intel and Indian Intel were sabotaging PLAINTIFF'S terrorist plans of experiencing the culture, people, and new ideas (itan) in which PLAINTIFF was prevented from talking to Suresh "Miki Kotevski Wednesday, March 2, 2011 at 7:31pm CST: Suresh! call me back. My cellular service dropped the call..... it is very annoying!!!! I tried calling you, but my service does not allow for it."

Let us have JOHN BRENNAN continue: "With the unprecedented ability of remotely piloted aircraft to precisely target a military objective while minimizing collateral damage, one could argue that never before has there been a weapon that allows us to distinguish more effectively between an al-Qaida terrorist and innocent civilians."²⁸⁷

What the hell is JOHN BRENNAN talking about. Is PLAINTIFF to believe that within every single branch listed in American Intel that every single employee all unanimously arrived to a degree of high confidence that now purchasing plane tickets and having the intent to go to and come back from a place in which you would experience the culture, people, and new ideas is now Al-Qaeda terrorist ideology? CONGRESS appropriated ~~STOLE~~ $368,800,000,000 from the taxpayer to DNI between 2007-2011 in which ALL American Intel DEFENDANTS possessed the complete inability to distinguish the difference between Al-Qaeda terrorism ideology and someone who purchased plane tickets and had the complete specific plan and intent to go to and come back from for the purpose of experiencing the culture, people, and new ideas of a country he had never been to before....

Let me say that again because PLAINTIFF doesn't believe you understood the point: CONGRESS appropriated ~~STOLE~~ $368,800,000,000 from the taxpayer to DNI between 2007-2011 in which not a single American Intel DEFENDANT possessed the ability to distinguish the difference of Al-Qaeda terrorism ideology and someone who purchased plane tickets and had the complete specific plan and intent to go to and come back from a place for the purpose of experiencing the culture, people, and new ideas of a country he had never been to before....Carrying on.

"Targeted strikes conform to the principle of proportionality, the notion that the anticipated collateral damage of an action cannot be excessive in relation to the anticipated military advantage. By targeting an individual terrorist or small numbers of terrorists with ordnance that can be adapted to avoid harming others in the immediate vicinity, it is hard to imagine a tool that can better minimize the risk to civilians than remotely piloted aircraft." So, committing an act of international and domestic terrorism against a PLAINTIFF who had the complete specific plan and intent to go to and come back from a place for the purpose of experiencing the culture, people, and new ideas of a country he had never been to before conforms to the principle of proportionality? Is that right? So here is the thing. American Intel, British Intel, Indian Intel, Qatari Intel, all knew what they were doing. These DEFENDANTS never viewed PLAINTIFF as an American with rights.

“Of course, even if a tool is legal and ethical, that doesn’t necessarily make it appropriate or advisable in a given circumstance.. Targeted strikes are wise. Remotely piloted aircraft in particular can be a wise choice because of geography, with their ability to fly hundreds of miles over the most treacherous terrain, strike their targets with astonishing precision, and then return to base. They can be a wise choice because of time, when windows of opportunity can close quickly and there just may be only minutes to act.”²⁸⁸

PLAINTIFF alleges American Intel, British Intel, Heathrow, Britain, Indian Intel, State, HILLARY CLINTON, India, Qatar were all part of “the offing” in which there was a specific window of opportunity for them in which that quickly closed PLAINTIFF not to be subject to RICO Enterprise 1 and an act of international and domestic terrorism.

“I acknowledge that we, as a government, along with our foreign partners, can and must do a better job of addressing the mistaken belief among some foreign publics that we engage in these strikes casually, as if we are simply unwilling to expose U.S forces to the dangers faced every day by people in those regions. For, as I’ll describe today, there is absolutely nothing casual about the extraordinary care we take in making the decision to pursue an al-Qaida terrorist, and the lengths to which we go to ensure precision and avoid the loss of innocent life. Still, there is no more consequential a decision than deciding whether to use lethal force against another human being, even a terrorist dedicated to killing American citizens. So in order to ensure that our counterterrorism operations involving the use of lethal force are legal, ethical, and wise, President Obama has demanded that we hold ourselves to the highest possible standards and processes.

This reflects his approach to broader questions regarding the use of force. In his speech in Oslo accepting the Nobel Peace Prize, the president said that “all nations, strong and weak alike, must adhere to standards that govern the use of force.” And he added:

“Where force is necessary, we have a moral and strategic interest in binding ourselves to certain rules of conduct. And even as we confront a vicious adversary that abides by no rules, I believe the United States of America must remain a standard bearer in the conduct of war. That is what makes us different from those whom we fight. That is a source of our strength.”

The United States is the first nation to regularly conduct strikes using remotely piloted aircraft in an armed conflict. Other nations also possess this technology, and any more nations are seeking it, and more will succeed in acquiring it. President Obama and those of us on his national security team are very mindful that as our nation uses this technology, we are establishing precedents that other nations may follow, and not all of those nations may -- and not all of them will be nations that share our interests or the premium we put on protecting human life, including innocent civilians.

²⁸⁸ <https://www.wilsoncenter.org/event/the-efficacy-and-ethics-us-counterterrorism-strategy>

If we want other nations to use these technologies responsibly, we must use them responsibly. If we want other nations to adhere to high and rigorous standards for their use, then we must do so as well. We cannot expect of others what we will not do ourselves. President Obama has therefore demanded that we hold ourselves to the highest possible standards, that, at every step, we be as thorough and as deliberate as possible.

This leads me to the final point I want to discuss today, the rigorous standards and process of review to which we hold ourselves today when considering and authorizing strikes against a specific member of al-Qaida outside the hot battlefield of Afghanistan. What I hope to do is to give you a general sense, in broad terms, of the high bar we require ourselves to meet when making these profound decisions today. That includes not only whether a specific member of al-Qaida can legally be pursued with lethal force, but also whether he should be.

Over time, we've worked to refine, clarify, and strengthen this process and our standards, and we continue to do so. If our counterterrorism professionals assess, for example, that a suspected member of al-Qaida poses such a threat to the United States to warrant lethal action, they may raise that individual's name for consideration. The proposal will go through a careful review and, as appropriate, will be evaluated by the very most senior officials in our government for a decision."²⁸⁹

The previous 250+ pages PLAINTIFF elaborated upon shows their rigorous standards and process of review was fraudulent. Did American Intel, White House, British Intel, India, UK, Indian Intel, Qatar, and Qatari intel all reach the decision that it was fair, well considered, included FACTS, and more? No way.

There is a case that PLAINTIFF loves in this complaint: In Re Murchison, 349 U.S. 133 (1955), PLAINTIFF makes the following argument (in Star Chambers) based on the case (but instead of a judge, he is incorporating American Intel leadership): It is impossible for Robert Mueller, Leon Panetta, Harold Koh, Jeh Johnson, etc. to free himself or herself of the influence he or she would obtain in a secret session in which it would ultimately come down to the subject's attitude. Bias that denies Due Process under law is created when it necessarily involves secret sessions in which those DEFENDANTS grow to hate the subject because of a biased and completely fraudulent presentation of the subject's attitude by law enforcement and DOJ in which perjured testimony was used against PLAINTIFF in which they would obtain more power and a minimum of $14,900,000,000."

"First and foremost, the individual must be a legitimate target under the law." Instead of just talking about a legitimate target under the law, how about a legitimate purpose that used actual facts under the law.

"Earlier, I described how the use of force against members of al-Qaida is authorized under both international and U.S. law, including both the inherent right of national self-defense and the 2001 Authorization for Use of Military Force, which courts have held extends to those who are part of al-Qaida, the Taliban, and associated forces. If, after a legal review, we determine that the individual is not a lawful target, end of discussion. We are a nation of laws, and we will always act within the bounds of the law.”²⁹⁰

“Of course, the law only establishes the outer limits of the authority in which counterterrorism professionals can operate. Even if we determine that it is lawful to pursue the terrorist in question with lethal force, it doesn’t necessarily mean we should. There are, after all, literally thousands of individuals who are part of al-Qaida, the Taliban, or associated forces, thousands upon thousands. Even if it were possible, going after every single one of these individuals with lethal force would neither be wise nor an effective use of our intelligence and counterterrorism resources. As a result, we have to be strategic. Even if it is lawful to pursue a specific member of al-Qaida, we ask ourselves whether that individual’s activities rise to a certain threshold for action, and whether taking action will, in fact, enhance our security.”²⁹¹

WHAT WERE THE SPECIFIC ACTS THAT PLAINTIFF DID THAT RAISED A THRESHOLD FOR ACTION. ARTICULATE TO PLAINTIFF WITH DEMONSTRABLE AND TRUE FACTS WHAT SPECIFIC ACTS PLAINTIFF DID THAT RAISED THE THRESHOLD FOR ACTION. PLAINTIFF is not talking about speech as speech is protected. ARTICULATE THE SPECIFIC AND TRUE ACTS. DEFENDANTS CANNOT DO THIS.

“For example, when considering lethal force we ask ourselves whether the individual poses a significant threat to U.S. interests. This is absolutely critical, and it goes to the very essence of why we take this kind of exceptional action. We do not engage in legal action -- in lethal action in order to eliminate every single member of al-Qaida in the world. Most times, and as we have done for more than a decade, we rely on cooperation with other countries that are also interested in removing these terrorists with their own capabilities and within their own laws. Nor is lethal action about punishing terrorists for past crimes; we are not seeking vengeance. Rather, we conduct targeted strikes because they are necessary to mitigate an actual ongoing threat, to stop plots, prevent future attacks, and to save American lives.

And what do we mean when we say significant threat? I am not referring to some hypothetical threat, the mere possibility that a member of al-Qaida might try to attack us at some point in the future. A significant threat might be posed by an individual who is an operational leader of al-Qaida or one of its associated forces. Or perhaps the individual is himself an operative, in the midst of actually training for or planning to carry out attacks against U.S. persons and interests. Or perhaps the individual possesses unique operational skills that are being leveraged in a planned attack. The purpose of a strike against a particular individual is to stop him before he can carry out his attack and kill innocents. The purpose is to disrupt his plans and his plots before they come to fruition.”²⁹²

²⁹⁰ <https://www.wilsoncenter.org/event/the-efficacy-and-ethics-us-counterterrorism-strategy>

ALL AMERICAN INTEL HAD WERE HYPOTHETICAL POSSIBLE THREATS.
That’s it. Nothing else. Nothing more.

“In addition, our unqualified preference is to only undertake lethal force when we believe that capturing the individual is not feasible. I have heard it suggested that the Obama Administration somehow prefers killing al-Qaida members rather than capturing them. Nothing could be further from the truth. It is our preference to capture suspected terrorists whenever and wherever feasible.” AMERICAN INTEL KIDNAPPED PLAINTIFF IN WASHINGTON DC and LONDON.

“For one reason, this allows us to gather valuable intelligence that we might not be able to obtain any other way. In fact, the members of al-Qaida that we or other nations have captured have been one of our greatest sources of information about al-Qaida, its plans, and its intentions. And once in U.S. custody, we often can prosecute them in our federal courts or reformed military commissions, both of which are used for gathering intelligence and preventing future terrorist attacks.”²⁹³

So furthering RICO Enterprise 1 is a justifiable basis in which PLAINTIFF had no articulable or relevant knowledge to American Intel?

“You see our preference for capture in the case of Ahmed Warsame, a member of al-Shabaab who had significant ties to al-Qaida in the Arabian Peninsula. Last year, when we learned that he would be traveling from Yemen to Somalia, U.S. forces captured him in route and we subsequently charged him in federal court.”²⁹⁴

That is called repeat behavior by CIA and American INTEL. PLAINTIFF was accused of no crime, had no actual plots, was literally just studying at a University.

“The reality, however, is that since 2001 such unilateral captures by U.S. forces outside of hot battlefields, like Afghanistan, have been exceedingly rare. This is due in part to the fact that in many parts of the world our counterterrorism partners have been able to capture or kill dangerous individuals themselves. Moreover, after being subjected to more than a decade of relentless pressure, al-Qaida’s ranks have dwindled and scattered. These terrorists are skilled at seeking remote, inhospitable terrain, places where the United States and our partners simply do not have the ability to arrest or capture them. At other times, our forces might have the ability to attempt capture, but only by putting the lives of our personnel at too great a risk. Oftentimes, attempting capture could subject civilians to unacceptable risks. There are many reasons why capture might not be feasible, in which case lethal force might be the only remaining option to address the threat, prevent an attack, and save lives. Finally, when considering lethal force we are of course mindful that there are important checks on our ability to act unilaterally in foreign territories. We do not use force whenever we want, wherever we want.²⁹⁵

Let me repeat what JOHN BRENNAN just said: “We do not use force whenever we want, wherever we want.”²⁹⁶

Yes, JOHN BRENNAN, American DEFENDANTS surely followed the law in Miki's Tea Party.

“International legal principles, including respect for a state’s sovereignty and the laws of war, impose constraints. The United States of America respects national sovereignty and international law. Those are some of the questions we consider; the high standards we strive to meet. And in the end, we make a decision, we decide whether a particular member of al-Qaida warrants being pursued in this manner. Given the stakes involved and the consequences of our decision, we consider all the information available to us, carefully and responsibly. We review the most up-to-date intelligence, drawing on the full range of our intelligence capabilities. And we do what sound intelligence demands, we challenge it, we question it, including any assumptions on which it might be based. If we want to know more, we may ask the intelligence community to go back and collect additional intelligence or refine its analysis so that a more informed decision can be made.”²⁹⁷

²⁹⁶ <https://www.wilsoncenter.org/event/the-efficacy-and-ethics-us-counterterrorism-strategy>

²⁹⁷ <https://www.wilsoncenter.org/event/the-efficacy-and-ethics-us-counterterrorism-strategy>

“We listen to departments and agencies across our national security team. We don’t just hear out differing views, we ask for them and encourage them. We discuss. We debate. We disagree. We consider the advantages and disadvantages of taking action. We also carefully consider the costs of inaction and whether a decision not to carry out a strike could allow a terrorist attack to proceed and potentially kill scores of innocents. Nor do we limit ourselves narrowly to counterterrorism considerations. We consider the broader strategic implications of any action, including what effect, if any, an action might have on our relationships with other countries. And we don’t simply make a decision and never revisit it again. Quite the opposite. Over time, we refresh the intelligence and continue to consider whether lethal force is still warranted.”²⁹⁸

Let me say that again because PLAINTIFF doesn’t believe you understood the point: CONGRESS appropriated ~~STOLE~~ $368,800,000,000 from the taxpayer to DNI between 2007-2011 in which not a single American Intel DEFENDANT possessed the ability to distinguish the difference of Al-Qaeda terrorism ideology and someone who purchased plane tickets and had the complete specific plan and intent to go to and come back from a place for the purpose of experiencing the culture, people, and new ideas of a country he had never been to before....Carrying on.

“In some cases, such as senior al-Qaida leaders who are directing and planning attacks against the United States, the individual clearly meets our standards for taking action. In other cases, individuals have not met our standards. Indeed, there have been numerous occasions where, after careful review, we have, working on a consensus basis, concluded that lethal force was not justified in a given case. As President Obama’s counterterrorism advisor, I feel that it is important for the American people to know that these efforts are overseen with extraordinary care and thoughtfulness. The president expects us to address all of the tough questions I have discussed today. Is capture really not feasible? Is this individual a significant threat to U.S. interests? Is this really the best option? Have we thought through the consequences, especially any unintended ones? Is this really going to help protect our country from further attacks? Is this going to save lives? Our commitment to upholding the ethics and efficacy of this counterterrorism tool continues even after we decide to pursue a specific terrorist in this way. For example, we only authorize a particular operation against a specific individual if we have a high degree of confidence that the individual being targeted is indeed the terrorist we are pursuing. This is a very high bar. Of course, how we identify an individual naturally involves intelligence sources and methods, which I will not discuss. Suffice it to say, our intelligence community has multiple ways to determine, with a high degree of confidence, that the individual being targeted is indeed the al-Qaida terrorist we are seeking.”²⁹⁹

“In addition, we only authorize a strike if we have a high degree of confidence that innocent civilians will not be injured or killed, except in the rarest of circumstances. The unprecedented advances we have made in technology provide us greater proximity to target for a longer period of time, and as a result allow us to better understand what is happening in real time on the ground in ways that were previously impossible. We can be much more discriminating and we can make more informed judgments about factors that might contribute to collateral damage. I can tell you today that there have indeed been occasions when we decided against conducting a strike in order to avoid the injury or death of innocent civilians. This reflects our commitment to doing everything in our power to avoid civilian casualties, even if it means having to come back another day to take out that terrorist, as we have done previously. And I would note that these standards, for identifying a target and avoiding the loss of innocent -- the loss of lives of innocent civilians, exceed what is required as a matter of international law on a typical battlefield. That's another example of the high standards to which we hold ourselves."³⁰⁰

²⁹⁸<https://www.wilsoncenter.org/event/the-efficacy-and-ethics-us-counterterrorism-strategy>

"Ensuring the ethics and efficacy of these strikes also includes regularly informing appropriate members of Congress and the committees who have oversight of our counterterrorism programs. Indeed, our counterterrorism programs, including the use of lethal force, have grown more effective over time because of congressional oversight and our ongoing dialogue with members and staff. This is the seriousness, the extraordinary care, that President Obama and those of us on his national security team bring to this weightiest of questions: Whether to pursue lethal force against a terrorist who is plotting to attack our country.

When that person is a U.S. citizen, we ask ourselves additional questions. Attorney General Holder has already described the legal authorities that clearly allow us to use lethal force against an American citizen who is a senior operational leader of al-Qaida. He has discussed the thorough and careful review, including all relevant constitutional considerations, that is to be undertaken by the U.S. government when determining whether the individual poses an imminent threat of violent attack against the United States.

To recap, the standards and processes I've described today, which we have refined and strengthened over time, reflect our commitment to: ensuring the individual is a legitimate target under the law; determining whether the individual poses a significant threat to U.S. interests; determining that capture is not feasible; being mindful of the important checks on our ability to act unilaterally in foreign territories; having that high degree of confidence, both in the identity of the target and that innocent civilians will not be harmed; and, of course, engaging in additional review if the al-Qaida terrorist is a U.S. citizen.

Going forward, we'll continue to strengthen and refine these standards and processes. As we do, we'll look to institutionalize our approach more formally so that the high standards we set for ourselves endure over time, including as an example for other nations that pursue these capabilities. As the president said in Oslo, in the conduct of war, America must be the standard bearer."³⁰¹

"I would just like to close on a personal note. I know that for many people in our government and across the country the issue of targeted strikes raised profound moral questions. It forces us to confront deeply held personal beliefs and our values as a nation. If anyone in government who works in this area tells you they haven't struggled with this, then they haven't spent much time thinking about it. I know I have, and I will continue to struggle with it as long as I remain in counterterrorism."³⁰²

“Until that finally happens, however, there are still terrorists in hard-to-reach places who are actively planning attacks against us. If given the chance, they will gladly strike again and kill more of our citizens. And the president has a Constitutional and solemn obligation to do everything in his power to protect the safety and security of the American people. Until that happens, as President Obama said here five years ago, if another nation cannot or will not take action, we will. And it is an unfortunate fact that to save many innocent lives we are sometimes obliged to take lives, the lives of terrorists who seek to murder our fellow citizens. On behalf of President Obama and his administration, I am here to say to the American people that we will continue to work to safeguard this nations -- this nation and its citizens responsibly, adhering to the laws of this land and staying true to the values that define us as Americans, and thank you very much.”³⁰³

“Well, as I said, one of the considerations that we go through is the feasibility of capture. We would prefer to get these individuals so that they can be captured. Working with local governments, what we like to be able to do is provide them the intelligence that they can get the individuals, so it doesn’t have to be U.S. forces that are going on the ground in certain areas. But if it’s not feasible, either because it’s too risky from the standpoint of forces or the government doesn’t have the will or the ability to do it, then we make a determination whether or not the significance of the threat that the person poses requires us to take action, so that we’re able to mitigate the threat that they pose. I mean, these are individuals that could be involved in a very active plot, and if it is allowed to continue, you know, it could result in attacks either in Yemen against the U.S. embassy, or here in the homeland that could kill, you know, dozens if not hundreds of people. So what we always want to do, though, is look at whether or not there is an option to get this person and bring them to justice somehow for intelligence collection purposes, as well as to try them for their crimes.”³⁰⁴

PLAINTIFF doesn’t have the energy to go through all of what JOHN BRENNAN said but is including it.

HILLARY CLINTON in her own words and emails specifically mentioned “better defense trade” for INDIA and the UNITED STATES. PLAINTIFF is alleging that INDIA received better trade (and therefore more money) from the UNITED STATES in furtherance of their RICO Enterprise and Act of International and Domestic Terrorism. Therefore, TERRORISM RISK INSURANCE ACT (TRIA) applies: (iii) to have resulted in damage within the United States, or outside of the United States in the case of— an air carrier--this condition was met as it delayed United Airlines Flight 925, and as previously stated, delayed flights cost money and effect interstate and intrastate commerce; and it seriously harmed the PLAINTIFF. If DEFENDANTS allege that PLAINTIFF was not psychologically harmed by this scenario, first off, they’re lying, and then that means PLAINTIFF had no psychological problems at this time, and this seriously undercuts any reason or presumptions DEFENDANTS may have given about surveilling PLAINTIFF at this time. Therefore, this incident caused damage in the United States and outside the United States thereby affecting interstate and intrastate commerce. Then the next section in TRIA is that “and to have been committed by an individual or individuals acting on behalf of any foreign person or foreign interest, as part of an effort to coerce the civilian population of the United States or to influence the policy or affect the conduct of the United States Government by coercion. Post Trigger Federal Assistance: When program is triggered, Federal government is to pay 90% of insured terrorism losses in excess of individual insurer trigger/deductibles while the insurer pays 10%. In 2007, this rises to 85%/15%. In 2016, this 85% shall decrease by 1 percentage point per calendar year until equal to 80% (15 U.S.C. §6701 note, §103(e)(1)(A) of the Terrorism Risk Insurance Act of 2002 (15 U.S.C. 6701 note)). “BETTER TRADE” FOR INDIA and 5 Eyes budget increase and resources and expansion of their power for DEFENDANTS BRITISH Intelligence after act was committed for British Interest and therefore that meets the criteria that is done for foreign interest. Nowhere in the statute does it say that it could be a possibility of helping UNITED STATES’ interests in the process—that is irrelevant and inapplicable to the text of the law that Congress decided upon and wrote. Just because it may possibly help the United States interest in some contrived way that furthered a RICO Enterprise does not negate the fact that it is helping foreign interests. Does the court really want to rule that if there is a conceivable way that an act of terrorism could help American’s interests that it is legally allowable and forgivable? Boy do some actual terrorists want to talk to you about that legal precedent you would be setting. Lol. The statute says an individual or individuals without regard to nationality requirements as Congress intentionally omitted the nationality requirement because it wanted to apply to both Americans and non-Americans alike. HILLARY CLINTON clearly specified it was for INDIA’S interest; and deriving from this, BRITAIN’S and 5 Eyes interest as well. PLAINTIFF was coerced in the process as kidnapping or false imprisonment constitutes a coercive act committed against PLAINTIFF, and it was because of an air carrier that it applies. This all clearly influenced the policy and affected the conduct of the UNITED STATES government because PLAINTIFF was coerced and UNITED STATES government by having concocting it, implementing it, and talking about it, it all affected the conduct of the UNITED STATES Government. Therefore, those conditions are all met. TRIA applies. Therefore, no FSIA immunity for DEFENDANTS UNITED KINGDOM and INDIA.

³⁰³ <https://www.wilsoncenter.org/event/the-efficacy-and-ethics-us-counterterrorism-strategy>

Ah yes, PLAINTIFF’S last line of defense: TIMOTHY ROEMER. TIMOTHY ROEMER was the United States Ambassador to India during “trade is in the offing.” Maybe he could have put a stop to “trade is in the offing.” How did President Obama describe him? “my great friend, Tim Roemer.”³⁰⁵ Shit. This is his biography from May 2008: The Honorable Timothy J. Roemer, President, Center for National Policy: “From the floor of the U.S. Congress to the chambers of the 9/11 Commission, Tim Roemer has dedicated his professional career to strengthening national security and improving education in America...After the attacks of September 11th, Roemer used his position on the Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence to support the work of a Joint Congressional Inquiry into the nature of the attacks. Roemer also was the key sponsor of legislation to establish the National Commission on Terrorist Attacks Upon the United States, known as “The 9/11 Commission.” Since leaving Congress in 2003, Roemer has continued to work on developing ways to strengthen national security as President of the Center for National Policy...As a Distinguished Scholar at the Mercatus Center at George Mason University, Roemer works with Members of Congress and staff to improve public policy outcomes by teaching on the legislative branch and policy analysis.”³⁰⁶ Furthermore “Ambassador Roemer is charged with leading one of America’s largest diplomatic missions. Under the leadership of President Obama and Secretary of State Hillary Rodham Clinton, Ambassador Roemer has principal responsibility for broadening and deepening the multi-faceted U.S.-India partnership, as the world’s oldest and the world’s largest democracies address the challenges of the 21st century... In addition, Roemer served on the Washington Institute’s Presidential Task Force on Combating the Ideology of Radical Extremism. As a Distinguished Scholar at the Mercatus Center at George Mason University, Ambassador Roemer worked with Members of Congress and staff to improve public policy outcomes by teaching on the legislative branch and policy analysis.”³⁰⁷ He would have completely allowed it because it was about “National Security” regardless of the fact it was based entirely on fabricated lies.

“On the margins of the President’s trip, trade transactions were announced or showcased, exceeding $14.9 billion in total value with $9.5 billion in U.S. export content.”³⁰⁸

Being a victim of international and domestic terrorism by DEFENDANTS and allowing it to happen by DEFENDANTS in which all it took to prevent it from happening was one phone call and opening two doors and for their failure in not showing up at Dulles with their Big Old Heart. PLAINTIFF is symbolically making the figure of $XX for the act of kidnapping PLAINTIFF and committing domestic and international terrorism against PLAINTIFF (but PLAINTIFF is not done yet calculating the damages with this incident) on the night of 03/11/2011 as PLAINTIFF’S symbolism reflects the odds of the 1 out of 117 flights that occurred in the 9pm time slot between 01/01/2011-05/31/2011.

For having committed an act of international and domestic terrorism against PLAINTIFF: Damages of: 300,112,011. That is symbolic of the date of 3/11/2011.
(That is just for the act. That figure does not include the trade associated with the act).

DEFENDANTS violated: 18 U.S.C §1951 (EXTORTION); Title VI of the Civil Rights Act, 18 U.S.C. §1862 (d); 18 U.S.C. §1862 (c); 18 U.S.C. §1862 (b); 18 U.S.C. §1862 (a); 42 U.S.C. §1981; 42 U.S.C. §1983, 42 U.S.C. §1985(2); 42 U.S.C. §1985(3); 42 U.S.C. §1986; 18 U.S.C. §226, 18 U.S.C. §241, 42 U.S.C. §1983, 18 U.S.C. §1961 Sections 1581-1590 (relating to peonage), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1510 (relating to obstruction of criminal investigations), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1343 (wire fraud), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1346 (to deprive another of the intangible right of honest services”), 18 U.S.C. §1961 Section 1503, 18 U.S. Code §201 (bribery), 18 U.S.C. §872 (Extortion by officer), 18 U.S. Code § 875, 18 U.S. Code § 880 (receives proceeds of extortion), Section 504, and PLAINTIFF’S 1st, 4th, 5th, 6th, 8th, 9th, 10th, 13th, and 14th Amendment rights. United States v. Cook, 793 F.2d 734 (5th Cir. 1986) (“[b]oth the fact of conspiracy and a defendant's participation in it may be proved by circumstantial evidence.” 793 F.2d at 736). “As was the case in United States v. Postal, 589 F.2d 862 (5th Cir.) ... “the mere fact that [defendant] made the statement is relevant to the issues of [his] knowledge of the conspiracy and his participation in it.”...As Professor McCormick explains: “Proof that one talks about a matter demonstrates on its face that he was conscious or aware of it, and his veracity simply does not enter into the situation.” [omitted].” U.S. v. Jones, 839 F.2d 1041 (5th Cir. 1988). “If the government's conduct in the investigation through a sting operation is so active that its conduct fabricated elements of the offense, it might be considered a violation of due process to prosecute the defendant.” U.S. v. Steinhorn, 739 F. Supp. 268, 271 (D. Md. 1990).

And because DEFENDANTS through the years factually and legally knew deep down inside that PLAINTIFF never posed any threat to them (that they themselves didn’t create, manufacture, and/or perpetuate) in which one of the DEFENDANTS on the night of March 11th, 2011 could have picked up a poor PLAINTIFF and let PLAINTIFF spend the night in one of their homes after getting $14,900,000,000 in the process, PLAINTIFF is justified in including treble damages from the aforementioned act of international and domestic terrorism (that does not include any trade derived from the act or the $14,900,000,000 itself):

18 U.S.C §1963(a)(1) clearly applies to any interest, legitimate or illegitimate, which the defendant acquired or maintained either in the course of engaging in racketeering activity or as the result of racketeering activity in violation of 18 U.S.C. 1962. 18 U.S.C §1963(a)(3) applies to forfeiture of proceeds or property derived from proceeds obtained in violation of RICO. DEFENDANTS are required to forfeit the amount of illicit proceeds as determined by the Court even if the funds used to satisfy the forfeiture are not tainted or if the defendant no longer possesses the tainted funds.

PLAINTIFF, you may be thinking, $XX is an outrageous figure and PLAINTIFF says no. PLAINTIFF got more argument.

Under, United States v. DeFries, 129 F.3d 1293 (D.C. Cir. 1997), Court held that RICO forfeiture includes federal taxes paid on salaries earned through racketeering activity. So, if forfeiture includes federal taxes paid on salaries earned through racketeering activity, then any TSA Fees that were paid are also subject to forfeiture because those fees and any integrity by DHS should have stopped DEFENDANTS from committing an act of international and domestic terrorism involving planes that happened under their direct jurisdiction that they knowingly allowed to happen. So in light of United States v. DeFries, Next, according to some figures, “the United States Government spends or collects $14.5 million per day in TSA fees...”³⁰⁹ “In Congressional testimony last summer, the group’s senior vice president revealed that in 2017 alone special taxes on airlines and their customers totaled over $24 billion—more than $66 million per day.”³¹⁰ If PLAINTIFF gives a lowball figure that the United States Government collected $10,000,000 a day for TSA fees from 01/01/2002 to 03/11/2011 for a total of 3357 days that was gathered in order to prevent air piracy, domestic terrorism, and international terrorism from actually occurring under their watch, supervision, and control, the total cost in just TSA Fees gathered in that time was: $33,570,000,000. $33.57 Billion Dollars spent on preventing air piracy, domestic terrorism, and international terrorism from occurring in which DEFENDANTS coordinated it to happen in which PLAINTIFF necessarily paid into that amount for his safety in not being a victim of air piracy, domestic terrorism, and international terrorism. PLAINTIFF could ask for treble damages on that, which would be over $1,000,000,000,000+ because that was the amount spent that the US Government/DHS gathered for the purpose of preventing air piracy, domestic terrorism, and international terrorism from occurring in which

³⁰⁹ <https://www.judicialwatch.org/billions-in-tsa-9-11-security-fees-diverted-by-congress-for-other-causes/>

DEFENDANTS/DHS intentionally allowed air piracy to happen under their direct coordination, supervision, and approval. DNI in 2011 was appropriated: $78,600,000,000³¹¹ (78.6 Billion) on National Security, which necessarily includes preventing air piracy, domestic terrorism, and international terrorism from occurring.

The total amount appropriated to DNI between 2007-2011, who has a mission of preventing international and domestic terrorism from occurring, preventing air piracy, and other crimes was $368,800,000,000

2008—70,400,000,000
2009—76,200,000,000
2010—80,100,000,000
2011—78,600,000,000
Total: 2007-2011: $368,800,000,000

2013—67,600,000,000
2014—67,900,000,000
2015—66,800,000,000

Total 2007-2015: $646,500,000,000

Let PLAINTIFF put it in a perspective you can understand of the magnitude of their decisions involving PLAINTIFF because of DEFENDANTS actions. The total amount, at a minimum, the United States spent thwarting a preventable act of air piracy in 2011 through the collection of $33.57 Billion in TSA Fees from 01/01/2002 to 03/11/2011 and the total amount appropriated to DNI between 2007-2011 was $368,800,000,000 Billion. Those two figures in sum, equals: $402,370,000,000 spent on National Security and DEFENDANTS could not have stopped or prevented air piracy from occurring on 03/11/ because it was DEFENDANTS THEMSELVES that committed and undertook acts of international and domestic terrorism against PLAINTIFF and United Airlines Flight 925 on 03/11/2011. If you do treble damages on the previous figure, the total amount would be $1,207,110,000,000 at a bare minimum. More than a trillion dollars in damages. There was not a single DEFENDANT in any of the 10+ DEFENDANT intelligence agencies in America, 4 DEFENDANT intelligence agencies in the United Kingdom, in the intelligence agencies and Government of INDIA, and within the Government of QATAR that owns Qatar Airlines that said: “hey America spending and acquiring at least $402,370,000,000 through the years and allowing air piracy to happen in which we ourselves commit an act of international and domestic terrorism against an American special needs man is not a good look for us. MAYBE WE SHOULD ACTUALLY DO OUR JOBS.” in which not a single DEFENDANT understood the ramifications of their actions in doing what they did against PLAINTIFF and the AMERICAN TAXPAYER. DEFENDANTS SHOULD HAVE JUST LET PLAINTIFF GO TO INDIA.

³¹¹ <https://www.dni.gov/index.php/what-we-do/ic-budget>

$300,112,011 less than 1% of the total amount DEFENDANTS spent to thwart air piracy, domestic terrorism, and international terrorism between 2007-2010 in appropriations and travelers' fees and taxes and DEFENDANTS intentionally, willfully, and knowingly committed air piracy, domestic terrorism, and international terrorism against PLAINTIFF in the process acquiring and spending more than at least $322,450,000,000 that was spent from stopping those incidents from occurring. Period. If PLAINTIFF wanted to be a dick, he would ask for $322,450,000,000, but he is not.

In Neder v. United States, 527 U.S. 1 (1999) (hereon: Neder), the Court confirmed that the mail fraud statute incorporated well-settled common law requirement that a fraud claim can be based on a "misrepresentation or concealment of material fact." The Court in distinguishing Neder from Durland talked about how they: "Instead, we construed the statute to "include everything designed to defraud by representations as to the past or present, or suggestions and promises as to the future." Although Durland held that mail fraud statute reaches conduct that would not have constituted "false pretenses" at common law, it did not hold...that the statute encompasses more than common-law fraud." The Court in Neder said that Mail Fraud and Wire Fraud do not require proof of reliance or damages, because those statutes are designed to strike preemptively, as well as retrospectively, at the fraud.

XX. India, UK, Qatar, and America's AGREEMENT

David Cameron was Prime Minister of UK from: May 11th, 2010 to July 13th, 2016. On July 2010, it was reported that David Cameron wants to build a new 'special relationship' with India. "David Cameron will lead a senior cabinet delegation to New Delhi later this month to build a new "special relationship" with India in an attempt to boost trade. Foreign Secretary William Hague, Chancellor George Osborne and Business Secretary Vince Cable will be among ministers who will accompany him to help create an 'enhanced partnership' with one of the world's fastest growing economies.... Mr Cameron and Indian prime minister Manmohan Singh are expected to issue a joint statement heralding the new 'special relationship' while leading business figures said they hoped each minister would use the trip to discuss practical measures to increase trade and investment."³¹² Jeremy Richard Browne and Henry Campbell Bellingham, Baron Bellingham were involved in some way and that is what PLAINTIFF alleges in which they worked with their American and Qatari counterparts such as HILLARY CLINTON in "trade is in the offing" in violation of 18 U.S.C §1951 (EXTORTION); Title VI of the Civil Rights Act, 18 U.S.C.§1862 (d); 18 U.S.C.§1862 (c); 18 U.S.C.§1862 (b); 18 U.S.C.§1862 (a); 42 U.S.C. §1981; 42 U.S.C.§1983, 42 U.S.C. §1985(2); 42 U.S.C. §1985(3); 42 U.S.C. §1986; 18 U.S.C.§226, 18 U.S.C. §241, 42 U.S.C. §1983, 18 U.S.C. §1961 Sections 1581-1590 (relating to peonage), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1510 (relating to obstruction of criminal investigations), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1343 (wire fraud), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1346 (to deprive another of the intangible right of honest services"), 18 U.S.C. §1961 Section 1503, 18 U.S. Code §201 (bribery), 18 U.S.C. §872 (Extortion by officer), 18 U.S. Code § 875, 18 U.S. Code § 880 (receives proceeds of extortion), Section 504, and PLAINTIFF'S 1st, 4th, 5th, 6th, 8th, 9th, 10th, 13th, and 14th Amendment rights.

British Parliament talked about their priorities in December 2010, 3 months after “trade is in the offing.”

The British Foreign Commonwealth Office (FCO) Business Plan included: “shaping a distinctive British foreign policy, build stronger bilateral relations with key selected countries to enhance British security and prosperity.” Three of those key selected countries: United States, India, and Qatar. So the Brits said that they “recognized that to adapt and respond to national security threats and opportunities, the UK needs an active foreign policy and strong representation abroad. It agreed that the UK needs to maintain its global diplomatic network, which is sharply focused on promoting Britain’s national security and prosperity. It sets out a clear direction for the FCO which: Confirms the FCO’s core priorities of pursuing an active and activist foreign policy, working with other countries and strengthening the rules-based international system in support of our values to safeguard the UK’s national security; the Brits placed a new emphasis on commercial diplomacy,”³¹³ the UK would refocus resources on those countries most important to UK security and prosperity—India, Qatar, and United Kingdom. The British advocated using ‘soft power’ to promote British values, advance development, and contribute to the welfare of developing countries. The Foreign Secretary leads on at least two priority areas for them: Building Stability Overseas (Foreign Policy) and State Threats and Counter-Proliferation.

Brits talked about the first fruits of this new commercial diplomacy in which they highlighted “successful Prime Ministerial visits to China and India which strengthened our bilateral relationship with these key partners and delivered £1.25 billion of contracts.”³¹⁴ “The Prime Minister took the largest British trade delegation ever to India in July 2010. He witnessed the signing of a Hawk aircraft contract worth £500 million. During this visit he established a CEO Forum to make recommendations to both Governments on how to increase levels of trade, and committed to an ambitious programme of co-operation on education, science and research.”³¹⁵ Since this occurred in December 2010, part of that was “trade is in the offing” with America, India, and United Kingdom. “When any Minister travels overseas they are working with the FCO to advance common economic and foreign policy goals as well as their own departmental objectives. This is a planned process to secure the UK’s economic recovery and to address international challenges even more effectively, using the FCO’s diplomatic resources to the full to project our influence and deliver services to British citizens in a networked world.”³¹⁶

“Over the last six months, the Foreign and Commonwealth Office under the leadership of XX has been giving an energetic lead to this new foreign policy. Examples include: The Foreign Secretary Alistair Burt has established a solid and substantive relationship with US Secretary of State Hillary Clinton through a number of contacts including two visits to Washington (May and November 2010).” PLAINTIFF alleges that: Alistar James Hendrie Burt was delegated by William Hague responsibilities dealing with Qatar and Counterterrorism.

Thank you for confirming the Foreign Secretary Alistair Burt and Hillary Clinton met in November 2010. PLAINTIFF is alleging Hillary Clinton and Alistair Burt conspired in violation of 18 U.S.C. 1962 (d) and 42 U.S.C. 1985(3) in these meetings and numerous contacts. Furthermore, “the Foreign Secretary launched the Gulf initiative in June 2010 to strengthen regional security and to improve commercial, economic, cultural and educational ties. The first ministerial meeting, chaired by FCO Minister Alistair Burt, took place in July bringing together Ministers from eight government departments. This period has seen an intense series of visits and exchanges with the Gulf including an inward State Visit by the Emir of Qatar...”³¹⁷ PLAINTIFF alleges that the Emir of Qatar and Alistair Burt further developed their relationships with one another.

The point is that in December 2010, the British were part of “trade is in the offing.” Whether it was through ALAN DUNCAN, ALISTAIR BURT, HILLARY CLINTON, DAVID CAMERON, TONY BLAIR, etc. All of their values aligned perfectly, especially with ALISTAIR BURT, WILLIAM HAGUE and HILLARY CLINTON. The aforementioned DEFENDANTS violated: 18 U.S.C §1951 (EXTORTION); Title VI of the Civil Rights Act, 18 U.S.C. §1862 (d); 18 U.S.C. §1862 (c); 18 U.S.C. §1862 (b); 18 U.S.C. §1862 (a); 42 U.S.C. §1981; 42 U.S.C. §1983, 42 U.S.C. §1985(2); 42 U.S.C. §1985(3); 42 U.S.C. §1986; 18 U.S.C. §226, 18 U.S.C. §241, 42 U.S.C. §1983, 18 U.S.C. §1961 Sections 1581-1590 (relating to peonage), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1510 (relating to obstruction of criminal investigations), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1343 (wire fraud), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1346 (to deprive another of the intangible right of honest services”), 18 U.S.C. §1961 Section 1503, 18 U.S. Code §201 (bribery), 18 U.S.C. §872 (Extortion by officer), 18 U.S. Code § 875, 18 U.S. Code § 880 (receives proceeds of extortion), Section 504, and PLAINTIFF’S 1st, 4th, 5th, 6th, 8th, 9th, 10th, 13th, and 14th Amendment rights. United States v. Cook, 793 F.2d 734 (5th Cir. 1986) (“[b]oth the fact of conspiracy and a defendant's participation in it may be proved by circumstantial evidence.” 793 F.2d at 736). “As was the case in United States v. Postal, 589 F.2d 862 (5th Cir.) ... “the mere fact that [defendant] made the statement is relevant to the issues of [his] knowledge of the conspiracy and his participation in it.” ...As Professor McCormick explains: “Proof that one talks about a matter demonstrates on its face that he was conscious or aware of it, and his veracity simply does not enter into the situation.” [omitted].” U.S. v. Jones, 839 F.2d 1041 (5th Cir. 1988). “If the government's conduct in the investigation through a sting operation is so active that its conduct fabricated elements of the offense, it might be considered a violation of due process to prosecute the defendant.” *U.S. v. PLAINTIFF took a screenshot of email ID: 21428 on August 30th, 2023. What kind of matters, but the content is still the same nonetheless, but if the formatting of the email in WikiLeaks was the exact same as the one HILLARY CLINTON sent in Email ID: 21428 that was written on 09/27/2010 at 04:02pm, and is displayed correctly below, the formatting gives further support to the allegations PLAINTIFF made regarding the content of the email.

Email Id: 21428 also stipulated: “Global Issues Forum with India featured interest in cooperation on democracy/governance, disaster management, and women in science. UNGA breakfast on water issues was successful” and also, the exact formatting of the following:
 “India

Legal”

Now there is going to be a great debate this, PLAINTIFF understands. What PLAINTIFF is alleging is that based on the totality of the circumstances, is that DEFENDANTS were talking about Miki’s Tea Party and the legality of it (which is ironic and a devastating blow to them as you will see) and what would transpire between India, United Kingdom, and United States. So the key issue and part is the following part that is formatted as it appeared on screen:

“Indians continue to make progress in quieting recent Kashmir unrest, but need to do more. Indian Embassy luncheon in honor of Defense Minister Antony this week will include reps from Boeing and Lockheed Martin — a rare development that could signal better U.S.-India defense trade is in the offing.”³¹⁸

This time, the aspect from India's perspective needs to be seen. PLAINTIFF clearly established America's interests and values, but when Hillary Clinton said the Indians need to do more and there is a cooperation on democracy/governance, then that brings up Prime Minister Singh in 2010 and 2011.

In 2004, when the Congress-led United Progressive Alliance came to power, its chairperson Sonia Gandhi unexpectedly relinquished the prime ministership to Singh. The 2009 general election saw the UPA win yet again in which Singh retained the office of Prime Minister. UPA and Singh won in 2009 because one out of the 5 or so strong showing bases of support was in Tamil Nadu. Tamil Nadu is kind of a formidable state politically being the 6th most populous state in India. Who had control in Tamil Nadu? None other than KALANITHI MARAN'S uncle MUTHUVEL KARUNANIDHI (they will be talked about in SpiceJET). So Prime Minister Singh and MUTHUVEL KARUNANIDHI have a symbiotic relationship in which Singh gets the votes from KARUNANIDHI'S state of Tamil Nadu that he has effective control over. Okay? Ok.

So what was Prime Minister Singh's policies on Counterterrorism? Prime Minister Singh's government strengthened anti-terror laws with amendments to Unlawful Activities (Prevention) Act (UAPA). National Investigation Agency (NIA) राष्ट्रीय अन्वेषण अभिकरण was created a little bit after November 2008. NIA'S was given the power to deal with investigations of terror related crimes across states without special permission from the states under written proclamation from the Ministry of Home Affairs. Now the Ministry of Home Affairs deals with foreign relations issues; but you had a roving thug that has the power to investigate cases that involve "threats to the sovereignty, security, and integrity of India." Boy would PLAINTIFF point out the corruption involving "trade is in the offing" make PLAINTIFF under their radar. NIA has the authority to conduct searches, seizures, and arrests, as well as to collect evidence and maintain a database of terrorist organizations and their members. PLAINTIFF is alleging that CIA, FBI, NSA, and NIA all shared information about PLAINTIFF with each other in which they sent, processed, and received information about PLAINTIFF. Furthermore, you had the creation of NATGRID under Singh in 2009 in which ₹3,400 crores ($400,000 or so dollars) was spent on it. NATGRID is an intelligence sharing network that collates data from the standalone databases of the various agencies and ministries of the Indian government for "counterterrorism" purposes. It collects and collates a host of information from government databases including tax and bank account details, credit/debit card transactions, visa and immigration records, and itineraries of rail and air travel. It connects to databases of various core security agencies under Government of India in which data is collected, processed, and analyzed from 21 different organizations that can be readily accessed by security agencies round the clock... Ashok Pattnaik is the current son-in-law of former Prime Minister Manmohan Singh and was appointed CEO of NATGRID in 2016. That's called patronage. PLAINTIFF alleges that American Intel contributed to NATGRID in which American Intel gave resources to NATGRID in which American Intel would then have access to their database to be utilized against PLAINTIFF later when commanded to by Indian leadership.

To further prove and corroborate the "trade is in the offing" conspiracy and crimes that were committed thereof, as a refresher, HILLARY CLINTON'S email clearly stipulates: "reps from Boeing and Lockheed Martin — a rare development that could signal better U.S.-India defense trade is in the offing". "India was the top weapons purchaser among developing countries in 2010, acquiring armaments worth USD 5.8 billion, according to a US Congressional report.”³¹⁹ On 11/4/2010³²⁰ the New York Times, probably via Operation Mockingbird and the CIA, gives a story about INDIA’S arms market. INDIA’S Leaders and the Obama WHITE HOUSE had the following to say about the UNITED STATES and INDIA’S relationship on November 8th, 2010 that were relevant to what PLAINTIFF is alleging in which they would conspire or further conspire and implement the plan against PLAINTIFF: “Building upon the Counter Terrorism Initiative signed in July 2010, the two leaders announced a new Homeland Security Dialogue between the Ministry of Home Affairs and the Department of Homeland Security and agreed to further deepen operational cooperation, counter-terrorism technology transfers and capacity building...In an increasingly inter-dependent world, the stability of, and access to, the air, sea, space, and cyberspace domains is vital for the security and economic prosperity of nations. Acknowledging their commitment to openness and responsible international conduct, and on the basis of their shared values, India and the United States have launched a dialogue to explore ways to work together, as well as with other countries, to develop a shared vision for these critical domains to promote peace, security and development. The leaders reaffirmed the importance of maritime security, unimpeded commerce....The transformation in India-U.S. defense cooperation in recent years has strengthened mutual understanding on regional peace and stability, enhanced both countries’ respective capacities to meet humanitarian and other challenges such as terrorism and piracy, and contributed to the development of the strategic partnership between India and the United States...President Obama welcomed India's decision to purchase U.S. high-technology defense items...” Last sentence connects HILLARY CLINTON’S offing email and President OBAMA welcoming INDIA’S decision to purchase U.S. Defense items. Side note. 08/17/2023: PLAINTIFF is that paranoid he is being messed with and couldn’t believe what he just read and had to take a screenshot to ensure he wasn’t crazy. DEFENDANTS all knew air piracy had occurred on 03/11/2011. It is no mistake that they included “terrorism and piracy” in the same sentence as an example of a challenge they did together in which it contributed to the DEVELOPMENT of the partnership in which the “offing” was a rare “DEVELOPMENT.” This is a reference to HILLARY CLINTON’S email in the offing plan against PLAINTIFF. This ties PLAINTIFF into DEFENDANTS actions and explicit and implicit approval of Miki’s Tea Party and their plan to further cover it up by obstructing justice. Since “is in the offing” necessarily took place under DHS’ authority, DHS had to cover up what they did with the INDIAN government in which

DHS and the INDIAN government conspired even more to cover up their act of air piracy against PLAINTIFF in which they agreed to FURTHER THEIR OPERATIONAL COOPERATION and came to that decision at the same exact time only a week after “trade is in the offing.” So on Friday November 5th, 2010: “Obama and officials have been careful to underline the benefits of the trip for the US economy. “The primary purpose is to take a bunch of US companies and open up markets so that we can sell in Asia, in some of the fastest-growing markets in the world, and we can create jobs here in the United States of America,” Obama said yesterday... In Delhi, in addition to a visit to a Mughal-era Islamic tomb, an address to parliament and a state dinner, there will be a series of meetings to finalise, it is hoped, multibillion-dollar defence deals and other commercial agreements. India is expected to spend at least $52bn (£33bn) on new fighters, artillery systems, transport planes and helicopters in coming years.”³²¹ ALL OF THIS WAS CONDITIONAL on “IN THE OFFING” as PLAINTIFF clearly explained the importance of which in the previous paragraphs. So DEFENDANTS expected to make $52,000,000,000 in which “is in the offing” was necessarily contingent on it. DEFENDANTS even knew it constituted air piracy and terrorism because “is in the offing” was one of their other challenges that concerned air piracy and terrorism. DEFENDANTS willingly and knowingly committed air piracy and terrorism against PLAINTIFF.

DEFENDANT BARACK OBAMA explained how the US primarily took the leadership role between INDIA and the UNITED STATES on November 8th, 2010: “More broadly, India and the United States can partner in Asia. Today, the United States is once again playing a leadership role in Asia — strengthening old alliances; deepening relationships, as we are doing with China; and we’re reengaging with regional organizations like ASEAN and joining the East Asia summit — organizations in which India is also a partner. Like your neighbors in Southeast Asia, we want India not only to “look East,” we want India to “engage East” —

because it will increase the security and prosperity of all our nations.”³²² On November 8th, 2010: “the U.S. and India resolved to deepen collaborative efforts, and intensify exchanges...Programs to exchange law enforcement best practices, hold reciprocal visits of senior-level officials to discuss lessons learned, conduct joint military training exercises, and joining of forces in international fora on key counterterrorism issues, demonstrate the closeness of this cooperation.”³²³ PLAINTIFF is alleging that this was all done because of “trade is in the offing.” How much was at stake because of “IS IN THE OFFING”: “On the margins of the President’s trip, trade transactions were announced or showcased, exceeding $14.9 billion in total value with $9.5 billion in U.S. export content.”³²⁴

In the “Securing the Air, Sea, and Space Domains” section, the WHITE HOUSE talked about how: “President Obama and Prime Minister Singh agreed that in an increasingly interconnected world, it is vital to safeguard areas of the sea, air, and space beyond national jurisdiction”³²⁵ to ensure the security and prosperity of nations. The United States and India have launched a dialogue to explore ways to work together, as well as with other countries, to develop a shared vision to protect peace, security, and development of these areas.” So this all necessarily includes SpiceJET’s expansion and INDIAN Government’s desire to expand the INDIAN Aviation Industry. A shared vision is a common purpose under RICO. So “IS IN THE OFFING” was needed by DEFENDANTS in which $14,900,000,000 was necessarily based on “is in the offing” and they intentionally chose PLAINTIFF in BRITAIN in which DEFENDANTS had furthered utilized their RICO Enterprise to extend their reaches beyond NATIONAL JURISDICTIONAL LIMITS and they did so committing air piracy, which is international and domestic terrorism. One of the many specific reasons why DEFENDANTS did this was that extending their “beyond national jurisdiction” and would gain $14,000,000,000 in the process in which DEFENDANTS necessarily through their actions influenced the policy and affected the conduct of the United States Government by coercion (of a United States citizen--PLAINTIFF). Therefore, it is domestic and international terrorism.

Let PLAINTIFF poke enough holes in the argument that INDIA and the United States were “only” talking about piracy of the seas and not referring to air piracy that they would commit against PLAINTIFF in “trade is in the offing.” PLAINTIFF did a custom search on Google with the search dates of 01/01/2010 through 12/31/2010. There were a couple of articles here and there that talked about Somali pirate ships in the Indian Ocean.³²⁶ Okay, PLAINTIFF is not denying that piracy in the seas existed in 2010 that was off the coast of Somalia.

³²⁵ PLAINTIFF is considering and thinking about DEFENDANTS’ illegal and unconstitutional interests here. Whatever damage has been done in extending DEFENDANTS’ limits beyond national jurisdiction is done, which already shows that was beyond a legal limit. PLAINTIFF agrees that sometimes, DEFENDANTS need to go beyond national borders in pursuit of crime (especially in light of the internet and computers); PLAINTIFF also recognizes that sometimes, DEFENDANTS absolutely do not need to go beyond national borders in committing their crime and national borders are needed in the prevention of crime and sovereignty. PLAINTIFF is just asking the Court to say only for this case, “beyond national jurisdiction” was just one out of many purposes for RICO Enterprise #1.

So it is like 4-5 Somalis in a boat that is no bigger than 25 feet max. Yea Pirates had weapons and it is scary to be pirated by pirates. PLAINTIFF agrees because he was kidnapped by DEFENDANTS. But in 2010, it was reported there were less incidents of piracy.³²⁸ So less incidents, less pirates on dingy's in the middle of the Indian Ocean. But what was reported on every once in a while was how one pirate dingy ventured far and got close to India but never in the territorial waters of India.³²⁹ One study reported that in 2009, pirates went as far as 897 miles off the coast of Somalia into the Indian Ocean.³³⁰ 897 Miles does sound far and it is a far distance. But do you understand how big the Indian Ocean is? It takes up about 20% of the world's surface and has an area of:

27,240,000 sq mi. It is so incomprehensibly massive. Some places have the shortest distance (air line) between India and Somalia as being 2,345.51 mi (3,774.73 km).³³¹ Google has it at: 3,929km or 2441.367 miles. The Continental United States from the very east coast to the very west coast is around 2,900 miles or so. So lets just say for the sake of argument that pirates would have to span the continental United States to reach India from Somalia.

Here are two maps from the study³³² that PLAINTIFF provided a big red line that shows you were at least the territorial waters of INDIA could plausibly be:

Do you see that the vast majority of the concentration of piracy by Somali pirates were nowhere near INDIA? Yea, there are like one or two here and there are plausibly kinda iffy close, but to give you a mind perspective you can relate to. The vast majority, probably more than 80%, of the piracy occurred within a 1000 miles radius of Somalia. PLAINTIFF said earlier the distance between Somalia and India was about one continental United States in which PLAINTIFF would have to put INDIA a little inland in the United States. Per tonnage in 2014, PLAINTIFF is assuming that the Indian Navy did not undergo that shocking and startingly huge amount of growth between 2009-2014, the Indian Navy was ranked 7th most powerful Navy in the world and would only increase in size and power by 2030.³³³ Is PLAINTIFF to believe that the 7th most powerful Navy in the world in which a single Somali pirate did not even come close to entering the territorial waters of India who had at least 200 warships that were so threatened by this? By this thing? This was the biggest non-existent threat to the Indian Navy in 2010?

One rocket launcher, one stick (see middle of the boat), maybe two AK-47s, 4 camo jackets, one 20 or 25 foot dingy, 4 somalis who weren't honestly worth a damn to anyone in America and India, that's it; and to say those 4 somalis who had spent and were worth to India and America at most $10,000, but PLAINTIFF forgot to include the value of the stick, which of course is $10,000, making it a total of $20,000. This $20,000 and 4 somali crew was that much of a justifiable and major part of spending $14,900,00,000? No, it is not credible, it was not factually possible, and it is not probable. DEFENDANTS knew that PLAINTIFF had been in constant contact with Suresh throughout Fall Semester 2010 and had repeatedly planned on going to INDIA in which there might have even been a time that PLAINTIFF canceled in Fall 2010. So in light of the fact that the US admittedly took a leadership position in which there was a deeper cooperation and "new Homeland Security Dialogue between the Ministry of Home Affairs and the Department of Homeland Security," in which some of the issues concerned counter-terrorism [] transfers, "access to the air," that was "vital for the security and economic prosperity" of INDIA and AMERICA in which there were shared values that meant INDIA and USA were going to work together on "challenges such as terrorism (and counter-terrorism transfers) and piracy," DEFENDANTS knew exactly what they were doing, what it actually was about and how it concerned PLAINTIFF, and the money both countries would get when "trade is in the offing" occurred and then be able to use that money to invest in future economic opportunities for them because they had shared values and worked together. Committing acts of international and domestic terrorism on a lonely Autistic American with no financial resources in which he truly meant nothing meaningful for them besides to enrich and engorge themselves and create whatever political policy they wanted at the time because PLAINTIFF was worth nothing to them. That's the truth--They knew it, they did it, and State Secrets should not absolve them of what they did.

PLAINTIFF just proved beyond a clear and convincing standard, the piracy they were talking about was about PLAINTIFF and committing air piracy against PLAINTIFF by kidnapping PLAINTIFF for politics and an additional $14,900,000,000,000. *See: Neder v. XX. Putting it all together: CRS INDIA.

Sometimes, the Congressional Research does good, sometimes they make things worse for people like the PLAINTIFF because they're covering up for DC (See: Star Chambers). So what is going on between 2008-2010 concerning INDIA when PLAINTIFF becomes under DC'S close watch at the same time. CRS on October 27th, 2010 create and publishes: “India-U.S. Relations. 7-5700. RL33529”³³⁴ (hereon: CRS INDIA) This is exactly one month after the “trade is in the offing” email was written on 09/24/2010 and CRS INDIA goes to everything that was happening at that time. All the following are excerpts that are relevant to the complaint: “The two countries now engage in numerous and unprecedented combined military exercises, and major U.S. arms sales to India are underway... President Barack Obama’s Administration seeks to build upon the deepened U.S. engagement with India begun by President Bill Clinton in 2000 and expanded upon during much of the past decade under President G.W. Bush. This “U.S.-India 3.0” diplomacy was most recently on display in June 2010, when a U.S.-India Strategic Dialogue session saw a large delegation of senior India officials visit Washington, D.C.³³⁵, to discuss a broad range of global and bilateral issues... The national economy has been growing rapidly—India’s is projected to be the world’s third-largest economy in the foreseeable future—yet poor infrastructure... Just days into President Barack Obama’s term (January 2009), Secretary of State Hillary Clinton and India’s external affairs minister agreed to “further strengthen the excellent bilateral relationship” between the United States and India.... As part of her confirmation hearing to become Secretary of State, Clinton told Senators she would work to fulfill President Obama's commitment to "establish a true strategic partnership with India, increase our military cooperation, trade, and support democracies around the world"³³⁶... Despite such top-level assurances from the new U.S. Administration, during 2009 and into 2010, many in India became increasingly concerned that Washington was not focusing on the bilateral relationship with the same vigor as did the Bush Administration...³³⁷ Clinton set forth five key "pillars" of the U.S.-India engagement in July 2009: (1) strategic cooperation; (2) energy and climate change; (3) economics, trade, and agriculture; (4) education and development; and (5) science technology and innovation. In November 2009, President Obama hosted his inaugural state visit when Prime Minister Singh dined at the White House (friends made, favors to be asked later)... President Obama's May 2010 National Security Strategy noted that, "The United States and India are building a strategic partnership that is underpinned by our shared interests, our shared values as the world's two largest democracies, and close connections among our people": Working together through our Strategic Dialogue and high-level visits, we seek a broad based relationship in which India contributes to global counterterrorism efforts,³³⁸ nonproliferation, and helps promote poverty-reduction, education, health, and sustainable agriculture. We value India's growing leadership on a wide array of global issues, through groups such as the G-20, and will seek to work with India to promote stability in South Asia and elsewhere in the world (elsewhere in the world includes major friend and ally to both countries: the United Kingdom)... In June 2010, the United States and India formally reengaged the U.S.-India Strategic Dialogue initiated under President Bush when a large delegation of high-ranking Indian officials led by External Affairs Minister S.M. Krishna visited Washington, DC. As leader of the U.S. delegation, Secretary of State Clinton lauded India as "an indispensable partner and a trusted friend."... In anticipation of the Dialogue, Undersecretary of State for Political Affairs William Burns (current CIA director) had given a major policy speech on "India's rise and the future of the U.S.-India relationship" in which he asserted, "The simple truth that India's strength and progress on the world stage is deeply in the strategic interest of the United States."... The June 2010 Strategic Dialogue produced a joint statement in which the two countries pledged to "deepen people-to-people, business-to-business, and government-to-government linkages ... for the mutual benefit of both countries and for the promotion of global peace, stability, and prosperity." It outlined extensive bilateral initiatives in each of ten key areas: (1) advancing global security and countering terrorism; (3) trade and economic relations... Following this ³³⁶ This is one of PLAINTIFF'S favorite excerpts. It confirms that from January 2009, there was going to be increase in military cooperation and trade (and if they intersected, cool). HILLARY CLINTON knew what she had to do in January 2009 in regards to trade (i.e. increase it), but yet, if that were her only true priorities, she would not have included the condition of "is in the offing." HILLARY CLINTON was given or directed by someone to put the condition of "is in the offing" involving PLAINTIFF. That further shows the condition "in the offing" falls outside of the scope of her duties of increasing trade between America and India. At no time did India have to really do "is in the offing" to get more trade. But it was done because PLAINTIFF was a liability or a pawn to be exploited and PLAINTIFF was the only one that DEFENDANTS could use for their nefarious purposes after years of fabrication and malice because DC had an incentive to screw over PLAINTIFF because he was a liability to DEFENDANTS.

³³⁷ What better way to give assurances to your new friends then cut them in on new economic deals and opportunities, such as those that involve American made aircraft?!

³³⁸ There is the nexus to "is in the offing" from May 2010. Whether or not it was Obama that directed it, PLAINTIFF is unsure; but what PLAINTIFF knows is that the head of the FBI (Robert Mueller III), the CIA (XX) had a significant reason and interest in global counterterrorism. DEFENDANTS through years of fabricated evidence and coverups falsely labeled PLAINTIFF as a counterterrorism threat based on his speech and PLAINTIFF had routinely traveled to Europe making him global.

senior-level engagement, some observers complained that no meaningful “deliverables” had emerged from the process.³³⁹... Prior to Obama’s visit in November 2010, one observer stated that reflected the American mentality: India’s key policy makers need to realize that the construction and sustenance of a stable strategic partnership requires a particular sensitivity to the vital principle of reciprocity.³⁴⁰ Their failure to do so stems in part from a prickly sense of independence, deep-seated fear of American unreliability, and a degree of residual anti-Americanism. [PLAINTIFF was right about the deliverables in which] it may be that the sole major “deliverable” to potentially come from President Obama’s travel (November 2010) would be an announcement that New Delhi will choose to purchase $11 billion worth of combat aircraft from an American firm in a long-awaited decision.³⁴¹ By the way, you should know, JEH JOHNSON, who would be the head of DHS (from December 23rd, 2013 to January 20th, 2017) was the General Counsel of the Department of Defense (February 10th, 2009 to December 31st, 2012)... For many years India-Sri Lanka relations have been dominated by the now concluded Sri Lankan civil war between Colombo’s government forces and the Liberation Tigers of Tamil Eelam (LTTE) (Sri Lankan Tigers)³⁴² ... India remains concerned with the situation in Sri Lanka even after the end of open hostilities there...Japan-- They are engaging a “strategic dialogue” formally launched in 2007, when the Indian foreign minister spoke of Japan as a “natural partner in the quest to create an arc of advantage and prosperity” in Asia. He also emphasized India’s desire for economic integration in Asia and cooperative efforts to secure vital sea lanes, especially in the Indian Ocean... [The Congress Party in India has 39% of the seats in the Indian parliament in 2010] Sonia Gandhi, Rajiv’s Italian-born, Catholic widow, refrained from active politics until the late 1990s. She later made efforts to revitalize the party by phasing out older leaders and attracting more women and lower castes—efforts that appear to have paid off in 2004. Today, Congress again occupies more parliamentary seats (206) than any other party and, through unprecedented alliances with powerful regional parties, it again leads India’s government under the UPA coalition. As party chief and UPA chair,³⁴³ Gandhi is seen to wield considerable influence over the coalition’s policy making process.... Read Footnote 183. ...Congress Party had success [in 2009] because of numerous arrangements occurred in which one of those arrangements was with Dravida Munnetra Kazhagam (MARAN and MUTHUVEL KARUNANIDHI’S party).... The newfound power of both large and smaller regional parties (i.e. Dravida Munnetra Kazhagam/MARAN/MUTHUVEL KARUNANIDHI’S party), alike, is reflected in the UPA’s ministerial appointments, and in the Congress-led coalition’s professed ³³⁹ AHHHH there it is. Things were not given yet in which there was a huge demand for such nor was there anyone who could maliciously used just yet and have an international and domestic act of terrorism committed against him. These people would have to wait until March 2011.

³⁴³ Hold on a second. Who was the head of a regional major southern Indian party and UPA? SPICEJET! DEFENDANT MARAN and his uncle M. Karunanidhi were part of the Dravida Munnetra Kazhagam (3% of the seats in Parliament), in which his uncle M. Karunanidhi was part of previous United Progressive Alliance (UPA) government. Gandhi was the party chief and UPA Chair. M. Karunanidhi and Gandhi had to have worked together at one time or another. This establishes M. India continues to have a very complex bureaucratic system, often involving multiple layers of government and numerous agencies with regulatory oversight of the economy. In addition to the plethora of red tape, businesses and workers complain about official and corporate corruption, particularly at the local level.³⁴⁶ India was the world’s second-ranked arms purchaser from 2002-2009³⁴⁷ ... U.S. Ambassador to India Tim Roemer identified the development as “historic in the nature of security cooperation” and expressed optimism about multiple U.S.-India partnerships in this area, including a Counterterrorism Cooperation Initiative, joint work on megacity policing, forensic lab training, intelligence sharing, cooperation on launching a National Counterterrorism Center in India modeled on that in the United States³⁴⁸ ... Along with increasing military-to-military ties, the issue of U.S. arms sales to India has taken a higher profile. New Delhi is undertaking a major military modernization program, potentially spending $100 billion over the next decade to update its mostly Soviet-era arsenal. U.S. weapons makers are eager to gain a slice of this lucrative pie, and American security companies also see in India a potentially also huge new market for sophisticated equipment such as surveillance and detection systems...” CRS INDIA

The Court is thinking: okay, so it can't get any worse for PLAINTIFF just based on what PLAINTIFF included about: CRS INDIA. “WRONG” PLAINTIFF says CRS INDIA: “According to the State Department’s most recent Country Report on Human Rights Practices (released March 2010), the Indian government “generally respected the rights of its citizens and made progress in reducing incidents of communal violence, expanding efforts against human trafficking, and reducing the exploitation of indentured,³⁴⁹ bonded, and child workers, but serious problems remained”: Major problems included reported extrajudicial killings of persons in custody, disappearances, and torture and rape by police and other security ³⁴⁴ America knew MARAN and M. KARUNANIDHI were sitting at the table because they were the heads of Dravida Munnetra Kazhagam.

³⁴⁵ PLAINTIFF looks to his left hand and sees corruption in India’s political scene and economy is a problem and then PLAINTIFF looks to his right hand and sees years of RICO Enterprise 1 by DEFENDANTS. PLAINTIFF puts his hands together and sees that these people mesh well with one another, especially when there are deliverables to be had.

³⁴⁶ Corruption at local and regional levels involving bureaucrats and the government who are in the aviation industry, MARAN’S needs, OBAMA’S needs, SpiceJET needs, Indian aviation and Prime Minister Singh’s needs expansion needs, HILLARY CLINTON’s needs, deliverable needs, DOJ and SCOTUS and FBI/CIA covering up RICO predicate acts against PLAINTIFF needs, etc. There is so much need and it all converges on just one man with just one necessary opportunity—PLAINTIFF in 03/11/2011.

³⁴⁷ In 2007 and 2008, Wall Street collapsed because of the mortgage crisis; and of course, CONGRESS and the WHITE HOUSE bailed out their friends that messed up the economy then in 2008 that only goes to show you that bad decisions committed by them will be bailed out and that is exactly what SCOTUS did to PLAINTIFF over the years since 2008. So the OBAMA WHITE HOUSE has a problem in 2008 in midst of the economic crisis? How do you jump start the economy? ARMS SALES to the second biggest purchaser of Arms at the time!

³⁴⁸ Ah so they’re modeled after one another (thereby requiring India to purchase American intelligence stuff) in which the FBI and CIA furthered RICO Enterprise 1 against PLAINTIFF and committed fraud upon the court in regards to PLAINTIFF and they have reason to know what Indian are corrupt and now they want to share information with another in which the FBI has a demonstrable history of attacking PLAINTIFF on his disability; Jesus Christ. If this is not a huge problem, I don’t know what a problem is any more.

XX. TRADE IS IN THE OFFING'S COMMERCIAL ACTIVITIES, STATE ACTIVITIES, & FRAUD.

³⁵⁰ Boy, do you know how screwed PLAINTIFF will be if SCOTUS orders an extrajudicial hit on PLAINTIFF on May 18th, 2015, HILLARY CLINTON orders a hit on June 26th, 2015 and then have Indians who share information with their American counterparts in counterterrorism in which their police and law enforcement are known for allowing extrajudicial killings of persons in custody, disappearances, and torture by police and other security forces. There is nothing but rainbows and sunshine here. See: An Anchor and a Pitchfork.

³⁵¹ Do you know who are never in the top echelons of Indian's caste system? Disabled people and poor people. So let's see what is going on: In PLAINTIFF'S left hand, under Robert MUELLER III's FBI, FBI intentionally attacks PLAINTIFF on the basis of his disability in Midyear and PLAINTIFF has issues in Financial Terrorism when PLAINTIFF was at his absolute poorest level at that time and then in PLAINTIFF'S right hand you have India routinely engage in violence based on poverty and disability level. meshes hands together fuck, these mesh too well together.

Rest assured American DEFENDANTS, I'm not seeking restitution for all of the military trade between India and United States and that is not at issue except PLAINTIFF asks for 3 things that will be explained later (nothing major and nothing that significant).

JAMES COMEY left the DOJ to become senior vice president of Lockheed-Martin (which was specifically named in the "trade is in the offing" email and on top of that, he was on the Board of Directors of HSBC in 2013 (which is a BRITISH BANK)

The U.S. Federal Court in Johnson v. Mansfield Hardwood Lumber Company, 143 F. Supp. 826 (W.D. La. 1956) discussed how to rule on matters concerning Louisiana Law and mail and wire fraud: "In our approach to this complicated matter, we have tried to maintain in proper balance, above the welter of facts, figures and prior decisions heaped upon us, the equities involved on both sides of the case. Inevitably, notwithstanding this plethora of legal and factual complexities, we find ourselves returning ultimately to the single, simple, inescapable fact: Plaintiffs received from defendant less than one-fifth of the actual value of their stock... Serious charges of deliberate fraud are made. Those charges are vehemently denied. Their resolution must await decision until all of the evidence is heard. Plaintiffs bear the heavy burden of proving actual fraud, not just by a preponderance of the evidence, but beyond a reasonable doubt." *Id.*³⁵²

"Nonetheless, defendant admits in its answer that it began negotiations for sale of its timberlands its most valuable asset in April, 1954, only five months after it purchased the last of plaintiffs' stock. That could have occurred in all good faith, but at this point in the case it must be regarded as a circumstance rather strongly against defendant's position. It is to actions, not just words, that we must look." Id. So there was a time period of about 5 to 6 months in which decisions were made and planned unbeknownst to the interested parties that impacted them financially in which that circumstance would go strongly against DEFENDANT'S argument that mail and wire fraud did not happen. Continuing on.

"The first offers to buy, for $300 per share, admittedly were made by defendant's officers, and it was they who ultimately concluded the transactions by presenting them to their Board for approval, readily granted. These officers stood in a fiduciary, or quasi-fiduciary, capacity in their relation to plaintiffs. It was their duty to advise plaintiffs fully, frankly and faithfully as to the true value of their stock. We find it hard to believe now, although our mind is open and we reserve final judgment, that plaintiffs knew much about the value of the stock, for otherwise they surely would not have sold it for such a small fraction of its real worth. While the value may have changed substantially since 1953, defendant's officers then must have known, approximately at least, the true worth of the corporate assets, and consequently, the true value of its shares, either as a going concern or in liquidation... We refer to plaintiffs' alternative grounds for relief. Can it conscientiously be said that the consideration they got was serious, as required by Louisiana law, or that the transactions did not constitute an unjust enrichment to defendant?" Id. It was the duty of Hillary Clinton, Barack Obama, Harold Koh, Eric Holder, etc to have advised PLAINTIFF fully, frankly, and faithfully as to the true value of PLAINTIFF'S stock in "trade is in the offing." That included informing PLAINTIFF about all trade deals such as the ones between SpiceJET and BOEING, BOEING and Qatar Airways, etc in which DEFENDANTS got $14,900,000,000 richer by forcing PLAINTIFF to work and become an indentured servant. There was no consideration given to PLAINTIFF nor did they inform PLAINTIFF nor did they do anything besides use PLAINTIFF as an indispensable slave and a pawn to them.

The Court continued: "We shall answer those questions after first referring to the applicable Louisiana authorities, and others which are pertinent:

- "The price of the sale must be certain, that is to say, fixed and determined by the parties.
- "It ought to consist of a sum of money, otherwise it would be considered as an exchange.
- "It ought to be serious, that is to say, there should have been a serious and true agreement that it should be paid.
- "It ought not to be out of all proportion with the value of the thing; for instance the sale of a plantation for a dollar could not be considered as a fair sale; it would be considered as a donation disguised."

But under our law the consideration 'must be serious': 'it must not be out of all proportion with the value of the thing.' Article 2464, Civ.Code. That article has special reference to the price of a sale, but the principle it involves is not peculiar to sales. It is a general principle of the civil law, and as old as the civil law itself. The example given by Ulpian as an illustration of it is not that of a sale, but, as happens, is that of a lease:

"'Si quis conduxerit nummo uno, locatio nulla est; quia hoc donationis instar obtinet.' L. 46 Dig. f. f. Loc.Cond.; Pothier, Vente, Nos. 18 and 19; Merlin, Rep.Vo.Vente, § 1, art. 2, No. 1; Duranton, T. 16, No. 100; Troplong, Vente, No. 149; Marcade on articles 1591 and 1592, C.N.

"In such a case the presumption is that the parties did not intend that the trifle named should ever be paid at all, and the situation is looked upon as being as if no amount had been named. * * *" (Emphasis supplied.)" Id.

"Later, in 1928, the same Court, in Blanchard v. Haber, 166 La. 1014 So. 117, 119, said: "Under the civil law, as at common law, it is not necessary that the consideration received or to be received for incurring an obligation shall be an equivalent consideration. The question of adequacy of the consideration is a matter for the parties themselves to determine. But, while at common law any lawful consideration for a contract is deemed sufficient, the civil law requires that the consideration must be serious and not altogether out of proportion to the obligation." Article 2464 of the Civil Code so provides, specifically, for the contract of sale; and in Murray v. Barnhart, 117 La. 1030, 42 So. 489, it was held that the doctrine of the civil law in that respect, being as old as the civil law itself, was applicable, not only to contracts of sale, but to all other contracts." (Emphasis supplied.)...Pomeroy's Equity Jurisprudence, Vol. 3, Section 927, pp. 634-638, states: "Although the actual cases in which a contract or conveyance has been canceled on account of gross inadequacy merely, without other inequitable incidents, are very few, yet the doctrine is settled, by a consensus of decisions and dicta, that even in the absence of all other circumstances, when the inadequacy of price is so gross that it shocks the conscience, and furnishes satisfactory and decisive evidence of fraud, it will be a sufficient ground for canceling a conveyance or contract, whether executed or executory. Even then fraud, and not inadequacy of price, is the true and only cause for the interposition of equity and the granting of relief. But where there is no evidence of such knowledge, intention, or deliberation by the parties, the disproportion between the value of the subject-matter and the price may be so great as to warrant the court in inferring therefrom the fact of fraud. Such a gross inadequacy or disproportion will call for explanation, and will shift the burden of proof upon the party seeking to enforce the contract, and will require him to show affirmatively that the price was the result of a deliberate and intentional action by the parties; and if the facts do prove such action, the fact of fraud will be more readily and clearly inferred." Id.

The inadequacy of price was that for Hillary Clinton putting the condition of "trade is in the offing" in which DEFENDANTS obtained more than $14,900,000,000, DEFENDANTS wanted to prosecute PLAINTIFF and had intended on completely doing so. That's obstruction of justice, witness tampering as the "offing" involved PLAINTIFF, mail and wire fraud took place in the "offing," an international and domestic act of terrorism against PLAINTIFF, and then DEFENDANTS wanted to PROSECUTE PLAINTIFF because of what DEFENDANTS DID TO PLAINTIFF. That is precisely the consideration that would shock the conscience. Furthermore, as the Court explained, when the disproportion between the value of the subject-matter and price is so great, the court can infer therefrom the fact of fraud. PLAINTIFF proved beyond a clear and convincing standard of just how valuable and indispensable he was to United States, Qatar, United Kingdom, and India in which they would all benefit economically and meet some of their political agenda by doing "trade is in the offing." Therefore, DEFENDANTS committed mail and wire fraud in "trade is in the offing." Period.

"Applying these authorities to the admitted facts of this case, it is our opinion that the price paid by defendant for plaintiffs' stock was so trifling, so inordinately out of proportion to its true value, that no fair-minded person could say it was "serious". Its inadequacy "shocks the conscience". Article 1965 of the LSA-Civil Code of Louisiana, provides: "The equity intended by this rule is founded in the Christian principle not to do unto others that which we would not wish others should do unto us; and on the moral maxim of the law that no one ought to enrich himself at the expense of another. When the law of the land, and that which the parties have made for themselves by their contract, are silent, courts must apply these principles to determine what ought to be incidents to a contract, which are required by equity." (Emphasis supplied.) Restatement of the Law, on the subject of "Restitution", page 12, states: "A person who has been unjustly enriched at the expense of another is required to make restitution to the other." Herrmann v. Gleason, 6 Cir., 126 F.2d 936, 940, held: "It is said that the action is equitable to the degree that it is based on a moral obligation to make restitution which rests upon a person who has received a benefit which, if retained by him, would result in inequity and injustice. Hummel v. Hummel, 133 Ohio St. 520, 14 N.E.2d 923. Under the doctrine of unjust enrichment, a defendant has something of value at the plaintiff's expense under circumstances which impose a legal duty of restitution. American University v. Forbes, 88 N.H. 17, 183 A. 860. See Wilson Cypress Co. v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 5 Cir., 109 F.2d 623; Ames' Lectures on Legal

On the basis of those authorities, it is also our opinion that defendant was unjustly enriched through its purchase of plaintiffs' stock, and ought to make restitution."

The Court didn't rule on whether or not legal fraud had been committed, but it was going to in a different case. The point being, is the factual circumstances in Johnson v. Mansfield Hardwood Lumber Company, 143 F. Supp. 826 (W.D. La. 1956). The case that was decided two years later deriving from the 1956 case was: Johnson v. Mansfield Hardwood Lumber Company, 159 F. Supp. 104 (W.D. La. 1958).

The Johnson v. Mansfield Hardwood Lumber Company, 159 F. Supp. 104 (W.D. La. 1958) case provided the following in determining what factors went into determining fraud in Louisiana courts in US Federal Court:

"Defendant's counsel, in brief, have argued that there are five essential ingredients which must be proven in order for a contract to be voided on grounds of fraud. They are:

- 1) A false representation;
- 2) In reference to a material fact;
- 3) Made with knowledge of its falsity;
- 4) With intent to deceive; and
- 5) With action taken in reliance upon the representation.

We accept counsel's contention as a sound statement of law, previously followed by this Court and by the Courts of Louisiana, and as directly applicable here." Id.

A false representation can necessarily include a material omission because a material omission of a key fact gives a false representation.

"Moreover, even if defendant's officers had not been proven guilty of actual fraud in the many respects shown, defendant still would be liable for breach of the fiduciary obligations of its officers, in failing to advise plaintiffs fully, frankly and faithfully as to the important, material facts which were in the officers' possession. This amounted to constructive fraud." Id.

Now as drafter's of the condition of "the offering" that necessarily implicated PLAINTIFF'S financial conditions in which DEFENDANTS forced PLAINTIFF into labor, there was a fiduciary obligation to inform PLAINTIFF of how indispensable he was to DEFENDANTS in "trade is in the offering" because there was a non-payment to PLAINTIFF on account of his labor; and because there was a non-payment, that creates a fiduciary obligation because one is required to pay for labor (even if it is forced). Therefore, constructive fraud by Hillary Clinton, Eric Holder, Leon Panetta, BRITISH INTEL, and Harold Koh.

The five factors in proving fraud (and thereby mail and wire fraud) in this case:

- 1) False representations were given to PLAINTIFF routinely whether it was on his passport by British Intel, the purpose of going to India, being denied access to go to Doha, the delays in the aircraft, committing an act of international and domestic terrorism against PLAINTIFF—everything about “the offing” was materially misrepresented to PLAINTIFF.
- 2) The material fact of “the offing” was the trade, the condition of forcing PLAINTIFF’S labor, their political ideologies and motivations, greed, and more.
- 3) They knew it because they planned it and conspired that PLAINTIFF just proved beyond any reasonable doubt.
- 4) By fabricating the plans, they necessarily knew of the falsities conveyed to PLAINTIFF in which they intentionally deceived PLAINTIFF.
- 5) PLAINTIFF going to the Indian embassy, waiting at the gate for the plane in London, only option of PLAINTIFF taking the flight to Dulles, being denied access to the flight to Chicago in Dulles—all of these were actions undertaken by PLAINTIFF in reliance of their deception.
- 6) Wires and communications and mails were used to plan, facilitate, and execute the plan against PLAINTIFF.

Johnson v. Mansfield Hardwood Lumber Company, 159 F. Supp. 104 (W.D. La. 1958) cited the following that would further support PLAINTIFF’S claim of mail and wire fraud occurred in “trade is in the offing”: “The Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals in Commercial National Bank in Shreveport v. Parsons, 144 F.2d 231, 238-239, had the following to say on this subject:

"Where the directors of a failing bank form a new bank and in effect pledge to themselves every asset of the old bank, a court of equity should scrutinize the contract with great care and strike down every oppressive and overreaching provision. *This is true even though the stockholders ratified the contract, because the parties were not on an equal footing and the directors occupied a position of trust and confidence. The old shareholders were given the option to take stock in the new bank; but for many of them doubtless this was impossible, as very few availed themselves of the option. The contract should have been drawn so as to treat both groups fairly. The directors had the advantage of an intimate knowledge of the old bank's condition, which the ordinary stockholders did not have. A hard bargain driven by fiduciaries in such circumstances is presumed to be fraudulent and void. 25 C.J. 1118, 1119, 1120. The law of fiduciaries would be futile if it lacked the capacity to correct abuses arising out of the relation of trust and confidence existing between the directors of a corporation and its stockholders." (Emphasis supplied.) Another ground fully justifying recovery by plaintiffs under Louisiana law, and established by undisputed facts, is that the consideration they received for their stockless than 20% of its liquidated value was not serious, within the meaning of that term as expressed in the L.S.A.-Civil Code, and as interpreted by the Louisiana jurisprudence."

So in the aforementioned cited case, there were directors who were placed in positions of confidence of trust in which the directors in that case created the scenario in which the PLAINTIFF’S financial futures were implicated in which it was impossible to have done anything else. Exactly what happened by essentially forcing PLAINTIFF to take the flight to Dulles from London-Heathrow. The directors had the advantage of an intimate knowledge of the plan of "trade is in the offing," which the ordinary peon like PLAINTIFF did not have nor could have possibly known without being told directly. There was a hard bargain driven by fiduciaries in such circumstances, and therefore, it is presumed to be fraudulent and void.

Here is the thing, from Qatar Airways perspective as PLAINTIFF will prove a little bit later on, they were completely informed of "trade is in the offing." If Qatar Airways was, then United Airlines was as well. Mr. Chadwick of BOEING, HILLARY CLINTON, BARACK OBAMA, HAROLD KOH, MARAN, all knew the SpiceJet deal was part of the "trade is in the offing."

As to holding, at a minimum, BOEING, Qatar Airways, United Airlines, and GE liable for their employee's actions, Johnson v. Mansfield Hardwood Lumber Company, 159 F. Supp. 104 (W.D. La. 1958) said: "The correct rule of law, applicable here, is found at 13 American Jurisprudence 1050 et seq., verbo "Corporations", § 1125: "Fraud and Misrepresentations. The general rule that a principal is liable for the fraud and misrepresentation of his agent while acting within the scope of his authority or employment is fully applicable to corporations. Corporations may be held liable for the fraud and deceit of their officers and agents acting within the scope of their corporate authority or employment. It is true that as a mere legal entity a corporation can have no will, and cannot act at all, but in its relations to the public it is represented by its officers and agents, and their fraud in the corporate course of dealing is in law the fraud of the corporation. What is more, a corporation is not relieved from liability for the fraudulent acts of its officer within the apparent scope of his authority by the fact that the officer in committing the fraud is acting for his own benefit and the fact that the corporation does not profit by it. The reason given for the corporation's liability in such case is that although the fraud is for the officer's own benefit, the officer is placed in such a position by the corporation that as its agent he has the power to commit the wrong, and therefore it should bear the burden of his wrongdoing." (Emphasis supplied.)" Id.

A Louisiana court in Chrysler Credit Corporation v. Henry, 221 So. 2d 529 (La. Ct. App. 1969) determined whether the following case was unconscionable based on the fraud in the case in which a contract was at issue: "Insofar as the facts before us are concerned, the substantive law applicable thereto is contained in Civil Code Article 1847(9) which reads: "Fraud, as applied to contracts, is the cause of an error bearing on a material part of the contract, created or continued by artifice, with design to obtain some unjust advantages to the one party, or to cause an inconvenience or loss to the other. From which definition are drawn the following rules:...9. If the artifice be practiced by a party to the contract, or by another with his knowledge or by his procurement, it vitiates the contract; * * *". In order to ascertain whether or not a contract is vitiated by fraud, the evidence in support thereof must be evaluated in conformity with the legislative standard set forth in Civil Code Article 1848, which reads: "Fraud, like every other allegation, must be proved by him who alleges it, but it may be proved by simple presumptions or by legal presumptions, as well as by other evidence."³⁵³ The maxim that fraud is not to be presumed, means no more than that it is not to be imputed without legal evidence." The procedural requirements for alleging a cause of action for fraud are set forth in Article 856 of the ³⁵³ Louisiana Civil Code Article 1957 says fraud can be proved by circumstantial evidence at a preponderance of the evidence standard.

Louisiana Code of Civil Procedure, which reads: "In pleading fraud or mistake, the circumstances constituting fraud or mistake shall be alleged with particularity. Malice, intent, knowledge, and other condition of mind of a person may be alleged generally."

So PLAINTIFF got: Qatar Airways, United Airlines, Boeing, Hillary Clinton, Barack Obama, Harold Koh, XX Maran, and more XX as well.

Next, PLAINTIFF wants to allege something just in case. "trade is in the offing" and the Indians may have revealed the nature of Indians when it came to PLAINTIFF—they're willing to go back on their word against their friends: "[I have been trying to send it to OS/MESA...cant see this landing there]...." This is from stratfor that provides intel to American Intel. On their India Sweep on PLAINTIFF'S birthday, the previous sentence that PLAINTIFF has bolded and underlined that raises an eyebrow after "the offing" in which they can't see this landing there... suspicious. But nonetheless, the following:

So there was supposed to be more trade, except India went back on their word in one deal: "US Indian Ambassador Timothy Roemer on Thursday described as "deeply disappointing" New Delhi's decision to reject two American combat jets that were amongst the six in contention for an Indian order of 126 fighters. Roemer said he had received the notification from the Indian government, and "we are respectful of the procurement process. We are, however, deeply disappointed by this news". India has rejected U.S. firms for an $11 billion fighter jet contract, shortlisting European firms instead, in a move that could sour its relationship with the United States while broadening its strategic ties with other regions.... Nevertheless, he said, the US looked forward to continuing to grow and develop defense partnership with India. He said the US was convinced that it offered the world's most advanced and reliable technology to everyone. "I have been personally assured at the highest levels of the Indian government that the procurement process for this aircraft has been and will be transparent and fair. "I am extremely confident that the Boeing F/A 18IN and Lockheed-Martin F-16IN would provide the Indian Air Force an unbeatable platform with proven technologies at a competitive price." It is now virtually an all-European battle for the combat jet order with the US and Russia almost out of the race after the defence ministry asked EADS and Dassault to extend the validity of their commercial bids for 126 fighter jets. The contract is valued at $10.4 billion. India offered to cooperate in the energy, petroleum, cotton and IT sectors and also extended its help in registration of rice varieties... The rejection comes despite lobbying from President Barack Obama during a high-profile visit to India five months ago, and coincides with the unexpected resignation of the U.S. ambassador to India, who cited "personal, professional, and family considerations" in a statement on Thursday. The U.S. embassy in India declined to comment if Timothy Roemer's resignation was linked to the jet decision, with a spokeswoman referring queries to a statement on their website. Roemer said in a separate statement on India's decision: "We are...deeply disappointed by this news. We look forward to continuing to grow and develop our defense partnership with India." ³⁵⁴ PLAINTIFF is alleging just in case Timothy Roemer's resignation had something to do with PLAINTIFF.

In, Republic of the Philippines v. Marcos, 862 F.2d 1355, 1358 (9th Cir. 1988)(hereon: Marcos), the PLAINTIFF alleged that the former royal couple of the Philippines, the Marcoses, engaged in mail fraud, wire fraud, and the transportation of stolen property in the foreign or interstate commerce of the United States. The Marcos court said: “criminal conduct under RICO “forms a pattern if it embraces criminal acts that have the same or similar purposes, results, participants, victims, or methods of commission, or otherwise are interrelated by distinguishing characteristics and are not isolated events.” Sedima, S.P.R.L. v. Imrex Co., Inc., 473 U.S. 479, 496 n. 14, 105 S.Ct. 3275, 3285, n. 14, 87 L.Ed.2d 346 (quoting 18 U.S.C. § 3575(e)).”

The Marcos court discussed the purposes of the Marcoses acts in the case in which the court noted: “The purposes of the acts here alleged are the same — to invest and to conceal fraudulently-obtained booty. The results are the same—the investment of the booty. The principals are the same—the Marcoses. The victim is the same—the Republic. The episodes are not isolated events. They represent a plan and a practice of getting the fruits of fraud out of the Philippines and into the assumed safety of the United States. If proved, the allegations show acts that form a pattern.” Id. DEFENDANTS invested in themselves and concealed the fraudulently obtained labor and services of PLAINTIFF. The results were the same—investment of PLAINTIFF’S labor and services to themselves. The principals were the same—DEFENDANTS. The victim is the same—PLAINTIFF. The episodes in this complaint were not isolated events. The events represented a plan and practice of getting the fruits of fraud out of PLAINTIFF and into the assumed and created legal immunity safety of the United States, Britain, India, and Qatar that was aided and abetted by SCOTUS.

The Court in Marcos condemned what the Marcoses did over a period of 15+ years: “Here there is alleged to be a group of individuals associated in fact for the purpose of illegally investing the fruits of fraud and illegally using the mails and wire and illegally transporting in interstate commerce the fruits of the fraud.” The effect on the commerce of the United States of engaging in mail or wire fraud or bringing stolen property into the country is palpable. The Marcoses are mistaken in arguing that such criminal acts have no consequences for commerce to or in this country. The criminal enterprise which they are charged with conducting consisted in operations taking place within the United States. These operations had multiple effects on the domestic and foreign commerce of this country. If the operations were criminal, the operations incurred criminal liability under our law. United States v. Stratton, 649 F.2d 1066, 1075 (5th Cir. 1981) (appearance of out-of-state litigants before court that was a criminal RICO enterprise); United States v. Altomare, 625 F.2d 5 (4th Cir. 1980) (interstate telephone calls perpetuating RICO enterprise affected interstate commerce). The Republic's allegations are sufficient to establish federal jurisdiction. 18 U.S.C. § 1964...During his twenty years as President of the Philippines, Mr. Marcos used his position of power and authority to convert and cause to be converted, to his use and that of his friends, family, and associates, money, funds, and property belonging to the Philippines and its people. [omitted]. This common allegation supports not only plaintiff's RICO claims but also the eight claims for conversion, fraud and deceit, constructive fraud, constructive trust, breach of implied contract, quiet title, accounting, and subrogation. The claims for a constructive trust, to quiet title, an accounting, and subrogation merely set forth different forms of relief for the same underlying wrongs.” Id.

All [xx] associated in fact for the purpose of illegally investing in the fruits of the fraud perpetuated against PLAINTIFF in which they illegally invested the fruits of the fraud and used the mails and wires to perpetuate the fraud against PLAINTIFF. DEFENDANTS illegally transported PLAINTIFF in interstate commerce to further perpetuate the fraud and force PLAINTIFF'S labor in furtherance of RICO Enterprise 1. The effect on the commerce of the United States of engaging in mail or wire fraud and bringing stolen PLAINTIFF into the country is palpable. The criminal enterprise which DEFENDANTS committed and perpetuated against PLAINTIFF in which DEFENDANTS routinely conducted unconstitutional operations against PLAINTIFF taking place within the United States, India, United Kingdom, Qatar, and Japan (in an Anchor and a Pitchfork). These operations had multiple effects on the domestic and foreign commerce of this country. If the operations were criminal, the operations incurred criminal liability under our law. DEFENDANTS utilized satellites, internet, telephones, cellphones in perpetuating the fraud against PLAINTIFF therefore affecting interstate commerce. During the last 15+ years, DEFENDANTS used their positions of power and authority to convert and cause to be converted PLAINTIFF'S property, business, constitutional, and liberty interests for the use of DEFENDANTS' unconstitutional power expansion denying PLAINTIFF any ability to seek redress for the harms DEFENDANTS perpetuated against PLAINTIFF and the harm they perpetuated against their own countries in pursuit of money and power. PLAINTIFF'S allegations support not only PLAINTIFF'S RICO claims but also the eight claims for conversion, fraud and deceit, constructive fraud, breach of implied contract, quiet title, in violation of 18 U.S.C §1951 (EXTORTION); Title VI of the Civil Rights Act, 18 U.S.C. §1862 (d); 18 U.S.C. §1862 (c); 18 U.S.C. §1862 (b); 18 U.S.C. §1862 (a); 42 U.S.C. §1981; 42 U.S.C. §1983, 42 U.S.C. §1985(2); 42 U.S.C. §1985(3); 42 U.S.C. §1986; 18 U.S.C. §226, 18 U.S.C. §241, 42 U.S.C. §1983, 18 U.S.C. §1961 Sections 1581-1590 (relating to peonage), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1510 (relating to obstruction of criminal investigations), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1343 (wire fraud), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1346 (to deprive another of the intangible right of honest services"), 18 U.S.C. §1961 Section 1503, 18 U.S. Code §201 (bribery), 18 U.S.C. §872 (Extortion by officer), 18 U.S. Code § 875, 18 U.S. Code § 880 (receives proceeds of extortion), Section 504, and PLAINTIFF'S 1st, 4th, 5th, 6th, 8th, 9th, 10th, 13th, and 14th Amendment rights.

"The Offing" wasn't absurd under Louisiana Contract Law. HILLARY CLINTON, ALISTAIR BURT, WILLIAM HAGUE, TONY BLAIR, SINGH, ET AL. viewed the actions of PLAINTIFF as being worth more than $14,900,000,000 and as HILLARY CLINTON admitted later, was worth at least 20% more trade between India and United States between 2010-2011. There is a possibility that it could be absurd if PLAINTIFF offered was one the that initially offered his services for $14,900,000,000 at first; but it wasn't that; it was the exact opposite in which THEY determined what it was worth first and then PLAINTIFF agreed to do the work. "A knowing and voluntary assent to harsh contractual provisions permits no judicial scrutiny in Louisiana, but whenever the meaning or intent of the language of the instrument is the issue, the courts give weight to the obvious fact that "informed and experienced persons, do not usually and customarily bind themselves to unjust and unreasonable obligations." Oil Field Supply & Scrap Material Co. v. Gifford Hill & Co., So. 2d 483 (La. 1943)

"§ 1603(e), and provides that a commercial activity may be "either a regular course of commercial conduct or a particular commercial transaction or act," " Saudi Arabia v. Nelson, 507

U.S. 349, 356 (1993) “the “commercial character of [which] shall be determined by reference to” its “nature,” rather than its “purpose,”” Saudi Arabia v. Nelson, 507 U.S. 349 (1993). “allowing for jurisdiction where an action “is based . . . upon an act outside the territory of the United States in connection with a commercial activity of the foreign state elsewhere and that act causes a direct effect in the United States.”” Saudi Arabia v. Nelson, 507 U.S. 349 (1993)

PLAINTIFF has established beyond a preponderance of the evidence standard DEFENDANTS are subject to jurisdiction under 18 U.S.C. 1964.

PLAINTIFF doesn’t know if it applies to every neck of the woods, but in PLAINTIFF’S neck of the woods, when you’re in the process of trying to sell someone something that is worth billions and billions of dollars and you give Defense Minister Antony (See: Picture below with Hillary Clinton on 09/28/2010³⁵⁵) a luncheon that honors and glorifies Antony in which he is the decision maker on that sale, that is a nudge of an indication that corruption is afoot. Either way, it is clear from these emails that the INDIANS need to do more to please DEFENDANTS HILLARY CLINTON, BARACK OBAMA, HAROLD KOH, and HUMA ABEDIN in some way and it is just not about Kashmir unrest. Furthermore, in the same email, it says that India had an interest in cooperation on governance, which means that India had an interest in doing political decisions (governance is political decisions) between India and the United States at HILLARY CLINTON, STATE, and INR DEFENDANTS’ intention and direction. India would go along with whatever America wanted. Okay? OKAY!

So DEFENDANTS may argue that “defense trade is in the offing” is only limited to arms sales and defense purposes only. This is false assertion. Here are more of the deals that were reached according to Wikileaks in the following endeavors in “trade is in the offing” that both non-defense and defense related: “$500 million for General Electric to supply super heavyweight gas turbine engines for Reliance Energy.³⁵⁶ $800 million for General Electric to supply fighter jet engines to the Indian Aeronautical Development Agency for a light combat aircraft for India.³⁵⁷

$50 million for Caterpillar to supply marine engines to the Indian Coast Guard.³⁵⁸ $2.7 billion for Boeing to supply 30 Boeing 737s to the plethora of Indian airlines that have helped transport tens of millions of creative, innovative, and risk-loving Indian entrepreneurs around their country (SpiceJET).³⁵⁹ $917 million for Bucyrus International, a Wisconsin-based manufacturer, to sell mining equipment to Sasan Power in Madhya Pradesh for a 3,960 megawatt powerplant.”³⁶⁰ Furthermore, Wikileaks did not include some of the pricing of other massive deals from “trade is in the offing” “for which dollar figures were not made public, because they are deals between private sector companies in both countries—PLAINTIFF can go after these deals as well. One of the most promising potential deals is the one between the Tata Group and two firms, Eaton and Cummins. Together these companies have developed the already in-operation Hybrid Tata Starbus which was used at the Commonwealth Games to transport players to and from venues. Potential contracts for this kind of bus will be in the thousands, with New Delhi alone looking to add 6,000 vehicles to its public sector transportation network. Another potential deal for India's transportation sector that has yet to be finalised is the purchase of 4,000 state-of-the-art diesel engines, worth at least $4 billion by Indian Railways, from either GE or Caterpillar.”³⁶¹ You know damn well PLAINTIFF loves his trains. It was reported later that Indian Railways and GE made a $2,500,000,000 in November 2015³⁶² for 1000 locomotives in which PLAINTIFF the agreement was done and reached because India and America started talking about the locomotives in 2011 around Miki's Tea Party and then the sale was completed after An Anchor and a Pitchfork in November 2015 in which both India and America had interests in ensuring that PLAINTIFF met his demise in Japan. PLAINTIFF will bring this back up later.

PLAINTIFF just wants to allege something quickly as it provides a factual nexus to “trade is in the offing”—it may not make sense now to you, PLAINTIFF is just alleging it briefly just to incorporate it. Wikileaks said “One of the most promising potential deals is the one between the Tata Group and two firms, Eaton and Cummins. Together these companies have developed the already in-operation Hybrid Tata Starbus.” AJAY SINGH was one of the founders of SpiceJET. Part of the way Ajay SINGH came up through the ranks was that AJAY SINGH was an Indian bureaucrat that “was responsible for the turnaround of the loss-making Delhi Transport Corporation (DTC) in which he was on the Board of DTC and unveiled a strategic plan to revamp the public transport sector (i.e. buses). He was successful in turning around DTC by 2000. At the same exact time of DTC'S turn around, MUTHUVEL KARUNANIDHI opened the largest bus station/terminus (at that time) in all of Asia in Chennai India in 2002. PLAINTIFF is willing to allege that yea, MUTHUVEL KARUNANIDHI and AJAY SINGH knew each other because: how can you turn around DTC and not have a single bus go to the largest bus station in all of Asia not go to Chennai? So, under AJAY SINGH'S leadership, SpiceJet placed an order of 205 Boeing aircraft – one of the largest in the American company's history. The mega order was acknowledged by the then US President Donald Trump who said it would help create tens of thousands of jobs in the United States. That SpiceJET part is for later.

PLAINTIFF got a surprise!
Guess who was in Chennai in July 20th, 2011.
Go ahead. Guess who was in Chennai?

“Hillary Rodham Clinton
Secretary of State
Anna Centenary Library
Chennai, India
July 20, 2011”

“But this is the first opportunity to come to this extraordinary coastal city here in the South, and one that means so much to so many in my own country and elsewhere, and to be in Tamil Nadu, who is a state that is one of the most industrialized, globalized, and educated in all of India. So it is – (applause) – it is somehow not surprising that this state would boast this very large library for the use of its citizens. And I know that the librarian has spent some time in my country, and we so pleased to have that among many of the links between us and you...President Obama made a state visit to India last year. I have been here twice in the last two years. And why, one might ask? Why are we coming to India so often and welcoming Indian officials to Washington as well? It’s because we understand that much of the history of the 21st century will be written in Asia, and that much of the future of Asia will be shaped by decisions not only of the Indian Government in New Delhi, but of governments across India, and perhaps, most importantly, by the 1.3 billion people who live in this country.

And we have a great commitment to our government-to-government relations, but we have an even greater commitment to our people-to-people ones. And we view them as absolutely central to the partnership and friendship between our countries. As President Obama told the Indian parliament last year, the relationship between India and the United States will be one of the defining partnerships of the 21st century. How will we define it? How will we work together to inject content into it? What will we do to build trust and confidence and do more that will bring us together?”³⁶³

What are the links that connect Hillary Clinton to Tamil Nadu? There is a greater commitment to people-to-people relationships between Hillary Clinton and some people in Tamil Nadu. Do you know what brings people together? Airplanes.

“And I also know, because I hear it from friends and colleagues and I see it from time to time in the Indian press, which is so exciting to read – I never know what I’m going to find when I turn the page of one of your newspapers, and I’m always both delighted and surprised.”³⁶⁴

Who is an Indian from Tamil Nadu that is a friend to Hillary Clinton in which Hillary Clinton very much enjoys and finds his newspaper exciting to read? HMMMM HMMM. Good things come to those who wait.

“But I find that there are those who raise questions about the direction of the relationship between us, and I understand that. It is true that we are different countries with different histories and backgrounds. And we will, from time to time, disagree as any two nations or, frankly, any two friends inevitably will do. But we believe that our differences are far outweighed by our deep and abiding bonds. Our nations are built on the same bedrock beliefs about democracy, pluralism, opportunity, and innovation. We share common interests like stopping terrorism and spurring balanced and broad-based economic growth that goes deeply into our societies... And that is why our two governments have established a Strategic Dialogue which we announced when I first came as Secretary of State back in 2009 and when Prime Minister Singh visited later that year, and which, of course, we now have held two important sessions of, one in Washington and then this week in New Delhi... We have worked together for the important task of preventing cyber attacks on our respective infrastructures. We are talking about a new bilateral investment treaty that will build on the 20 percent increase in trade we’ve seen just this last year. And we have watched as trade is increasingly flowing in both directions.”

Muah. Kisses Hillary Clinton. Thank you so much for putting a figure of 20% increase in trade between July 2010 and July 2011 and trade is increasingly flowing in both directions. This is complete true because, according to the United States Trade Representatives, “The U.S. goods trade deficit with India was $14.5 billion in 2011, up $4.3 billion from 2010. U.S. goods exports in 2011 were $21.6 billion, up 12.4 percent from the previous year. Corresponding U.S. imports from India were $36.2 billion, up 22.5 percent. India is currently the 17th largest export market for U.S. goods.”³⁶⁵ So HILLARY CLINTON’S 20% figure comments closely reflected the amount the United States was importing from India and the increase of 22.5% was around $8,145,000,000 in increased trade. The value of the increase trade amount of 12.4% those Indian customers received from American Companies (exporters) was around $2,678,400,000. Since HILLARY CLINTON said trade flows both ways, PLAINTIFF will take the average of the percentages and the amount of increased trade at 17.45% and $5,411,700,000 respectively—this is what PLAINTIFF will call as the HILLARY CLINTON Fee in determining restitution. The HILLARY CLINTON Fee will be completely paid for by DEFENDANTS and not taken out of the restitution as PLAINTIFF does for other things.

Simply, when HILLARY CLINTON/HUMA ABEDIN wrote: “a rare development that could signal better U.S.-India defense trade is in the offing,”³⁶⁶ the monetary value of BETTER (i.e. more) trade necessarily--and solely based on the condition of “the offing”--was: The United States importing a total of $8,145,000,000 and exporting a total of $2,678,400,000, which makes a total of: $10,823,400,000 of economic benefit between both countries. If DEFENDANTS argue that the figure of $14,900,000,000 based on what the White House is inapplicable in which DEFENDANTS would take advantage of PLAINTIFF’S generosity, then fine, PLAINTIFF will ask treble damages on $10,823,400,000 making it a total of $32,470,200,000.

“We have new initiatives linking students and businesses and communities, and one of my personal favorites is the Passport to India, a program designed to bring more American students to study in India to match the great numbers of Indian students that come to America to study, because we want to create those bonds between our young people and our future leaders. We also consulted on the work we will be doing in the months ahead, strengthening our joint fight against terrorism, boosting our economic ties, completing our civilian-nuclear partnership, and deepening our defense cooperation. We think this work is very much in the interests of both of our countries and both of our peoples.”³⁶⁷

“Here in Chennai, we can see how much a society can achieve when all citizens fully are participating in the political and economic life of their country.”³⁶⁸

Why thank you HILLARY CLINTON for connecting POLITICS OF TAMIL NADU TO ECONOMIC LIFE OF THE PEOPLE OF TAMIL NADU in which there was a 20% increase in trade between July 2010 and July 2011 and trade is increasingly flowing in both directions. THANK YOU SO VERY MUCH. Who is an Indian from Tamil Nadu that is a friend to Hillary Clinton in which Hillary Clinton very much enjoys and finds his newspaper exciting to read? HMMMM HMMM. Good things come to those who wait.

Another funny thing and speaking of better trade between DEFENDANTS, well funny for PLAINTIFF but not DEFENDANTS. and PLAINTIFF says: good things come to those who wait. PLAINTIFF just wants to establish the following facts: INDIA'S Airline industry for a long time was regulated by the government and they are too interconnected as to effectively separate this purchase by SpiceJet from the INDIAN Government and HILLARY CLINTON'S "is in the offing" email to HILLARY CLINTON and representatives from Boeing in which it is not specified if it only Boeing defense representatives, which means BOEING'S commercial division representatives were there on 09/28/2010. There was an executive summary³⁷⁰ made that documented the issues involving the INDIAN Government and the airline industry in INDIA. For five years, there were issues with the merger and creation of Air India by the INDIAN Government that started around 2004/2005 and went up to 2010.³⁷¹ The Economic Times (a subsidiary of the Indian Times) discussed the regularly occurring and massive interference of the INDIAN Government in INDIAN'S Aviation Sector (i.e. Air India, and therefore, SpiceJet)³⁷² they said: "Admittedly, the airline industry in India (as also the world) is not exactly in the pink of health. Both Kingfisher Airlines and Jet Airways are also in loss. While Kingfisher Airlines has not made a profit since inception in 2005, Jet Airways made a loss on a consolidated basis in each of the last four years. Low-cost carriers, however, seem to be faring better with SpiceJet (the only listed airline in this category) making profits in the last two years after incurring losses in the previous three."³⁷³ In December 2014, Quartz talked about the issues with SpiceJET which prove relevant to PLAINTIFF'S case.³⁷⁴ The article was entitled "Why Is Modi (Prime Minister of INDIA) Throwing Money Behind a Failing SpiceJET. Modi was the Prime Minister of INDIA in OCTOBER and NOVEMBER 2010. The article discussed the SpiceJET financial issues from 2011-2014 (a culmination of 3 years after OCTOBER 2010): "SpiceJET has been in the red for five consecutive quarters and has been registering losses for the past three financial years."³⁷⁵ So there were losses for 3 years after October 2010, who was in charge of SpiceJET? SpiceJET was run by "SpiceJET'S promoter Kalanithi Maran (who obtained the controlling shares just earlier in June 2010)³⁷⁶ is currently the 38th richest man in India and has a personal wealth of Rs14,500 crore ($2.3 billion)...Maran is also part of the one of the biggest political families in southern India; the Dravida Munnetra Kazhagam, led by his uncle, MUTHUVEL KARUNANIDHI, was part of previous United Progressive Alliance (UPA) government."³⁷⁷ Ah so the owner of SpiceJET is connected to one of the largest political parties in INDIA in which Modi wants to throw money at saving SpiceJET. Right? Right. So what were causing the problems? "SpiceJET, and Kingfisher before that, illustrate that seemingly perennial problems in Indian aviation," Robert Mann, president of aviation consultant R.W. Mann & Co. told Bloomberg. These problems include “fragmentation, excess capacity, irrational pricing, irrational pricing, and unrealistic expectations for economic growth associated with unaffordable aggressive fleet plans.”³⁷⁸ Concerning the interests of SpiceJet in 2010 in which officials in SpiceJet and the INDIAN government necessarily knew the following: “It is only now (November 2010 onwards) that India finally has an international class airport terminal at Delhi capable of large scale hub and spoke operations (domestic/ international and international/ international); large scale development of other international airports in India facilitating hub and spoke operations (at the minimum where domestic and international terminals are colocated) will follow later. Again, giving a reasonable timeframe of 2 to 3 years after full-scale operationalisation of Delhi would have provided a level playing field to all Indian airlines (not just AIL/IAL) to compete with the mega carriers specialising in 6th freedom traffic.”³⁷⁹ KALANITHI MARAN just acquired his new airline in June 2010 in which he barely has any experiencing running an airline (but the INDIAN Government knows how to run one and KALANITHI MARAN needs the INDIAN GOVERNMENT approval to expand for SpiceJET to expand), goes to MODI to talk about it. Around the same time, the INDIAN Government gives MARAN and SpiceJET “approval to fly to several SAARC countries and is in the process of planning and launching services to these countries.”³⁸⁰ This happens around July 2010. So DEFENDANTS got the approval for expansion in July, and 3 months later, SpiceJET officially orders 27 brand new 737NG Aircraft with the condition and input received that “is in the offing” occurs at the behest of the RICO Enterprise’s interest and conditions.

There is an extremely relevant story to the relationship between MARAN and MUTHUVEL KARUNANIDHI that happened sometime in 2007. KALANITHI MARAN faced the biggest ever threat to his business empire in 2007 when he stepped on the toes of his political patron, MUTHUVEL KARUNANIDHI. “The most powerful political family in Tamil Nadu -- that of Chief Minister Karunanidhi -- fumed at a newspaper report hinting at competing political ambitions of the Marans. Karunanidhi unleashed the entire might of the government in a hot pursuit of Kalanithi Maran. He even got his government to start a cable TV corporation to weaken Sun TV group. The same political influence that had backed Maran in the past turned against him... The truce came eventually. Karunanidhi, great-uncle to the Marans, took them back in his wings and eased all constrictions around Sun. All the business relationships that had deserted him during the turmoil returned. And Maran was truly back in the game... [Maran was] the young warrior who took Tamil Nadu's satellite TV market by storm in the 1990s, helped in no small measure by Karunanidhi's political patronage. But here was a seasoned, mature businessman who needed no outside influence. He also showed the patience to win over rivals and the shrewdness to wriggle out of a tight corner... Yet all these past successes may not be able to help him as he steps into aviation. He brings a low-cost culture and a genius for marketing disruption from Sun.”³⁸¹

So after MUTHUVEL KARUNANIDHI and MARAN got in a fight, MARAN necessarily learned not to go against MUTHUVEL KARUNANIDHI in which MARAN learned the bureaucratic regime in India would come against him and MARAN would be rewarded under MUTHUVEL KARUNANIDHI'S political patronage. For example, In 2008, Karunanidhi implemented a plan to provide free color TVs to every family with ration cards. This is all great and well, but do you know who this necessarily impacted? MARAN and his Sun TV group. If you have more viewers after being given a TV for free by MUTHUVEL KARUNANIDHI, it means that Sun TV group had more viewers; and more viewers means more marketing and revenue to Sun TV group in which MARAN's "genius" for marketing disruption could be on full display. The lesson learned for MARAN. Follow MUTHUVEL KARUNANIDHI, more money and no Indian bureaucratic government intervention.

Some sort of Indian newsletter PLAINTIFF found on the internet from June 14 to 18, 2010 talked about SpiceJET (4 months before "trade is in the offing" deal) in which it said: "Kalanithi Maran, the founder and chairman of Sun TV Network bought a 37.7% stake in low-cost carrier from its promoter Bhupendra Kansagra and US investor WL Ross...The deal makes Maran the single largest shareholder in SpiceJet. Maran will make an open offer for 20% more in SpiceJet at Rs 57.76 a share....SpiceJet has recently been given permission to fly overseas to Bangladesh, the Maldives and Nepal. It swung to a net profit of Rs274mn in January-March 2010 against a loss of Rs78mn a year ago."³⁸²

So, starting to tie this all together, New York Times published an article around January 2011³⁸³ talked about BOEING and how their future market growth would be in India and how the article "describe[d] letters from presidents, state visits as bargaining chips and a number of leaders making big purchases based, at least in part, on how much the companies will dress up private planes. The documents also suggest that demands for bribes, or at least payment to suspicious intermediaries who offer to serve as "agents," still take place."³⁸⁴ There was a *development*³⁸⁵ in expansion in INDIAN airspace and airports in October/November 2010 that was in the direction of the INDIAN Government and Prime Minister Singh. MARAN learned his lesson and would go along with whatever MUTHUVEL KARUNANIDHI wanted in order not to have the bureaucracy go after MARAN in his new aviation venture. MUTHUVEL KARUNANIDHI would have some pull with Prime Minister Singh and would have Prime Minister Singh tell the bureaucracy not to go after SpiceJET. SpiceJET had an interest to acquire more jets and necessarily had to work with the INDIAN government to make that happen. So with INDIAN government's push to expand the aviation industry in 2010 created a demand for airlines to purchase more planes; however, as proven a little bit later, SpiceJET'S aggressive fleet plans and excess capacity were caused by the same thing that led to SpiceJET's debt in 2013/2014—excess airplanes not needed by SpiceJET. So the decision to purchase the 27 BOEING 737NG planes in October 2010 were in excess of what SpiceJET needed and, therefore it is far more inferable and probable that a political decision by SINGH, MUTHUVEL KARUNANIDHI, MARAN, BOEING, and HILLARY CLINTON, who received a good deal on the SpiceJET aircraft pricing after the “trade is in the offing” email; where there is opportunity, there is motive; and that was part of the motive for MARAN, MUTHUVEL KARUNANIDHI, and SINGH as well. PLAINTIFF has a lot to be thankful for: what did he thank Hillary Clinton earlier when she was in Chennai? Thank you, Hillary Clinton! for connecting POLITICS OF TAMIL NADU TO ECONOMIC LIFE OF THE PEOPLE OF TAMIL NADU in which there was a 20% increase in trade between July 2010 and July 2011 and trade is increasingly flowing in both directions in which she came to Tamil Nadu to increase personal relationships. THANK YOU SO VERY MUCH. Who is an Indian from Tamil Nadu that is a friend to Hillary Clinton in which Hillary Clinton very much enjoys and finds his newspaper exciting to read? MARAN!

PLAINTIFF is alleging, part of a deal with SINGH, MARAN, MUTHUVEL KARUNANIDHI, CHRISTOPHER M. CHADWICK, unknown employees and representatives of BOEING and BOEING, and HILLARY CLINTON related to the trade is in the “offing” email sent on 09/27/2010—that’s mail and wire fraud (in which mails and wires were used), a kickback scheme, and more. To further the scheme against PLAINTIFF and the act of international and domestic terrorism committed by them, the US Secretary of State, Ms. Hillary Clinton called on the Prime Minister, Dr. Manmohan Singh, in New Delhi on July 19, 2011 in which they necessarily talked about PLAINTIFF on that phone call. That’s transmitting information over the wire concerning the fraud, which makes it wire fraud.³⁸⁶

So the following is also applicable as it is around one month after “trade is in the offing.” On, October 13th, 2010: “Since the SpiceJet shares are held by RHSL, there are legal and technical hurdles in going ahead with the deal without the consent of the two minority shareholders. However, the difficulties faced by Mr Kansagra will not impact the Mr Maran’s move to gain control in SpiceJet. Mr. Maran has already bought 30% SpiceJet equity from Wilbur Ross, the international investor, better known for its stress asset deals... In a related move, Mr Maran acquired 2,85,94,400 equity shares on Tuesday, giving him 7.42 voting rights, following the conversion on foreign currency convertible bonds issues by SpiceJet. The securities were bought from Wilbur Ross-controlled entities. Maran had bought 5% in an off-market transaction a week ago.”³⁸⁷

Anyway you can tie United Kingdom into SpiceJET? Of course! Mr. Kansagra owns Solai Holdings Limited in which their headquarters are located in Wembley, United Kingdom. “Solai Holdings Limited is a UK registered privately held group, which operates, invests in and supports leading companies in oil and gas, manufacturing, shipping and real estate sectors across the United Kingdom and Africa.” Solai Holdings Limited’s Address: “Portland House 69-71. Wembley Hill Road. Wembley. MIDDLESEX. HA9 8BU.” PLAINTIFF will allege just in case that some of the SpiceJET shares sale went into Solai Holdings Limited bank accounts.

PLAINTIFF, you’re thinking, that’s at least at a preponderance of the evidence level for circumstantial evidence, but you still haven’t connected a “boeing representative,” “defense trade” and SpiceJET with anyone in Washington D.C. HOLD ON. Good things come to those who wait! We are proud as a Boeing company to be a partner with SpiceJet and all the employees of Boeing—this is an honor for them.”³⁹² That is what PLAINTIFF calls control and direction from the very top of the ladder from DEFENDANTS BARACK OBAMA, HILLARY CLINTON, BOEING, SpiceJET, CHRISTOPHER M. CHADWICK, et. al. and the INDIAN Government.

The remarks during the meeting with business leaders on November 6th, 2010 continued on: “President Obama: Mr. Kansagra. SpiceJet Director Bhupendra "Bhulo" Kansagra. Thank you. Welcome, Mr. President, to India. As a fellow Kenyan, I'm very proud to see that you have made—— President Obama. Made something of myself. [Laughter] Mr. Kansagra. ——India as the focus of your drive for exports out of the U.S. To that effect, the 30 aircraft order, which is the second of such orders we have placed with Boeing, will enhance SpiceJet's penetration into the Indian low-cost travel, low-cost transportation market, which really is the focus for SpiceJet. Boeing has given us huge support together—and Fred also has extended his assistance to finance our forthcoming aircraft in the next year. That support and that partnership will take SpiceJet and Boeing to greater heights. And your coming here to India today will only help that day further. Thank you. President Obama. Well, thank you very much.”³⁹³ Connecting the 30/27 aircraft order with the leadership of SpiceJET Bhupendra "Bhulo" Kansagra to Christopher M. Chadwick's of BOEING'S sale of 30 new 737NG to SpiceJET to HILLARY CLINTON and WHITE HOUSE staff's “defense trade is in the offing” and the INDIAN Government and the INDIAN Embassy. Done and done.

PLAINTIFF is including the following because of the factual circumstances above that concern the Indian Aviation Market in which if it was true for SpiceJET, it must have been true for JET AIRWAYS (and even Air India) and “trade is in the offing” and the factual circumstances of what PLAINTIFF alleges in An Anchor and a Pitchfork because a lot of the same logic and inferences concerning SpiceJet and the Indian Government applies to JET AIRWAYS and the Indian Government. So, JET AIRWAYS orders 17 BOEING 737-800NG in January 2012; 50 BOEING 737 MAX in April 2013; 25 BOEING 737 MAX in 2014. Which is a total of 92 BOEING 737 aircraft. So PLAINTIFF is going to say there is an option for 92 BOEING 737 Max. Treble option of: 276 BOEING 737s. PLAINTIFF is alleging it because PLAINTIFF loses it if he doesn’t allege it.

Keane facts:

- 3) that involved HILLARY CLINTON, LEON PANETTA, ROBERT MUELLER, BARACK OBAMA, HAROLD KOH, forcing PLAINTIFF to labor without compensation by committing an international and domestic act of terrorism against PLAINTIFF.
- 4) that there was material information that was intentionally withheld or omitted that furthered the scheme that would reveal the ownership of PLAINTIFF’S services and reveal the scheme and Boeing would deposit some of the proceeds into CGI and then some of the CGI money would move into the CGI’S Indian bank account.
- 5) They put an obstacle by kidnapping PLAINTIFF so that “trade is in the offing” can occur and scotus enabled them via AL-KIDD
- 6) Leon Panetta, Robert Mueller, and Hillary Clinton intentionally omitted and withheld from government officials the value of PLAINTIFF’S labor and services to further the scheme in which decisions were made on those material omissions.
- 7) that because of #1, #4, #5, and #6, Hillary Clinton had an ability to take actions that would create benefits for herself in the State Department that she had control over.
- 8) HILLARY CLINTON used her influence to aid in the sale of PLAINTIFF’S services and labor in “trade is in the offing” in which one of the recipients of such was SpiceJET and Maran.

In Southway v. Central Bank of Nigeria, 198 F.3d 1210 (10th Cir. 1999), the Court talked about FSIA and RICO basis in the facts of the case in which they said: “Accepting the factual allegations of Plaintiffs' complaint as true, we easily conclude that Defendants' alleged conduct constituted acts done "in connection with a commercial activity" under § 1605(a)(2) of the FSIA. Given the commercial nature of contractual relationships in the marketplace, many contracts entered into by a "foreign state" will fall within the FSIA's commercial activity exception precisely because those contracts are of a type in which private actors might enter. This case is no exception. Congress intended the FSIA's commercial activity exception to encompass a "broad spectrum of endeavor." H.R. 94-1487, at 16, reprinted in 1976 U.S.C.C.A.N. 6604, 6614-15. "Certainly, if an activity is customarily carried on for profit, its commercial nature could readily be assumed." Id.

All the contracts PLAINTIFF discusses in this case occurred in the marketplace and were entered into by India, Qatar, Britain, and therefore fall within the FSIA’S commercial activity exception precisely because those contracts are of a type in which private actors might enter.

“Here, we deal with an assignment contract—a contract for the assignment of proceeds arising from a purported contract between NNPC and a foreign contractor for oil drilling machinery. The alleged assignment contract assigned to Defendant Brown the right to receive partial payment on the underlying contract between NNPC and the foreign contractor in exchange for Brown allowing the two parties to use his United States bank account to facilitate the transfer of over-invoiced funds. The NNPC engaged alleged representatives of Defendants CBN and RN to assist in executing the funds transfer. Defendant Brown similarly engaged Plaintiffs. In this case, nothing sovereign stands out about Defendants' behavior—the alleged assistance in the execution of an assignment contract involving the proceeds from the sale of drilling equipment. See Adler v. Republic of Nigeria, 107 F.3d 720 (9th Cir. 1997) (holding that defendant engaged in conduct “in connection with” a commercial activity by entering into an agreement for the assignment of a service contract). Accordingly, we hold that Defendants CBN and RN's alleged conduct falls within the FSIA's commercial activity exception.”

The Court Southway v. Central Bank of Nigeria, 198 F.3d 1210 (10th Cir. 1999) found that the conduct of certain DEFENDANTS, who had assisted in transferring property (i.e. transporting property from one place to another or receiving property and sending property to a different location) in which they could have stopped the transfer of property at the request of a different DEFENDANT, falls within FSIA's commercial activity exception...

So DEFENDANTS transporting PLAINTIFF (property) from London to Dulles would fall within FSIA's commercial activity exception as well as preventing PLAINTIFF from boarding a flight to Doha when requested.

Finally, Defendants CBN and RN claim that the FSIA's tort exception and applicable restrictions, contained in 28 U.S.C. § 1605(a)(5) (a)(5)(B), respectively, provide them with immunity from Plaintiffs' civil RICO claims. That section provides in relevant part:

(a) A foreign state shall not be immune from the jurisdiction of courts of the United States . . . in any case —

(5) not otherwise encompassed in paragraph (2) above [i.e., the commercial activity exception], in which money damages are sought against a foreign state for . . . damage to or loss of property, occurring in the United States and caused by the tortious act or omission of that foreign state or of any official or employee of that foreign state while acting within the scope of his office or employment; except this paragraph shall not apply to —

...

(B) any claim arising out of . . . misrepresentation, deceit, or interference with contract rights. Id. (emphasis added). Defendants argue that because the alleged scheme to defraud Plaintiffs involved misrepresentation and deceit, § 1605(a)(5)(B) restores their sovereign immunity from suit. In other words, Defendants CBN and RN suggest that subsection (a)(5)(B) limits the commercial activity exception in § 1605(a)(2), as well as the tort exception in § 1605(a)(5). Defendants' argument is meritless.

The plain language of § 1605(a)(5) indicates that the tort exception applies to tort actions for money damages “not otherwise encompassed” by § 1605(a)(2)'s exception relating to commercial activity. Even assuming Plaintiffs' claims against Defendants sound in tort rather than contract, those claims nonetheless are based upon alleged commercial activity, and thus encompassed by § 1605(a)(2). See Export Group v. Reef Industries, Inc., 54 F.3d 1466 (9th Cir. 1995) (holding that § 1605(a)(5)(B)'s restrictions on the FSIA's "non-commercial torts" exception do not restore sovereign immunity for FSIA claims based on a foreign state's "commercial activities"). The legislative history of the FSIA's tort exception confirms our understanding of this provision. In enacting § 1605(a)(5), Congress intended to address the problem of "noncommercial torts," namely traffic accidents: "The purpose of section 1605(a)(5) is to permit the victim of a traffic accident or other noncommercial torts to maintain an action against a foreign state to the extent otherwise provided by law." H.R. 94-1487, at 21 (1976), reprinted in 1976 U.S.C.C.A.N. 6604, 6620 (emphasis added). Thus, where § 1605(a)(2)'s commercial activity exception applies, as in this case, § 1605(a)(5)(B)'s restriction on subsection (a)(5)'s tort exception for torts arising out of misrepresentation and deceit simply has no application. This is so because subsection (a)(5)(B) of § 1605 by its express language applies only to subsection (a)(5). Southway v. Central Bank of Nigeria, 198 F.3d 1210, 1219 (10th Cir. 1999)

In Southway v. Central Bank of Nigeria, 198 F.3d 1210 (10th Cir. 1999), the Court discussed how "the FSIA's commercial activity exception expressly states that "[a] foreign state shall not be immune from the jurisdiction of courts of the United States . . . in any case . . . in which the action is based upon a commercial activity. . . ." at 1605(a)(2)...[the] Plaintiffs' civil RICO claims against DEFENDANTS, premised upon the purported commercial activity of Defendants, fall within the category of "any" civil claim, action, or case...The legislative history of the FSIA reveals that Congress viewed a foreign state's sovereign immunity not as a bar to suit, but as an affirmative defense which the foreign state ultimately has the burden of proving...[S]ince sovereign immunity is an affirmative defense which must be specially pleaded, the burden will remain on the foreign state to produce evidence in support of its claim of immunity. Thus, evidence must be produced to establish that a foreign state or one of its subdivisions, agencies or instrumentalities is the defendant in the suit and that the plaintiff's claim relates to a public act of the foreign state-that is, an act not within the exceptions in sections 1605-07...Defendants CBN and RN essentially ask us in construing RICO and the FSIA to ascribe an intent to Congress which would effectively insulate foreign states, their agents, and instrumentalities from the scope of civil RICO. We do not believe Congress envisioned such a construction of RICO and the FSIA. Congress' purpose in enacting the FSIA was to codify the "restrictive" principle of sovereign immunity-to restrict the sovereign immunity of foreign states "to cases involving acts of a foreign state which are sovereign or governmental in nature, as opposed to acts which are either commercial in nature or those which private persons normally perform." Southway v. Central Bank of Nigeria, 198 F.3d 1210 (10th Cir. 1999)

The Court continued in Southway v. Central Bank of Nigeria, 198 F.3d 1210 (10th Cir. 1999): "Meanwhile, in enacting RICO, Congress expressly instructed courts to liberally construe its provisions "to effectuate its remedial purpose." Pub.L. No. 91-452, § 904(a), 84 Stat. 947 (1970). RICO's "remedial purposes' are nowhere more evident than in the provision of a private action for those injured by racketeering activity," Sedima, S.P.R.L. v. Imrex Co., Inc., 473 U.S. 479, 498 (1985), activity which often will be commercial in nature...Accordingly, we hold that the FSIA confers subject-matter jurisdiction upon the district court over civil RICO claims against foreign states, their agencies, and instrumentalities, provided that the commercial activity exception, or another exception contained in §§ 1605-07 of the FSIA applies. We next address the applicability of the FSIA's commercial activity exception to this case...As the district court noted, application of the commercial activity exception under the third clause of § 1605(a)(2) above, requires the following: Plaintiffs' action must (1) be based on an act outside the United States; (2) that was done "in connection with" a commercial activity; and (3) that caused a "direct effect" in the United States. Id. at 1308. Because we agree with the district court that Defendants' conduct falls within the third clause of § 1605(a)(2), we need not address the applicability of the commercial activity exception's first and second clauses. See supra, at 4....The FSIA defines "commercial activity" as "either a regular course of commercial conduct or a particular commercial transaction or act. The commercial character of an activity shall be determined by reference to the nature of the course of conduct or particular transaction or act, rather than by reference to its purpose." 28 U.S.C. § 1603(d). In Republic of Argentina v. Weltover, 504 U.S. 607 (1992), the Supreme Court further explained the meaning of "commercial" as used in the FSIA: we believe that illegal acts may be done "in connection with" a commercial activity as to invoke the FSIA's commercial activity exception. [W]hen a foreign government acts, not as regulator of a market, but in the manner of a private player within it, the foreign sovereign's actions are "commercial" within the meaning of the FSIA. . . . [B]ecause the Act provides that the commercial character of an act is to be determined by reference to its "nature" rather than its "purpose," 28 U.S.C. § 1603(d), the question is not whether the foreign government is acting with a profit motive or instead with the aim of fulfilling uniquely sovereign objectives. Rather, the issue is whether the particular actions that the foreign state performs (whatever the motive behind them) are the type of actions by which a private party engages in "trade and traffic and commerce." Undoubtedly, the purpose of Defendants CBN and RN's alleged scheme was to defraud Plaintiffs (and perhaps Defendants Brown and Tomicich), and steal from them." Southway v. Central Bank of Nigeria, 198 F.3d 1210 (10th Cir. 1999)

PLAINTIFF alleges under: Southway v. Central Bank of Nigeria, 198 F.3d 1210 (10th Cir. 1999) 1) Qatar Airways and Qatar's actions against PLAINTIFF occurred in London, England and Doha; British Intel, British Airways, and United Kingdom's actions against PLAINTIFF were done in London, England and other locations in England; the Indian Embassy's, Indian Intel, and India's actions were done in London, England, Mumbai, India, and other locations in India; 2) "in the offing" was in direct connection to current trade and more additional trade in the future DEFENDANTS stipulated in the future that affects interstate and foreign commerce; 3) India, United Kingdom, Qatar, had caused a direct effect to PLAINTIFF by sending PLAINTIFF to Dulles and the harm the commercial harm that PLAINTIFF suffered, making sales to BOEING in Chicago and directing payments to Boeing in Chicago, and other commercial acts to be explained later. Therefore, under Southway v. Central Bank of Nigeria, 198 F.3d 1210 (10th Cir. 1999), there is FSIA and RICO subject matter jurisdiction over Qatar Airways, Qatar, Qatari Intel, India, Indian Intel, United Kingdom

Section 1962(c), which makes it unlawful "for any person employed by or associated with any enterprise engaged in, or the activities of which affect, interstate or foreign commerce, to conduct or participate, directly or indirectly, in the conduct of such enterprise's affairs through a pattern of racketeering activity or collection of unlawful debt."

18 U.S.C. §§ 1963(a)(1)-(3) provides in an extremely comprehensive tool to authorize the forfeiture of not only proceeds and interests obtained by the defendant from any racketeering activity but also all of the defendant's various interests in the charged "enterprise." In cases in which the enterprise is a company that is also named as a defendant, the entire company may be subject to forfeiture under the RICO statute, subject only to the limits imposed by the Eighth Amendment. PLAINTIFF could demand the entire complete ownership of SpiceJET and BOEING if he pleased. But PLAINTIFF is not as it would violate the 8th Amendment and wants to establish great relations with BOEING in the future. In, United States v. Anderson, 782 F.2d 908, 918 (11th Cir. 1986) it held that "A defendant's conviction under the RICO statute subjects all his interests in the enterprise to forfeiture 'regardless of whether those assets were themselves "tainted" by use in connection with the racketeering activity" and United States v. Cianci, 218 F.Supp.2d 232 (D.R.I. 2002) ruled that "defendant's entire interest in enterprise is forfeitable under section 1963(a)(2)(A) whether or not it was obtained illegally." United States v. BCCI Holdings (Luxembourg) S.A. (Petition of Pacific Bank), 956 F. Supp. 5 (D.D.C. 1997) held that even untainted property received by the enterprise after the racketeering activity had ceased is subject to forfeiture under subsection (a)(2)(A) because "all of a RICO defendant's interests in an enterprise, including the enterprise itself, are subject to forfeiture in their entirety, regardless of whether some portion of the enterprise is untainted by racketeering activity."

18 U.S.C. 1963 stipulates that a DEFENDANT shall forfeit to PLAINTIFF, irrespective of any provision of state law: (1) any interest the person has acquired or maintained in violation of section 1962; (2) any –(A) interest in; (B) security of; (C) claim against; or (D) property or contractual right of any kind affording a source of influence over; any enterprise which the person has established, operated, controlled, conducted, or participated in the conduct of, in violation of section 1962; and (3) any property constituting, or derived from, any proceeds which the person obtained, directly or indirectly, from racketeering activity or unlawful debt collection in violation of section 1962. The court, in imposing sentence on such person shall order, in addition to any other sentence imposed pursuant to this section, that the person forfeit to PLAINTIFF all property described. In the alternative, under 18 U.S.C. 1693 (2)(d): the condition of "is in the offing" is a contractual right of any kind affording a source of influence over PLAINTIFF that was controlled, conducted, and DEFENDANTS participated in "trade is in the offing." 1963(3) stipulates that any property constituting or deriving from any proceeds which the person obtained directly or indirectly of the racketeering in violation of 18 U.S.C.1862 shall be forfeited to PLAINTIFF. Section 1963(a)(1) clearly applies to any interest, legitimate or illegitimate, which the defendant acquired or maintained either in the course of engaging in racketeering activity or as the result of racketeering activity in violation of 18 U.S.C. § 1962.225 For example, if a defendant uses extortion in the course of his racketeering activity to obtain ownership or control over a legitimate business, his interest in that business may be forfeited. As the Court ruled in United States v. DeFries, 129 F.3d 1293 (D.C. Cir. 1997), the "but for" test requires only an adequate "causal link between the property forfeited and the RICO violation" that should be determined on the facts of each case.

In the alternative, under 18 U.S.C. 1964 (a): The district courts of the United States shall have jurisdiction to prevent and restrain violations of section 1962 of this chapter by issuing appropriate orders, including, but not limited to: ordering any person to divest himself of any interest, direct or indirect, in any enterprise; imposing reasonable restrictions on the future activities or investments of any person, including, but not limited to, prohibiting any person from engaging in the same type of endeavor as the enterprise engaged in, the activities of which affect interstate or foreign commerce; or ordering dissolution or reorganization of any enterprise, making due provision for the rights of innocent persons. (c): Any person injured in his business or property by reason of a violation of section 1962 of this chapter may sue therefor in any appropriate United States district court and shall recover threefold the damages he sustains and the cost of the suit, including a reasonable attorney's fee, except that no person may rely upon any conduct that would have been actionable as fraud in the purchase or sale of securities to establish a violation of section 1962.” Threefold the damages are treble damages.

At this point just based on the SpiceJET deal in October 2010 and the $14,900,000,000, PLAINTIFF demands the aircraft that are property (but with the following stipulations) and the $14,900,000,000 be forfeited to PLAINTIFF in which PLAINTIFF is utilizing 18 U.S.C. §1963(a)(1)-(3) and/or 18 U.S.C. §1964(a)(c) for their forfeiture.

So in light of the previous paragraphs, PLAINTIFF is legally entitled to 27 Brand New BOEING 737NG Aircraft because, under 18 U.S.C §1963(a)(1) and/or 18 U.S.C. §1964(a)(c), it clearly applies to any interest, legitimate or illegitimate, which the defendant acquired or maintained either in the course of engaging in racketeering activity or as the result of racketeering activity in violation of 18 U.S.C. 1962. 18 U.S.C §1963(a)(3) applies to forfeiture of proceeds or property derived from proceeds obtained in violation of RICO. DEFENDANTS are required to forfeit the amount of illicit proceeds as determined by the Court even if the funds or property used to satisfy the forfeiture are not tainted or if the defendant no longer possesses the tainted funds or property.

Louisiana Civil Code Art. 2610 stipulates that: “Upon rejection of nonconforming things by the buyer, the seller may cure the nonconformity when the time for performance has not yet expired or when the seller had a reasonable belief that the nonconforming things would be acceptable to the buyer. In such a case the seller must give reasonable notice of his intention to cure to the buyer.” So since new BOEING 737NGs, BOEING 777-300ERs, and BOEING 777Fs are no longer being produced by BOEING, PLAINTIFF is telling DEFENDANTS/BOEING that PLAINTIFF buyer says: BOEING 737 MAXs, BOEING 787s, and BOEING 777-8Fs respectively are acceptable nonconforming things. The type of BOEING 737 MAXs and BOEING 787s will be specified by PLAINTIFF. List prices for a 737-8NG was around $105 Million. List price of a new Boeing 777-300ER is $375.5 million. So in light of the fact that a new Boeing 737-8 NG is 14% cheaper than a Boeing 737-8 Max, PLAINTIFF will reflect accordingly. So to be fair, 27 Boeing 737-8 NG are worth the same as 23 Boeing 737-8 Max. +5 BOEING 737 Max-8 for later for Hillary Comment’s speech in Chennai. 28 Boeing 737-8 Max.

List prices for a new: Boeing 737-7 Max. $99 Million; Boeing 737-8 Max. $121 Million; 737 Boeing Max-9 is $128.9 million; Boeing 737-10 Max is $134.9 Million; a Boeing 787-8 is $248.3 million; a Boeing 787-9 is $292.5 million; a Boeing 787-10 is $338.4 million; Boeing 777-300ER is $375.5 million.

Louisiana Civil Code Art. 2609 stipulates that “When the seller fails to render the performance required by a contract of sale of movable things, the buyer may purchase substitute things within a reasonable time and in good faith. In such a case the buyer is entitled to recover the difference between the contract price and the price of the substitute things. The buyer may recover other damages also, less the expenses saved as a result of the failure of the seller to perform.” So if PLAINTIFF cannot get the BOEING aircraft, PLAINTIFF will instead go to Airbus and make a deal with airbus for similar aircraft type and number.

Therefore, under Louisiana law and jurisprudence, an acceptable substitute for 27 new BOEING 737-8 NG would be 23 new BOEING 737-8 Max; PLAINTIFF will also accept a non-conforming acceptance that 3 new BOEING 737-8 Max aircraft can be substituted for 1 new BOEING 787-9 aircraft and vice-a-versa (at a loss to PLAINTIFF).+4 Boeing 737-8 MAX HILLARY CLINTON Fee making it a total of: 27 Boeing 737-8 Max. If PLAINTIFF’S Qatar Airways and British Airways request argument is denied, then PLAINTIFF argues in the alternative that disgorgement requires the forfeiture of 81 Boeing 737-8 Max Aircraft.

PLAINTIFF will make the following substitution for the like and the conditions thereunder that are outlined below and in the Prayers for Relief Section. PLAINTIFF could demand treble damages on the 27 BOEING 737-8 Max Aircraft which would legally be a total of 81 new BOEING 737-8 Max aircraft, but PLAINTIFF is not. PLAINTIFF is not requesting the profits SpiceJET made from 09/24/2010 through present that SpiceJET had earned on the 27 Boeing 737NG aircraft that were part of the order that was based on “trade is in the offing.” PLAINTIFF is not asking for the 205 Boeing 737 Max 8 aircraft that are replacing and were DERIVED from the 27 BOEING NG in which the new orders could not have been necessarily made without SpiceJET having utilized the 27 BOEING NG aircraft at issue to make enough money to place the new orders and have the new aircraft. See Wikipedia screenshot from SpiceJET’s fleet explanation section below. Furthermore for disgorgement purposes under XX, PLAINTIFF could ask for the 200+ New BOEING 737 MAX 8, but PLAINTIFF is generous.

Boeing 737 MAX 8	11	194 ^[51] ^[50]	—	189	189	To replace older 737-800s ^[52]

PLAINTIFF is asking for the 81 new BOEING 737-8 Max aircraft in the alternative; and PLAINTIFF can ask for another 205 more BOEING 737 Max 8 aircraft making a total of 286 BOEING 737-8 Max aircraft. PLAINTIFF is generous, kind, and reasonable and is not asking for that much. In light of PLAINTIFF’S reasonableness:

So, some of the following referring to the 27 new Boeing 737-8 Max aircraft and the following stipulations that just derive from the SpiceJET deal:

- As part of his order, 3 New BOEING 737-7 Max (with options from MKT Airlines to purchase more if successful) aircraft to be given to the Government of North Macedonia in order to establish and create MKT Macedonian Airlines. DEFENDANTS will provide PLAINTIFF a highly reputable design team to design MKT Macedonian Airlines’ brand identity, livery, crew uniforms, interior of the plane, etc. to make MKT Macedonian Airlines successful. DEFENDANTS will provide The Northern Macedonian Government training on how to properly run the airline and manage the airline to ensure MKT Macedonian Airline’s survival and profitability in the tough aviation market of North Macedonia based on American standards or Qatar Airways/British Airways Standards. DEFENDANTS will provide MKT Macedonian Airlines all the resources, training, and future support and spare parts necessary to ensure its survival. Air Serbia will be a technical partner to MKT Macedonian Airlines and will provide assistance when need be. The North Macedonian government will not be able to sell the aircraft to anyone for any purpose and will do everything in its complete control to ensure the airline survives.

- The 27 Boeing 737-8 Max order will be changed into the following:
 - 7 Brand New Boeing 737-8 Max. 3 paid for out of PLAINTIFF'S restitution (4 paid by the HILLARY CLINTON Fee). $363,000,000
 - 5 Brand New BOEING 737-10 Max ($674,500,000) & 5 BOEING 737-7 Max (495,000,000) (in Lieu of 10 BOEING 737-8 Max. Cost: 1,169,500,000 at list prices to 1, 200,000,000 Billion (PLAINTIFF losing $30,500,000 with the substitution), $1,169,500,000
 - 2 BOEING 787-9 (585,000,000) and 1 787-8 kawaii one ($248,400,000) (in lieu of 7 Boeing 737-8 Max at 847,000,000) (Plaintiff losing a total of $13,600,000 on the substitution). $833,400,000
 - Total Loss on substitution: $44,100,000. Total Planes: $2,365,900,000.

PLAINTIFF is incorporating the stipulations he listed below [here]. Therefore, as PLAINTIFF elaborated upon earlier, under 18 U.S.C §1963(a)(1) clearly applies to any interest, legitimate or illegitimate, which DEFENDANTS acquired or maintained either in the course of engaging in racketeering activity or as the result of racketeering activity in violation of 18 U.S.C. 1962. 18 U.S.C §1963(a)(3) applies to forfeiture of proceeds or property derived from proceeds obtained in violation of RICO. DEFENDANTS are required to forfeit the amount of illicit proceeds and property as determined by the Court even if the funds used to satisfy the forfeiture are not tainted or if the defendant no longer possesses the tainted funds or property. If BOEING refuses to work with PLAINTIFF, then DEFENDANTS will give or purchase on behalf of PLAINTIFF comparable Airbus aircraft.

In the alternative, There was no valid contract between SpiceJET and BOEING in October 2010 (hereon: 2010 Contract). Because it was done in the auspices of a RICO violation, under Louisiana CC 2030, A contract is absolutely null when it violates a rule of public order, as when the object of a contract is illicit or immoral. A contract that is absolutely null may not be confirmed.” Therefore, the 2010 Contract is null and void. The true contract between BOEING and SpiceJET in that time was that the performance of SpiceJET obtaining 27 BOEING NG aircraft was done by the performance, execution of, and attempt to cover up “is in the offing” to ensure DEFENDANTS’ goal of “beyond national jurisdiction” in furtherance of the RICO Enterprise in addition to the funds BOEING received for the 27 BOEING NG. PLAINTIFF did not discover some of the true purposes of the RICO acts until August 2023. Therefore, PLAINTIFF was a party to the contract because “is in the offing” it necessarily involved the performance of PLAINTIFF'S actions and PLAINTIFF absolutely would not have performed it if he had known about it. Therefore, fraud.

PLAINTIFF only discovered the issues of SpiceJET and United Airlines incidents in August 2023 in which PLAINTIFF realized the fraudulent and RICO nature thereof, this gives plaintiff five years from the time it was discovered as in the case of error or fraud. "Similarly, the Fifth Circuit "has adopted an injury discovery rule, whereby a civil RICO claim accrues when the PLAINTIFF discovers, or should have discovered, the injury." Joseph v. Bach & Wasserman, LLC, 487 Fed. App'x173 (5th Cir. 2012) (internal quotations omitted.'). "It is discovery of the injury," and not other elements of a RICO claim, that starts the limitations period running." Id. (citing Rotella v Wood, 528 U.S. 549 (2000)). This "injury discovery" rule applies to Louisiana RICO claims. See Farmer v. D&O Contractors Inc., 640 Fed. App'X 302 (5th Cir. 2016)(per curiam)("Both [the federal and LOUISIANA RICO] Limitations periods begin to run when a PLAINTIFF has knowledge or constructive knowledge of the injury giving rise to a cause of action."). Viking Constr. Grp., LLC v. Satterfield & Pontikes Constr. Grp. Inc., Civil Action No 17-12838 Section I (E.D. La. Jan 12, 2018).

As the WHITE HOUSE Press release said in the amount "defense trade is in the offing," DEFENDANTS got a minimum of: $14,900,000,000 and it was completely contingent and based on the condition of: "trade is in the offing." Period.

Minimum Damage: $14,900,000,000

Treble Damages: PLAINTIFF is not asking for treble damages on the $14,900,000,000.

To show you how unfair it really all is in life, Secretary of State Antony J. Blinken and V.P President Harris hosted Prime Minister Modi on June 23rd, 2023. There was a White House State Dinner Guest List in which Ms. HUMA ABEDIN and Prime Minister Modi attended on June 22nd, 2023. PLAINTIFF alleges the "trade is in the offing" conspiracy under 18 U.S.C §1951 (EXTORTION); Title VI of the Civil Rights Act, 18 U.S.C.§1862 (d); 18 U.S.C.§1862 (c); 18 U.S.C.§1862 (b); 18 U.S.C.§1862 (a); 42 U.S.C. §1981; 42 U.S.C.§1983, 42 U.S.C. §1985(2); 42 U.S.C. §1985(3); 42 U.S.C. §1986; 18 U.S.C.§226, 18 U.S.C. §241, 42 U.S.C. §1983, 18 U.S.C. §1961 Sections 1581-1590 (relating to peonage), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1510 (relating to obstruction of criminal investigations), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1343 (wire fraud), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1346 (to deprive another of the intangible right of honest services"), 18 U.S.C. §1961 Section 1503, 18 U.S. Code §201 (bribery), 18 U.S.C. §872 (Extortion by officer), 18 U.S. Code § 875, 18 U.S. Code § 880 (receives proceeds of extortion), Section 504, and PLAINTIFF'S 1st, 4th, 5th, 6th, 8th, 9th, 10th, 13th, and 14th Amendment rights.

The Court may be thinking, that is ridiculous and PLAINTIFF says to you it is not. That is $14,900,000,000 in 2010 Dollars. So PLAINTIFF went on the United States Bureau of Labor Statistics and determined what the actual relevant price is based on the CPI Inflation Calculator.

The Calculator did not go up to $14,900,000,000 nor could PLAINTIFF use $14,900,000 in the CPI Calculator.

PLAINTIFF had to use the figure of $14,900 for the CPI Calculator to show a price.

The Price is below (See: Screenshot to the right.)

The screenshot shows the 'CPI Inflation Calculator' interface. At the top, it says 'CPI Inflation Calculator'. Below that, there is a text input field with '$' on the left and '14,900.00' on the right. Underneath this, there are two dropdown menus: the first is labeled 'in' and has 'October' selected; the second is labeled with a year and has '2010' selected. Below these is the text 'has the same buying power as'. Underneath that is a yellow box containing the text '$20,825.64'. Below this box are two more dropdown menus: the first is labeled 'in' and has 'July' selected; the second is labeled with a year and has '2023' selected. At the bottom of the form is a blue button labeled 'Calculate'.

So ACTUALLY based on the CPI, that $14,900,000,000 should be $20,825,640,000 in 2023

dollars. Treble Damages on $20,825,640,000 is $62,476,920,000 dollars. The difference in treble damages alone from that figure is around $41,651,280,000 (which is nearly 2.5 times as much as the initial $14,900,000,000). So PLAINTIFF could demand $62,476,920,000 if PLAINTIFF wanted to, but he is not for PLAINTIFF is a merciful man, but still wants to teach a lesson. So instead of the $62,476,920,000 that PLAINTIFF is legally entitled to in today's dollars, PLAINTIFF is just going to ask for the initial amount of $14,900,000,000.

But wait, PLAINTIFF is asking for more. PLAINTIFF is alleging Qatar Airways, QIA, QATAR, violated all the crimes stated at beginning of the chapter since they can be found as having conspired, aided and abetted, and were material actors in "trade is in the offing." So even though Qatar may not have received money from US-India trade, PLAINTIFF is alleging Qatar received material benefit and obtained proceeds indirectly when the United States engaged in trade with Qatar after the "trade is in the offing" email was written and the plan being approved. But for the Qatar Airways "representative" refusing to allow PLAINTIFF to continue on to DOHA when he could have and having directed PLAINTIFF to the INDIAN embassy, PLAINTIFF would not have gone to the INDIAN embassy and been part of the scheme in Miki's Tea Party—QIA, Qatar Airways, and Qatar were principal actors in "trade is in the offing." Whether it was a Qatar Airways representative, a subcontractor for Qatar Airways, or British Intel/DEFENDANTS in disguise as a Qatar Airways representative in which Qatar Airways necessarily allowed the British Intel or DEFENDANTS to go under disguise and do that to PLAINTIFF at London-Heathrow, it necessarily holds Qatar Airways as part of the scheme. Qatar Airways, Qatar, and QIA never informed of the devious plot undertaken against PLAINTIFF and had numerous opportunities to do so. There was no way that Al-Baker was not informed of the plot in which his airline was a necessary component of such. Al-Baker conspired with American Intel DEFENDANTS and British Intel DEFENDANTS. Therefore, violations of 18 U.S.C §1951 (EXTORTION); Title VI of the Civil Rights Act, 18 U.S.C.§1862 (d); 18 U.S.C.§1862 (c); 18 U.S.C.§1862 (b); 18 U.S.C.§1862 (a); 42 U.S.C. §1981; 42 U.S.C.§1983, 42 U.S.C. §1985(2); 42 U.S.C. §1985(3); 42 U.S.C. §1986; 18 U.S.C.§226, 18 U.S.C. §241, 42 U.S.C. §1983, 18 U.S.C. §1961 Sections 1581-1590 (relating to peonage), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1510 (relating to obstruction of criminal investigations), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1343 (wire fraud), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1346 (to deprive another of the intangible right of honest services”), 18 U.S.C. §1961 Section 1503, 18 U.S. Code §201 (bribery), 18 U.S.C. §872 (Extortion by officer), 18 U.S. Code § 875, 18 U.S. Code § 880 (receives proceeds of extortion), Section 504, and PLAINTIFF’S 1st, 4th, 5th, 6th, 8th, 9th, 10th, 13th, and 14th Amendment rights.

Financially and for organizational purposes. Qatar Investment Authority (hereon: QIA) (QIA; Arabic: جهاز قطر للاستثمار) QIA owns 100% of Qatar Holding LLC, and it also owns 50% of Qatar National Bank. QIA is affiliated with Qatar Islamic Bank (Q.P.S.C.) (16.67%), which has a wholly owned British subsidiary called QIB-UK that was set up in 2008. Therefore, PLAINTIFF has included all of those institutions. PLAINTIFF is alleging that either Qatar Airways, Qatar Holding LLC, or QIA when they purchased new BOEING aircraft in 2010, 2011, and 2013, one of those institutions transferred money to BOEING’S Commerical Divisions Bank Account in which Qatar Airways, Qatar Holding LLC, or QIA utilized Qatar Islamic Bank (Q.P.S.C) or QIB-UK to do so. PLAINTIFF alleges American INTEL paid Qatar Airways or Qatar Holding LLC for their services in which American funds were deposited into Qatar Islamic Bank or Qatar National Bank or Qatar Airways’ bank account. Thereby constituting an act of wire fraud under 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1343 and violating 18 U.S.C §1951 (EXTORTION); Title VI of the Civil Rights Act, 18 U.S.C.§1862 (d); 18 U.S.C.§1862 (c); 18 U.S.C.§1862 (b); 18 U.S.C.§1862 (a); 42 U.S.C. §1981; 42 U.S.C.§1983, 42 U.S.C. §1985(2); 42 U.S.C. §1985(3); 42 U.S.C. §1986; 18 U.S.C.§226, 18 U.S.C. §241, 42 U.S.C. §1983, 18 U.S.C. §1961 Sections 1581-1590 (relating to peonage), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1510 (relating to obstruction of criminal investigations), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1343 (wire fraud), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1346 (to deprive another of the intangible right of honest services”), 18 U.S.C. §1961 Section 1503, 18 U.S. Code §201 (bribery), 18 U.S.C. §872 (Extortion by officer), 18 U.S. Code § 875, 18 U.S. Code § 880 (receives proceeds of extortion), Section 504, and PLAINTIFF’S 1st, 4th, 5th, 6th, 8th, 9th, 10th, 13th, and 14th Amendment rights.

Sheikh Hamad bin Jassim bin Jaber bin Mohammed bin Thani Al Thani (Arabic: حمد بن جاسم بن جبر آل ثاني) (aka: HBJ): “Sometimes known as “HBJ” in London’s financial circles, the 62-year-old was named the “man who bought London” after he used his wealth, as well as his influence as the head of Qatar’s multibillion dollar sovereign wealth fund, the Qatari Investment Authority, to expand Qatar’s financial assets in London through a series of valuable assets....From 2000 until 2013, al-Thani oversaw a series of high-profile investments in corporate Britain that included Harrods, the Shard (which is owned 95% by Qatar), London’s Olympic Village and Park Lane’s InterContinental hotel.³⁹⁴ HBJ was necessarily part of the plan and was the head of QIA and/or Qatar Holding, LLC when “trade is in the offing” occurred in which he was part of the conspiracy, and therefore under RICO, QIA, Qatar Holding, LLC, and thereby constituting an act of wire fraud under 18 U.S.C §1951 (EXTORTION); Title VI of the Civil Rights Act, 18 U.S.C.§1862 (d); 18 U.S.C.§1862 (c); 18 U.S.C.§1862 (b); 18 U.S.C.§1862 (a); 42 U.S.C. §1981; 42 U.S.C.§1983, 42 U.S.C. §1985(2); 42 U.S.C. §1985(3); 42 U.S.C.

QIA, Qatar Holding LLC, and Qatar Airways may not be a person under 1962(c), but are liable under 1962 (a) when an enterprise engaging in racketeering activity is the direct or indirect beneficiary of the pattern of racketeering activity, the enterprise may be liable under section 1962(a) and 1962(b) through Qatar Holdings, Qatar Airways, and QIA’s actions in 1962(d) under Schreiber Distributing Co. v. Serv-well Furniture Company, Inc., 806 F.2d 1393 (9th Cir. 1986) and Haroco v. American Nat. B. T. Co. of Chicago, 747 F.2d 384 (7th Cir. 1984) (hereon: Haroco). The Court in Haroco held: “We conclude that a civil RICO plaintiff need not allege or prove injury beyond an injury to business or property resulting from the underlying acts of racketeering This holding by no means renders superfluous the requirement in section 1964(c) that the plaintiff be injured "by reason of" a violation of section 1962. As we read this "by reason of" language, it simply imposes a proximate cause requirement on plaintiffs. The criminal conduct in violation of section 1962 must, directly or indirectly, have injured the plaintiff's business or property. A defendant who violates section 1962 is not liable for treble damages to everyone he might have injured by other conduct, nor is the defendant liable to those who have not been injured. This causation requirement might not be subtle, elegant or imaginative, but we believe it is based on a straightforward reading of the statute as Congress intended it to be read... We agree that a corporation and an association in fact can both satisfy the "enterprise" requirement of section 1962(c)... The RICO liability of the enterprise should depend on the role played. In our view, the plaintiffs here and the court in Hartley are correct when they argue that the corporate enterprise should be liable where it is the perpetrator, or the central figure in the criminal scheme. In that situation, the corporate deep pocket should certainly be subject to RICO liability...a corporation-enterprise may be held liable under subsection (a) when the corporation is also a perpetrator. As we parse subsection (a), a "person" (such as a corporation-enterprise) acts unlawfully if it receives income derived directly or indirectly from a pattern of racketeering activity in which the person has participated as a principal within the meaning of 18 U.S.C. § 2, and if the person uses the income in the establishment or operation of an enterprise affecting commerce.” Id.

Under Haroco, As the heads of QIA-- that owned Qatar Holdings LLC that owned Qatar Airways that were run by Al-Baker and HBJ—Emir Hamad bin Khalifa Al Thani and HBJ, would also be liable under 1962(d) and 1962 (a) and 1962(b) because QIA indirectly benefitted from “trade is in the offing” in which the Emir Hamad bin Khalifa Al Thani had discussed the issue with HBJ and Hillary Clinton. At least on XX from October 2010 in which HBJ’s personal cell number was given and requested and PLAINTIFF is alleging HILLARY CLINTON and unknown State Department officials conspired over the wire with “trade is in the offing” between October 2010 and March 2011. Hamad bin Khalifa Al Thani, who was the ruling Emir of Qatar from 1995 to 2013 (i.e. the head of Qatar) was the head of QIA. Emir Hamad bin Khalifa Al Thani has an extensive amount of British roots. He graduated from the British Royal Military Academy at Sandhurst in 1971. In 2005, under the direction of Hamad bin Khalifa Al Thani and the former prime minister of Qatar Sheikh HBJ, QIA was established. But respect is owed and given for the Emir as he made a $100 million donation for the relief of New Orleans following the 2005 Hurricane Katrina. QIA, Qatar Airways, and Qatar Holdings, LLC are organs of the government of Qatar. Thereby violating 18 U.S.C §1951 (EXTORTION); Title VI of the Civil Rights Act, 18 U.S.C. §1862 (d); 18 U.S.C. §1862 (c); 18 U.S.C. §1862 (b); 18 U.S.C. §1862 (a); 42 U.S.C. §1981; 42 U.S.C. §1983, 42 U.S.C. §1985(2); 42 U.S.C. §1985(3); 42 U.S.C. §1986; 18 U.S.C. §226, 18 U.S.C. §241, 42 U.S.C. §1983, 18 U.S.C. §1961 Sections 1581-1590 (relating to peonage), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1510 (relating to obstruction of criminal investigations), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1343 (wire fraud), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1346 (to deprive another of the intangible right of honest services”), 18 U.S.C. §1961 Section 1503, 18 U.S. Code §201 (bribery), 18 U.S.C. §872 (Extortion by officer), 18 U.S. Code § 875, 18 U.S. Code § 880 (receives proceeds of extortion), Section 504, and PLAINTIFF’S 1st, 4th, 5th, 6th, 8th, 9th, 10th, 13th, and 14th Amendment rights in which “head of state” doctrine does not apply to Emir Hamad bin Khalifa Al Thani.

Speaking of QIA, “The Offing” took place at London-Heathrow. BAA (via Ferrovial)(who owned London Heathrow during Miki’s Tea Party) was in £10 Billion Pounds in Debt in 2008.³⁹⁵ True and admittedly, there were issues with passenger delays from 2008.³⁹⁶ That being said, Heathrow opened brand new £2.5bn Terminal 2, known as The Queen’s Terminal in June 2014 (at this exact time, the head of Heathrow stepped down). So here is the thing—2008, Heathrow is in major debt and then in 2014, Heathrow opens £2.5bn new terminal. Terminal 2 was closed on November 23rd, 2009. Closed Terminal 2 means no money coming in from flights from 2009 and Terminal 2 is demolished in 2010. BAA creates a new legal entity in 2012 (BAA plc). So where does one get money to build a completely new terminal at the time? PLAINTIFF alleges that the dissolution of the BAA was to obstruct justice and prevent PLAINTIFF from holding BAA accountable for their actions in violation of 1962(d) and 1503 XX.

CUE: Sheikh HBJ who stopped being the head of QIA in June 2013. HBJ was reported to have had strong connections with the US government...HBJ has stakes in many strong businesses such as Qatar Airways. PLAINTIFF believes that the Qatari government owns Qatar Airways (Qatar Airways Company Q.C.S.C.) via QIA and/or Qatar Holding, LLC. The CEO of Qatar Airways is Akbar Al Baker, who has been in charge since November 1996, and he became a member of the Heathrow Airport Board in 2012 when Qatar Holding bought a 20 percent stake in the airport. Qatar Airways is one of the largest shareholders of the International Airlines Group (IAG), which owns British Airways, having started to make purchases of IAG’s shares in 2015. Qatar Airways is a prominent airline at London-Heathrow in which they introduced: “a fifth daily flight between Doha and London Heathrow Airport (in 2011) from March 25th next year taking capacity up from 28 to 35 flights each week”³⁹⁷ QIA via Qatar Holdings, LLC is a major shareholder in Heathrow Airport from at least 2012 buy purchasing a 10.62% share of Heathrow Airport Holdings (formerly BAA)³⁹⁸ (who owns London-Heathrow) from Ferrovial for $779,900,000, in 2012 QIA/Qatar Holdings own about 20% of London-Heathrow. This was part of the trade in “the offing” between Qatar and United Kingdom in which United Kingdom and Qatar violated 18 U.S.C. 1962(a) because some of the proceeds were derived from “trade is in the offing” were used to buy a substantial share of Heathrow in order to have influence and the ability to continue to coverup “trade is in the offing.” QIA/Qatar Holdings further invested an additional 650 million pounds ($807 million) in 2017 in London-Heathrow airport. PWC recognized Qatar Holdings part ownership of Heathrow in April 2012.³⁹⁹ June 2013 The Guardian reported QIA owned 20% of BAA (which became Heathrow Airport Holdings) for 900 million pounds.⁴⁰⁰ That violated 18 U.S.C §1951 (EXTORTION); Title VI of the Civil Rights Act, 18 U.S.C. §1862 (d); 18 U.S.C. §1862 (c); 18 U.S.C. §1862 (b); 18 U.S.C. §1862 (a); 42 U.S.C. §1981; 42 U.S.C. §1983, 42 U.S.C. §1985(2); 42 U.S.C. §1985(3); 42 U.S.C. §1986; 18 U.S.C. §226, 18 U.S.C. §241, 42 U.S.C. §1983, 18 U.S.C. §1961 Sections 1581-1590 (relating to peonage), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1510 (relating to obstruction of criminal investigations), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1343 (wire fraud), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1346 (to deprive another of the intangible right of honest services”), 18 U.S.C. §1961 Section 1503, 18 U.S. Code §201 (bribery), 18 U.S.C. §872 (Extortion by officer), 18 U.S. Code § 875, 18 U.S. Code § 880 (receives proceeds of extortion), Section 504, and PLAINTIFF’S 1st, 4th, 5th, 6th, 8th, 9th, 10th, 13th, and 14th Amendment rights.

QIA and Tony Blair, former UK Prime minister, routinely negotiated amongst each other in which QIA went on a British shopping spree in which there was so much trade between Britain and Qatar. On 8 May 2010, Qatar Holding, an indirect subsidiary of QIA, purchased the Harrods Group (department store) and the Knightsbridge department store. QIA are also the largest shareholder in Sainsbury's (2nd largest British Supermarket). By January 2013, QIA invested around €30 billion in Britain/United Kingdom. The largest tower in London is owned by QIA (the Shard) which cost £2bn. Two years after the Shard’s completion, QIA bought HSBC’s headquarters for £1.1bn in February 2012. It swiftly followed that up by leading a consortium that bought Canary Wharf Group in a £2.6bn takeover. This makes QIA a huge property owner in London. The point being, it is common knowledge how Qatar owns a major and fundamental part of London and Britain. Where America goes, Britain goes, and where Qatar goes, Britain goes. Speaking of America and Qatari financing via QIA in which better trade occurred in 2013, Washington DC owes something to the Qataris as QIA was one of the major financiers of a development known as CityCenterDC that invested $650 million into the project in 2013. CityCenterDC is 0.6 miles away from the White House—quite literally in the backyard of the White House. White House knew about this no doubt.

³⁹⁸ The British Airports Authority (BAA pl) used to own Heathrow and was established by the government in 1965. Ferrovial bought BAA Pl in 2006 in which it kept Heathrow out of all the british airports and renamed the company Heathrow Airport Holdings. BAA AIRPORTS LIMITED (BAA plc) managed Heathrow between October 2008 to October 2012. BAA AIRPORTS LIMITED’S (BAA plc) CEO was COLIN STEPHEN MATTHEWS (who was British Airways technical director until 2001) during Miki’s Tea Party.

Barack Obama gave a speech in New York City on September 23rd, 2010 at the Clinton Global Initiative Meeting. President Obama. “Thank you, everybody. Thank you. Please have a seat. Well, I am thrilled to be here. I want to thank President Clinton for the kind, although protocol-busting, introduction. [Laughter] And I want to thank him for inviting me back to join you at this year's meeting. It was an extraordinary pleasure to be here at CGI last year. It's a pleasure to be back today, not only because of my highest regard for President Clinton personally, not just because of my gratitude to him for putting up with long hours away from our Secretary of State— [laughter]—— Former President William J. Clinton. Thank you for being grateful, though. President Obama. I am grateful. [Laughter] But also because of the tremendous work he's doing through GCI... For the past 5 years, President Clinton has applied the full force of his energy and his influence—and it is formidable—to the work of this initiative. And with that passion and with that determination and that charm of his that makes it so darn hard to say no, he has marshaled $57 billion worth of commitments from folks like you, and that's bringing hope and opportunity to more than 200 million people around the world. It's a remarkable record of achievement...”

Is “trade is in the offing” considered something to be “protocol-busting,” PLAINTIFF does not know; maybe? but it is a distinct possibility. $57 Billion is a lot of money for CGI and PLAINTIFF is not going after all of that; however, PLAINTIFF is incorporating the previous fact and the following facts that shows how much the following entities donated to CGI and lobbied the State Department during Hillary Clinton’s time at the State Department: ⁴⁰¹

- State of Qatar and related entities: $1,375,000 and a total of $5,800,000.
- Microsoft: a minimum of $26,000,000⁴⁰²
- BOEING: 1,000,000 to 5,000,000.
- Alphabet/Google: $511,000 to $1,030,000

PLAINTIFF is alleging that part of the funds BOEING gave towards CGI during Hillary Clinton’s time at State in which it was part of the proceeds BOEING would derive from “trade is in the offing” and that is PLAINTIFF’S financial factual nexus to subject CGI to the lawsuit as it was part of the RICO Enterprise. So that was part of the mail and wire fraud. CHERYL MILLS

⁴⁰¹ <https://www.vox.com/2015/4/28/8501643/Clinton-foundation-donors-State>

is a board member of CGI. That's another reason why PLAINTIFF included CGI. CGI and CLINTON'S do know what wires are as the following screenshot from CGI demonstrates:

PLAINTIFF alleges that part of RICO Enterprise 1 involved DEFENDANTS like Qatar and Boeing being part of the kickback scheme in “trade is in the offing” in which they were necessarily seeking and carrying favor with Hillary Clinton and would derive benefits therefrom. You get what you pay for when it comes to HILLARY CLINTON and when she is in a position of power at the beginning part of her tenure at State is when CGI and the Clintons receive the most. For example, “in 2009, with Mrs. Clinton as Secretary of State, a likely White House run in her future, and a secret email server hiding her communications, the Clinton Foundation took in $249 million.”⁴⁰³ Furthermore, “Reuters found out that from 2010 to 2013, the foundation wasn’t disclosing all of its donors and didn’t tell the State Department that Australia and the UK had doubled and tripled their contributions to the Clinton foundation while Mrs. Clinton was Secretary of State. The Associated Press discovered that more than half of Secretary Clinton’s meetings with people outside the government were with donors to the Clinton Foundation... Was there written evidence of pay-to-play in those deleted emails? Watchdog group OpenSecrets reported that after Hillary Clinton lost the 2016 election, speaking fees to the Clintons dropped like a rock, falling from $3.6 million in 2014 to $370,000 in 2018, and IRS disclosures reveal that the once high-flying Clinton Foundation took in $30.7 million in 2018 and just $16.3 million in 2020.⁴⁰⁴ So when Hillary and Bill Clinton were in no positions of power, they went from obtaining nearly $250,000,000 to just receiving $16,300,000 in 2020—which is a decrease of nearly 90%.

Furthermore, in CGI'S 2011 990 Form⁴⁰⁵ that was filed in November 2015 (which is three months after An Anchor and a Pitchfork), CGI listed having an Indian bank account. Necessarily, the United Kingdom and Australia became part of RICO Enterprise 1 in which they willingly donated more than double and triple the amounts they received in which the United Kingdom and Australia were beneficiaries of "trade is in the offing." On Jan 12th, 2011, HILLARY CLINTON and PRIME MINISTER AL THANI met at the Ritz Carlton in Doha, Qatar. They were talking about “bilateral relations and issues of interest” between Qatar and the United States. HILLARY CLINTON said: “Thank you very much, Prime Minister. And let me express – let me express my pleasure at being back in Doha and to have had this opportunity this evening to have met with both His Excellency the prime minister and with His Highness the Amir. As the prime minister just said, we had very substantive, comprehensive discussions. And I thank also Qatar for hosting this year’s meeting of the Forum for the Future, which I will be attending tomorrow.”⁴⁰⁶ PLAINTIFF alleges that on the night of January 12th, 2011, HILLARY CLINTON talked to and conspired with PRIME MINISTER AL THANI and His Highness the Amir about the specific plan of “the offing” that was implemented on September 24th, 2010.

Hillary Clinton had absolutely no doubt in her mind about how the United States was going to see “trade is in the offing” through and through in which she fully supported Qatar and Qatar likewise: “in our meetings with my friends here as well as with the Gulf countries in the GCC forum, we discussed a number of issues related to Gulf security and stability. As I outlined in my speech at the Manama Dialogue last month, America’s commitment to the security of the Gulf region is unwavering. We will continue to support our partners, including Qatar, as they work to address threats and create the conditions for long-term peace, prosperity, and human progress... On these and many other issues, Qatar is a trusted leader and a valued friend. The United States is proud of the partnership between our two nations. It has yielded positive results for the people of both of our countries, and we look forward to continuing to work together on the full range of issues that are important to us both. Thank you again, Prime Minister.”⁴⁰⁷

PLAINTIFF is alleging that PRIME MINISTER AL THANI knew of the role Qatar would play in “trade is in the offing” that even though it was allegedly talking about Lebanon, the facts and circumstances are the same in which their plans are laid out: “If I may add, as you know, the stability of Lebanon becomes priority for us in Qatar, and I think for all our friends in the region and the United States. We know the tribunal and the stability of Lebanon – both of them is important for Lebanon. And I think now – I said yesterday when I had a press conference with the Prime Minister Erdogan that we have to think how to solve this problem in peaceful through responsible dialogue between the Lebanese. The Lebanese by themselves, they can help themselves. And I think our interference or our help is to help them to talk together and to try to reach a solution together. I think we have enough problem in the region that this problem we have to take care about it in a way to solve it, not to complicate it. And we are working by each minute and hour to do so.”⁴⁰⁸

Now PLAINTIFF is going to take out “Lebanon” and Turkish Prime Minister Erdgoan from what Prime Minister AL THANI just said and just include the facts of the offing to show you they came to an understanding as to the roles that were played:

“If I may add, as you know, the stability of [HILLARY CLINTON] becomes priority for us in Qatar, and I think for all our friends in [India] and the United States [UK]. We know the tribunal and the stability of [HILLARY CLINTON and BARACK OBAMA] – both of them is important for [HC and BO]. And I think now – I said yesterday when I had a press conference with the Prime Minister [Singh or David Cameron] that we have to think how to solve this problem in peaceful through responsible dialogue between [PLAINTIFF & Qatar]. The [PLAINTIFF] by themselves, they can help themselves. And I think our interference or our help is to help them to talk together and to try to reach a solution together. I think we have enough problem in the region that this problem we have to take care about it in a way to solve it, not to complicate it. And we are working by each minute and hour to do so.”⁴⁰⁹

Now if we distill it further with known facts. DOJ wanted to prosecute PLAINTIFF in 2008, 2009, and 2010. The stability of the HILLARY CLINTON and BARACK OBAMA required PLAINTIFF’S prosecution in an international or domestic tribunal (court). It is irrefutable that the facts of what Qatar Airways did to PLAINTIFF in Miki’s Tea Party align perfectly at the end of Al Thani’s statements: “our interference by the Qatar Airways representative or our help as a Qatar Airways representative is to “help” PLAINTIFF to talk together with the Qatar Airways representative and for the Qatar Airways representative to try to reach a solution together in which PLAINTIFF agrees to go to the Indian Embassy. I think we have enough problem in the region⁴¹⁰ that this problem we have to take care about it in a way to solve it (by falsely prosecuting PLAINTIFF for counterterrorism), not to complicate it. And we are working by each minute and hour to do so.”⁴¹¹ The United States and Qatar worked together to tamper the United Airlines Flight by each minute and hour to do so and direct PLAINTIFF’S activities minute by minute, hour by hour at London Heathrow Airport. There is the part of how “they can help themselves.” What PLAINTIFF is alleging CIA, Hillary Clinton, MI6, Qatar, Qatari Intel, Prime Minister Singh and David Cameron, Leon Panetta, Barack Obama, had all significantly talked about in their conspiracy after doing a legal analysis and concluded was if and how “PLAINTIFF can help himself in London.” The issue of how PLAINTIFF would attempt to leave London Heathrow Airport once he got there. The first question was: once PLAINTIFF figured out he would not be allowed to board the Qatar Airways flight, what would his next steps be. They knew PLAINTIFF didn’t have anyone of significant financial means to go to in England so that’s out. PLAINTIFF wouldn’t go to the American Embassy for an Indian visa issue. So that’s out. But the Qatar Airways was there to “help” PLAINTIFF reach their intended consequence of “going to the Indian Embassy.”

⁴¹⁰ This is a just in case allegation and it is a bit of the stretch of the imagination: “I think we have enough problem in the region”--There was an incident that occurred between TKL and PLAINTIFF at REGION’S bank in Sewanee, TN, right around the exact time of this speech as PLAINTIFF will explain in Champagne. Now as PLAINTIFF will allege, it would show retaliation and hostility by law enforcement against PLAINTIFF and Qatar and America knew of the incident and knew it would be a problem in prosecuting PLAINTIFF in a tribunal because of TKL’S unconstitutional actions through the years. Depends on the translation, but region and region’s bank can be equivocated here.

PLAINTIFF alleges that is Prime Minister Al Thani aiding and abetting and was a principal accessory after the fact so he violated: 18 U.S.C §1951 (EXTORTION); Title VI of the Civil Rights Act, 18 U.S.C. §1862 (d); 18 U.S.C. §1862 (c); 18 U.S.C. §1862 (b); 18 U.S.C. §1862 (a); 42 U.S.C. §1981; 42 U.S.C. §1983, 42 U.S.C. §1985(2); 42 U.S.C. §1985(3); 42 U.S.C. §1986; 18 U.S.C. §226, 18 U.S.C. §241, 42 U.S.C. §1983, 18 U.S.C. §1961 Sections 1581-1590 (relating to peonage), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1510 (relating to obstruction of criminal investigations), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1343 (wire fraud), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1346 (to deprive another of the intangible right of honest services”), 18 U.S.C. §1961 Section 1503, 18 U.S. Code §201 (bribery), 18 U.S.C. §872 (Extortion by officer), 18 U.S. Code § 875, 18 U.S. Code § 880 (receives proceeds of extortion), Section 504, and PLAINTIFF’S 1st, 4th, 5th, 6th, 8th, 9th, 10th, 13th, and 14th Amendment rights.

“We know that a contract is the law between the parties and that they are bound by their agreements regardless of harmful consequences, provided the agreement is not contra bonos mores or in violation of some prohibitory law. However, where the issue is as in the instant case — what are the terms of the verbal agreement — the fact that informed and experienced persons do not usually and customarily bind themselves to unjust and unreasonable obligations is a serious factor that must be taken into consideration in determining that question.” Oil Field S. S. Material Co. v. Gifford Hill Co., 204 La. 929 (La. 1944)

What did you say about JAMES COMEY earlier? Do you mean in regards to how they just talked about a tribunal? Yes: HILLARY sent CHERYL MILLS an email with the subject line of: “Jake says Jim took the job?” on 03/13/2011. The content of the mail says: “Yes--he told me Friday he was leaning but not there yet and said he would decide for sure Monday. I will give you what details I gleaned when we talk next. Is the P.I announcement out yet? Also, I told Bill about the Zuma call and he is willing.” PLAINTIFF is alleging the Jim they are referring to is: James Comey in which New York would prosecute PLAINTIFF after “trade is in the offing” in which a tribunal would be utilized against PLAINTIFF. James Comey, Hillary Clinton, Cheryl Mills, and PRIME MINISTER AL THANI obstructed justice in seeking to prosecute PLAINTIFF in which Qatar and America would indirectly obtain benefits like deals made in purchasing BOEING Aircraft, retaliated against PLAINTIFF

HILLARY CLINTON, WILLIAM HAGUE, ALISTAIR BURT, CHRISTOPHER M. CHADWICK, BOEING, Emir of Qatar SHEIKH TAMIM BIN HAMAD AL THANI, Sheikh Hamad Bin Jassim Bin Jabr Al-Thani (HBJ), QIA, Qatar Airways Company Q.C.S.C., Qatar Holding, LLC., Akbar Al Baker, Heathrow Airport Holdings (formerly BAA), COLIN STEPHEN MATTHEWS, TONY BLAIR, DAVID CAMERON, BOEING, and unknown American, British and Qatar officials and employees in which QIA’S purchase of shares of Heathrow Airport Holdings and Qatar Airways and Akbar Al Baker’s purchase of BOEING aircraft from September 2010 was part of the trade in “the offing” between Qatar, United States and United Kingdom in which United Kingdom (and aforementioned British DEFENDANTS) and Qatar violated 18 U.S.C §1951 (EXTORTION); Title VI of the Civil Rights Act, 18 U.S.C. §1862 (d); 18 U.S.C. §1862 (c); 18 U.S.C. §1862 (b); 18 U.S.C. §1862 (a); 42 U.S.C. §1981; 42 U.S.C. §1983, 42 U.S.C. §1985(2); 42 U.S.C. §1985(3); 42 U.S.C. §1986; 18 U.S.C. §226, 18 U.S.C. §241, 42 U.S.C. §1983, 18 U.S.C. §1961 Sections 1581-1590 (relating to peonage), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1510 (relating to obstruction of criminal investigations), 18

U.S.C. §1961 section 1343 (wire fraud), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1346 (to deprive another of the intangible right of honest services”), 18 U.S.C. §1961 Section 1503, 18 U.S. Code §201 (bribery), 18 U.S.C. §872 (Extortion by officer), 18 U.S. Code § 875, 18 U.S. Code § 880 (receives proceeds of extortion), Section 504, and PLAINTIFF’S 1st, 4th, 5th, 6th, 8th, 9th, 10th, 13th, and 14th Amendment rights. because some of the proceeds were derived from “trade is in the offing” were used to buy a substantial share of Heathrow in order to have influence and the ability to continue to coverup “trade is in the offing” that Heathrow airport officials knew “trade is in the offing” was going to happen, materially aided and abetted against PLAINTIFF by either telling the Qatar Airways representative to do her actions or allowing one of the BRITISH INTEL or AMERICAN INTEL DEFENDANTS to do that, was a coconspirator in committing wire fraud with HILLARY CLINTON and BARACK OBAMA, and purchased new Qatar Airways aircraft. So unknown American, Qatari, British and Boeing officials in the Qatar Airways deals and Heathrow Airport Holdings deal that was part of “trade is in the offing” violated: 18 U.S.C. §1862 (a); 18 U.S.C. §1862 (b); 18 U.S.C. §1862 (c); 18 U.S.C. §1862 (d); 42 U.S.C. §1985(2); 42 U.S.C. §1985(3); 18 U.S.C. §226; and 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1343; 18 U.S.C. §226; 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1512; 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1513; 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1510; 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1503; 18 U.S.C. §241; 18 U.S. Code §201 (bribery); 18 U.S.C. §872 (Extortion by officer); 42 U.S.C. §1986; 18 U.S. Code § 875 (mail fraud argument); 18 U.S. Code § 880 (receives proceeds of extortion); 18 U.S.C. §1961 Sections 1581-1590 (relating to peonage). Aforementioned DEFENDANTS violated 1343 in which they received indirectly proceeds on the condition of PLAINTIFF’S forced labor, peonage, and/or involuntary servitude in violation of PLAINTIFF’S 13th Amendment rights in “the offing” is a violation of Section 1962(c) in which BOEING and Christopher M. Chadwick participated indirectly in the conduct of enterprise’s affairs because the Enterprise through a pattern of violating 18 U.S.C §1951 (EXTORTION); Title VI of the Civil Rights Act, 18 U.S.C. §1862 (d); 18 U.S.C. §1862 (c); 18 U.S.C. §1862 (b); 18 U.S.C. §1862 (a); 42 U.S.C. §1981; 42 U.S.C. §1983, 42 U.S.C. §1985(2); 42 U.S.C. §1985(3); 42 U.S.C. §1986; 18 U.S.C. §226, 18 U.S.C. §241, 42 U.S.C. §1983, 18 U.S.C. §1961 Sections 1581-1590 (relating to peonage), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1510 (relating to obstruction of criminal investigations), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1343 (wire fraud), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1346 (to deprive another of the intangible right of honest services”), 18 U.S.C. §1961 Section 1503, 18 U.S. Code §201 (bribery), 18 U.S.C. §872 (Extortion by officer), 18 U.S. Code § 875, 18 U.S. Code § 880 (receives proceeds of extortion), Section 504, and PLAINTIFF’S 1st, 4th, 5th, 6th, 8th, 9th, 10th, 13th, and 14th Amendment rights because PLAINTIFF has not seen a single dime for his forced labor and became an indentured servant to DEFENDANTS where BOEING sold aircraft that were part of the “trade is in the offing” and provided additional services, profits, and resources to Qatar Airways, QIA, Qatar Holding, LLC, Emir of Qatar SHEIKH TAMIM BIN HAMAD AL THANI, SHEIKH HAMAD BIN JASSIM BIN JABR AL-THANI (HBJ), QIA and Akbar Al Baker.

To confirm everyone was on the same page after “the offing” occurred: UK Prime Minister David Cameron & Sheikh Hamad Bin Jassim Bin Jabr Al-Thani (HBJ), Prime Minister and Minister of Foreign Affairs for the State of Qatar met on March 29th, 2011.

So any trade between HILLARY CLINTON, WILLIAM HAGUE, ALISTAIR BURT, CHRISTOPHER M. CHADWICK, BOEING, Emir of Qatar SHEIKH TAMIM BIN HAMAD AL THANI, Sheikh Hamad Bin Jassim Bin Jabr Al-Thani (HBJ), QIA, Qatar Airways Company Q.C.S.C., Qatar Holding, LLC., Akbar Al Baker, Heathrow Airport Holdings (formerly BAA), COLIN STEPHEN MATTHEWS, TONY BLAIR, DAVID CAMERON, BOEING, and unknown American, British and Qatar officials and employees, that happened from when “trade is in the offing” was made ascertainable from September 2010 to Present PLAINTIFF could ask for under 18 U.S.C §1963(a)(3) since that statute applies to forfeiture of proceeds or property derived from proceeds obtained in violation of 18 U.S.C. 1962(a), 18 U.S.C. 1962(b), 18 U.S.C. 1962(c) and/or 18 U.S.C. 1962(d). DEFENDANTS are required to forfeit the amount of illicit proceeds and property as determined by the Court even if the funds used to satisfy the forfeiture are not tainted or if the defendant no longer possesses the tainted funds or property, but that is too harsh and PLAINTIFF is a compassionate and generous man. So in regard to Qatar Airways, Qatar Airways could have said “trade is in the offing” is wrong and not been a part of it for the 6 months between September 2010 through March 2011 (which is 6 months). PLAINTIFF will ask for a treble time period of (3x 6 months=18 months). Then there is of course a 20% “increase trade” fee which amounts to additional 20% on the 18 months for an additional 3 months making a total of 21 months after March 2011 for Qatar Airways BOEING aircraft orders after March 2011. So that is at September 2012 as of this moment. But wait, of course, there are the TSA air piracy prevention fee that amount to 5.6 months for one way which should have gone towards stopping air piracy from occurring so that is an additional 5 months. Now we are at: February 2013. Then there is the “Business Seat Selection” fee in which a seat was denied to PLAINTIFF because of business. So that’s another 6 months. So that is October 2013. That’s just ordinary fees travelers pay for regularly.

One of the issues in “trade is in the offing” was partly getting PLAINTIFF off from the Qatar Airways planes. The planes were a part of the scheme as they were property used to further the scheme by violating 18 U.S.C §1951 (EXTORTION); Title VI of the Civil Rights Act, 18 U.S.C. §1862 (d); 18 U.S.C. §1862 (c); 18 U.S.C. §1862 (b); 18 U.S.C. §1862 (a); 42 U.S.C. §1981; 42 U.S.C. §1983, 42 U.S.C. §1985(2); 42 U.S.C. §1985(3); 42 U.S.C. §1986; 18 U.S.C. §226, 18 U.S.C. §241, 42 U.S.C. §1983, 18 U.S.C. §1961 Sections 1581-1590 (relating to peonage), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1510 (relating to obstruction of criminal investigations), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1343 (wire fraud), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1346 (to deprive another of the intangible right of honest services”), 18 U.S.C. §1961 Section 1503, 18 U.S. Code §201 (bribery), 18 U.S.C. §872 (Extortion by officer), 18 U.S. Code § 875, 18 U.S. Code § 880 (receives proceeds of extortion), Section 504, and PLAINTIFF’S 1st, 4th, 5th, 6th, 8th, 9th, 10th, 13th, and 14th Amendment rights. in which Qatar Airways, Al-Baker, derived income from the racketeering acts in “trade is in the offing” in which the planes were indirectly used to obtain proceeds of such income and was part of the operation of enterprise.

PLAINTIFF could ask for every aircraft that Qatar Airways ordered since September 2010, but PLAINTIFF is not and is just limiting it from September 2010 to October 2013. Technically, by necessarily having engaged in RICO Enterprise 1, forfeiture could apply to all new aircraft orders to Qatar Airways as they were derived from the previous proceeds obtained by Qatar Airways for having participated in the mail and wire fraud scheme against PLAINTIFF (in which some of the planes are tainted, all of the planes are tainted). PLAINTIFF is a generous man.

BUT the two planes that PLAINTIFF should have been allowed to board on Qatar Airways those flights were the following: PLAINTIFF is 90% certain it was either an Airbus A340-600 or BOEING 777-300ER from London to Doha and an Airbus A320 from Doha to India and PLAINTIFF is asking for equivalent aircraft of those type at those conditions at the time. This was property used in furthering the RICO Enterprise 1. If it was an Airbus A340-600, which PLAINTIFF believes that it probably was, it would have been one that was acquired in the June 2003 Paris Airshow that was the original purchase or one of the 8 options that they exercised on. This aircraft entered service in Qatar Airways from around September 2006 thereby making the aircraft at issue 4 years old. BOEING 777-300ERs would have been around the same age as well.

That is just part of it. “Trade is in the offing” necessarily entails the trade between Qatar Airways/Qatar and BOEING as well from September 2010 through October 2013 in which each of the orders placed between PLAINTIFF is alleging that Qatar Airways got material benefits from BOEING in their purchase of aircraft from September 2010 through October 2013 that necessarily occurred because of “trade is in the offing” that was sanctioned by the Qatar Government/QIA/Qatar Holdings and the American, Indian, and British Government in which all four were coconspirators and it was quid pro quo and kickback scheme in violation of 18

U.S.C §1951 (EXTORTION); Title VI of the Civil Rights Act, 18 U.S.C. §1862 (d); 18 U.S.C. §1862 (c); 18 U.S.C. §1862 (b); 18 U.S.C. §1862 (a); 42 U.S.C. §1981; 42 U.S.C. §1983, 42 U.S.C. §1985(2); 42 U.S.C. §1985(3); 42 U.S.C. §1986; 18 U.S.C. §226, 18 U.S.C. §241, 42 U.S.C. §1983, 18 U.S.C. §1961 Sections 1581-1590 (relating to peonage), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1510 (relating to obstruction of criminal investigations), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1343 (wire fraud), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1346 (to deprive another of the intangible right of honest services”), 18 U.S.C. §1961 Section 1503, 18 U.S. Code §201 (bribery), 18 U.S.C. §872 (Extortion by officer), 18 U.S. Code § 875, 18 U.S. Code § 880 (receives proceeds of extortion), Section 504, and PLAINTIFF’S 1st, 4th, 5th, 6th, 8th, 9th, 10th, 13th, and 14th Amendment rights. PLAINTIFF is seeking all of the planes or an equivalent/comparable aircraft or substituted conditions of new Boeing aircraft under the conditions PLAINTIFF stipulates below of what Qatar Airways purchased from BOEING between September 2010 through October 2013 as part of his restitution.

PLAINTIFF is not asking much from Qatar, Qatar Airways, and QIA, but what PLAINTIFF is asking for is the following that is a little unconventional in addition to the planes. The scars of terrorism, war crimes, and torture run deep and will last a life time. So the following for some of the scars of terrorism, war crimes, and torture to alleviate PLAINTIFF’S suffering and not for profit motive: MKT Airlines will be a flourishing airline, and considering the requests made in An Anchor and a Pitchfork, there will be a MKT railroad company as well. All of those require energy, which Qatar has plenty. PLAINTIFF is requesting that Qatar Petroleum/Qatar Energy (PLAINTIFF is assuming that QIA or Qatar Holdings, LLC owns Qatar Petroleum/Qatar Energy) and MKT Airlines and Railroad Company create a co-venture with Qatar Petroleum/Qatar Energy called MKT Oil (if the name is available) and build an oil refinery (probably in Louisiana) that will have the purpose of supplying fuel to PLAINTIFF’S MKT Airlines planes and trains in which the purchase price of a barrel of oil will be the cost of extracting the oil +20%. MKT Oil will pay for the transport from Qatar to Louisiana so long as the total price of a barrel of oil is below the market price of a barrel of oil. Qatar Energy and their experts will oversee building the MKT oil refinery, operating it, and managing it in Louisiana or somewhere else that is suitable. A yearly amount can be determined based on fleet size and consumption in which the deal is good for PLAINTIFF’S natural life. The MKT Oil refinery can sell all the remaining oil products from the oil refinery (such as gasoline) to whoever else in America. HOWEVER, no profits can be derived from selling the additional products in which PLAINTIFF is specifically stipulating and making the request that the profits from the MKT Oil Refinery venture (besides going to maintaining the facility and keeping it safe and up to code) goes back to Qatar and funds Miki’s autism centers in Qatar and India and psychological health centers/ketamine treatment centers for people who have depression and/or ptsd. The Emir helped Louisiana during Hurricane Katrina, PLAINTIFF wishes to help Qatari autistic individuals.

In light of the MKT Oil Plan, PLAINTIFF’S MKT Railroad company will have the sole exclusive right to transport the refined jet fuel and diesel to wherever it is needed at MKT’s railroad and airport hubs across America. New tank cars can be made to transport the jet fuel and diesel. PLAINTIFF however does need trackage rights over existing railroad infrastructure. Details of this plan can be worked out.

British Airways is connected in two distinct and separate ways to “trade is in the offing.”

1) Qatar Airways, QIA, and Al-Baker started to have more positions of influence directing the course of actions in London-Heathrow from 2012 after having directed PLAINTIFF a year earlier on March 2011. Part of that influence required creating a new company into Heathrow Holdings from BAA plc in which PLAINTIFF couldn't sue the new management company of London-Heathrow Airport since "the offing" occurred under BAA plc. Furthermore, Qatar Airways, QIA, and Al-Baker cut ties with the manager of BAA plc or Heathrow Holdings leave or gets fired in 2012 in which they would further establish and dominate their actions in London-Heathrow. Because Qatar, QIA, Qatar Airways, Al-Baker obtained power and influence over London-Heathrow, IAG/British Airways having London-Heathrow as their hub had to go along with Qatar, QIA, Qatar Airways, and Al-Baker in which IAG/British Airways indirectly received benefits and resources from the Qatar power and influence acquisition of Heathrow. There is not a single way British Intel did not warn British Airways that a major "counterterrorism" measure was being implemented by American and British Intel with the help of Qatar Airways and Qatar and India and Indian Intel that was going to take place on 03/10/2011 or 03/11/2011 in their own hub in which there existed a possibility that PLAINTIFF would take British Airways back to Chicago on the same day or the next day. British Airways not being told that information is difficult to believe—contingency plans were made and British Airways were made aware of it. David Cameron and British Foreign Secretary William Hague (who was in charge of MI6 and GCHQ that happened under their watch), John O. Brennan, or ALISTAR BURT had to inform someone in London-Heathrow or British Airways. So somewhere deep within the British Airways archive there is a reference to "trade is in the offing" between 09/27/2010 to 03/11/2011. 2) British Government owned a 49% stake in British Air Traffic Control (and British Airways was part owner of the 42% of NATS that owned British Air Traffic Control at the time as well) that knew when PLAINTIFF landed in London, the happenings of United Airlines Flight #925 under their supervision, and when PLAINTIFF left London in which there was no way Air Traffic Control was not informed a counterterrorism measure was being undertaken in London-Heathrow at that time. So any trade between HILLARY CLINTON, WILLIAM HAGUE, ALISTAIR BURT, CHRISTOPHER M. CHADWICK, BOEING, Emir of Qatar SHEIKH TAMIM BIN HAMAD AL THANI, NATS, Sheikh Hamad Bin Jassim Bin Jabr Al-Thani (HBJ), QIA, British Airways/IAG, Qatar Holding, LLC., Akbar Al Baker, Heathrow Airport Holdings (formerly BAA), COLIN STEPHEN MATTHEWS, TONY BLAIR, DAVID CAMERON, BOEING, and unknown American, British and Qatar officials and employees, that happened from when "trade is in the offing" was made ascertainable from September 2010 to Present PLAINTIFF could ask for under 18 U.S.C §1963(a)(3) since that statute applies to forfeiture of proceeds or property derived from proceeds obtained in violation of 18 U.S.C. 1962(a), 18 U.S.C. 1962(b), 18 U.S.C. 1962(c) and/or 18 U.S.C. 1962(d). Aforementioned DEFENDANTS as being a part of "trade is in the offing" violated: 18 U.S.C §1951 (EXTORTION); Title VI of the Civil Rights Act, 18 U.S.C. §1862 (d); 18 U.S.C. §1862 (c); 18 U.S.C. §1862 (b); 18 U.S.C. §1862 (a); 42 U.S.C. §1981; 42 U.S.C. §1983, 42 U.S.C. §1985(2); 42 U.S.C. §1985(3); 42 U.S.C. §1986; 18 U.S.C. §226, 18 U.S.C. §241, 42 U.S.C. §1983, 18 U.S.C. §1961 Sections 1581-1590 (relating to peonage), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1510 (relating to obstruction of criminal investigations), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1343 (wire fraud), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1346 (to deprive another of the intangible right of honest services"), 18 U.S.C. §1961 Section 1503, 18 U.S. Code §201 (bribery), 18 U.S.C. §872 (Extortion by officer), 18 U.S. Code § 875, 18 U.S. Code § 880 (receives proceeds of extortion), Section 504, and PLAINTIFF'S 1st, 4th, 5th, 6th, 8th, 9th, 10th, 13th, and 14th Amendment rights.

Aforementioned DEFENDANTS are required to forfeit the amount of illicit proceeds and property as determined by the Court even if the funds used to satisfy the forfeiture are not tainted or if the defendant no longer possesses the tainted funds or property, but that is too harsh and PLAINTIFF is a compassionate and generous man. So in regard to British Airways, they could have said “trade is in the offing” is wrong and not been a part of it for the 6 months between September 2010 through March 2011 (which is 6 months). PLAINTIFF will ask for a treble time period of (3x 6 months=18 months). Then there is of course a 20% “increase trade” fee which amounts to additional 20% on the 18 months for an additional 3 months making a total of 21 months after March 2011 for British Airways BOEING aircraft orders after March 2011. So that is at September 2012 as of this moment. But wait, of course, there are the TSA air piracy prevention fee that amount to 5.6 months for one way which should have gone towards stopping air piracy from occurring so that is an additional 5 months. Now we are at: February 2013. Then there is the “Business Seat Selection” fee in which a seat was denied to PLAINTIFF because of business. So that’s another 6 months. So that is October 2013. That’s just ordinary fees travelers pay for regularly.

As PLAINTIFF has alleged, British Intel DEFENDANTS necessarily knew about Miki’s Tea Party from September 2010, and it was done completely under their watch and jurisdiction in which they assisted in tampering with the plane and denying PLAINTIFF info thereby perpetuating the fraud committed against PLAINTIFF. Since the British Intel DEFENDANTS knew, people like XX within the British government knew about Miki’s Tea Party. Therefore, British government allowed “trade is in the offing” to occur under their watch and jurisdiction and the British Government were part of the merger of IAG because they owned British Airways. “The offing” was composed on September 27th, 2010 in which there is a factual nexus to the United Kingdom because: “the Senate scheduled to ratify Defense Trade Treaties with Australia and UK by acclamation today.”⁴¹² Later on that day, the “airport plan” was given the go ahead (i.e. the offing) and occurred simultaneously with Senate’s ratification of “defense trade treaties” with the United Kingdom made in the exact context of “the offing.” Now, PLAINTIFF having firmly established that “defense trade is in the offing” was not just about defense trade in India, PLAINTIFF is alleging that the defense trade treaties were “trade treaties” as well in which non-defense trade would occur between United Kingdom and America.

So any trade between HILLARY CLINTON, WILLIAM HAGUE, ALISTAIR BURT, CHRISTOPHER M. CHADWICK, BOEING, Emir of Qatar SHEIKH TAMIM BIN HAMAD AL THANI, NATS, Sheikh Hamad Bin Jassim Bin Jabr Al-Thani (HBJ), QIA, British Airways/IAG, Qatar Holding, LLC., Akbar Al Baker, Heathrow Airport Holdings (formerly BAA), COLIN STEPHEN MATTHEWS, TONY BLAIR, DAVID CAMERON, BOEING, and unknown American, British and Qatar officials and employees, that happened from when “trade is in the offing” was made ascertainable from September 2010 to Present PLAINTIFF could ask for under 18 U.S.C §1963(a)(3) since that statute applies to forfeiture of proceeds or property derived from proceeds obtained in violation of 18 U.S.C. 1962 (a), 18 U.S.C. 1962(b), 18 U.S.C. 1962 (c), and 18 U.S.C. 1962 (d). DEFENDANTS are required to forfeit the amount of illicit proceeds and property as determined by the Court even if the funds used to satisfy the forfeiture are not tainted or if the defendant no longer possesses the tainted funds or property, but that is too harsh and PLAINTIFF is a compassionate and generous man. So in regard to British Airways and London-Heathrow Airport, one of them could have said “trade is in the offing” is wrong and not been a part of it for the 6 months between September 2010 through March 2011 (which is 6 months). PLAINTIFF will ask for a treble time period of (3x 6 months=18 months). Then there is of course a 20% “increase trade” fee which amounts to additional 20% on the 18 months for an additional 3 months making a total of 21 months after March 2011 for British Airways BOEING aircraft orders after March 2011. So that is at: September 2012. But wait, of course, there are the TSA air piracy prevention fee that amount to 5.6 months for one way which should have gone towards stopping air piracy from occurring so that is an additional 5 months. Now we are at: February 2013. Then there is the “Business Seat Selection” fee in which a seat was denied to PLAINTIFF because of business. So that’s another 6 months. So that is October 2013. That’s just ordinary fees travelers pay for regularly. BOEING is necessarily a party, and they were a party to “trade is in the offing” via Mr. Chadwick. PLAINTIFF arrived from a gate, asked to go to a gate, was denied going to the gate he requested, and went to the wrong gate; and so London-Heathrow’s restitutions to PLAINTIFF will be a MKT Airlines gate (with landing slots and not no garbage slots between 12am-6am) that can handle a BOEING 787-10. Ask Qatar Airways or British Airways for one of their gates.

So whether it is Keith Williams become the executive chairman of British Airways within the IAG group in January 2011, whether it was Willie Walsh who was the head of IAG, or the same core staff that was part of the merger and thereafter until March 11th, 2011, it is one and of the same in regards to who made a purchase of 2 BOEING 777-300ER in October 2011. This is property obtained and derived from “the trade is in the offing” in which BRITISH DEFENDANTS were coconspirators. British government/MI5/MI6/etc. et al were in on RICO Enterprise 1 on March 11th, 2011 in which they aided and abetted or contributed to tampering with United Airlines Flight #925 in furthering the RICO Enterprise and committing an act of domestic and international terrorism against PLAINTIFF because of “trade is in the offing.” BOEING is necessarily a party and they were a party to “trade is in the offing” via Mr. Chadwick. Therefore, as PLAINTIFF elaborated upon earlier, under 18 U.S.C §1963(a)(1) it clearly applies to any interest, legitimate or illegitimate, which DEFENDANTS acquired or maintained either in the course of engaging in racketeering activity or as the result of racketeering activity in violation of 18 U.S.C. 1962. 18 U.S.C §1963(a)(3) applies to forfeiture of proceeds or property derived from proceeds obtained in violation of RICO. DEFENDANTS are required to forfeit the amount of illicit proceeds and property as determined by the Court even if the funds used to satisfy the forfeiture are not tainted or if the defendant no longer possesses the tainted funds or property. The property and orders in question between Qatar Airways and British Airways between September 2010 and December 2011:

1: 10-year-old or less BOEING 777-200ER or comparable aircraft for United Airlines Flight #925.

1: 4-year-old or less Airbus A340-600/BOEING 777-300ER or comparable aircraft (London to Doha)

1: Qatar Airlines Airbus A320 or comparable aircraft (Doha to India)

PLAINTIFF will be generous and only include Qatar Airways' 2013 Boeing orders (9 new Boeing 777-300ER) as options for a total amount of $3,379,500,000 of future Boeing aircraft at exact cost to Boeing that MKT Airlines would pay at exact cost to Boeing for up to these limits until the threshold of $3,379,500,000 is reached: 28 Boeing 737-8 Max, 25 Boeing 737-10 Max, 14 Boeing 787-8, 12 BOEING 787-9, 10 Boeing 787-10, and/or 10 BOEING 777F.

PLAINTIFF is not asking for that loss he experienced in the substitutions.

PLAINTIFF wants to demonstrate his good faith and point something out. If PLAINTIFF was asking for treble damages here and really wanted to stick it to DEFENDANTS, PLAINTIFF could legally be entitled to an additional 20 brand new BOEING 777-300ER aircraft and 10 BOEING 777F aircraft on top of 2 more Airbus A340-600 and 2 more Airbus A320. But PLAINTIFF is not asking for treble damages on the aircraft themselves. So, these 10 Brand New BOEING 777-300ER Aircraft have custom features to those airlines standards and needs. Furthermore, 1 comparable aircraft to an Airbus A340-600 that was 4 year old or less and 1 comparable aircraft to 1 Airbus A320. PLAINTIFF will substitute the Airbus A320 with a comparable aircraft of a BOEING 737-8 Max. PLAINTIFF will substitute a 4 year old or less BOEING 787-9 or BOEING 787-10 for the 4 year old Airbus A340-600 at issue. Since BOEING 777-300ERs are no longer produced new from BOEING and in light of MKT Airlines optimal goal of fleet optimization through the utilization of only two different types of aircraft, 10 BOEING 787-10 or some smaller 787 with PLAINTIFF'S approval with PLAINTIFF'S specific features and branding will legally suffice. Since the original 777F cargo planes are no longer being produced, then 5 777-8F cargo planes for MKT Airlines Cargo division with the branding of MKT Airlines and standard features of a Boeing 777-8F aircraft. If BOEING refuses to work with PLAINTIFF, then DEFENDANTS will give or purchase on behalf of PLAINTIFF comparable Airbus aircraft.

Furthermore, PLAINTIFF is alleging the following. In or around January 2012, PLAINTIFF was scammed by someone in Britain in which they asked for PLAINTIFF'S passport and PLAINTIFF gave them a copy and that necessarily brings up HILLARY CLINTON and BRITISH DEFENDANTS. It was BRITISH INTEL that plotted against PLAINTIFF to lure him into false employment and PLAINTIFF filed a complaint with BRITISH DEFENDANTS and FBI around January 2012 or so. DEFENDANTS/FBI/BRITISH INTEL did nothing in regard to the complaint because it was them and they were doing something in regard to RICO Enterprise 1 and jurisdictional issues—this necessarily derived from “trade is in the offing.” British Airways ordered 2 Brand New 777-300ER July 2012⁴²¹ at a list price of around $750,000,000 and those two jets are subject to forfeiture as they are derived from DEFENDANTS RICO Enterprise 1 and this incident was in furtherance of RICO Enterprise 1. Therefore, as PLAINTIFF elaborated upon earlier, under 18 U.S.C §1963(a)(1) it clearly applies to any interest, legitimate or illegitimate, which DEFENDANTS acquired or maintained either in the course of engaging in racketeering activity or as the result of racketeering activity in violation of 18 U.S.C §1951 (EXTORTION); Title VI of the Civil Rights Act, 18 U.S.C. §1862 (d); 18 U.S.C. §1862 (c); 18 U.S.C. §1862 (b); 18 U.S.C. §1862 (a); 42 U.S.C. §1981; 42 U.S.C. §1983, 42 U.S.C. §1985(2); 42 U.S.C. §1985(3); 42 U.S.C. §1986; 18 U.S.C. §226, 18 U.S.C. §241, 42 U.S.C. §1983, 18 U.S.C. §1961 Sections 1581-1590 (relating to peonage), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1510 (relating to obstruction of criminal investigations), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1343 (wire fraud), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1346 (to deprive another of the intangible right of honest services”), 18 U.S.C. §1961 Section 1503, 18 U.S. Code §201 (bribery), 18 U.S.C. §872 (Extortion by officer), 18 U.S. Code § 875, 18 U.S. Code § 880 (receives proceeds of extortion), Section 504, and PLAINTIFF'S 1st, 4th, 5th, 6th, 8th, 9th, 10th, 13th, and 14th Amendment rights. 18 U.S.C §1963(a)(3) applies to forfeiture of proceeds or property derived from proceeds obtained in violation of RICO. DEFENDANTS are required to forfeit the amount of illicit proceeds and property as determined by the Court even if the funds used to satisfy the forfeiture are not tainted or if the defendant no longer possesses the tainted funds or property. The property and orders in question are the 2 BOEING 777-300ER or acceptable substitute to PLAINTIFF. Brits did nothing to help probably because it was their own trap. FBI did nothing precisely because it was one of their traps in conjunction with the British. PLAINTIFF has the option of an additional 2 BOEING 787-10, on the table or 6 new 737 BOEING 737 7,8, or 10 Max.

But for the RICO Predicate Acts and Enterprise and rampant constitutional violations that occurred in MID-YEAR, Miki's Tea Party happened. But for Miki's Tea Party, An Anchor and a Pitch Fork happened; Any legitimate hearing or ability to cross examine, ability to introduce exculpatory evidence, have a process that would have introduced exculpatory evidence, or DEFENDANTS owning up to any constitutional violations at any of the previous stories since at least MID-YEAR and would have left me alone would have prevented Miki's Tea Party and An Anchor and a Pitch Fork from happening. Period. Plaintiff would be still employable as an attorney; but that is not the case anymore.

2015-10-18 19:08:16, Sun	INBOX	Easy when your ENTIRE country is the size of Oregon. And when your colonial policies are largely to blame for the Israeli-Palesinian conflict, the India -Pakistani conflict, pretty much every place your colonial empire touched.\n\nAnd finally the why can't the US have an MI5, they're soooo much better than us debate has died. Pretty much every bss or sb guy I've ever talked to wished they could be us. \n\nI have a real problem with Anglophiles and the whole perception of bringing intellectual greatness to the world.\n\nAnyway. Hi. \u263a
-----------------------------	-------	---

To support this allegation, On 10/18/2015, PETER STRZOK texted the following (See: Screenshot above) that necessarily implicated MI5 and MI6, BRITISH GOVERNMENT, and rest of BRITISH INTEL. PLAINTIFF alleges that this text message from PETER STRZOK was in fact a specific reference in PLAINTIFF making fun of the British and British Intel and is therefore retaliatory. PLAINTIFF is alleging that the country the size of Oregon (98,466 mi²) that PETER STRZOK is referring to is the United Kingdom (94,058 mi²). So PLAINTIFF believes and alleges PETER STRZOK is discussing and establishing the factual nexuses to Miki's Tea Party to An Anchor and a Pitchfork as there are explicit references concerning policy that relates to INDIA, MI5/MI6, PETER STRZOK, FBI, ANGLOPHILES (reference to a connection to ANGIE and BRITISH DEFENDANTS), and more. This necessarily means that at the direction of the UNITED STATES, MI5 and MI6 engaged in numerous covert and unconstitutional acts committed against PLAINTIFF in furtherance of RICO Enterprise 1 in which PLAINTIFF is including it because it is relevant. This necessarily implicates all of BRITISH INTELLIGENCE DEFENDANTS in Miki's Tea Party and An Anchor and a Pitchfork. This is part of the factual prerequisite on top of having traveled to London in 2011 in which all of this occurred giving them jurisdiction over me.

So just from Qatar Airways, PLAINTIFF is asking: 8 Boeing 787s (in lieu of 8 777-300ER) and 5 Boeing 777-8F (in lieu of 5 BOEING 777F aircraft). Comparatively speaking: Qatar Airways has an order for 34 777-8F cargo aircraft with 16 options; currently operate 26 777F cargo aircraft; currently operate 30 BOEING 787-8, currently operate 11 BOEING 787-9 operating with 19 more on the way, operate 57 BOEING 777-300ER aircraft operating (out of the 8 at issue); If you substitute an Airbus A340-600 with an Airbus A350-1000 (closest comparable aircraft), operate 24 Airbus A350-1000 with 18 on the way.⁴²² What are 8 aircraft that total less than 5.4% of the current 148 current aircraft with 71 more on the way. If you include the 71 more on the way, what are 8 aircraft that total less than 2.75% of the 219 aircraft.

With the original two planes from the Qatar Airways “the offering,” 1 comparable aircraft to the Qatar Airways Airbus A340-600 or BOEING 777-300ER in which PLAINTIFF will accept a substitute of either: 1 BOEING 787-9 (that is 4 years old or less or brand new) or 1 Airbus A330-900neo (that is 4 years old or less or brand new) in which Air Serbia can decide which aircraft they want. 1 comparable aircraft to the Qatar Airways Airbus A320 in which PLAINTIFF will accept a substitute of: 1 Boeing 737-8 Max (that is less than 10 years old) or 1 Airbus A320/A321 (that is less than 10 years old) and will allow Air Serbia to decide which aircraft they want.

So just from British Airways, PLAINTIFF is asking for 2 Boeing 787 (in lieu of 2 777-300ER and a comparable aircraft is the Airbus A350) with an option of 2 more Boeing 787 (in lieu of 2 777-300ER). British Airways currently operates: 16 Boeing 777-300ER; 43 Boeing 777-200ER; 12 Boeing 787-8; 18 Boeing 787-9; and 7 Boeing 787-10 with 11 on the way; and 13 Airbus A350-1000 with 5 on the way.⁴²³ What is 2 aircraft compared to 109 aircraft and 16 more aircraft on the way? What are 2 aircraft that total of less than 2% of British Airways’ current fleet and 2 aircraft options of less than 13% of aircraft that are on the way?

PLAINTIFF could ask for all the profits that the 10 BOEING 777-300ER and 5 BOEING 777F generated for British Airways and Qatar Airways from either 09/24/2010 or 03/11/2011 to the present. PLAINTIFF is not asking for that even though it is a derivative of the RICO Enterprise and future aircraft were necessarily ordered on the basis of the 10 Boeings 777-300ER and 5 Boeing 777Fs. As previously mentioned in the SpiceJET section, what PLAINTIFF is asking for is the know-how of how to properly start a new airline and manage, operate, and maintain it on as an equal and on par level with DEFENDANTS based on the amount of aircraft requested by PLAINTIFF that PLAINTIFF could be in the future.

Chrysler Credit Corp. v. Henry, 221 So. 2d at 533.

So SpiceJET was part of “trade is in the offering.” No list price was listed. That doesn’t matter. Under Louisiana Civil Code Article. 2466 stipulates: “When the thing sold is a movable of the kind that the seller habitually sells and the parties said nothing about the price, or left it to be agreed later and they fail to agree, the price is a reasonable price at the time and place of delivery. If there is an exchange or market for such things, the quotations or price lists of the place of delivery or, in their absence, those of the nearest market, are a basis for the determination

Likewise, can a court rationally be expected to believe that an under-educated service station lessee knowingly and freely consented to indemnify American Oil Company, an indemnification that could well reach into the millions of dollars and that could result from the sole fault of the oil company itself (Weaver)?⁴

When the writing expresses the true intent of the parties, the contract is to be given legal effect. LA. CIV. CODE art. 1945. To be valid, however, all contracts must be based on consent, and there can be no consent unless freely LA. CIV. CODE art. 1797 and deliberately given as to a matter understood. LA. CIV. hat a great disparity between price and value necessitates an inference of fraud in Louisiana can be found in the idea that a merchant-purchaser cannot suppress the truth about the value of a thing he purchases from a nonmerchant layman. Smith v. Everett, 291 So. 2d 835 (La. App. 4th Cir. 1974); Griffing v. Atkins, 1 So. 2d 445 (La. App. 1st Cir. 1941).

Article 1901, the probable source of the rule, has reference to "agreements legally entered into," thus raising, among other things, the public policy issues inherent in article 1895.

Yet, the Louisiana Supreme Court, in what could be termed a public policy decision, held that a given contract clause led to a result which was wholly inequitable and violated the rule which is embodied in article 1965 that one should not do unto others that which he would not wish others to do unto him and one should not enrich himself at the expense of another.

Public policy decisions in Louisiana often are premised on article 1895. A pertinent example is Fassitt v. United T.V. Rental, Inc., 297 So. 2d 283 (La. App. 4th Cir. 1974): Public policy cannot condone the use in a sale or lease contract of a provision irrevocably authorizing entry into a debtor's or lessee's home without judicial authority or without the owner's consent at the time of entry. We decline to construe [such a] provision, incorporated into a printed form contract as a necessary condition of the agreement, as irrevocable permission to enter a private home at any time, day or night, occupied or unoccupied, under any circumstances. Law and order cannot allow such a construction, which would tend to encourage breaches of the peace."

I wasn't worried about the blackmail because in my sleep deprived mind I could not have conceived of the notion nor have necessarily understood how valuable I was to certain people at the time. I was a nobody that kept getting screwed over by administrations and cops and they understood how much I wanted it to be fun. So I dismissed it because I wanted to have fun in my dream trip because I didn't think those people were capable of the evils that they committed against me.

Justice Scalia's and Thomas' opinion in Kalina said: "When public officials made discretionary policy decisions that did not involve actual adjudication, they were protected by "quasi-judicial" immunity, which could be defeated by a showing of malice, and hence was more akin to what we now call "qualified," rather than absolute, immunity... The tortious act in such a case would have been her decision to bring criminal charges against Fletcher, and liability would attach only if Fletcher could prove that the prosecution was malicious, without probable cause, and ultimately unsuccessful."

PLAINTIFF is alleging that when American Intel, British Intel, Qatari Intel, and Indian Intel all invaded PLAINTIFF'S laptop and did not stop from 2008, that constituted a taking. Furthermore, the Founding Father's would have necessarily understood that a computer is a home. Why? If a home stored documents, had family over, conducted business, did the most private things in front of it and on it, then a computer that stores documents in which you have family over on screen, conduct business on a computer, is in itself a home. SCOTUS recognized there was a difference in cases in which Loretto v. Teleprompter Manhattan CATV Corp., 458 U.S. 419 (1982) (hereon: Loretto) said a "government action outside the owner's property that causes consequential damages within, on the other" has been ruled on time and time again. The government with uncontrolled access possesses a computer and is in the physical computer when they access it. As the court in Loretto v. Teleprompter Manhattan CATV Corp., 458 U.S. 419 (1982) discussed "Penn Central Transportation Co. v. New York City, as noted above, contains one of the most complete discussions of the Takings Clause. The Court explained that resolving whether public action works a taking is ordinarily an ad hoc inquiry in which several factors are particularly significant -- the economic impact of the regulation, the extent to which it interferes with investment-backed expectations, and the character of the governmental action. 438 U.S. at 438 U. S. 124. The opinion does not repudiate the rule that a permanent physical occupation is a government action of such a unique character that it is a taking without regard to other factors that a court might ordinarily examine." The economic impact of having a government agent (whether that is foreign or domestic) is great because, as what happened in RICO Enterprise 2, American Intel, Indian Intel, and British Intel were able to prevent access to the courts and numerous decisions that impacted PLAINTIFF economically because they had illegal access to PLAINTIFF'S laptop. "the permanent physical occupation of property forever denies the owner any power to control the use of the property; he not only cannot exclude others, but can make no nonpossessory use of the property... Moreover, an owner suffers a special kind of injury when a stranger directly invades and occupies the owner's property. " That is what happened in RICO

Enterprise 2 because it was derived from RICO Enterprise 1. Unfettered and indeterminable access by Foreign Intelligence and American Intel is a taking because it is a permanent physical occupation of PLAINTIFF'S laptop per Loretto v. Teleprompter Manhattan CATV Corp., 458 U.S. 419 (1982). What a core issue in Loretto was the fact that in discussing a taking and third parties "in none of these cases, however, did the government authorize the permanent occupation of the landlord's property by a third party" and the issue deriving from that was that "So long as these regulations do not require the landlord to suffer the physical occupation of a portion of his building by a third party." As Loretto's holding clearly stipulated: Our holding today is very narrow. We affirm the traditional rule that a permanent physical occupation of property is a taking. In such a case, the property owner entertains a historically rooted expectation of compensation, and the character of the invasion is qualitatively more intrusive than perhaps any other category of property regulation" in which the Government shall provide compensation "Even if the area is small and the government's use does not greatly affect the owner's economic interest."

Thomas v. Mississippi, 380 U. S. 524 (1965). [Footnote 4] Although Thomas was decided years after the arrest involved in this trial, the court held that the policemen would be liable in a suit under § 1983 for an unconstitutional arrest even if they acted in good faith and with probable cause in making an arrest under a state statute not yet held invalid.

The very next opportunity Jackson had to see the Sims, he persuaded them, without disclosing any information or purpose, to allow him to make this experiment, and which resulted in the stone cutting into glass. Sims, upon Jackson's insistence, agreed that he would visit Roumain's Jewelry Store to have the ring examined, and, as they say in the testimony, "tested". Accordingly, on the following Monday morning, in February, 1940, Sims took the ring to Roumain's Jewelry Store, where he met Jackson in the front. Jackson took Sims into the store and had Sims hand the ring to Collins. Roumain, the proprietor, was then absent, but Griffing, plaintiff and co-employee of both Collins and Jackson, were present. Collins had Jackson to wash the ring; while the washing of the ring, according to the evidence, was not as complete a washing as required for an examination of a stone, yet it appears to have been sufficient for Collins to make some inspection of the same; after which inspection, he informed Sims that it was a diamond ring but the stone appeared to have bubbles in it, nothing being inquired about or said as to its value.

Griffing v. Atkins, 1 So. 2d 445, 446 (La. Ct. App. 1941)

Thereafter, Willie Sims intervened in the suit, claiming the ownership of the ring. He alleges that he is an ignorant colored man, without knowledge of gems and without ability to determine their quality or their value; that, by all that transpired, he was fraudulently led to believe that the ring had no value of more than $100; that the plaintiff and purchaser, Earl Griffing, who is very familiar with gems and jewelry and who has knowledge of the character, nature and value thereof, was fully aware, at the time of the purported sale, of the real value of the ring. He alleges that the false statements made to him and the suppression of the truth by Roumain, and by plaintiff's co-employees, to the knowledge of plaintiff, and by plaintiff himself, of the real character and value of the ring, fraudulently caused and induced him to sell the ring; that, therefore, the sale should be rescinded, annulled and set aside and that he should be restored to the possession of the ring.

In the decision of this case it must be remembered that Roumain had in his employment at the time Sims visited his place of business Jackson, Collins and the plaintiff Griffing; it must also be remembered that Sims visited this establishment on the advice and solicitation of Jackson, one of these co-employees. With this in mind, the controversial facts in the case are the probability and possibility of plaintiff Griffing not knowing or hearing any of the conversations which took place in this small establishment as a jewelry store, such as the examination by Collins, a co-employee, of this ring, Collins' report to Sims of the ring having "bubbles", Collins' report to Roumain of the same, and the conversation between Roumain and Sims as to the status and value of the ring and the offer to Roumain to buy this ring for the sum of $130. When Sims arrived at Roumain's Jewelry Store, he was met on the outside of the store by Jackson and, upon informing Jackson that he had the ring with him, he was immediately escorted to the back of the store to Collins with the statement that he was "the boy I had been telling you about had the ring"; he handed the ring to Collins who ordered the same to be washed by Jackson; upon being washed and returned to Collins, Collins reported to Sims that it was a diamond ring but full of "bubbles"; that Collins also made the same statement to Roumain, who, in accordance therewith stated to Sims that the ring was only worth $130, and that was all he, Roumain, would pay for it if Sims would want to sell it. That then Roumain left the store.

We are convinced by the testimony that when Roumain left his establishment, he left for the sole purpose of obtaining funds with which to purchase this ring rather than for the purpose of reporting the transaction to the police department of Baton Rouge as testified to by him. Being unable to do so, he returned to his store and gave up his own idea and plan of buying this $1,250 ring for the insignificant sum of $130. It cannot be said but that Roumain was acting in a fiduciary way toward Sims and the question arises as to whether or not Griffing, an employee of Roumain, then being present in the store at the time all of this transpired, can be connected with this fiduciary or as a quasi-fiduciary relationship.

Courts have always acknowledged how difficult it is for one to prove fraud by positive and direct testimony, realizing full well that those who indulge in it generally prepare themselves in such a manner as to cover up and leave no traces of their practice behind them.

As a matter of fact his fraud wasn't active but rather of a passive nature in that he failed to disclose the information which he was in justice and in equity bound to disclose to the other party to the contract who was not on an equal footing with him. He suppressed the truth, and therefore the case comes within the rules laid down in our Civil Code.

Griffing v. Atkins, 1 So. 2d 445, 447 (La. Ct. App. 1941)

A farmer whose produce is shipped to a cannery from which it is exported in interstate commerce may be considered to be engaged in an activity in which a labor dispute would hinder or obstruct commerce. Even if his produce did not cross state lines he could be affecting commerce.

Concerning the scope of a farmer's activities, the Supreme Court has repeatedly held that the term "affecting commerce" extends to the protection of interstate commerce from hindrance or obstruction due to activities which are wholly intra-state or local in character. In the case of National Labor Relations Board v. Fainblatt, 306 U.S. 601 (1939), the Court stated, in pertinent part, the following:

"It has been settled by the repeated decisions of this court that an employer may be subject to the National Labor Relations Act though not himself engaged in commerce. The end sought in the enactment of the statute was the prevention of the disturbance to interstate commerce consequent upon strikes and labor disputes induced or likely to be induced because of unfair labor practices named in the Act. That these consequences may ensue from strikes of the employees of manufacturers who are not engaged in interstate commerce where the cessation of manufacture necessarily results in the cessation of the movement of the manufactured product in interstate commerce has been repeatedly pointed out by this court."

18 U.S.C. § 1589. This provision creates civil and criminal liability for "[w]hoever knowingly provides or obtains the labor or services of a person" by "threat" or use of "force," "physical restraint," "serious harm," "abuse of law or legal process," or "any scheme, plan, or pattern intended to cause the person to believe that, if that person did not perform such labor or services, that person or another person would suffer serious harm or physical restraint."

§ 1589. Forced labor

(3) by means of the abuse or threatened abuse of law or legal process; or

(4) by means of any scheme, plan, or pattern intended to cause the person to believe that, if that person did not perform such labor or services, that person or another person would suffer serious harm or physical restraint, shall be punished as provided under subsection (d).

(b) Whoever knowingly benefits, financially or by receiving anything of value, from participation in a venture which has engaged in the providing or obtaining of labor or services by any of the means described in subsection (a), knowing or in reckless disregard of the fact that the venture has engaged in the providing or obtaining of labor or services by any of such means, shall be punished as provided in subsection (d).

PLAINTIFF sees the CLINTONS & DEFENDANTS desperately trying to cancel a line in the portion of the message of “trade is in the offing;” but too bad!

The Court ruled already ruled that a CLINTON line-item cancelation was unconstitutional.

Clinton v. City of New York, 524 U.S. 417 (1998)

As PLAINTIFF is in a good mood after the joke in which he hopes the Court is as well, an issue arises for The Government of India, The Government of Qatar, and The Government of the United Kingdom. Can they be held liable. YES!

Under Rux v. Republic of Sudan, 495 F. Supp. 2d 541 (E.D. Va. 2007), the Government of Qatar, India, and the United Kingdom can be held liable for their actions concerning PLAINTIFF in Miki's Tea Party.

Does PLAINTIFF have any more requests or evidence? Of course! It gets even more outrageous. But PLALINTIFF is asking the Court to take a little break here.

So to further establish a predetermined outcome/conspiracy in which DEFENDANTS had “negotiations” with DEFENDANTS against PLAINTIFF that took place within the negotiations, the following: HUMA ABEDIN, WILLIAM BURNS, and HILLARY CLINTON on 11/06/2010 in an email with the subject line of “HI” (all capitalized) (as opposed to INDIA). The subject line provides a fascinating insight not readily apparent. “HI” could be construed as a friendly and informal greeting or, it can be, as PLAINTIFF is alleging, the state abbreviation of HAWAII and thereby a reference to DEFENDANT BARACK OBAMA that said: “Hi Rich, India trip going well, with all usual last minute negotiations. B5 All best, Bill.” So BARACK OBAMA is in INDIA and DEFENDANTS are negotiating business deals that were necessarily and unequivocally based on “the offing” and how to further increase cooperation with one another to cover up “trade is in the offing.” So DEFENDANTS had “negotiations” (i.e. actual conspiracy plans and plans to further harm PLAINTIFF'S legal and constitutional interests and obstruct justice involving their acts). Part of DEFENDANTS “OPERATIONAL COOPERATION” was to intentionally delay an aircraft where a person making a connecting flight at the airport (i.e. DULLES) would come down to the last minute in which said conspiracy led to an international and domestic act of terrorism because the air piracy was successful.

HUMA ABEDIN, WILLIAM BURNS, and HILLARY CLINTON then send emails with the subject line INDIA on 11/08/2010. As mentioned, DEFENDANTS hated me and referred to me on the basis of my disability since at least MID-YEAR (2008) or words associated with disability and said the following in the emails: “Please pass to S [HILLARY]. Sorry to be so slow -- trip has been hectic and sleepless (as you all know too well), but very productive. Madam Secretary” the response email said: “All in all, a good outcome. Enroute to Jakarta now. Volcano plumes kept visit in suspense until last night. Thank God we didn't have a repeat of last three planned trips....All best, Bill.” DEFENDANTS RICO Enterprise outcomes and determinations were furthered because it was very productive and they had the good outcome that DEFENDANTS wanted. Being slow was reference to PLAINTIFF as the term slow is associated with those that have developmental delays and disabilities. Said in another way, HILLARY CLINTON and DEFENDANTS had a good outcome after they committed their act of international and domestic terrorism and air piracy because their goals were accomplished and they were very productive in doing so in which they furthered their OPERATIONAL COOPERATION.

There was an email on 11/27/2010 that had this all in the same line, which is really odd unless there is something that connects it: “they really need help with pushback - including the kinds of points Gen Adams was highlighting about the breakthroughs with allied/Russia agreement on missile defense in Lisbon - and some urgent help in Tennessee - can we get Castellaw, others?”⁴²⁴ How can you go from talking about a Russia agreement, to missile defense in LISBON, and then needing urgent help in TENNESSEE, all in the same sentence, in which PLAINTIFF used ALFABANK (Russian bank) to wire the funds to SEWANEE and SEWANEE and FINANCIAL TERRORISM happened. What type of pushback were DEFENDANTS receiving?

Furthermore, the $2,000+ or so by PLAINTIFF’S asshole (money was stored HOLED UP by PLAINTIFF’S asshole) in FINANCIAL TERRORISM.

“However, the line must be drawn where, as here, a government agent lures the unwary innocent and then implants a law-breaking disposition that was not theretofore present. In such cases, the government takes on the unwholesome appearance of the consummate manufacturer of crime. The continuing vitality and integrity of our "government of laws" would be imperiled if we sanctioned the manufacturing of crime by those responsible for upholding and enforcing the law.” United States v. Lard, 734 F.2d 1290 (8th Cir. 1984)

In Carpenter v. United States, 484 U.S. 19 (1987), Petitioner Winans was coauthor of a communication, because of its perceived quality and integrity, had an impact on the market prices of the stocks it discussed. Although he was familiar with his employer’s rule that the contents were his employer's confidential information prior to publication, Winans entered into a scheme with petitioner Felis and another interested party who, in exchange for advance information from Winans as to the timing and contents of a communication, bought and sold items based on the communication's probable impact on the market, and shared their profits with the other co-defendants. On the basis of this scheme, Winans and Felis were convicted of violations of the federal securities laws and of the federal mail and wire fraud statutes, 18 U.S.C. §§ 1341, 1343, which prohibit the use of the mails or of electronic transmissions to execute "any scheme or artifice to defraud, or for obtaining money or property by means of false or fraudulent pretenses, representations, or promises"; petitioner Carpenter was convicted of aiding and abetting. The Court of Appeals affirmed." DEFENDANTS engaged in nearly an exact identical scheme to Petitioners in Carpenter v. United States, 484 U.S. 19 (1987) because if it was not for HILLARY CLINTON'S "trade is in the offing" email and sending that email to other DEFENDANTS overseas and domestically that affected intrastate, interstate, and foreign commerce, other DEFENDANTS like the Qatari, Indian, British and American governments engaging in kickback schemes and quid pro quos involving PLAINTIFF; Mr. Christopher Chadwick, SpiceJET, the INDIAN Government, would not have been able to purchase the 27/30 BOEING 737 NG aircraft at the prices they did (same can be said concerning British Airways and Qatar Airways); DEFENDANT BRITISH Intel and UK Government would not have acquired future funds and resources for Five Eyes and their new beyond jurisdiction expansion, DEFENDANTS would not have been able to engage in domestic and international terrorism against PLAINTIFF, and DEFENDANTS would not have been able to engage in other trade that amounted to be an estimated $14,900,000,000—all of which was necessarily contingent on the timing of "is in the offing" and subsequent emails proved such. Therefore, DEFENDANTS violated 18 U.S.C. §§ 1341 & 1343, which are RICO Predicates.

PLAINTIFF, loving the absurd and ironic moments in life, is going to use the case of Griffin v. Breckenridge, 403 U.S. 88 (1971)(Griffin Fry. See: Peachy Miami) when it comes to DEFENDANTS' actual terrorism committed against PLAINTIFF. In Griffin v. Breckenridge, 403 U.S. 88 (1971), Respondents, "mistakenly believing Grady to be a civil rights worker, blocked the travellers' passage on the public highways, forced them from the car, held them at bay with firearms, and amidst threats of murder clubbed them, inflicting serious physical injury. Section 1985(3) provides: "If two or more persons . . . conspire or go in disguise on the highway or on the premises of another, for the purpose of depriving . . . any person or class of persons of the equal protection of the laws, or of equal privileges and immunities under the laws [and] in any case of conspiracy set forth in this section, if one or more persons engaged therein do . . . any act in furtherance of the object of such conspiracy, whereby another is injured . . . or deprived of . . . any right or privilege of a citizen of the United States, the party so injured or deprived" may have a cause of action for damages against the conspirators." Id.

One of the Respondents "willfully and maliciously conspired, planned, and agreed to block the passage of said plaintiffs in said automobile upon the public highways, to stop and detain them and to assault, beat and injure them with deadly weapons. Their purpose was to prevent said plaintiffs and other Negro-Americans, through such force, violence and intimidation, from seeking the equal protection of the laws and from enjoying the equal rights, privileges and immunities of citizens under the laws of the United States and the State of Mississippi, including but not limited to their rights to freedom of speech, movement, association and assembly; their right to petition their government for redress of their grievances; their rights to be secure in their persons and their homes; and their rights not to be enslaved nor deprived of life and liberty other than by due process of law.” If it is not that clear yet, PLAINTIFF is alleging that DEFENDANTS willfully and maliciously, conspired, planned, and agreed to block the passage of PLAINTIFF upon the highways of the air, to stop and detain him, and engage in an act of domestic and international terrorism through kidnapping PLAINTIFF. DEFENDANTS did so to prevent PLAINTIFF from seeking the equal protection of the laws, from enjoying equal rights, from being able to sue DEFENDANTS, seeking privileges and immunities of American citizens under the laws of the United States and the State of Illinois, Tennessee, and other states, including, but not limited to, PLAINTIFF’S rights to freedom of speech, freedom of movement, freedom of association and assembly, the right to petition PLAINTIFF’S government for redress of PLAINTIFF’S government of grievances PLAINTIFF has, the right of PLAINTIFF to be secure in his person and homes, and the rights not to be enslaved nor deprived of life and liberty other than by due process of law. DEFENDANTS did just what the respondents did in Griffin v. Breckenridge, 403 U.S. 88, 90-91 (1971).

When talking about the ability of the Court to utilize the 13th Amendment against DEFENDANTS, “surely there has never been any doubt of the power of Congress to impose liability on private persons under § 2 of that amendment, “for the amendment is not a mere prohibition of State laws establishing or upholding slavery, but an absolute declaration that slavery or involuntary servitude shall not exist in any part of the United States.” Civil Rights Cases, 109 U.S. 3, 20. See also id., at 23; Chyatt v. United States, 197 U.S. 207, 216, 218; Jones v. Alfred H. Mayer Co., 392 U.S., at 437-440. Not only may Congress impose such liability, but the varieties of private conduct that it may make criminally punishable or civilly remediable extend far beyond the actual imposition of slavery or involuntary servitude. By the Thirteenth Amendment, we committed ourselves as a Nation to the proposition that the former slaves and their descendants should be forever free. To keep that promise, “Congress has the power under the Thirteenth Amendment rationally to determine what are the badges and the incidents of slavery, and the authority to translate that determination into effective legislation.” Id. As PLAINTIFF has argued, Slavic people were slaves and therefore, PLAINTIFF is a descendant of a slave. Same standards under Title VI applies to PLAINTIFF. The aforementioned passage is completely applicable to PLAINTIFF against DEFENDANTS.

What was DEFENDANT’S FBI quote again: “The key to that new mandate, Director Mueller knew, was intelligence—the holy grail of national security work, the ability to collect and connect the dots, to know your enemies and the threats they pose inside and out, to arm everyone from leaders in the Oval Office to police officers on the street with information that enables them to stop terrorist and criminal plots before they are carried out.”⁴²⁵ Yep, that’s it. LOL.

So PLAINTIFF filed a FOIA request with DEFENDANTS FBI in which he pretty much alleged HILLARY CLINTON committed air piracy; remember, it is FBI’s an DEFENDANTS job to prevent air piracy and should have been made aware of such air piracy occurring; and just how did the DEFENDANTS FBI respond to a victim seeking information about having been subject to a violent crime of international and domestic terrorism by DEFENDANTS themselves? FBI wrote on August 4th, 2023 in the next two paragraphs:

(b)(7)(C) is the following: “could reasonably be expected to constitute an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy.”

As JUSTICE KENNEDY said in Clinton v. City of New York, 524 U.S. 417 (1998):
“Separation of powers was designed to implement a fundamental insight: Concentration of power in the hands of a single branch is a threat to liberty.” The Federalist states the axiom in these explicit terms: “The accumulation of all powers, legislative, executive, and judiciary, in the same hands ... may justly be pronounced the very definition of tyranny.” The Federalist No. 47, p. 301 (C. Rossiter ed. 1961). So convinced were the Framers that liberty of the person inheres in structure that at first they did not consider a Bill of Rights necessary. The Federalist No. 84, pp. 513, 515; G. Wood, The Creation of the American Republic 1776-1787, pp. 536-543 (1969). It was at Madison's insistence that the First Congress enacted the Bill of Rights...

In recent years, perhaps, we have come to think of liberty as defined by that word in the Fifth and Fourteenth Amendments and as illuminated by the other provisions of the Bill of Rights. The conception of liberty embraced by the Framers was not so confined. They used the principles of separation of powers and federalism to secure liberty in the fundamental political sense of the term, quite in addition to the idea of freedom from intrusive governmental acts. The idea and the promise were that when the people delegate some degree of control to a remote central authority, one branch of government ought not possess the power to shape their destiny without a sufficient check from the other two. In this vision, liberty demands limits on the ability of anyone branch to influence basic political decisions.” Id.

Nixon v. Fitzgerald, 457 U.S. 731 (1982) said and ruled “But our cases also have established that a court, before exercising jurisdiction, must balance the constitutional weight of the interest to be served against the dangers of intrusion on the authority and functions of the Executive Branch. [Omitted]. When judicial action is needed to serve broad public interests-as when the Court acts, not in derogation of the separation of powers, but to maintain their proper balance, cf. Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co. v. Sawyer, supra, or to vindicate the public interest in an ongoing criminal prosecution, see United States v. Nixon, supra-the exercise of jurisdiction has been held warranted.” PLAINTIFF is proving the dangers of the intrusion of the authority of function outside the scope of duty of the Executive Branch in which 100+ RICO Predicate Acts were undertaken against PLAINTIFF that included acts of international and domestic terrorism and more. Engaging in Terrorism and RICO falls outside the proper scope and duties of the Executive Branch.

In Air France v. Saks, 470 U.S. 392 (1985), Held: Liability under Article 17 arises only if a passenger's injury is caused by an unexpected or unusual event or happening that is external to the passenger, and not where the injury results from the passenger's own internal reaction to the usual, normal, and expected operation of the aircraft, in which case it has not been caused by an accident under Article 17. Miki's Tea Party was anything but normal and was a completely unexpected or unusual event or happening that was external to PLAINTIFF. The court found a “definition of “accident” consistent with this history and policy in Annex 13 to the Convention on International Civil Aviation, Dec. 7, 1944, 61 Stat. 1180, T.I.A.S. No. 1591, 15 U. N. T. S. 295; conformed to in 49 CFR § 830.2 (1984): “an occurrence associated with the operation of an aircraft which takes place between the time any person boards the aircraft with the intention of flight and all such persons have disembarked. . . .” Id. DEFENDANTS were the cause of PLAINTIFF'S injury because it could be construed as an accident in which DEFENDANTS' conduct all occurred prior to boarding, taxiing, operations during the flight, landing, taxiing, disembarking, and more throughout the saga. So DEFENDANTS' conduct necessarily occurred under an “an occurrence associated with the operation of an aircraft which takes place between the time any person boards the aircraft with the intention of flight and all such persons have disembarked. . . .” because DEFENDANTS had made the Plane late during one of the following endeavors of: boarding, taxiing, operations during the flight, landing, taxiing, disembarking, and more. This meets the definitional requirements under Article 17 of the Warsaw Convention which states: The carrier is liable for damage sustained in case of death or bodily injury of a passenger upon condition only that the accident which caused the death or injury took place on board the aircraft or in the course of any of the operations of embarking or disembarking. Therefore, DEFENDANTS are liable under Article 17 of the Warsaw Convention.

In regards to delaying the aircraft, Article 19 of the Warsaw Convention stipulates — “Delay The carrier is liable for damage occasioned by delay in the carriage by air of passengers, baggage or cargo. Nevertheless, the carrier shall not be liable for damage occasioned by delay if it proves that it and its servants and agents took all measures that could reasonably be required to avoid the damage or that it was impossible for it or them to take such measures.” So DEFENDANTS United Airlines or Delta Airlines can absolves themselves of the conspiracy under Article 20 — Exoneration of the Warsaw Convention by showing it was impossible for them to take such measures against DEFENDANTS' conspiracy.

On 01/16/2011, TONY BLAIR requested to talk to HILLARY CLINTON. Then there are emails between HILLARY CLINTON and HUMA ABEDIN on 07/05/2011 in which there are numerous grammatical mistakes (these grammatical mistakes are intentional). The subject line/title was “random” as a way of intentionally obfuscating what and who DEFENDANTS are really talking about; however you can infer the incident DEFENDANTS are talking about here: “Random Trying to get all clarified. Turns out they got plane based on your schedule which reflects tomorrow am departure. So they are checking if plane is ready for ton ite.” Then there is the following response back made with complete grammatical errors: “If Bill has plane, I will go w him . W hat tim e?” Then a response of “W jc office says they have a plane to fly you back tonite. So we will cancel shuttle? Tony blair wants to talk re Middle East anytime today. For greece, you want to stay with dan smith at residence or a hotel? Not great hotels there. They are fine.” Grammatically incorrect errors of “got plane” and “checking if plane” is intentional as they were referring to Miki’s Tea Party in October/November 2010. DEFENDANTS know how to write grammatically correct and should have said: “they got a plane” or “they are checking if a (or the) plane is...Then it is a reference DEFENDANT BILL BURNS or BILL CLINTON because it is “If Bill has plane” with no one specified and BILL BURNS having talked about and conspired on an earlier occasion in previous emails listed above. TONY BLAIR did not want to just talk about the Middle East; TONY BLAIR talked about PLAINTIFF at arranged meeting with DEFENDANTS.

airlines merchandise for purchase like shirts, crew uniforms, plastic containers, etc. that the airline etc. pretty much a factory producing everything MKT airlines would need. If it is in Grundy County, TN, PLAINTIFF will have to build a railroad spur line from Grundy County (wherever the factory may be to connect with CSX around Tullahoma (i.e. the shortest possible distance from the factory to csx's mainline) (maybe like what 20 miles at $2,000,000 a mile so $40,000,000) and get the products out to Nashville airport and/or through csx's system.

(g): 1) under no conditions will Kawaii One every be subject to civil or criminal forfeiture or bankruptcy proceedings. 2) the rest of MKT Airlines Aircraft will not be subject to criminal or civil forfeiture by the United States Government.

(h): no state nor federal taxes on MKT'S Airlines initial aircraft order; any aircraft afterwards, yes. For all intents and purposes, the initial aircraft order doesn't exist for IRS purposes.

(i): for IRS purposes,

(j): No Airport Fees for MKT Airlines for 10 years at any United States airport, DOHA International Airport, and LONDON-HEATHROW Airport.

(k): London Heathrow Holdings and British and Qatari Government:

Of course, PLAINTIFF wants some of his new 787s from MKT Airlines and MKT Macedonian Airlines to make regularly scheduled flights to London-Heathrow Airport. PLAINTIFF understands there are some capacity issues, but that didn't stop DEFENDANTS from taking advantage of PLAINTIFF'S capacity. This shouldn't be a problem for Qatar Airways as they essentially own London-Heathrow.

- MKT Airlines and MKT Airlines will have their own gate at London-Heathrow solely for MKT Airlines and MKT Macedonian Airlines' own use (if Air Serbia wants to join in, they can), and in case of an emergency or non-use, he will allow different airlines to use the gate so long as it does not interfere with MKT Airlines operations and MKT Macedonian Airlines operations.
 - Whatever terminal PLAINTIFF was prevented from boarding his flight to Doha shall be where the gate is located.
 - The Custom MKT Gate at London-Heathrow will have the following:

 - Custom MKT Airlines & MKT Macedonian Airlines backdrop
 - Custom MKT Airlines & MKT Macedonian Airlines ticket counter will be installed at the gate.
- PLAINTIFF understands there are issues with landing slots at London-Heathrow. So as an initial basis, PLAINTIFF is demanding:

- 3 landing time-slots available for MKT Airlines (one of which has to be between 10am-5pm) (one between 6pm-12pm) (one between (6am-10am)
- 1 landing timeslot for MKT Macedonian Airlines at London-Heathrow (between 10am-8pm).

(l): Cox Communications and/or Xfinity will provide high speed internet in applicable locations at cost plus 17.45% (so long as it is cheaper than the listed retail price)

(m): Apple will provide computers for MKT Airlines at cost plus 17.45% (so long as it is cheaper than the listed retail price)

(n): Microsoft will provide software for MKT Airlines at cost plus 17.45% (so long as it is cheaper than the listed retail price)

(o): Because of disgorgement, PLAINTIFF could ask for the values of the computer and data servers DoD, CIA, NSA, FBI, MI5, MI6, GCHQ, etc. stored data on PLAINTIFF that facilitated RICO Enterprise 1 as it was an essential part of the wire fraud; however, PLAINTIFF is reasonable, CIA, DoD, or NSA will develop and give computer and data server systems as well as Cloud Servers for MKT Airlines and MKT Railroad gratis for PLAINTIFF'S life that is on the same level of computing technology that CIA, NSA, or DoD possess at the time. They will be responsible for maintaining the servers. Same goes for Cloud Servers as well. This is not unreasonable by any stretch of the imagination. DNI's total appropriated budget from 2007-2011 was $368,280,000,000 and is PLAINTIFF to believe that some cuts here and there within DNI, CIA, NSA, or DoD are not possible to create, host, maintain, etc. MKT Airlines and MKT Railroad servers? PLAINTIFF will say that a third-party handles MKT Airlines, MKT Oil, and MKT Railroad servers.

(p): Qatar Energy/QIA and MKT Airlines agree to the plans and purposes of MKT Oil.

(q): Because of the Title VI retaliation against PLAINTIFF and Balkan people in which HILLARY CLINTON intentionally forced PLAINTIFF to labor without compensation in "trade is in the offing" and in which she testified to Congress that "[she] cut economic assistance to Central and Eastern Europe, to the Caucasus, to Central Asia. We cut development assistance to over 20 countries by more than half,"⁴²⁶ at least when it comes to Qatar and Serbia and Qatar and North Macedonia, the paltry amount of trade of just "In 2020, the total value of the realized exchange of goods was 5,945,000 euros, whereof Serbian exports accounted for 5,605,000 euros, and imports for 340,000 euros" is nowhere near good enough. It is great that Qatar and Serbia are doing things like things in the footnote.⁴²⁷ Qatar/QIA, United Kingdom, India, and the United States will increase trade and diplomatic relations between themselves and Serbia and North Macedonia governments in which Qatar, QIA will invest in Serbia and North Macedonia, in which the difference in the rate of inflation between the $14.9 Billion of 2010 and the actual value of it being $20 billion in 2023 dollars of $5,925,640,000 be invested in infrastructure projects and humanitarian aid in Serbia and North Macedonia in which no cuts will be made to current levels of aid received by Serbia and North Macedonia by any DEFENDANTS. Like Tracy Lawrence said, you'll find out who your friends are, and your friends are in Serbia and North Macedonia as well as PLAINTIFF. Again: PLAINTIFF, Serbia, and North Macedonia want to work with you all.

(r): PLAINTIFF is incorporating his restitution stipulated in Prayers for Relief and An Anchor and a Pitchfork [here].

(s): Contact Avelo Airlines and Sun Country Airlines see if they are interested in making an IAG type organization where Avelo Airlines, Sun Country Airlines, and MKT Airlines are separate but under the same banner.

The Court may be thinking what PLAINTIFF just requested in part of his restitution based on the conduct of Miki's Tea Party and An Anchor and a Pitchfork is not out of line nor excessive. "Punitive damages "are not compensation for an injury. Instead they are private fines levied by civil juries to punish reprehensible conduct and to deter its future occurrence." Gertz v. Robert Welch, Inc., 418 U.S. 323, (1974). In BFI, Inc. v. Kelco Disposal, Inc., 492 U.S. 257 (1989), the Court held: "The Excessive Fines Clause of the Eighth Amendment does not apply to punitive damages awards in cases between private parties; it does not constrain such an award when the government neither has prosecuted the action nor has any right to recover a share of the damages awarded. Pp. 492 U. S. 262-276. 1) (a) The primary concern which drove the Framers of the Eighth Amendment was the potential for governmental abuse of "prosecutorial" power, not concern with the extent or purposes of civil damages. Nothing in English history suggests that the Excessive Fines Clause of the English Bill of Rights of 1689, the direct ancestor of the Eighth Amendment, was intended to apply to damages awarded in disputes between private parties. Pp. 492 U. S. 264-268. (c) The language of the Excessive Fines Clause and the nature of our constitutional framework make it clear that the Eighth Amendment places limits on the steps a government may take against an individual. The fact that punitive damages are imposed through the aegis of courts and serve to advance governmental interests in punishment and deterrence is insufficient to support applying the Excessive Fines Clause in a case between private parties. Here, the government of Vermont has not taken a positive step to punish, as it does in the criminal context, nor used the civil courts to extract large payments or forfeiture for the purpose of raising revenue or disabling some individual. Pp. 492 U. S. 273-276. 2) Because BFI failed to raise before either the District Court or the Court of Appeals the question whether the punitive damages award was excessive under the Due Process Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment, this Court will not consider the effect of due process on the award. Pp. 492 U. S. 276-277. 3. Federal common law does not provide a basis for disturbing the jury's punitive damages award. In performing the limited function of a federal appellate court, this Court perceives no federal common law standard, or compelling federal policy, that convinces the Court it should not accord considerable deference to a district court's decision not to order a new trial. The District Court in this case properly instructed the jury on Vermont law and applied the proper state law standard in considering whether the verdict was excessive, and the Court of Appeals correctly held that the District Court did not abuse its discretion. Pp. 492 U. S. 277-280."

Again, PLAINTIFF just wants to be compensated for his forced labor, being subject to an act of international and domestic terrorism numerous times, having rico predicate acts through the year done to PLAINTIFF in which the money goes back into the US, British, Qatar, and Indian economy. PLAINTIFF is intentionally not trying to harm the country in which 45% of the profits goes to helping and feeding the needy and poor, making America beautiful, teaching about American values, helping disabled and autistic individuals in America and all across the world and helping people that were retaliated against before. PLAINTIFF is altruistic here and wants his childhood dreams to come true since he can no longer be a lawyer. But that is the condition you all put on the trade.

Were there any other purchases made by Qatar Airlines that might be relevant involving the quid pro quo and kickback schemes between America, Britain, and India that occurred in the same time involving “trade is in the offing?” PLAINTIFF alleges that the following was part of it--it necessarily impacts the British. Qatar Airlines purchases 6 brand new Airbus A319s, 30 brand new Airbus A320s; and 14 brand new Airbus A321 aircraft on Nov 15th, 2011 or it was the following: “DUBAI (AFP) - Airbus clinched a last-minute order from Qatar Airways for 55 planes at the Dubai Airshow, only hours after the carrier's chief issued a public rebuke to the European manufacturer. The order announced by Qatar Airways chief executive Akbar Al Baker comprised 50 fuel-efficient A320neo jetliners, as well as another five A380 superjumbos, for a list price value of $6.4 billion.”⁴³⁰ PLAINTIFF is not concerned with the Airbus A380 superjumbos. But is concerned with the 50 Airbus A320Neo (the comparable aircraft to a BOEING 737-8 Max or BOEING 737-9 Max). That is a total of 50 aircraft. It’s a big purchase. Airbus UK “has two main sites responsible for the design and manufacture of the high-technology wings for all Airbus models as well as overall design and supply of the fuel system. For most Airbus models, the company is responsible for overall design and supply of landing gear.”⁴³¹ Look, jobs are jobs and money is money for the commoners and the People (in which even Airbus has American factories and Airbus aircraft are an integral part of American aviation these days) and PLAINTIFF can't fault the British Government for wanting to create and sustain jobs and it is good for everyone. That’s all good and well. PLAINTIFF is not asking for the planes from the November 15th, 2011 purchase unless PLAINTIFF is denied the reasonable requests and prayers for relief involving the aircraft he requested; and then PLAINTIFF will ask for those in that condition. But the reason why PLAINTIFF is factually incorporating it to establish a factual nexus connecting the defendants like HILLARY CLINTON, LYNN Forester de ROTHSCHILD, the British Government, American government, establishing “trade is in the offing” relevance for An Anchor and a Pitchfork, and evidence for establishing a connection between DEFENDANTS in “(defense) trade is in the offing” and An Anchor and a Pitchfork for certain aforementioned DEFENDANTS in the following:

Part of Airbus’ history involved acquiring the shares from BAE, which is a British Defense Company and that fits within the parameters of “defense trade is in the offing.” When talking about Airbus and the history between Airbus and the British Government and a certain DEFENDANT, Wikipedia says the following: “Despite repeated suggestions as early as 2000 that BAE Systems wished to sell its 20 % share of Airbus, the possibility was consistently denied by the company. However, on 6 April 2006 BBC News reported that it was indeed to sell its stake, then "conservatively valued" at £2.4 billion. Due to the slow pace of informal negotiations, BAE exercised its put option, which saw investment bank Rothschild appointed to give an independent valuation. Six days after this process began, Airbus announced delays to the A380 with significant effects on the value of Airbus shares. On 2 June 2006 Rothschild valued BAE's share at £1.87 billion, well below BAE's, analysts' and even EADS' expectations. The BAE board recommended that the company proceed with the sale and on 4 October 2006 shareholders voted in favour; the sale was completed on 13 October making EADS the sole shareholder of Airbus.”⁴³² Ah so there is a connection between British Defense/Intelligence and the Rothschild. Check. Some sketchy behavior by the Rothschild indeed happened based on this: “On 2 July 2006 Rothschild valued BAE's stake at £1.9 billion (€2.75 billion), well below the expectation of BAE, analysts, and even EADS. On 5 July BAE (i.e. British Defense) appointed independent auditors to investigate how the value of its share of Airbus had fallen from the original estimates to the Rothschild valuation; however in September 2006 BAE agreed to the sale of its stake in Airbus to EADS for £1.87 billion (€2.75 billion, $3.53 billion), pending BAE shareholder approval. On 4 October shareholders voted in favour of the sale, leaving Airbus entirely owned by EADS.”⁴³³ .03 Billion is still £30,000,000 or $37,757,850. Do you see something here? So when the government questions a Rothschild or Rothschild company in anyway, there is a penalty to be paid in which the actual selling price was less after when the Rothschild were questioned. That’s the Rothschild penalty. The Rothschild Penalty (which is a retaliation by every sense of the word) occurs when there is a valuation made by Rothschild that is questioned by a government official. Ah there is the precedent of whenever a Rothschild is questioned by government officials there is a penalty involved. If it happened to the British Government, it happened to the American Government and the American’s know about the Rothschild Penalty. BRITISH DEFENDANTS still probably and conceivably had surveillance on PLAINTIFF in 2015 so this applies in An Anchor and a Pitchfork. It happened in the course of defense trade that involved a civilian aircraft manufacturer with a co-defendant and family member HILLARY CLINTON personally knows about who would raise money for HILLARY CLINTON, absolutely 100% relevant for later.

The important thing to note is that whenever a Rothschild says to jump to any government, the government asks how high and where or the Rothschild are behind numerous scandals. October 19th, 1974: Israeli investing scandal unveiled by Rothschild in which there were rumors that Baron Rothschild considered pulling his investments out of Israel because of the scandal.⁴³⁴ “Swiss financial regulator FINMA has accused Rothschild Bank and one of its subsidiaries Rothschild Trust (Schweiz) of serious violations in anti-money laundering rules linked to the 1Malaysia Development (1MDB) state fund scandal.”⁴³⁵ Rothschild can't deny their history with the Bank of England in which at one time or another, Rothschild owned stocks in the banks and had family members in their leadership who influenced decisions. Even in 2011 and 2012, the Rothschild were necessarily a part of the core picture of Britain and finances; and overall in the world, when it came to mergers & acquisitions that occurred in 2011 (i.e. British Airways and IAG and other companies) (which PLAINTIFF alleges they were a part of the merger) in which the ROTHSCILD were in the top of all sectors concerning financial advisers--mid market--by value,⁴³⁶ went from 18th in 2011 to 8th in 2012 in ranking in financial advisers by value⁴³⁷ and were ranked second in: “Transportation. Financial Advisers” by volume just below PriceWaterhouseCooper but above huge financial institutions of: Goldman Sachs, Morgan Stanley, and Deutsche Bank.⁴³⁸ PLAINTIFF is alleging that in some very plausible way having necessarily their voice heard when it came to British Aviation before in 2006, Rothschild were part of the IAG and British Airways merger and acquisitions in which that involved the British Government and British Airways. So there is PLAINTIFF’S nexus.

PLAINTIFF has the document available to him ready to go upon immediate Court request.

The Court at this point is probably shocked, and the Court may be thinking: PLAINTIFF, all of these are outrageous accusations that DEFENDANTS would go to that length and do that to PLAINTIFF in LONDON by kidnapping PLAINTIFF and committing domestic terrorism. PLAINTIFF laughs. PLAINTIFF says no it is not.

It happened to PLAINTIFF TWICE.

After An Anchor and a Pitchfork happened in Summer 2015, PLAINTIFF was having medical issues in Spring 2016 after what was done to PLAINTIFF in the SUMMER of 2015 and before. So PLAINTIFF was flying out of New Orleans to Chicago to receive medical treatment in either January, February, or March 2016 (maybe April, but earlier in 2016). One time, PLAINTIFF'S flight from New Orleans to Chicago has a connection. Where might this wonderful connection be you desperately want to know? You should know the answer by now: ATLANTA (Cue and See: Peachy Miami & FINANCIAL TERRORISM). The flights were with DELTA AIRLINES. Relevant side note: the Army and FBI BOTH seized a Delta Airlines pilot in Boston⁴³⁹ and interrogated that pilot for 45 minutes. Would it surprise PLAINTIFF that pilot interrogated in Boston was the pilot that flew from New Orleans to Atlanta that fateful day in Spring 2016? Not at all. It is an earlier flight that flew in the morning and PLAINTIFF requested a FOIA with New Orleans Airport concerning the flight. The flight from New Orleans to ATLANTA was delayed (for what reason, PLAINTIFF still doesn't know, but the issue yet again was a really small time-frame for PLAINTIFF to connect to his next flight). PLAINTIFF asks the Delta Airlines Representative what the problem is and why the flight is delayed, they provided an inadequate or bullshit answer because PLAINTIFF doesn't remember it. So the flight is delayed by more than 30 minutes. The flight leaves New Orleans and PLAINTIFF arrives in Atlanta. PLAINTIFF checked his phone and to the best of his recollection, by the time he got out of the gate in Atlanta and looked on his phone to see what time it was and if he could make the connection, it had already passed by somewhere between 5-15 minutes (to the best of PLAINTIFF'S recollection). PLAINTIFF had matured at this point and had not ruminated angrily or freaked out even though inside after everything that happened to him he was on the verge of mental collapse and was holding on to dear life. PLAINTIFF doesn't run or do anything because by the time he deboarded, it was too late. PLAINTIFF is alleging that American DEFENDANTS conspired to make the plane late or tampered with the plane or coerced/made the pilots delay departing New Orleans on time. FBI needed to cover up for HILLARY CLINTON and needed Georgia jurisdiction over PLAINTIFF. So, PLAINTIFF walks to the gate and talks to a Delta Airlines representative about the possibility of a connecting flight or combinations to get to Chicago. Now this is Atlanta Airport. Atlanta Hartsfield-Jackson is the biggest airport in the United States, if not, it is the top 3 of biggest airports in America. There are probably more than 30+ flights that departing from Atlanta Hartsfield-Jackson to go to either Chicago O'Hare or Chicago Midway. PLAINTIFF gets there between 10am-12pm. There is still half a day left of flights to Chicago. Delta Airlines representative informs PLAINTIFF that there are no seats available on any of the flights to Chicago that day (we're talking about a weekday). PLAINTIFF did all the reasonable due diligence he could have done that day and DEFENDANTS knew that PLAINTIFF was in dire financial strait and issues. For example if it was in March 2016, this is all of PLAINTIFF'S transactions in March 2016 in which DEFENDANTS knew this was the only bank account PLAINTIFF used for himself when PLAINTIFF was at LSU Law. There is no money for a hotel. There is no money for a flight. No money at all.

The point being, PLAINTIFF had no financial means of escape and absolutely did not want to stay in ATLANTA. So PLAINTIFF is forced to stay in ATLANTA, GEORGIA in which FBI's ATLANTA field office then gets in-personam-jurisdiction to continue their RICO ENTERPRISE FROM BEFORE. Since PLAINTIFF had no place to go and no money to go explore Atlanta as FBI/DEFENDANTS already knew that fact, PLAINTIFF is taken to a hotel where PLAINTIFF doesn't leave the hotel room from like 2 or 3 pm until the next morning to board his flight. PLAINTIFF is alleging DEFENDANTS did something to cause the plane to be delayed for the intended purpose of getting in-personam-jurisdiction over PLAINTIFF in ATLANTA thereby committing air piracy and did it for a political agenda that affected the course of government because it involved HILLARY CLINTON. This is also around the same time PLAINTIFF is starting to discover DEFENDANTS RICO Enterprise #2 thereby making it domestic terrorism as it concerned political agenda. The messed up thing about this is that PLAINTIFF vividly recalls there were 3 more additional and different passengers that missed their connecting flights because the New Orleans to Atlanta flight was delayed. 3 complete strangers suffered because DEFENDANTS were out of control because of what happened in 2015 and before.

Furthermore, and more shockingly, 18 USC 2331 1(B)(iii) and 5(B)(iii) says international and domestic terrorism happens when actors (i.e. DEFENDANTS) did an act "to affect the conduct of a government by mass destruction, assassination, or kidnapping." PLAINTIFF did not want to stay in Washington D.C. in 2011 and Atlanta in 2016. PLAINTIFF did not have the financial means or resources to leave WASHINGTON D.C. and ATLANTA once DEFENDANTS established in-personam-jurisdiction over PLAINTIFF and was forced to stay in those locations for the night by DEFENDANTS. Furthermore, DEFENDANTS committed acts that violated 49 U.S.C. §46502 because DEFENDANTS seized two aircrafts (domestically and internationally) by preventing the respective aircrafts from departing on time in order for DEFENDANTS to get in personam jurisdiction over PLAINTIFF in which PLAINTIFF was not free to leave those places for a night. Granting and deciding Ashcroft v. al-Kidd, 563 U.S. 731 (2011) affected the conduct of the United States Government and it was done through kidnapping PLAINTIFF.

Fool me once, shame on you.

Fool me twice, shame on you.

The fact that DEFENDANTS kidnapped PLAINTIFF twice for political purposes in which they committed air piracy by tampering with the plane in New Orleans and in London is completely outrageous because of HILLARY CLINTON. In light of the fact that it happened twice to PLAINTIFF, PLAINTIFF should be asking for 72 BOEING Aircraft and $31,600,672,066, which is double than his request of 36 BOEING Aircraft and $15,800,336,033 in damage at this time, but PLAINTIFF is not asking for that much. PLAINTIFF filed a FOIA request with NOLA airport, #23-14279, to figure out what happened with the flight. The New Orleans airport said, in an act of obstruction, that the New Orleans Airport did not have records of when Delta Airlines Flights departed in the morning in the Spring of 2016 and the scheduled departure time of those aforementioned flights.

Therefore, as PLAINTIFF elaborated upon earlier, under 18 U.S.C §1963(a)(1) it clearly applies to any interest, legitimate or illegitimate, which DEFENDANTS acquired or maintained either in the course of engaging in racketeering activity or as the result of racketeering activity in violation of 18 U.S.C. 1962. 18 U.S.C §1963(a)(3) applies to forfeiture of proceeds or property derived from proceeds obtained in violation of RICO. DEFENDANTS/DELTA AIRLINES are required to forfeit the amount of illicit proceeds and property as determined by the Court even if the funds used to satisfy the forfeiture are not tainted or if the defendant no longer possesses the tainted funds or property. The property and orders in question is the following that PLAINTIFF is asking for: two planes of the same condition and age (or comparable aircraft acceptable to PLAINTIFF) of the flight that took PLAINTIFF from New Orleans to Atlanta and two planes of the same condition and age (or comparable aircraft acceptable to PLAINTIFF) of the plane that would have taken PLAINTIFF from Atlanta to Chicago. So 2 used probably Airbus A320 or an Airbus A319 from NOLA to Atlanta and probably 2 Airbus A320 or BOEING 757 from Atlanta to O'Hare or Atlanta to Chicago Midway. So PLAINTIFF as restitution will ask DELTA AIRLINES to give 2 Airbus A320neo or 2 Airbus A321neo that are less than 10 years old to Air Serbia.

Because it is ridiculous that it happened to PLAINTIFF twice and because of what happened in 2018, PLAINTIFF is asking for 2 Brand new AH-64D Block III Apache helicopters (or whatever new helicopters are comparable). These 2 Apache Helicopters will be fully armed with machine guns, rockets, night vision, navigational parts, defensive tools, and whatever technology and support is normally included in a sale to military force in addition to some spare parts needed. AMERICAN INTEL gotta learn that PLAINTIFF can possess things and if PLAINTIFF says he is never going to use it against them unless they attack PLAINTIFF first, then they need to believe the truth. PLAINTIFF could ask for all 22 Apache Helicopters or the $1,400,000,000 that INDIA, BOEING, and the USA got from the sale of the 22 Apache Helicopters, but PLAINTIFF is not. Same argument and reasoning as applied to Qatar Airways, British Airways, and Delta Airlines applies here.

PLAINTIFF could include all of the arms sales between 2010-2011 that involved India and America and the ownership of every single one of those arms companies, but PLAINTIFF is not. PLAINTIFF is kind, reasonable, and generous. Just from the Apache sales, PLAINTIFF could ask for ownership of: Lockheed Martin Corporation; General Electric Company; Lockheed Martin Mission Systems and Sensor; Longbow Limited Liability Corporation; Raytheon Company in Tucson, Arizona. Raytheon had at least 5 billion in net income last year in 2022. Maybe some stock by Raytheon (75.80 a share) and Lockheed Martin (424.05 a share) will do. Boeing (208.11 a share).

Therefore, Delta Airlines violated: 18 U.S.C §1951 (EXTORTION); Title VI of the Civil Rights Act, 18 U.S.C.§1862 (d); 18 U.S.C.§1862 (c); 18 U.S.C.§1862 (b); 18 U.S.C.§1862 (a); 42 U.S.C. §1981; 42 U.S.C.§1983, 42 U.S.C. §1985(2); 42 U.S.C. §1985(3); 42 U.S.C. §1986; 18 U.S.C.§226, 18 U.S.C. §241, 42 U.S.C. §1983, 18 U.S.C. §1961 Sections 1581-1590 (relating to peonage), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1510 (relating to obstruction of criminal investigations), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1343 (wire fraud), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1346 (to deprive another of the intangible right of honest services”), 18 U.S.C. §1961 Section 1503, 18 U.S. Code §201 (bribery), 18 U.S.C. §872 (Extortion by officer), 18 U.S. Code § 875, 18 U.S. Code § 880 (receives proceeds of extortion), Section 504, and PLAINTIFF’S 1st, 4th, 5th, 6th, 8th, 9th, 10th, 13th, and 14th Amendment rights.

IF the COURT denies PLAINTIFF’S restitution requests, then PLAINTIFF is realleging it in An Anchor and a Pitchfork to be compensated for the harm there.

Beck v. Prupis, 529 U.S. 494 (2000)

Congress enacted RICO as Title IX of the Organized Crime Control Act of 1970, Pub. L. 91-452, 84 Stat. 922, for the purpose of "seek[ing] the eradication of organized crime in the United States," id., at 923. Congress found that "organized crime in the United States [had become] a highly sophisticated, diversified, and widespread activity that annually drain[ed] billions of dollars from America's economy by unlawful conduct and the illegal use of force, fraud, and corruption." Id., at 922. The result was to "weaken the stability of the Nation's economic system, harm innocent investors and competing organizations, interfere with free competition, seriously burden interstate and foreign commerce, threaten the domestic security, and undermine the general welfare of the Nation and its citizens." Id., at 923. Finding the existing "sanctions and remedies available to the Government [to be] unnecessarily limited in scope and impact," Congress resolved to address the problem of organized crime "by strengthening the legal tools in the evidence-gathering process, by establishing new penal prohibitions, and by providing enhanced sanctions and new remedies to deal with the unlawful activities of those engaged in organized crime." Ibid.

Held: Injury caused by an overt act that is not an act of racketeering or otherwise wrongful under RICO does not give rise to a cause of action under § 1964(c) for a violation of § 1962(d). To determine what it means to be "injured ... by reason of" a "conspir[acy]," this Court must look to the common law of civil conspiracy. At common law, it was widely accepted that a plaintiff could bring suit for civil conspiracy only if he had been injured by an act that was itself tortious. When Congress adopted RICO, it incorporated this principle. As at common law, a civil conspiracy plaintiff cannot bring suit under RICO based on injury caused by any act in furtherance of a conspiracy that might have caused the plaintiff injury. Rather, such plaintiff must allege injury from an act that is analogous to an "ac[t] of a tortious character," see 4 Restatement (Second) of Torts, § 876, Comment b, meaning an act that is independently wrongful under RICO. The specific type of act that is analogous to an act of a tortious character may depend on the underlying substantive violation the defendant is alleged to have committed. Because respondents' alleged overt act in furtherance of their conspiracy was not an act of racketeering and is not independently wrongful under any substantive provision of the statute, petitioner does not have a cause of action under § 1964(c).

Section 1962, in turn, consists of four subsections:

Subsection (a) makes it "unlawful for any person who has received any income derived, directly or indirectly, from a pattern of racketeering activity or through collection of an unlawful debt ... to use or invest, directly or indirectly, any part of such income, or the proceeds of such income, in acquisition of any interest in, or the establishment or operation of, any enterprise which is engaged in, or the activities of which affect, interstate or foreign commerce"; 2 netflix; boeing; india;

subsection (b) makes it "unlawful for any person through a pattern of racketeering activity or through collection of an unlawful debt to acquire or maintain, directly or indirectly, any interest in or control of any enterprise which is engaged in, or the activities of which affect, interstate or foreign commerce"; subsection (c) makes it "unlawful for any person employed by or associated with any enterprise engaged in, or the activities of which affect, interstate or foreign commerce, to conduct or participate, directly or indirectly, in the conduct of such enterprise's affairs through a pattern of racketeering activity or collection of unlawful debt"; and, finally, subsection (d) makes it unlawful "for any person to conspire to violate any of the provisions of subsection (a), (b), or (c) of this section."

18 U.S.C. (c)

his case turns on the combined effect of two provisions of RICO that, read in conjunction, provide a civil cause of action for conspiracy. Section 1964(c) states that a cause of action is available to anyone "injured ... by reason of a violation of section 1962." Section 1962(d) makes it unlawful for a person "to conspire to violate any of the provisions of subsection (a), (b), or (c) of this section."

As we have said, when Congress uses language with a settled meaning at common law, Congress: "presumably knows and adopts the cluster of ideas that were attached to each borrowed word in the body of learning from which it was taken and the meaning its use will convey to the judicial mind unless otherwise instructed. In such case, absence of contrary direction may be taken as satisfaction with widely accepted definitions, not as a departure from them." Morissette v. United States, 342 U. S. 246, 263 (1952).

Chapman v. Pollock, 148 F. Supp. 769, 772 (WD Mo. 1957) (holding that a plaintiff who charged the defendants with "conspiring to perpetrate an unlawful purpose" could not recover because the defendants committed no unlawful act); Olmsted, Inc. v. Maryland Casualty Co., 218 Iowa 997, 998, 253 N. W. 804 (1934) ("[A] conspiracy cannot be the subject of a civil action unless something is done pursuant to it which, without the conspiracy, would give a right of action"); Adler v. Fenton, 24 How. 407, 410 (1861) ("[T]he act must be tortious, and there must be consequent damage").

1605(a)(2): based upon. Trade is in the offing= Trade is based upon the offing.
It is irrelevant of the national security. Qatar Airways based upon request when he paid for the request.

United Airlines and Qatar Airways—acting in commercial nature. The purpose even if they were government actors is irrelevant.

Commercial activity—purchasing, maintaining, sending payments to BOEING or GE, but not as to those that are private or commercial in character (jure gestionis).—Although publicly stated, it wasn't publicly known or conceivable outside of having prior inside and private knowledge. Therefore, it was private in nature and not public. Can't really say a conspiracy and aiding and abetting are public acts when its communicated incognito.

United World Trade v. Mangyshlakneft Oil, 33 F.3d 1232 (10th Cir. 1994) talked about direct effect required under some parts of RICO: "no part of the contract in this case was to be performed in the United States... An effect is "direct" if it follows as "an immediate consequence of the defendant's activity...Antares Aircraft, 999 F.2d at 36 ("Unlike Weltover, where the parties had agreed that performance was to occur in New York, the sole act connected to the United States in the instant matter, the drawing of a check on a bank in New York, was entirely fortuitous and entirely unrelated to the liability of the appellees.”)” “direct effect requires that “legally significant acts giving rise to the claim occurred” in the United States.” Adler v. the Federal Republic of Nigeria, 219 F.3d 869 (9th Cir. 2000).

Gotta argue: act directed from the united states with assistance by boeing and ge reaching London undertaken by british, American, or aussies (it was not negligent, but intentional) and then plane returned back to the United States in which consequence was in DC.

Outside scope of authority for denying going to Doha; in the scope of authority for purchasing aircraft.

Section 1605 contains the general exceptions to the jurisdictional immunity of foreign states, including waiver (either explicit or implicit), § 1605(a)(1), commercial activity, id. § (a)(2) & (3), property rights, id. §§ (a)(3) & (4)...and terrorism, id. § 1605A.

What was DEFENDANT’S FBI quote again: “The key to that new mandate, Director Mueller knew, was intelligence—the holy grail of national security work, the ability to collect and connect the dots, to know your enemies and the threats they pose inside and out, to arm everyone from leaders in the Oval Office to police officers on the street with information that enables them to stop terrorist and criminal plots before they are carried out.”⁴⁴⁴ Yep, that’s it. LOL.

Here is the great thing for PLAINTIFF about this. By necessarily having conducted the terrorist air piracy against PLAINTIFF in LONDON and WASHINGTON DC, it means that PLAINTIFF is privy to Top-Secret and Confidential Information. Put in another way, the source of the top-secret information is PLAINTIFF. SO PLAINTIFF is already privy to top-secret information as he is the source of it, defeats the purpose of having a security clearance seeing how the knowledge is already within PLAINTIFF’S mind. And in the alternative, since the information is in PLAINTIFF’S mind, it means he has Top-Security Clearance to that particular incident that the UNITED STATES Government wants to keep secret. The United States Government would be lying to the court if they denied that this act of air piracy occurred, and well, that’s just another RICO charge for PLAINTIFF against DEFENDANTS. No matter what way you look at it, PLAINTIFF in all of DEFENDANTS’ agencies has Top-Security Clearance because of the incident because he was part of the incident and had it directed against PLAINTIFF.

With that in mind (and it applies to the FBI and MIDYEAR as well), in Greene v. McElroy et al., 360 U.S. 474 (1959), Petitioner was discharged from his employment solely as a consequence of the revocation of his security clearance because his access to classified information was required by the nature of his job. Lawyers have to keep information confidential and would-- in a way-- have a security clearance with the Bar to hold and maintain classified information. "After his discharge, petitioner was unable to secure employment as an aeronautical engineer and for all practical purposes that field of endeavor is now closed to him..." So the area of work for him has been closed off to him because of an issue involving security clearance and confidential information. The Government alleged that their decision was based on information concerning certain actions of Mr. Greene... Under questioning in their justification of their actions, "the Government presented no witnesses. It was obvious, however, from the questions posed to petitioner and to his witnesses, that the Board relied on confidential reports which were never made available to petitioner. These reports apparently were compilations of statements taken from various persons contacted by an investigatory agency. Petitioner had no opportunity to confront and question persons whose statements reflected adversely on him or to confront the government investigators who took their statements. Moreover, it seemed evident that the Board itself had never questioned the investigators and had never seen those persons whose statements were the subject of their reports."

So the decision by DoD was based and made on statements made by various persons contacted by an investigatory agency in which PLAINTIFF could not confront and question the persons whose statements reflected adversely on him or to confront the government investigators in which DoD themselves never questioned the investigators and had never seen those persons whose statements were the subject of their reports. Okay? Okay.

Then there was a hearing in which a presiding member stated "The transcript to be made of this hearing will not include all material in the file of the case, in that, it will not include reports of investigation conducted by the Federal Bureau of Investigation or other investigative agencies which are confidential. Neither will it contain information concerning the identity of confidential informants or information which will reveal the source of confidential evidence. The transcript will contain only the Statement of Reasons, your answer thereto and the testimony actually taken at this hearing." So there were material omissions from the file in the case because not all material of the case was given and couldn't question the FBI or other investigators or the people who made the statements. The hearing made a ruling in which the Petitioner's security clearance continued to be revoked on faulty information. Petitioner "later explained that after his discharge from ERCO he had unsuccessfully tried to obtain employment in the aeronautics field but had been barricaded from it because of lack of clearance." Another hearing was had and "Petitioner was subjected to an intense examination similar to that which he experienced before [omitted]. During the course of the examination, the Board injected new subjects of inquiry and made it evident that it was relying on various investigatory reports and statements of confidential informants which were not made available to petitioner." Id.

In the meantime, The Court of Appeals recognized that petitioner had suffered substantial harm from the clearance revocation.²¹ The Court continued: "Petitioner contends that the action of the Department of Defense in barring him from access to classified information on the basis of statements of confidential informants made to investigators was not authorized by either Congress or the President and has denied him "liberty" and "property" without "due process of law" in contravention of the Fifth Amendment. The alleged property is petitioner's employment; the alleged liberty is petitioner's freedom to practice his chosen profession. Respondents admit, as they must, that the revocation of security clearance caused petitioner to lose his job with ERCO and has seriously affected, if not destroyed, his ability to obtain employment in the aeronautics field. Although the right to hold specific private employment and to follow a chosen profession free from unreasonable governmental interference comes within the "liberty" and "property" concepts of the Fifth Amendment, Dent v. West Virginia, 129 U. S. 114; Schware v. Board of Bar Examiners, 353 U. S. 232; Peters v. Hobby, 349 U. S. 331, 352 (concurring opinion); cf. Slochower v. Board of Education, 350 U. S. 551; Truax v. Raich, 239 U. S. 33, 41; Allgeyer v. Louisiana, 165 U. S. 578, 589-590; Powell v. Pennsylvania, 127 U. S. 678, 684, respondents contend that the admitted interferences which have occurred are indirect by-products of necessary governmental action to protect the integrity of secret information and hence are not unreasonable and do not constitute deprivations within the meaning of the Amendment." Id.

Not a single way DEFENDANTS can justify that a terrorist act committed against PLAINTIFF on 03/11/2011 was part of a necessary governmental action to protect the integrity of something and was not completely unreasonable and did not constitute deprivations within the meaning of the Constitution. The fact that the FBI--when given legitimate notice of the incident even if we presume that they were that oblivious to it between 2010 and the last few months--continued to deny the existence of it even though it completely involved PLAINTIFF and was completely unacceptable.

As the Court saw: "The issue, as we see it, is whether the Department of Defense has been authorized to create an industrial security clearance program under which affected persons may lose their jobs and may be restrained in following their chosen professions on the basis of fact determinations concerning their fitness for clearance made in proceedings in which they are denied the traditional procedural safeguards of confrontation and cross-examination... Certain principles have remained relatively immutable in our jurisprudence. One of these is that where governmental action seriously injures an individual, and the reasonableness of the action depends on fact findings, the evidence used to prove the Government's case must be disclosed to the individual so that he has an opportunity to show that it is untrue. While this is important in the case of documentary evidence, it is even more important where the evidence consists of the testimony of individuals whose memory might be faulty or who, in fact, might be perjurers or persons motivated by malice, vindictiveness, intolerance, prejudice, or jealousy. We have formalized these protections in the requirements of confrontation and cross-examination. They have ancient roots. They find expression in the Sixth Amendment which provides that in all criminal cases the accused shall enjoy the right "to be confronted with the witnesses against him." This Court has been zealous to protect these rights from erosion. It has spoken out not only in criminal cases, e. g., Mattox v. United States, 156 U. S. 237, 242-244; Kirby v. United States, 174 U. S. 47; Motes v. United States, 178 U. S. 458, 474; In re Oliver, 333 U. S. 257, 273, but also in all types of cases where administrative and regulatory actions were under scrutiny. E. g., Southern R. Co. v. Virginia, 290 U. S. 190; Ohio Bell Telephone Co. v. Public Utilities Commission, 301 U. S. 292; Morgan v. United States, 304 U. S. 1, 19; Carter v. Kubler, 320 U. S. 243; Reilly v. Pinkus, 338 U. S. 269. Nor, as it has been pointed out, has Congress ignored these fundamental requirements in enacting regulatory legislation. Joint Anti-Fascist Committee v. McGrath, 341 U. S. 168-169 (concurring opinion)." Id.

Plaintiff lost employment opportunities precisely because DEFENDANTS committed terrorist acts against PLAINTIFF in 2010 and 2015. FBI refused to give the information over thereby violating Due Process. Yea, PLAINTIFF has a 6th Amendment Right to Confront the actors within the United States Government that committed Acts of Terrorism against him in which the United States Government was supposed to stop that from happening. This is justified confrontation because PLAINTIFF necessarily paid into some of the collection of $XX Billion in TSA Fees from 01/01/2002 to 03/11/2011 since he flew multiple times in that time and paid into DNI's appropriated budget of $368,800,000,000 between 2007-2011. As the Court clearly said and articulated: "Clearly, neither of these orders empowers any executive agency to fashion security programs whereby persons are deprived of their present civilian employment and of the opportunity of continued activity in their chosen professions without being accorded the chance to challenge effectively the evidence and testimony upon which an adverse security determination might rest." Id.

Finally, the Court said how the case dealt "with substantial restraints on employment opportunities of numerous persons imposed in a manner which is in conflict with our long-accepted notions of fair procedures. Before we are asked to judge whether, in the context of security clearance cases, a person may be deprived of the right to follow his chosen profession without full hearings where accusers may be confronted, it must be made clear that the President or Congress, within their respective constitutional powers, specifically has decided that the imposed procedures are necessary and warranted and has authorized their use. Cf. Watkins v. United States, 354 U. S. 178; Scull v. Virginia, 359 U. S. 344. Such decisions cannot be assumed by acquiescence or non-action. Kent v. Dulles, 357 U. S. 116; Peters v. Hobby, 349 U. S. 331; Ex parte Endo, 323 U. S. 283, 301-302. They must be made explicitly not only to assure that individuals are not deprived of cherished rights under procedures not actually authorized, see Peters v. Hobby, supra, but also because explicit action, especially in areas of doubtful constitutionality, requires careful and purposeful consideration by those responsible for enacting and implementing our laws. Without explicit action by lawmakers, decisions of great constitutional import and effect would be relegated by default to administrators who, under our system of government, are not endowed with authority to decide them. Where administrative action has raised serious constitutional problems, the Court has assumed that Congress or the President intended to afford those affected by the action the traditional safeguards of due process. See, e. g., The Japanese Immigrant Case, 189 U. S. 86, 101; Dismuke v. United States, 297 U. S. 167, 172; Ex parte Endo, 323 U. S. 283, 299-300; American Power Co. v. Securities and Exchange Comm'n, 329 U. S. 90, 107-108; *508 Hannegon v. Esquire, 327 U. S. 146, 156; Wong Yang Sung v. McGrath, 339 U. S. 33, 49. Cf. Anniston Mfg. Co. v. Davis, 301 U. S. 337; United States v. Rumely, 345 U. S. 41. These cases reflect the Court's concern that traditional forms of fair procedure not be restricted by implication or without the most explicit action by the Nation's lawmakers, even in areas where it is possible that the Constitution presents no inhibition. In the instant case, petitioner's work opportunities have been severely limited on the basis of a fact determination rendered after a hearing which failed to comport with our traditional ideas of fair procedure. The type of hearing was the product of administrative decision not explicitly authorized by either Congress or the President... We decide only that in the absence of explicit authorization from either the President or Congress the respondents were not empowered to deprive petitioner of his job in a proceeding in which he was not afforded the safeguards of confrontation and cross-examination." Id.

Simply, PLAINTIFF deserved a hearing, due process, and have a justification given to PLAINTIFF why PLAINTIFF'S employment as a lawyer was denied by having terrorist acts committed by DEFENDANTS against PLAINTIFF in 2010 and 2015. See: Some of DEFENDANTS crimes: 18 U.S.C. §2, 18 USC 2331 1(B)(iii) and 5(B)(iii), 18 USC §1961 section 1503 (relating to obstruction of justice), 18 USC §1961 section 1510 (relating to obstruction of criminal investigations), 18 USC §1961 section 1511 (relating to the obstruction of State or local law enforcement), 18 USC §1961 section 1512 (relating to tampering with a witness, victim, or an informant), 18 USC §1961 section 1513 (relating to retaliating against a witness, victim, or an informant), DOJ'S CRIMINAL RICO Handbook: Section 2332b(g)(5)(B) (iii) - 49 U.S.C. § 46502 (relating to aircraft piracy). 18 U.S.C. § 2339 (Harboring Terrorists). Constitutional Violations: 1st, 4th, 5th, 6th, 7th, 8th, 9th, 10th, 13th, and 14th Amendment. 18 U.S.C. §1961, 18 U.S.C. §1962 (a), 18 U.S.C. §1962(b), 18 U.S.C. §1962(c), 18 U.S.C. §1962(d), and/or 18 U.S.C. 1962(f). DEFENDANTS shared the information amongst each other in this episode and enabled DEFENDANTS to commit international and domestic terrorism and further RICO Enterprise 1. See: United States v. Miller, 116 F.3d 641, 674-75 (2d Cir. 1997) (act involving murder need not be actual murder as long as the act directly concerned murder, and facilitation of murder was a proper RICO predicate because accessorial offenses described in the New York State statutory provisions involved murder within the meaning of RICO where defendant provided information he knew would enable inquirer to commit murder or other RICO violations). Constitutional Violations: 1st, 4th, 5th, 6th, 7th, 8th, 9th, 10th, 13th, and 14th Amendment. 18 U.S.C §1951 (EXTORTION); Title VI of the Civil Rights Act; 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1341 (relating to mail fraud) and 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1343 (relating to wire fraud). 42 U.S.C. 1983/1985/1986. 42 U.S.C. 242.

This proposition is further supported by the factual similarities between PLAINTIFF and Petitioner in Simmons v. United States, 348 U.S. 397 (1955) in which a failure to provide a report when requested violates Due Process and/or when PLAINTIFF is not given the opportunity to refute the contents of a report that the DEFENDANTS used in a hearing violates Due Process. "Petitioner registered under the selective service laws in 1948. He was then employed as a chauffeur at the Great Lakes Naval Training Center⁴⁴⁵...Following an investigation by the Federal Bureau of Investigation, petitioner was notified to appear for a hearing. No copy of the notice appears in the record, but it appears that the form sent to registrants during the period in question stated that the hearing officer would advise the registrant "as to the general nature and character" of adverse evidence in the FBI report if he requested such information "at any time after receipt by him of the notice of hearing and before the date set for the hearing.""Id. For this case, it is immaterial whether or not when PLAINTIFF asked for the information because he routinely did and was denied the information. So there was a hearing and the hearing officer told him that the FBI report disclosed that there were mischaracterized (if not outright fabricated) allegations of places and doing things around those places that Petitioner probably did not do but FBI believed anyway when they had reason not to believe it. There was an issue about Petitioner's arrest for a misdemeanor. The Court continued: "The hearing officer reported that petitioner impressed him as sincere but recommended that he be classified I-A because his religious activities coincided with pressure from the Draft Board." So there was an ulterior motive because of Petitioner's beliefs regarding Petitioner's 1st Amendment Rights: "In its report to the Appeal Board, the Department of Justice adopted the hearing officer's recommendation, relying on the timing of petitioner's religious activities and "his abusiveness and the exercise of physical violence towards his wife." The latter reason rested on data presumably gathered by the FBI. According to the Department's report, police records showed that petitioner was arrested and fined in May 1950 for hitting his wife; that the police were called upon to settle a "hot argument" in June 1950; and that petitioner's wife claimed in January 1952 that he was "abusive" towards her. Also narrated in the report, although not specifically relied on in making the recommendation, is the statement of a "confidential informant" that prior to his recent religious activity petitioner had been "a rather heavy drinker and crap shooter in and around local taverns and pool halls." Id. Similarly, there were unfortunately times that cops were called PLAINTIFF'S freshman year and junior year, ulterior motive of 1st Amendment Beliefs and a decision made based on it, allegations of abuse, and more similarities.

So the Court continued: "On trial, petitioner claimed that he had not been afforded a fair summary of the FBI report and secured the issuance of a subpoena duces tecum requiring production of the original report" DOJ argued Petitioner "failed to make a timely request for the summary; that the remarks of the hearing officer gave him adequate notice of the unfavorable evidence in the FBI report; and, finally, that the lack of notice, if there was such, was harmless..." Id. PLAINTIFF has proven the FBI has not given a fair and objective summary to any of the issues that involve PLAINTIFF.

PLAINTIFF went to FISA, FBI, CIA, and DOJ in June 22nd, 2020 and was turned away. The DOJ and FBI in this case, as it relates to FISA and Search Warrants, must "rely on a document which is not in the record and which was not open to attack or explanation in the trial court. Indeed, had the Government produced the form notice in the lower courts, petitioner might have been able to show that he had made a request prior to the hearing. But leaving these difficulties aside, the notice reproduced in the Government's brief does not, in our view, convey clearly to the layman the idea that he must make a request for the resume prior to the hearing or forever waive his rights in this respect. That petitioner never received a fair resume of the unfavorable evidence gleaned by the FBI seems hardly arguable on this record. As to his alleged gambling and drinking, the hearing officer merely told petitioner that he was reported to have been hanging around pool rooms. And as to the reported incidents of violence and abuse towards his wife, the hearing officer, in an apparent aside, advanced only the general query to petitioner's wife, asking her how petitioner was treating her now. A fair resume is one which will permit the registrant to defend against the adverse evidence to explain it, rebut it, or otherwise detract from its damaging force. The remarks of the hearing officer at most amounted to vague hints, and these apparently failed to alert petitioner to the dangers ahead. Certainly, they afforded him no fair notice of the adverse charges in the report. The Congress, in providing for a hearing, did not intend for it to be conducted on the level of a game of blindman's buff. The summary was inadequate and the hearing in the Department was therefore lacking in basic fairness..." Id. Everything the Court says here PLAINTIFF alleges took place within the FBI, CIA, and FISA between 2008-Present.

The Court noted "We have held that to meet its duty under § 6 (j) the Department must furnish the registrant with a fair resume of the FBI report. It is clear in the circumstances of this case that it has failed to do so, and that petitioner has thereby been deprived of an opportunity to answer the charges against him. This is not an incidental infringement of technical rights. Petitioner has been deprived of the fair hearing required by the Act, a fundamental safeguard, and he need not specify the precise manner in which he would have used this right and how such use would have aided his cause in order to complain of the deprivation. It being evident from the record before the Court that the Department of Justice has failed to provide petitioner with a fair resume of the FBI report, it is unnecessary for us to pass on petitioner's further contention that the trial court erred in quashing his subpoena duces tecum." Id. So failure to provide a report about PLAINTIFF is a constitutional violation when requested by PLAINTIFF; especially when PLAINTIFF was trying to amicably resolve said issues prior to litigation is a constitutional violation and due process rights were violated by DEFENDANTS in regards to PLAINTIFF in the FISA court.

In Sweezy v. New Hampshire, BY WYMAN, Attorney General, 354 U.S. 234 (1957), the Petitioner was summoned to go before an Attorney General (not DOJ'S Attorney General) because of Petitioner's prior First Amendment protected activity, the content of his speech, and his military history. Petitioner denied that "he had ever been part of any program to overthrow the government by force or violence." Id. Same applies to PLAINTIFF. Not finding anything legitimate to prosecute Petitioner over, the Attorney General found a man and went completely looking for a crime because of the content of Petitioner's prior speech. This applies to PLAINTIFF. So during the second hearing, "The Attorney General also turned to a subject which had not yet occurred at the time of the first hearing. There is no doubt that legislative investigations, whether on a federal or state level, are capable of encroaching upon the constitutional liberties of individuals. It is particularly important that the exercise of the power of compulsory process be carefully circumscribed when the investigative process tends to impinge upon such highly sensitive areas as freedom of speech or press, freedom of political association, and freedom of communication of ideas, particularly in the academic community. Responsibility for the proper conduct of investigations rests, of course, upon the legislature itself. ... This safeguard can be nullified when a committee is invested with a broad and ill-defined jurisdiction." Id. Ah so abuse against the Petitioner occurred in which people went looking for a crime that wasn't originally there (where in PLAINTIFF'S case they fabricated them) in which the investigators in the course of their actions routinely violated 1st Amendment rights who were given broad and ill-defined jurisdiction in which there are no applicable limits that defined their power. Boy that rings a bell.

Petitioner in the case didn't lose his job, "But the stain of the stamp of disloyalty is just as deep. The inhibiting effect in the flow of democratic expression and controversy upon those directly affected and those touched more subtly is equally grave. Yet here, as in Wieman, the program for the rooting out of subversion is drawn without regard to the presence or absence of guilty knowledge in those affected. The nature of the investigation which the Attorney General was authorized to conduct is revealed by this case. He delved minutely into the past conduct of petitioner, thereby making his private life a matter of public record." Id. Whether you call it counterterrorism (as in PLAINTIFF), disloyalty (as in Petitioner), subversion, etc., the harm experienced is just the same. The DEFENDANTS were without regard to the presence or absence of guilty knowledge that PLAINTIFF had and just went looking for a crime to coverup their own misdeeds and further the RICO Enterprise. The interrogation that Petitioner experienced (as well as PLAINTIFF on two separate occasions and through "Matt" "were not acquiring new information as much as corroborating data (in PLAINTIFF'S Case, Agenda driven and fabricated data) already in their possession. On the great majority of questions, the witness was cooperative, even though he made clear his opinion that the interrogation was unjustified and unconstitutional. Two subjects arose upon which petitioner refused to answer... Merely to summon a witness and compel him, against his will, to disclose the nature of his past expressions and associations is a measure of governmental interference in these matters. These are rights which are safeguarded by the Bill of Rights and the Fourteenth Amendment. We believe that there unquestionably was an invasion of petitioner's liberties in the areas of academic freedom and political expression areas in which government should be extremely reticent to tread." Id. DEFENDANTS violated PLAINTIFF'S Rights through the entirety of this complaint and at least to this very point in October 2010.

The Court continued: "The essentiality of freedom in the community of American universities is almost self-evident. No one should underestimate the vital role in a democracy that is played by those who guide and train our youth. To impose any strait jacket upon the intellectual leaders in our colleges and universities would imperil the future of our Nation. No field of education is so thoroughly comprehended by man that new discoveries cannot yet be made. Particularly is that true in the social sciences, where few, if any, principles are accepted as absolutes. Scholarship cannot flourish in an atmosphere of suspicion and distrust. Teachers and students must always remain free to inquire, to study and to evaluate, to gain new maturity and understanding; otherwise our civilization will stagnate and die.” Id. Amen, Court, Amen.

Finally, the Court continued: “All political ideas cannot and should not be channeled into the programs of our two major parties. History has amply proved the virtue of political activity by minority, dissident groups, who innumerable times have been in the vanguard of democratic thought and whose programs were ultimately accepted. Mere unorthodoxy or dissent from the prevailing mores is not to be condemned. The absence of such voices would be a symptom of grave illness in our society.” Amen, Court, Amen.

The Case of Sweezy v. New Hampshire, BY WYMAN, Attorney General, 354 U.S. 234 (1957) is extremely relevant and highly applicable to PLAINTIFF’S case against DEFENDANTS. PLAINTIFF’S rights were violated based on Sweezy v. New Hampshire, BY WYMAN, Attorney General, 354 U.S. 234 (1957).

28 U. S. C. §1605(a)(7) (no sovereign immunity for terrorism)

JUNIOR/SENIOR YEAR. SEWANEE. I'm A Sexy Nazi and I Know It.

Did PLAINTIFF write his senior thesis on anything controversial? Ummmmm Dang it, PLAINTIFF, did PLAINTIFF write your senior psychological thesis on anything controversial? Ummmmm How deep of a hole did your autism and curiosity get yourself into? Hitler. It got PLAINTIFF into Hitler and the Nazis. forehead slap What did you try to do? A psychological profile analysis to see if Hitler was misdiagnosed by analyzing a myriad of historical sources. Did you express any pro-Hitler sentiments? Not that PLAINTIFF recalls and PLAINTIFF probably did not. Did PLAINTIFF have any interest in joining any Neo-Nazi group at any time in his life? No. Was PLAINTIFF ever a Nazi? No. Was PLAINTIFF ever antisemitic? No. So, based on prior patterns, does PLAINTIFF believe DEFENDANTS falsely labeled PLAINTIFF as pro-Nazi against your protected 1st Amendment speech based on your senior thesis? YES. Was PLAINTIFF like a historian and psychologist in his thesis and wanted to know the personal history about Adolf Hitler to understand how evil like him happened? Yes. Does PLAINTIFF believe I may have phrased something awkwardly and that was deliberately adversely used against PLAINTIFF by DEFENDANTS in some way? Probably knowing the lengths U.S. Intelligence will go to, YES. Finally, PLAINTIFF believes there was a complete deliberate omission of exculpatory evidence. As mentioned earlier, PLAINTIFF was a journalist in college.

PLAINTIFF wrote an opinion piece on why political correctness is absolute garbage.

PLAINTIFF described how the Nazis used politically correct and obfuscating language to hide their true intentions when it came to horrendously slaughtering millions of Jews, Gypsies (in which I have a gypsy godchild), and disabled people if PLAINTIFF may add! PLAINTIFF said it was appalling. To be a Nazi, you have to support the slaughter, but yet, US intel, in my opinion, completely omitted this piece of exculpatory evidence. Carrying on.

PLAINTIFF, anything else involving Nazis we need to know about? Ummmmm Dang it, PLAINTIFF, did you see a comedic opportunity of a lifetime that you just couldn't resist and that was probably misconstrued by law enforcement in 2015? Ummmmm How deep of a comedic hole did your comedy and autism get yourself into? Sexy Japanese Nazi? PLAINTIFF couldn't help it. PLAINTIFF is on the subway in Japan and the door opens in front of me and lo and behold is a Japanese Nazi posing in front of me. The absurdity of seeing a Japanese Nazi posing in front of me in Japan can't be stressed enough, PLAINTIFF just had to take a picture of and comment on snapchat. PLAINTIFF'S snapchat comment was a play on the song "I'm sexy and I know it." It was completely intended to be comedic. PLAINTIFF says: I mean how often can you say or did you believe that there would actually be a Japanese Nazi in the world? Just for the record: PLAINTIFF is not a white supremacist, doesn't believe in the supremacy of races, etc.

JUNIOR/SENIOR YEAR. SEWANEE. Rhetoric.

FBI: ROBERT MUELLER. CIA: LEON PANETTA. DOJ Attorney General: ERIC HOLDER.

To save on ink, paper, and space, PLAINTIFF is alleging that DEFENDANTS violated the following through the entirety of: Rhetoric:

See: some of DEFENDANTS' crimes of:

PLAINTIFF withdrew from Organic Chemistry in his sophomore year because- to be frank and kind of offensive in describing the professor--he was a nascent douche-canoe professor that just began teaching—terribly at that—PLAINTIFF'S sophomore year. PLAINTIFF tried to relay to the professor some fundamentals of teaching on how it was super important that he have the ability to change the way he explained things to students so that they could understand it. Douche-canoe ignored this advice and PLAINTIFF subsequently withdrew from the class. PLAINTIFF, then, started to pursue a future career goal as a psychologist. Since PLAINTIFF withdrew from Organic Chemistry, PLAINTIFF then became behind on the total amount of courses and credits he needs to take to graduate from SEWANEE on time.

Prior to taking the course RHETORIC at LAKE FOREST COLLEGE, PLAINTIFF looked up SEWANEE'S requirements of accepting outside course credit. The course contractually met all SEWANEE'S requirements and stipulation because it FULLY MEETS SEWANEE'S written criteria since the RHETORIC course is a language arts course that involves languages. So, PLAINTIFF took the course, Rhetoric, at Lake Forest College in probably the Summer of 2010, if not then, the Summer of 2009 (but not likely then as my family and I didn't have money then). PLAINTIFF takes the course, loves it, got either an A- or a B+ in it. PLAINTIFF has a good-faith basis SEWANEE'S Registrar's office is going to act in accordance with their contract and specific criteria and accept the credit/course from Lake Forest College to transfer over. WRONG. WRONG. WRONG. PLAINTIFF gets into an argument with the Registrar's office and because PLAINTIFF would not relinquish my position and showed how flawed their argument was. So SEWANEE's Registrar's office retaliates against me and labels my argument as a threat to them when they would not admit error when they lied to me about them fulfilling their contractual obligation based on the very text of the criteria they put out. Forced to go to a psychologist (Dr. ZACHARY BRYANT), PLAINTIFF explains the situation, gets all clear demonstrating that in fact PLAINTIFF is not a threat and does not pose a threat to anyone in school, and then PLAINTIFF looks up an appeal process. The appeal process would take up an extraordinary amount of time for me to appeal the registrar's stupid finding, so PLAINTIFF says screw it, PLAINTIFF will take five courses his last semester; and that's when PLAINTIFF did his best at Sewanee. Total cost of not accepting Rhetoric Credit and having to take an additional course is extortion by DEFENDANTS. See: Some of DEFENDANTS crimes: 18 U.S.C §1951 (EXTORTION); Title VI of the Civil Rights Act, 18 U.S.C. §1862 (d); 18 U.S.C. §1862 (c); 18 U.S.C. §1862 (b); 18 U.S.C. §1862 (a); 42 U.S.C. §1981; 42 U.S.C. §1983, 42 U.S.C. §1985(2); 42 U.S.C. §1985(3); 42 U.S.C. §1986; 18 U.S.C. §226, 18 U.S.C. §241, 42 U.S.C. §1983, 18 U.S.C. §1961 Sections 1581-1590 (relating to peonage), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1510 (relating to obstruction of criminal investigations), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1343 (wire fraud), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1346 (to deprive another of the intangible right of honest services"), 18 U.S.C. §1961 Section 1503, 18 U.S. Code §201 (bribery), 18 U.S.C. §872 (Extortion by officer), 18 U.S. Code § 875, 18 U.S. Code § 880 (receives proceeds of extortion), Section 504, and PLAINTIFF'S 1st, 4th, 5th, 6th, 8th, 9th, 10th, 13th, and 14th Amendment rights. DEFENDANTS shared the information amongst each other in this episode and enabled DEFENDANTS to commit international and domestic terrorism and further RICO Enterprise 1. See: United States v. Miller, 116 F.3d 641, 674-75 (2d Cir. 1997) (act involving murder need not be actual murder as long as the act directly concerned murder, and facilitation of murder was a proper RICO predicate because accessorial offenses described in the New York State statutory provisions involved murder within the meaning of RICO where defendant provided information he knew would enable inquirer to commit murder or other RICO violations).

SENIOR YEAR. SEWANEE. Champagne.

FBI: ROBERT MUELLER. CIA: LEON PANETTA. DOJ Attorney General: ERIC HOLDER.

In the Winter of late 2010/early 2011, probably early January 2011, PLAINTIFF was house-sitting for my economics professor and former mentor at the time, Dr. NIKOLAY DOBRINOV. Students were not on campus at this time, and PLAINTIFF went to the small downtown section of Sewanee, TN to the Regions Bank ATM to withdraw some money. So PLAINTIFF walks to the ATM and there is a man that is using the ATM. PLAINTIFF gives this man plenty of space to conduct his business. Lo and behold, it is DEFENDANT OFFICER TKL. TKL turns around and sees PLAINTIFF. TKL shoots PLAINTIFF one of the dirtiest looks he has ever seen in his life up to that point. TKL becomes belligerent and starts yelling at PLAINTIFF demanding to know what PLAINTIFF is doing there because allegedly no students were allowed to be anywhere on the 13,000-acre campus at this time and not just on portion of the school where the actual University buildings are located. PLAINTIFF calmly explains he has permission from Dr. NIKOLAY DOBRINOV to be there as PLAINTIFF was house-sitting for him. TKL then threatens to arrest PLAINTIFF for "trespassing on campus" when PLAINTIFF is in downtown SEWANEE where there are businesses and PLAINTIFF is engaging in commerce. Sadly, Spring 2011 becomes Dr. NIKOLAY DOBRINOV'S last semester to teach at SEWANEE. To say that Officer TKL absolutely hated me and despised me is a complete understatement by every single conceivable stretch of the imagination known to man in which I don't think he ever saw me as human.

This is the best scenario PLAINTIFF can conceive of how much TKL hated me and how DEFENDANTS ANDREW MCCABE and PETER STRZOK of the FBI, JEH JOHNSON of DHS, and JOHN O. BRENNAN of the CIA were my TKLs on a federal level with all the power, tools, and money of the FBI, DHS, and CIA combined. Suppose PLAINTIFF was walking on the sidewalk and stopped at an intersection to help a grandma cross the street. In the course of helping this elderly woman across the street, a terrorist comes out of nowhere with a bomb strapped on his chest and PLAINTIFF runs to the danger and immediately diffuses the bomb and saves the town and runs back to the elderly woman; then while the elderly woman is still crossing the street, $10,001 falls from the sky in front of PLAINTIFF and PLAINTIFF gives all the money to the elderly woman to help with her medical bills; then three trucks carrying rival cartel members and neo-nazis all come flying through the intersection and have a shootout in which a gun is dropped from the truck as PLAINTIFF shields her from the hailstorm of bullets, and carries her the rest of the way across the street; then a crackhead magic fairy comes from underneath the sewer drain and sprinkles some crack on me and departs back into the sewer. The elderly woman doesn't thank me and leaves. Then TKL comes behind me after observing all the facts and writes me a ticket for jaywalking; and then TKL reports me to the national terrorist watch center for having more than $10,000 in cash, says PLAINTIFF had knowledge of the bomb, was a drug addict and dealer since PLAINTIFF possessed crack and was in a vicinity of a gun, and that PLAINTIFF physically assaulted an elderly woman by carrying her to safety and protecting her from gunfire. That is precisely the extent of the deliberate mischaracterization of facts that PLAINTIFF must overcome to you today. That's how much DEFENDANTS TKL hated me. That's how much DEFENDANTS ANDREW MCCABE, PETER STRZOK, JEH JOHNSON, HILLARY CLINTON, BILL CLINTON, and JOHN O. BRENNAN hated PLAINTIFF.

On or around probably February 25th, 2011, shortly after finishing my senior examinations as someone that was over the age of 21—also known as “comps”—in front of the DuPont Library. PLAINTIFF was issued a $50 fine, which PLAINTIFF subsequently paid. As is tradition every year at Sewanee, seniors take senior examinations in order to graduate. Friends of seniors wait, typically outside the academic buildings in which the seniors are taking their exams, to celebrate their friend's accomplishments. As is tradition of celebratory events, PLAINTIFF thought it would be nice for my friends and PLAINTIFF to celebrate by drinking some champagne shortly after PLAINTIFF finished—PLAINTIFF brought two bottles of champagne with him to consume with his friends after PLAINTIFF finished my last exam. PLAINTIFF left Woods (the building that houses the Psychology department) to meet up with his friends whom were waiting for me in the area between DuPont Library and Woods. We then met, and PLAINTIFF brought out one bottle of champagne, opened it, poured some champagne for my friends, and then left some for PLAINTIFF in the bottle. After sipping some of the remaining champagne from the bottle with my friends, TKL approached PLAINTIFF. TKL said something really passive aggressive and then informed PLAINTIFF that he was not allowed to have a glass container there even though there were people around and next to PLAINTIFF that all had glass and aluminum containers visibly open to all as well—this is intentional and deliberate selective enforcement. Furthermore, this is further retaliation because they knew This Side of the Street was unconstitutional and illegal in which both concerned some open alcoholic beverages. TKL then started to menacingly stare at PLAINTIFF with such hatred and contempt like TKL was about to beat PLAINTIFF'S ass even though PLAINTIFF did not provoke him in any way or form; and the thing with autism is that PLAINTIFF can stare without blinking so TKL and PLAINTIFF have a stare-off because TKL started it. I won by the way. TKL wrote me a ticket, telling PLAINTIFF he would be fined. Fine, PLAINTIFF said. TKL then told me to throw away the bottle, which PLAINTIFF did immediately. PLAINTIFF paid for the ticket, and that was that. Unfortunately, one of the lessons that PLAINTIFF learned from this incident is that even when PLAINTIFF was making positive strides in his life to make his life better and not become a degenerate in which PLAINTIFF had worked his ass off to complete the exams so that PLAINTIFF could graduate from college, law enforcement and DEFENDANTS would do whatever they could to reinforce that positive social behavior was to be explicitly punished. Law enforcement wanted me to be a degenerate and were trying their damndest at every single step of the way to make me a criminal.

Steinhorn*, 739 F. Supp. 268, 271 (D. Md. 1990).

The United States, India, United Kingdom, Germany, Japan, Australia, and Qatar, all violated 18 U.S. Code § 2523 (b)(1)(B)(iii) which requires that under data sharing, it must adhere to applicable international human rights obligations and commitments or demonstrates respect for international universal human rights in which DEFENDANTS violated the The Convention On the Rights of Persons With Disabilities-- was all signed by United States, India, United Kingdom, Germany, Japan, Australia, and Qatar--that violated Article 13: Access to justice; Article 14: Liberty and security of person; Article 15: Freedom from torture or cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment; Article 16: Freedom from exploitation, violence and abuse; Article 17: Protecting the integrity of the person; Article 18: Liberty of movement; Article 21 Freedom of expression and opinion, and access to information; Article 22 Respect for privacy; Article 24 Education; Article 25 Health States Parties recognize that persons with disabilities have the right to the enjoyment of the highest attainable standard of health without discrimination on the basis of disability.

PLAINTIFF is alleging DEFENDANTS violated 18 U.S. Code § 2523 (b)(4)(A) in which one of the following occurred: 1) The United States directed British Intel, Qatari Intel, Indian Intel, Aussie Intel, Japanese Intel, or German Intel, to intentionally target PLAINTIFF or 2) Indian Intel, British Intel, Qatari Intel, Japanese Intel, German Intel, or Aussie Intel, intentionally targeted PLAINTIFF because of RICO Enterprise 1 and shared the information with the United States Government

United States v. Lentz, 624 F.2d 1280 (5th Cir. 1980): “Regardless of the undercover devices employed, it could hardly shock anyone's conscience to see an elected law enforcement official prosecuted for willfully and knowingly breaking a law designed to protect citizens from just such conduct. While Lentz came into the plan late, he seems to have embraced it wholeheartedly, provided some of the means by which to carry it out, and taken part with full knowledge of the plan's illegality. The fact that Lentz was merely helping the police in their alleged efforts to catch criminals should not make prosecution of him unfair if he voluntarily and knowingly employed illegal methods. To hold otherwise, would be tantamount to giving police carte blanche to ignore laws passed to protect all citizens against improper invasions of their rights by police conduct. Since the discussions about the proposed break-in were almost hopelessly intertwined with conversations about the wiretapping, we believe that the break-in evidence was necessary to the government in its attempt to tell the whole story of the crime. The government draws support from United States v. Beechum, 582 F.2d 898 (5th Cir. 1978) (en banc), which approved of proof of extrinsic offenses under a common scheme or res gestae analysis “if the uncharged offense is ‘so linked together in point of time and circumstances with the crime charged that one cannot be fully shown without proving the other.’” Id. at 911-12, n. 15 (quoting Slough Knightly, Other Vices, Other Crimes, 41 Iowa L.Rev. 325, 331 (1956)). We believe that, since Lentz was brought into the law enforcement group by Hullum both to perform the wiretap and to commit the break-in, evidence of the break-in would be relevant and admissible under Beechum.”

So State of Texas tried to get PLAINTIFF to confess to a crime they thought PLAINTIFF did and were hoping to get PLAINTIFF for when they set up a test exam question utilizing the same facts of a scenario that happened to PLAINTIFF in real life (that PLAINTIFF allegedly and intended on selling drugs to REBECCA WETHERBEE in 2011); but demonstrating the same overall bias like DEFENDANTS, they didn't get the point. So, whomever supplied the State of Texas the info, PLAINTIFF is guessing DEFENDANTS or someone else, were extremely biased, omitted certain facts, and did not appraise them of the totality of the facts and circumstances that surrounded REBECCA WETHERBEE⁴⁴⁶ and PLAINTIFF in 2010 and 2011.

REBECCA WETHERBEE and PLAINTIFF became friends in 2010. PLAINTIFF enjoyed her sarcastic humor (i.e. “Itan”), REBECCA WETHERBEE was a virgin, and REBECCA WETHERBEE had been bullied in high school, which was something PLAINTIFF could relate to. PLAINTIFF wanted to protect her as a friend: PLAINTIFF defends and helps the vulnerable and REBECCA WETHERBEE understood my humor—these two things were good enough for me. PLAINTIFF was an unpaid Teaching Assistant at this time for Professor JAMES GRADY. REBECCA WETHERBEE also had a fake ID (18 USC §1961 section 1028 (relating to fraud and related activity in connection with identification documents) that she showed PLAINTIFF and PLAINTIFF and REBECCA WETHERBEE had discussed PLAINTIFF'S brother misuse of a fake ID as well.

⁴⁴⁶ Student at Sewanee my Senior year, who was a freshman in 2010-2011.

There were good times between REBECCA WETHERBEE and PLAINTIFF and bad times. PLAINTIFF now necessarily understands that DEFENDANTS utilized REBECCA WETHERBEE against PLAINTIFF in furtherance of RICO Enterprise 1. However, most of the situations were traps that perpetuated RICO predicate acts and was done in furtherance of the scheme. One of the most outrageous examples of this that comes to mind is the ‘Bama Incident. REBECCA WETHERBEE was 17 years old when she enrolled in SEWANEE (technically a minor) as a freshman and she was an uber-feminist liberal from California (despite PLAINTIFF agreeing and disagreeing with some aspects of modern feminist theory, but as a whole, disagrees). Even though PLAINTIFF was libertarian and REBECCA WETHERBEE was super liberal, that didn’t stop REBECCA WETHERBEE and PLAINTIFF from being friends initially.

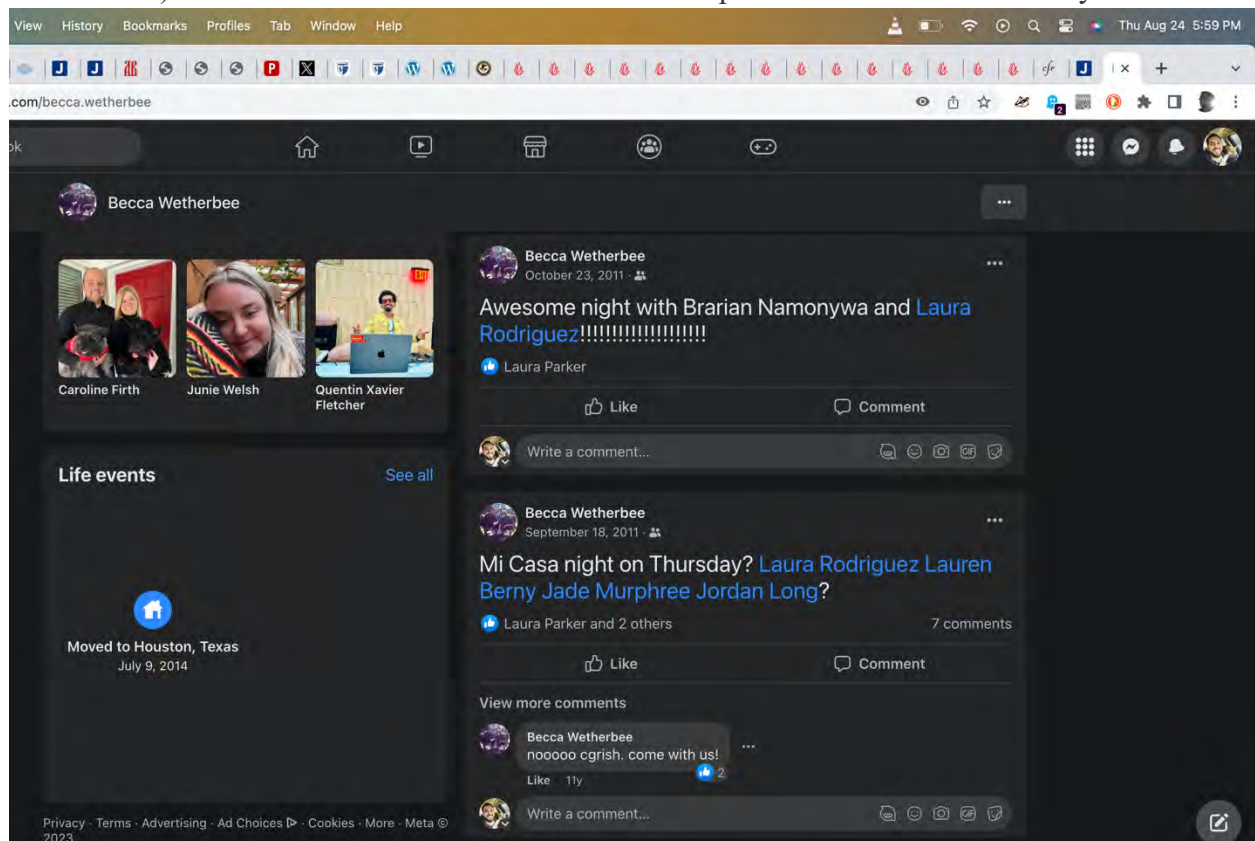

Do you want to know the time of friend PLAINTIFF was to these gals at the time (photo description below)? One time, the woman on the top left corner was wearing an extremely loose fitting shirt and her boob fell right out. PLAINTIFF pointed that out and PLAINTIFF gave her one of his shirts that night so she wouldn’t be embarrassed that night. That’s exactly who PLAINTIFF was. PLAINTIFF is the only man in the photo and REBECCA WETHERBEE is on the top row to PLAINTIFF’S left and below her is LILLY WINCHESTER. So, part of women’s history in the United States includes the Mann Act that prohibits transporting women across for “immoral purposes.” REBECCA WETHERBEE necessarily knew about this law prior to PLAINTIFF talking about the law with her since REBECCA WETHERBEE was a feminist in which PLAINTIFF did “Itan” and had joked about it with PLAINTIFF prior to the ‘Bama incident and made a joke about it in the ‘Bama incident. This was reasonably foreseeable to DEFENDANTS and would utilize it against PLAINTIFF. PLAINTIFF Is alleging that in light of Miki’s Tea Party and Ashcroft v. al-Kidd, 563 U.S. 731 (2011), the purpose of going to Alabama was to establish a factual nexus between PLAINTIFF and the case because PLAINTIFF would transport a kid to Alabama (AL-KID) and associate it with PLAINTIFF in Ashcroft v. al-Kidd, 563 U.S. 731 (2011). One day, REBECCA WETHERBEE bemoans to PLAINTIFF that she had never been to Alabama before, nor had she extensively traveled across the country. REBECCA WETHERBEE explicitly told PLAINTIFF that she wanted to show off the fact that she had been to ‘Bama to her super liberal friends back in California after we agreed to go. DEFENDANTS knew at this time that one of PLAINTIFF’S favorite mountain roads to travel down from SEWANEE was on Tennessee Route 56 in which PLAINTIFF would go from Sewanee, TN to Sherwood, TN and go up to and around Anderson, TN (that is on the border of Tennessee and Alabama) and turn around and go back to campus. It is about 25 minutes one way, making it about a 45-50 minute round trip—depending on how you drive.

As a good friend would do trying to expand her horizons in the United States, PLAINTIFF said: “do you want to go to Alabama? It is less than 45 minutes from here (SEWANEE) and PLAINTIFF had been aching for a little road trip for a while now.” REBECCA WETHERBEE said “Yes” and so off PLAINTIFF and REBECCA WETHERBEE went to Alabama. We drove to the TENNESSEE-ALABAMA line and stopped at a ‘Bama sign riddled with bullet holes. REBECCA WETHERBEE expressed an interest in taking photos in front of the sign as she wanted to take pictures and send it back to her friends in California and PLAINTIFF agreed with that intention and that she should eventually add it to a scrapbook documenting her future travels. PLAINTIFF took pictures of REBECCA WETHERBEE in front of the bullet hole riddled 'BAMA sign. PLAINTIFF and REBECCA WETHERBEE drove back to campus and she thanked PLAINTIFF afterwards. Most importantly, PLAINTIFF made the sarcastic joke “Itan” in a text message saying how she had been transported across state lines for immoral purposes (as a reference to her being a feminist and the Mann act). REBECCA WETHERBEE and PLAINTIFF laughed and we both understood that text as a joke and not actually serious. BUT DEFENDANTS loved it and knowingly misled the Court and utilized fabricated evidence and a completely misleading and material omission of how PLAINTIFF and REBECCA WETHERBEE understood the joke to mean at the time (which necessarily included PLAINTIFF’S subjective intent that was overruled on by SCOTUS in Ashcroft v. al-Kidd, 563 U.S. 731 (2011). See: Miki’s Tea Party). Based on circumstances now known to PLAINTIFF, DEFENDANTS utilized said text message by omitting the context behind the text message to materially mislead the court and obstruct justice by fabricating evidence against PLAINTIFF in which PLAINTIFF would falsely be made out to be a child sex trafficker when PLAINTIFF would never do such an act in reality or be a part of it.

The Matter with REBECCA WETHERBEE (to the best of PLAINTIFF’S recollection) and the ‘Bama Incident were not that far apart from one another as they had both occurred in Fall 2010 to the best of PLAINTIFF'S recollection, and/or prior to the Court granting cert on October 18th, 2010 to Ashcroft v. al-Kidd, 563 U.S. 731 (2011). PLAINTIFF knows there is a picture of the 'Bama incident out there and is on REBECCA WETHERBEE'S Facebook page. PLAINTIFF was prevented from ascertaining when the 'Bama incident' occurred on Facebook because PLAINTIFF was prevented from seeing any of REBECCA WETHERBEE'S posts prior to September 18th, 2011. (See: Screenshot above from 08/24/2023). Probably the 'Bama Incident happened in September, October, or November 2010. Probably OCTOBER 2010. PLAINTIFF is unsure of when it occurred; it did occur PLAINTIFF'S Senior Year in High School.

There is something else that is far more sinister at work here, the likes of which the Court has never seen before. PLAINTIFF is alleging that DEFENDANTS knew of PLAINTIFF'S overreactions to women expressing being hurt because PLAINTIFF was overly sensitive and felt their pain and would try anything to alleviate the insecurities as PLAINTIFF was a rescuer. DEFENDANTS knew of PLAINTIFF'S personality exactly. So, DEFENDANTS had concocted another scheme to fabricate materially misleading evidence in order to psychopathically INDUCE PLAINTIFF to have an overly emotional reaction to the message being sent and had given a pre-composed message to REBECCA WETHERBEE to send to PLAINTIFF to intentionally fabricate materially misleading evidence and paid REBECCA WETHERBEE to send the message on purpose. REBECCA WETHERBEE became an informant for DEFENDANTS in from at least September or October 2010 (if she was not a law enforcement officer). REBECCA WETHERBEE then sends an extremely emotional and "drunk" message that went along the lines of her describing her insecurity (which came off as a fear of abandonment to PLAINTIFF) about REBECCA and PLAINTIFF'S friendship that would supposedly come to an end because PLAINTIFF was a senior in SEWANEE and REBECCA WETHERBEE was a freshman at SEWANEE. This psychotic calculation necessarily required and induced PLAINTIFF to discuss age because PLAINTIFF did not have a lot of friends at the time and was not that well liked on campus in which PLAINTIFF did not want to lose the scant friends he had at the time. PLAINTIFF had to address it because she brought it up and in order to calm her down. By DEFENDANTS sending this message knowing all of PLAINTIFF'S weaknesses because he was lonely, not well liked due in a large part because of DEFENDANTS fabrications, and didn't want to lose a friend, PLAINTIFF would reasonably-- and psychopathically calculated to be--induced to respond in such a way as to have DEFENDANTS obtain all of the materially misleading evidence needed to support a malicious accusation against PLAINTIFF in light of the jokes made about the 'BAMA Incident and in the creation of the false narrative that PLAINTIFF was trafficking minors. Part of their false narrative necessarily included having a young vulnerable woman who expresses fears of having her alleged traffickers abandoning her, and this, unfortunately, is a common psychological phenomenon that occurs in that type of relationship. At no time did PLAINTIFF ever traffic individuals and at no time did PLAINTIFF ever traffic minors for immoral purposes. PLAINTIFF was not predisposed to trafficking anyone, especially kids for immoral purposes.

BUT, as it has become that apparent by now to you, knowing the lengths DEFENDANTS will go to, PLAINTIFF is alleging how if DEFENDANTS were to omit how PLAINTIFF had the ALVAREZ parents' actual permission to take their kids from school home, informed the principal of such, had attempted to call the parents 3 times prior to taking their kids home in Big Brothers Big Sister, and then calling the ALVAREZ parents again and leaving a message their kids were home safely OR alternatively, as PLAINTIFF is alleging, DEFENDANTS had corrupted the ALVAREZs in either tampering with them or paying them for their perjured testimony in which they lied about not giving PLAINTIFF permission to take their kids home. What you have in those circumstances is PLAINTIFF transporting kids thereby making PLAINTIFF predisposed to the crime therefore eliminating the absolutely valid entrapment defense. SCOTUS granted cert on October 18th, 2010. Exactly one week later and one week before Miki's Tea Party, DEFENDANTS HILLARY CLINTON and HUMA ABEDIN'S email on 10/24/2010 says the following: "Tonite: - the natgeo people will present you with the world map you admired but they think its a surprise to you..."⁴⁴⁷ This email from HILLARY CLINTON was part of the nexus connecting DEFENDANTS to that scheme involving REBECCA WETHERBEE and PLAINTIFF in Miki's Tea Party.

So, what did autistic PLAINTIFF say exactly when he was completely exhausted at 1 am in trying to calm down an overly emotional and drunk woman ? PLAINTIFF, in attempting to calm down an overly drunk and emotional woman that had a fear of abandonment at ONE IN THE MORNING, AND ONLY ADDRESSING THE AGE APPROPRIATENESS OF A FRIENDSHIP BETWEEN A FRESHMAN AND SENIOR IN COLLEGE, the following message sent by PLAINTIFF to REBECCA WETHERBEE:

Miki Kotevski Friday, September 24, 2010 at 12:48am CDT to Rebecca Wetherbee:

Dear Becca, I have a couple of things to say. first off, if you are sketched out by me, then please, dont waste your time with me because i have a far lot of better things to be doing than to waste my time with someone who is completely artificial. if you believe you are, then dont bother with me anymore. you then look at the fact that yes i am a senior and that you are freshman. does it really matter that age matters? apparently to you, you would rather hang out with a freshman who doesnt care at all than a senior who does. yet you were completely judgmental. i have never judged you, i understand you. if you want to keep judging me, fine, go ahead. here is my idea: if you are deep and if you want to understand me, than keep talking to me. you'll learn that guys who truly care are rare. Miki

Rebecca Wetherbee Friday, September 24, 2010 at 8:58am CDT to Miki Kotevski

Miki Im really sorry about what i said. I didn't mean it and i was really drunk. I understand that you're really pissed off and probably never want to talk to me again. But all i can really do is apologize and hope we can move past this. Although i've done a

⁴⁴⁷ <https://wikileaks.org/clinton-emails/emailid/30647>

shitty job of showing it, your friendship means alot to me and i will do everything i can to make it up to u. Becca

Hands down, this message has been one of the worst mistakes of PLAINTIFF's life.

This will come up again in An Anchor and a Pitchfork. PLAINTIFF tried to use absolute language to calm REBECCA WETHERBEE down to alleviate her of her personal and hysterical fears and insecurities so she would know that PLAINTIFF wouldn't abandon her because she was younger than PLAINTIFF. In PLAINTIFF'S mind at the time of composing the message at 1AM, the audience of this message was addressed specifically for REBECCA WETHERBEE and only for REBECCA WETHERBEE at the exact moment of transmission, which was discussing the age appropriateness of either a 17/18 year old freshman college student at the time talking to a 22 year old senior college student attending the same college and being friends. Looking back at it, it was around 1 in the morning when PLAINTIFF sent that message to her and, unequivocally, PLAINTIFF admits it was awkwardly phrased. Fuck me. The exact context of PLAINTIFF's mind when PLAINTIFF sent this message was "I'm so tired and I don't want to deal with her drunk bullshit now or in the morning, so I'll send it now so I can get some sleep." Furthermore, it was a rhetorical question and NOT a statement of fact. PLAINTIFF or DEFENDANTS still could have answered YES AGE DOES MATTER and still have it apply logically in that message. Its not an admission of guilt. It is not a statement that is condoning or supporting inappropriate relationships between adults and children. Of course, age matters in numerous different contexts. That fucking message, PLAINTIFF tells you, that motherfucking message has been used out of the proper context so many times. PLAINTIFF, based on information and belief, believes this one Facebook message has been used by DEFENDANTS in warrants, in intel briefings, in congressional briefings, and so much more in which the context of the message and the totality of the circumstances were omitted and materially mischaracterized and false. See: Some of DEFENDANTS violations: 18 U.S.C §1951 (EXTORTION); Title VI of the Civil Rights Act, 18 U.S.C. §1862 (d); 18 U.S.C. §1862 (c); 18 U.S.C. §1862 (b); 18 U.S.C. §1862 (a); 42 U.S.C. §1981; 42 U.S.C. §1983, 42 U.S.C. §1985(2); 42 U.S.C. §1985(3); 42 U.S.C. §1986; 18 U.S.C. §226, 18 U.S.C. §241, 42 U.S.C. §1983, 18 U.S.C. §1961 Sections 1581-1590 (relating to peonage), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1510 (relating to obstruction of criminal investigations), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1343 (wire fraud), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1346 (to deprive another of the intangible right of honest services"), 18 U.S.C. §1961 Section 1503, 18 U.S. Code §201 (bribery), 18 U.S.C. §872 (Extortion by officer), 18 U.S. Code § 875, 18 U.S. Code § 880 (receives proceeds of extortion), Section 504, and PLAINTIFF'S 1st, 4th, 5th, 6th, 8th, 9th, 10th, 13th, and 14th Amendment rights.

PETER STRZOK, ANDREW MCCABE, and DEFENDANTS are complete savage hypocrites because PETER STRZOK testified the following to Congress in 2018 (below)

Mr. Lieu. All right. To selectively take text messages in the abstract and launch them on TV or used by my Republican colleagues to take them out of context is wrong and it is not the truth. Isn't that right?

Mr. Strzok. That's correct.

concerning subjective understanding in the text messages and messages sent between people that SCOTUS prohibited PLAINTIFF from being able to effectively argue based on their ruling in Ashcroft v. al-Kidd, 563 U.S. 731 (2011) that limited the applicability of “statutory interpretation” by omitting the subjective understanding and mens rea of the writer of the message. See: Miki’s Tea Party.

There are different standards for different people. PLAINTIFF wants equal treatment under the law. DEFENDANTS deliberately mischaracterized the “Matters” message as it was routinely utilized by DEFENDANTS from at least September 2010 through 2016.

If you think that is bad, it gets even worse.

PLAINTIFF having been bullied relentlessly his freshman year and acquiring a bad reputation, knew the importance of solitude and peace of a room or being away from your roommate. PLAINTIFF knew the lessons of This Side of the Street and tried to move on and not have DEFENDANTS in DC ruin the sense of community created in SEWANEE. Essentially, PLAINTIFF wanted to be that open and supportive of any of his friends, especially women, in which if REBECCA WETHERBEE was having a hard time or felt lazy and needed a place to escape to on campus, she could come to PLAINTIFF'S room at any time. PLAINTIFF made a big mistake with REBECCA WETHERBEE in giving her that offer because she abused the trust of PLAINTIFF as it will become apparent. PLAINTIFF left his room unlocked in ELLIOTT Hall in SEWANEE. The diagram⁴⁴⁸ to the right is ELLIOTT HALL 3rd Floor. PLAINTIFF'S ROOM his Senior Year at SEWANEE was room #31 (s meaning single). Furthest from the interior stairs in which there would be less hall traffic as PLAINTIFF wanted peace and privacy and wanted his own DOJO—close to central campus, but private enough to have a dojo. No one to really bother you so no need to lock the door and of course, the HONOR CODE was in place. There was an exit door that had a staircase right next to PLAINTIFF'S room in which you could only leave from the exit door (that didn't have an alarm but was locked at all times that served as a de-facto fire emergency exit, but wasn't where you could normally leave if you wanted to). PLAINTIFF loved his room that year. He had a couch, fridge, desk, and bed and was kind of big, PLAINTIFF was set.

Then there were bad times. First, REBECCA WETHERBEE had wanted PLAINTIFF to be her boyfriend. PLAINTIFF rejected her advances and said PLAINTIFF and REBECCA WETHERBEE were just going to be friends. REBECCA WETHERBEE, at times, would get drunk and it would affect her behavior in which she would say or do things that were not acceptable; PLAINTIFF would forgive her as PLAINTIFF understood what it meant to be young and under the influence of alcohol and would hope to move on from her drunken behavior. Then, REBECCA WETHERBEE and GRIFFIN FRY ended up being in the same sorority at SEWANEE in the Spring Semester of 2011 (and that is precisely when the craziness is accelerated further). PLAINTIFF alleges that DEFENDANTS conspired with one another throughout November 2010 to May 15th,

2011 when PLAINTIFF graduated and left SEWANEE in order to intentionally deprive PLAINTIFF of his constitutional rights and continue the pattern of ongoing racketeering in furtherance of RICO Enterprise 1. PLAINTIFF recalls the fact that in FALL 2010, GRIFFIN FRY and REBECCA WETHERBEE had been introduced to one another after REBECCA WETHERBEE informed PLAINTIFF of such. PLAINTIFF was necessarily and unequivocally talked about between REBECCA WETHERBEE and GRIFFIN FRY in FALL 2010 and SPRING 2011. Section 215 could be utilized to show the conspiracy against PLAINTIFF by GRIFFIN FRY and REBECCA WETHERBEE.

There were numerous times in which PLAINTIFF should have called the police on REBECCA WETHERBEE in which she 1) admitted to going into my room and stealing PLAINTIFF'S large light green ralph lauren polo boxers without my consent.⁴⁴⁹ PLAINTIFF believes this was done out of spite by GRIFFIN FRY and DEFENDANTS because there was a photo that PLAINTIFF had taken of GRIFFIN FRY in his room his Freshman year in which GRIFFIN FRY'S light green underwear were visible (but not prominent). GRIFFIN FRY knew about the existence of this photo; and 2) One night, REBECCA WETHERBEE is drunk and is in PLAINTIFF'S room. Prior to this incident, PLAINTIFF is alleging that DEFENDANTS and GRIFFIN FRY or someone else had informed REBECCA WETHERBEE of what happened between WES CRANE and PLAINTIFF in POP GOES A WEASEL. REBECCA WETHERBEE goes to my bathroom, closes the door, and sometime passes. Then from the other side of the door, REBECCA WETHERBEE says something to the effect that she is going to lay there or spend the night in the bathroom. This is completely unacceptable to PLAINTIFF as PLAINTIFF has his bed and a couch that folds in half and forms a bed. There are two beds for her to sleep on and pass out in. PLAINTIFF says no, she needs to come here now. The bathroom door is opened at this point and PLAINTIFF at least gets REBECCA WETHERBEE off from laying on the floor and sitting next to the toilet. PLAINTIFF asks her to come here in the room now. REBECCA WETHERBEE doesn't. PLAINTIFF pleads with her commonly and asks her nicely to go to the couch or bed. REBECCA WETHERBEE refuses. PLAINTIFF does this at least three times or more. REBECCA WETHERBEE refuses to move. PLAINTIFF starts to get a little irritated and the commands become more forceful. REBECCA WETHERBEE refuses to move. PLAINTIFF has asked her to leave the bathroom in which he is starting to raise his voice after 6 or more times asking her to move into the room so that she is not sitting in the bathroom as it is a shared bathroom and PLAINTIFF had roommates that were connected in the bathroom. PLAINTIFF says he is going to call the cops if she doesn't move and PLAINTIFF really wanted to call the cops and should have called the cops; but thought better of it because of the prior history between SEWANEE PD and PLAINTIFF and PLAINTIFF caring for a drunk friend did not want her to experience what happened to PLAINTIFF in This Side of the Street and did not want her to have a record for being intoxicated). PLAINTIFF is doing everything imaginable to get her to move from the bathroom and not have a repeat of Pop Goes the Weasel. At the exact moment of the 7th or so request of PLAINTIFF asking her to move, an insidious smirk came across her face in which REBECCA WETHERBEE is reveling in disobeying PLAINTIFF'S commands and that is when PLAINTIFF lost it and started yelling at her loudly to get the hell out of PLAINTIFF'S room (the neighbors hear it and PLAINTIFF is talked to by the head of ELLIOTT Hall). PLAINTIFF never hit REBECCA WETHERBEE that night or any of the nights. In spite of all of that, REBECCA WETHERBEE knew she could get away with it and that is why she smirked; but despite yelling at her, PLAINTIFF was autistic, compassionate, and social and PLAINTIFF didn't want to harm her future career and life by being falsely labeled a sex offender for coming into PLAINTIFF'S room and stealing his underwear or having a criminal charge for being intoxicated and drunk under the age of 21 when she wouldn't leave. PLAINTIFF forgave her for her egregious actions. PLAINTIFF thought after explaining the situation to her in person afterwards and told her to go get psychological help because PLAINTIFF was concerned for her and her well-being, her behavior would change for the better.

Then another sinister thing. REBECCA WETHERBEE and PLAINTIFF were sarcastic with one another. REBECCA WETHERBEE was a SATANIST or at least had more than a morbid curiosity with Satanism. Jesus taught PLAINTIFF that PLAINTIFF has to love everyone, including devil worshippers, and it is an Orthodox belief that all people can be forgiven, including the devil. So PLAINTIFF tried to show her the light while being her friend. One time, PLAINTIFF said in a sarcastic message to her something along the lines of go sacrifice a goat to Moloch or the devil or something along those lines. PLAINTIFF can't remember what PLAINTIFF said exactly. That text, taken out of sarcastic context, had me labeled as a Satan worshipper from then on, which deeply offends me as an Orthodox Christian. This will come up later when CHERYL MILLS emails HILLARY CLINTON in July 2015 the following: "With fingers crossed, the old rabbit's foot out of the box in the attic, I will be sacrificing a chicken in the backyard to Moloch." One of PLAINTIFF's cousins had nicknamed PLAINTIFF chicken because of his awkward gait and chicken legs and DEFENDANTS knew this nickname. This will come up in An Anchor and a Pitchfork.

How about a PETER STRZOK quote: "Sources are rarely angels"⁴⁵⁰; in fact, the best information sometimes comes from devils, wrapped in lies and half-truths."⁴⁵¹ One time PLAINTIFF had talked to REBECCA WETHERBEE about Seduction by ROBERT GREENE where PLAINTIFF was relaying info from Robert Greene's book about Seduction in which he makes the argument that the best seducers tell lies wrapped in half-truths. PLAINTIFF said something along the lines of, according to that book, the best seducer makes use of lies and half-truths; PLAINTIFF is too autistic and too honest to be a seducer. PLAINTIFF is not a seducer by any stretch of the imagination. REBECCA WETHERBEE was also a self-proclaimed satanist. PLAINTIFF is just demonstrating that PETER STRZOK knew of the interactions between REBECCA WETHERBEE and PLAINTIFF.

So after PLAINTIFF'S forgiveness and compassion for her prior incidents, REBECCA WETHERBEE, who having turned 18 by this time in Spring 2011, then tried to blackmail and extort PLAINTIFF, and made false and vicious accusations in my dorm hallway in front of her friend LILLY WINCHESTER (having conspired to continue the RICO predicate acts) about PLAINTIFF having sexually assaulting REBECCA WETHERBEE the night before (PLAINTIFF believes this was either in March or April 2011) in which PLAINTIFF did not sexually assault REBECCA WETHERBEE. REBECCA WETHERBEE tried to blackmail and extort PLAINTIFF by using deceptively edited and omitted context recordings of the discussion PLAINTIFF had with her about that night. On the night REBECCA WETHERBEE was referring to in which she alleged the assault took place: REBECCA WETHERBEE stayed over at PLAINTIFF'S place that night, REBECCA WETHERBEE was not intoxicated enough to be incapacitated or not be aware of what REBECCA WETHERBEE was doing, PLAINTIFF never held or pinned her down, PLAINTIFF never penetrated her with his penis nor did PLAINTIFF attempt to because PLAINTIFF had told REBECCA WETHERBEE on a different night that PLAINTIFF was not the man to break REBECCA WETHERBEE'S virginity and that REBECCA WETHERBEE should do it with someone special because my Christian beliefs would not have allowed PLAINTIFF to break her virginity. PLAINTIFF never coerced REBECCA WETHERBEE into doing anything she was uncomfortable with doing that night; PLAINTIFF never bruised her⁴⁵²; PLAINTIFF never hit her; PLAINTIFF never told her that she wasn't free to leave; PLAINTIFF did not pressure her in anyway. PLAINTIFF never pinned her down by her hands. DEFENDANTS through TITLE II had the full audio of this incident and they knew that the allegations were fabricated, but they allowed it because DEFENDANTS had conspired with one another prior to that night. REBECCA WETHERBEE had bruises from a prior incident in which PLAINTIFF never caused any of her bruises.

⁴⁵⁰ See: Section: Angel's and An Anchor and a Pitchfork

So what happened in bed was REBECCA WETHERBEE started to give PLAINTIFF a "hand-job." PLAINTIFF continuously asked if he could do things to gain her consent like taking off her bra to see her boobs and to touch her boobs, and more. PLAINTIFF asked her if she wanted to suck my penis and she said no, PLAINTIFF asked again and she said no, and that's when PLAINTIFF quit doing anything else further with her that night. To make REBECCA WETHERBEE feel comfortable and well rested afterwards, PLAINTIFF pulled up his boxers, set up sheets, pillow, and a blanket on PLAINTIFF's couch for PLAINTIFF to sleep on. PLAINTIFF let REBECCA WETHERBEE sleep in his bed that night. PLAINTIFF fell asleep on the couch. Since it was the weekend, that is when PLAINTIFF typically washed his bed sheets and towels during college. Then he decided to wash his bed sheets the following morning; and after putting the sheets in the washing machine, the next paragraph.

The following morning after PLAINTIFF put the bedsheets in the washing machine because it was Sunday and PLAINTIFF liked the tradition of starting the week off right with clean sheets, DEFENDANTS LILY WINCHESTER AND REBECCA WETHERBEE went PLAINTIFF'S Dorm. LILY WINCHESTER waited at the exact end and opposite side of the hallway around room 38 and 39 for a while before she started to move in closer and would have had either an extremely hard time hearing REBECCA WETHERBEE'S and PLAINTIFF'S conversations in the beginning. REBECCA WETHERBEE falsely alleged there was blood on PLAINTIFF'S sheets and bed like what GRIFFIN FRY had done with Blood being on PLAINTIFF'S hands. PLAINTIFF told REBECCA WETHERBEE to call the cops and go get luminol because there was no blood in the sheets or on the bed. REBECCA WETHERBEE then falsely alleges that PLAINTIFF committed sexual assault and PLAINTIFF and REBECCA WETHERBEE have an argument about what happened. Then REBECCA WETHERBEE, along with LILLY WINCHESTER, take selected portions of the conversations and then try to blackmail PLAINTIFF with the audio that necessarily omitted exculpatory evidence.

⁴⁵² To the best of my recollection and I don't know if this was part of it, but if it happened, then it happened the following way. If she tried to blame me for bruises she obtained, this is categorically false because I never hit her and she was fat and fell down while she was drunk and tried to blame it on me.

As a side note: furthermore, the thing that defined REBECCA WETHERBEE'S actions was that: REBECCA WETHERBEE wanted to stay without being coerced into staying. The previous incident before this false accusation, REBECCA WETHERBEE didn't want to leave my room and became belligerent when PLAINTIFF commanded her to leave and she knew she could get away with acting the way she did that night. In the night of the alleged sexual assault, REBECCA WETHERBEE was always free to leave, but REBECCA WETHERBEE didn't leave until after 6am if PLAINTIFF is not mistaken.

4 days after Miki's Tea Party on 03/15/2011 in which DEFENDANTS committed an act of domestic and international terrorism against PLAINTIFF, HUMA ABEDIN and HILLARY CLINTON talked about "connecting PATRIOTA soon"⁴⁵³ without any content provided in the emails. Only plausible and logical thing here is if you separate PATRIOT and A, you can understand that to be PATRIOT ACT and/or PATRIOT ACT and Adderall. DEFENDANTS HUMA ABEDIN and HILLARY CLINTON were FORCING TO FAKE SOME CONNECTION that they wanted to utilize the PATRIOT ACT and have a connection between PLAINTIFF'S dorm room and themselves like the actual stalkers that they were. Their connection was via DEFENDANTS: BUNDESNACHRICHTENDIENST and FINANCIAL TERRORISM that happened in November 2009 in which PLAINTIFF necessarily went through FRANKFURT AIRPORT thereby giving BUNDESNACHRICHTENDIENST jurisdiction to surveil me, on top of 5 EYES and MI5/MI6 gaining jurisdiction over PLAINTIFF after Miki's Tea Party on 03/11/2011, on top of different DEFENDANTS and using TITLE II and the USA PATRIOT ACT erroneously that deprived PLAINTIFF of his rights. This violated 18 U.S.C §1951 (EXTORTION); Title VI of the Civil Rights Act, 18 U.S.C. §1862 (d); 18 U.S.C. §1862 (c); 18 U.S.C. §1862 (b); 18 U.S.C. §1862 (a); 42 U.S.C. §1981; 42 U.S.C. §1983, 42 U.S.C. §1985(2); 42 U.S.C. §1985(3); 42 U.S.C. §1986; 18 U.S.C. §226, 18 U.S.C. §241, 42 U.S.C. §1983, 18 U.S.C. §1961 Sections 1581-1590 (relating to peonage), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1510 (relating to obstruction of criminal investigations), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1343 (wire fraud), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1346 (to deprive another of the intangible right of honest services"), 18 U.S.C. §1961 Section 1503, 18 U.S. Code §201 (bribery), 18 U.S.C. §872 (Extortion by officer), 18 U.S. Code § 875, 18 U.S. Code § 880 (receives proceeds of extortion), Section 504, and PLAINTIFF'S 1st, 4th, 5th, 6th, 8th, 9th, 10th, 13th, and 14th Amendment rights.

4 days later, DEFENDANTS HILLARY CLINTON sent HUMA ABEDIN on 03/19/2011 at 08:43 am the following email with the subject line "Re: Need to talk - pls call:" The Content of the email: "Can you get my berry and charge. I don't think the socket in the room worked."⁴⁵⁴ The response from HUMA ABEDIN to HILLARY CLINTON was sent 12 minutes later at 08:55: "Coming to get it." True, it could plausibly refer to DEFENDANT'S failure in charging her Blackberry on a low battery; but think of how absurd that explanation is in reality with the following explanation. 1) What time did HILLARY CLINTON wake up on Saturday, 03/19/2011? Is it normal for the Secretary of State of the USA to wake up at 8, 8:30am and then discover a low battery on her phone or is it one where the Secretary of State of the USA woke up far earlier that day, say 5am, 6am, had breakfast, did her makeup and got dressed, and was getting some work done to realize there is a different problem? 2) From what device did HILLARY CLINTON send this email from? Her laptop? Desktop? 3) HILLARY CLINTON and her staff (including HUMA ABEDIN) while DEFENDANT was the U.S. Secretary of State were “considered BlackBerry “addicts””⁴⁵⁵ in which a Washington Post story “noted that HILLARY CLINTON wielded her BlackBerry even as State Department officials searched for ways to officially accommodate it...”⁴⁵⁶ If someone is an addict to their Blackberry, are you telling PLAINTIFF that HILLARY CLINTON (the Secretary of State of the USA) was not capable of finding a plug in the location she was at that day that would charge her BlackBerry phone? 4) PLAINTIFF’S explanation: berry is a homophone of Barry, which is another name for BARACK OBAMA in which HILLARY CLINTON wanted to charge PLAINTIFF with a crime a week or so after 03/11/2011 in Miki’s Tea Party. What didn’t work for HILLARY CLINTON was the probability that there was some audio recording device or video camera installed in an electrical socket of PLAINTIFF’S dorm room (that was unconstitutionally placed via the USA PATRIOT ACT via BARACK OBAMA and ERIC HOLDER who had the authority to do that) was not functioning correctly. DEFENDANTS were not coming to get the phone, but were coming to get PLAINTIFF after Miki’s Tea Party. This violated 18 U.S.C §1951 (EXTORTION); Title VI of the Civil Rights Act, 18 U.S.C.§1862 (d); 18 U.S.C.§1862 (c); 18 U.S.C.§1862 (b); 18 U.S.C.§1862 (a); 42 U.S.C. §1981; 42 U.S.C.§1983, 42 U.S.C. §1985(2); 42 U.S.C. §1985(3); 42 U.S.C. §1986; 18 U.S.C.§226, 18 U.S.C. §241, 42 U.S.C. §1983, 18 U.S.C. §1961 Sections 1581-1590 (relating to peonage), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1510 (relating to obstruction of criminal investigations), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1343 (wire fraud), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1346 (to deprive another of the intangible right of honest services”), 18 U.S.C. §1961 Section 1503, 18 U.S. Code §201 (bribery), 18 U.S.C. §872 (Extortion by officer), 18 U.S. Code § 875, 18 U.S. Code § 880 (receives proceeds of extortion), Section 504, and PLAINTIFF’S 1st, 4th, 5th, 6th, 8th, 9th, 10th, 13th, and 14th Amendment rights.

The Fifth Circuit has ruled, twice, that a defense of governmental misconduct, which is separate and distinct from ‘Entrapment,’ may bar a criminal prosecution on due process grounds in United States v. Marcello, 508 F. Supp. 586 (E.D. La. 1981) (holding: governmental overreaching presents a cognizable and legitimate defense) and United States v. Graves, 556 F.2d 1319 (5th Cir. 1977), the court ruling that “[t]here is still available in appropriate cases a governmental misconduct defense grounded on the dual principles of due process and the supervisory powers of the court, but such a defense does not fall within the narrow confines of ‘entrapment’ as that term has been explicated in Russell and Hampton.”

Something happens after the Berry charge emails and they temporarily think better about it and then HUMA ABEDIN and HILLARY CLINTON had this email on 04/11/2011: “also, seems like we are all on the same page regarding no qatar? its also too tough logistically without blowing up your schedule. and you would have to make hbj delay the meeting when all other ministers are asking him to make it earlier and earlier. the whole thing would be a mess.”⁴⁵⁷ This is both a reference to the state of affairs of Qatar and to PLAINTIFF. As a reference matter, ‘qatar’ is a reference to Qatar Airlines and PLAINTIFF’S visit to London-

Heathrow on 03/11/2011. Schedule is referring to Schedule drugs or the delay in schedule of United Airlines Flight #925 on 03/11/2011. The other ministers who are pressing for charges are the INDIANS and the BRITISH. This demonstrates that DEFENDANTS came to a mutual agreement in the conspiracy involving Miki's Tea Party that DEFENDANTS understood it became a liability to DEFENDANTS afterwards and how DEFENDANTS would not use Miki's Tea Party against PLAINTIFF. When DEFENDANTS talked about how it was too tough logistically without blowing up the schedule, they were continuing to perpetuate the egregious and unconstitutional use of USA PATRIOT ACT in which PLAINTIFF did not meet the criteria stipulated therein because PLAINTIFF had not trafficked drugs, had no legitimate and actual plans to engage in terrorism, DEFENDANTS knew their allegations were a farce in prosecuting PLAINTIFF. So then DEFENDANTS talked about the night with REBECCA WETHERBEE where 'HBJ' is a reference to the sexual acts of: Hand Job and Blow Job. 'Delay' is my developmental delays in reference to PLAINTIFF. MINISTERS is a reference that includes at least one DEFENDANT: TONY BLAIR. Most importantly to implicate a MENS REA in which DEFENDANTS had reason to know what they were doing was wrong and a complete farce was DEFENDANTS specifically said "the whole thing would be a mess." This violated 18 U.S.C §1951 (EXTORTION); Title VI of the Civil Rights Act, 18 U.S.C. §1862 (d); 18 U.S.C. §1862 (c); 18 U.S.C. §1862 (b); 18 U.S.C. §1862 (a); 42 U.S.C. §1981; 42 U.S.C. §1983, 42 U.S.C. §1985(2); 42 U.S.C. §1985(3); 42 U.S.C. §1986; 18 U.S.C. §226, 18 U.S.C. §241, 42 U.S.C. §1983, 18 U.S.C. §1961 Sections 1581-1590 (relating to peonage), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1510 (relating to obstruction of criminal investigations), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1343 (wire fraud), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1346 (to deprive another of the intangible right of honest services"), 18 U.S.C. §1961 Section 1503, 18 U.S. Code §201 (bribery), 18 U.S.C. §872 (Extortion by officer), 18 U.S. Code § 875, 18 U.S. Code § 880 (receives proceeds of extortion), Section 504, and PLAINTIFF'S 1st, 4th, 5th, 6th, 8th, 9th, 10th, 13th, and 14th Amendment rights.

So DEFENDANTS knew of REBECCA WETHERBEE and LILLY WINCHESTER'S RICO Predicate Acts having installed the most invasive surveillance techniques and devices known to man in PLAINTIFF'S Dorm Room by having used fabricated evidence to obtain a USA PATRIOT ACT surveillance order. What is clear is that there was some type of listening or recording device DEFENDANTS had placed in PLAINTIFF'S socket in his dorm room. DEFENDANTS knowing the crimes were occurring did nothing. HILLARY CLINTON and HUMA ABEDIN knew the full context of the conversations and omitted all exculpatory evidence. So prior to the incident, HILLARY CLINTON wanted to prosecute PLAINTIFF for unknown crime. They couldn't do Miki's Tea Party against PLAINTIFF at that time, but really wanted to try with REBECCA WETHERBEE involving sex and drugs.

To supplement these facts, PLAINTIFF remembers around the same time as the false accusation of sexual assault, REBECCA WETHERBEE had demanded that PLAINTIFF get her money to continue to go to SEWANEE. DEFENDANTS know the exact content of this message and crimes. Even after going through what PLAINTIFF went through the year before, PLAINTIFF told REBECCA WETHERBEE he was not responsible for paying for her education and PLAINTIFF suggested ways of going about and getting scholarship and financial aid help to continue to attend school. REBECCA WETHERBEE'S extortion threats were legitimate since she was willing to use intentionally misleading audio recordings that omitted exculpatory facts in the accusation of sexual assault By having done those crimes and having admitted on

META/FACEBOOK to stealing PLAINTIFF'S Green Ralph Lauren Boxers in which PLAINTIFF'S boxers (with absolutely no doubt) contained PLAINTIFF'S pubic hairs, REBECCA WETHERBEE had all of the fabricated evidence necessary to make a solid allegation of Sexual Assault with PLAINTIFF'S background. REBECCA WETHERBEE'S actions clearly constituted blackmail and extortion. DEFENDANTS knew REBECCA WETHERBEE'S RICO predicate acts and did nothing. Yet PLAINTIFF forgave REBECCA WETHERBEE again and tried to move on even when it was not in PLAINTIFF'S interest. Also, PLAINTIFF never did a quid pro quo to help REBECCA WETHERBEE get better grades or get any favors as my position as T.A. There was not a single incident in which it was even questionable that PLAINTIFF abused his position as T.A. This violated 18 U.S.C §1951 (EXTORTION); Title VI of the Civil Rights Act, 18 U.S.C.§1862 (d); 18 U.S.C.§1862 (c); 18 U.S.C.§1862 (b); 18 U.S.C.§1862 (a); 42 U.S.C. §1981; 42 U.S.C.§1983, 42 U.S.C. §1985(2); 42 U.S.C. §1985(3); 42 U.S.C. §1986; 18 U.S.C.§226, 18 U.S.C. §241, 42 U.S.C. §1983, 18 U.S.C. §1961 Sections 1581-1590 (relating to peonage), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1510 (relating to obstruction of criminal investigations), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1343 (wire fraud), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1346 (to deprive another of the intangible right of honest services"), 18 U.S.C. §1961 Section 1503, 18 U.S. Code §201 (bribery), 18 U.S.C. §872 (Extortion by officer), 18 U.S. Code § 875, 18 U.S. Code § 880 (receives proceeds of extortion), Section 504, and PLAINTIFF'S 1st, 4th, 5th, 6th, 8th, 9th, 10th, 13th, and 14th Amendment rights.

Then a week or two after the false accusation, REBECCA WETHERBEE had the audacity to ask PLAINTIFF to purchase my prescription Adderall (which PLAINTIFF would not do for her). Instead of PLAINTIFF not calling the cops on her for a THIRD TIME, and so vile and abhorrent were REBECCA WETHERBEE'S malicious and false accusations and treatment to PLAINTIFF as her friend that cared about her that she did this instead of apologizing to PLAINTIFF, that PLAINTIFF autistically over-reacted and PLAINTIFF wanted to teach her a metaphorical lesson and get payback in a metaphorical sense. PLAINTIFF was so upset by her, PLAINTIFF was willing to get in a problematic legal situation, but not actually go to jail, because PLAINTIFF was not going to do anything illegal in his metaphorical payback scheme to REBECCA WETHERBEE. Essentially PLAINTIFF would get really close to the legality threshold, but ultimately break no laws because PLAINTIFF respects and values the law; PLAINTIFF did these actions as a young, stupid, and naïve man that didn't understand how to control my autistic over-reactions to horrid stimuli.. Also PLAINTIFF was pissed that this same woman that had been begging me to pay for her tuition had the money to want to buy drugs off of PLAINTIFF (when PLAINTIFF wouldn't sell her drugs) and believing PLAINTIFF would actually do that for REBECCA WETHERBEE —it offended me deeply. Importantly, THERE CAN BE NO CONSPIRACY TO SELL DRUGS IF PLAINTIFF NEVER WANTED TO NOR TRULY INTENDED TO SELL DRUGS IN THE FIRST PLACE FOR ANY AMOUNT OF MONEY. Conspiracy requires a common and sustained motive, and PLAINTIFF never had the motive or intention to actually sell drugs nor did PLAINTIFF have the expectation of retaining money—so what is the object of the conspiracy then? PLAINTIFF went along with REBECCA WETHERBEE'S stupid request and his metaphorical payback by seeking to get money from REBECCA WETHERBEE and disappointing REBECCA WETHERBEE with no product so that REBECCA WETHERBEE learned her metaphorical lesson of not messing with me, understanding how REBECCA WETHERBEE had treated PLAINTIFF poorly after committing RICO acts against PLAINTIFF, and for making false malicious accusations and other actions. In PLAINTIFF’S autistic mind, PLAINTIFF was going to 1) TEACH her a METHAPHORICAL LESSON and 2) get PAYBACK in a metaphorical sense hence the reason why it was disguised it as a class LESSON to get her money. Then you may be thinking, is this fraud? No. PLAINTIFF never expected to keep the $500 check REBECCA WETHERBEE gave me, and PLAINTIFF thought she was going to cancel the check (which REBECCA WETHERBEE ultimately did) anyway; if PLAINTIFF truly wanted REBECCA WETHERBEE’S money at the time, I would have demanded that the entire transaction be paid in cash from the beginning, but PLAINTIFF accepted check. PLAINTIFF deposited the check; but had seriously considered on returning it before REBECCA WETHERBEE canceled the check. Furthermore, from an economic standpoint to show that no fraud was committed, PLAINTIFF actually lost money in the transaction because PLAINTIFF sent her vitamins that were supposed to contain the Adderall and paid for the shipping. The message of “fuck you. You maliciously treated PLAINTIFF like a scumbag when PLAINTIFF forgave and kept giving REBECCA WETHERBEE chances because PLAINTIFF valued the friendship more than anything and PLAINTIFF felt bad for you” was far more important to me than receiving any money from REBECCA WETHERBEE. So then REBECCA WETHERBEE received vitamins for free at PLAINTIFF’S expense and REBECCA WETHERBEE canceled the check. PLAINTIFF thought he was done with REBECCA WETHERBEE and that she learned her lesson. Again, the autistic naïve belief that if PLAINTIFF was going to be asked about it in the future by legal counsel or an investigator, PLAINTIFF was going to tell the truth on what I TRULY INTENDED—metaphorical lesson. PLAINTIFF believes and alleges there was some sort of conspiracy between her sorority sisters and/or Rebecca Wetherbee’s friends (the ones in the photo above) and Rebecca Wetherbee and DEFENDANTS to harm me and continue the RICO Predicate acts against PLAINTIFF. REBECCA WETHERBEE violated 18 U.S.C §1951 (EXTORTION); Title VI of the Civil Rights Act, 18 U.S.C.§1862 (d); 18 U.S.C.§1862 (c); 18 U.S.C.§1862 (b); 18 U.S.C.§1862 (a); 42 U.S.C. §1981; 42 U.S.C.§1983, 42 U.S.C. §1985(2); 42 U.S.C. §1985(3); 42 U.S.C. §1986; 18 U.S.C.§226, 18 U.S.C. §241, 42 U.S.C. §1983, 18 U.S.C. §1961 Sections 1581-1590 (relating to peonage), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1510 (relating to obstruction of criminal investigations), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1343 (wire fraud), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1346 (to deprive another of the intangible right of honest services”), 18 U.S.C. §1961 Section 1503, 18 U.S. Code §201 (bribery), 18 U.S.C. §872 (Extortion by officer), 18 U.S. Code § 875, 18 U.S. Code § 880 (receives proceeds of extortion), Section 504, and PLAINTIFF’S 1st, 4th, 5th, 6th, 8th, 9th, 10th, 13th, and 14th Amendment rights.

In United States v. Anderton, 629 F.2d 1044 (5th Cir.1980), the Fifth Circuit allowed the entrapment defense in a case where law enforcement officers specifically targeted the defendant, and then put unspecified "pressure" on the unwitting middleman to bring the defendant into a pre-designed criminal scheme. This is exactly what happened regularly throughout the entire Rebecca Wetherbee scheme against PLAINTIFF by DEFENDANTS.

Transition Era. May 2011- July 2013.

I believe sometime between 2012-2014, my college friend Thao Bui needs someone to explain her situation at Sewanee and how she had troubles with the Administration there too for the US Air Force.

Furthermore, this letter/recommendation is for her to gain security clearance. So wanting to help the US Government further with someone who I would have given my life for at the time, I wrote the best damn letter of recommendation that I could have. This piece of exculpatory evidence was probably ignored by the FBI. In May 2016, THAO BUI made PLAINTIFF sign a document—the contents of which he does not know of or has been made aware of despite pleas to know to relevant organizations. However, things turned really sour between DEFENDANT THAO BUI and PLAINTIFF. PLAINTIFF confessed twice to THAO BUI in “random visits” hoping confessing would get the torture to stop. The torture did not stop. THAO BUI threatened PLAINTIFF with his life in a Facebook post either after the first confession or after both confessions—in the post below, the middle flag is a Serbian flag that refers to PLAINTIFF. The flag on the left is the same color scheme as a flag from

ROBERT MUELLER magically gains another two years of leadership at the FBI between 2011-2013 at Congress' direction and discretion (10 years from 2001 is 2011), probably because CONGRESS needed and demanded ROBERT MUELLER to keep attacking PLAINTIFF from WASHINGTON D.C.

PLAINTIFF is accepted into LSU LAW in 2013 and makes it into LSU LAW in August 2013. Finally, PLAINTIFF thought, SEWANEE era is well in the past and PLAINTIFF is making positive strides in his life. Maybe, just maybe, law enforcement can leave PLAINTIFF the fuck alone where by going to law school, PLAINTIFF is demonstrating the importance of the law and DEFENDANTS will see my actions of trying to better my life and turning my life around...

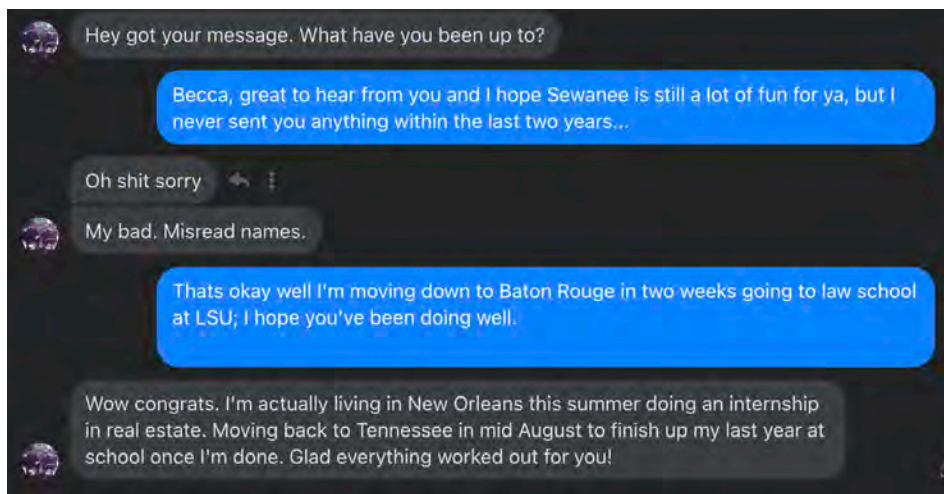

PLAINTIFF wants to give a brief explanation about his social circumstances at LSU LAW. PLAINTIFF considered Andrew Whall to be his best male friend. To my recollection, Andrew Whall worked in the Immigration clinic at LSU Law in Summer 2015. Cherry Roberts-Matherne--a military vet who interrogated POWs and terrorists abroad-- and PLAINTIFF really became great friends because the experiences Cherry and PLAINTIFF had together from 2014 onwards. First time PLAINTIFF met Cherry (August 2013) it seemed that everyone wanted to avoid her because she had failed the previous year. PLAINTIFF, admittedly, had avoided her during PLAINTIFF'S first 1L year for fear of ostracism. But PLAINTIFF failed out by 0.01 of a GPA point in MAY 2014 as did Cherry again in May 2014. CHERRY and PLAINTIFF were both were readmitted in the summer of 2014 and PLAINTIFF and CHERRY were kind of considered social outcasts because we were supposedly the dumb students that failed out of law school and would bring down people's social standing at the school if LSU LAW students associated with CHERRY and PLAINTIFF. Due to our shared experiences and the issues with the administration CHERRY and PLAINTIFF had encountered because CHERRY and

PLAINTIFF both had disability issues as well, CHERRY and PLAINTIFF became very good friends during our time at law school. Honestly, that is what helped reinforce my love for people on who they are instead of what society perceives them to be. So two of my (former) best friends served in the military and had disability related issues; and PLAINTIFF will be damned if you ever falsely accuse me of not wanting to defend troops and disabled troops because my (former) best friends were/are and having American troops in mind for them to have the necessary support when they are on college campuses. Back to it.

BUT GUESS WHAT?! The REBECCA WETHERBEE and MIKI KOTEVSKI saga wasn't over. Oh no, not by a long shot. Nothing happened to REBECCA WETHERBEE for her blatant HONOR CODE violations, extortion, and racketeering acts for what she did to PLAINTIFF and faced no repercussions for any of her actions. In between 2011-2014, PLAINTIFF was expecting to see a newspaper article posted on Facebook one day from one of her friends discussing how REBECCA WETHERBEE had been arrested and had committed these numerous federal crimes against me and that Justice was served. REBECCA WETHERBEE and the DEFENDANTS were not plotting and scheming against PLAINTIFF. PLAINTIFF alleges that DEFENDANTS paid REBECCA WETHERBEE to get back into contact with PLAINTIFF after two years of PLAINTIFF not having any contact with REBECCA WETHERBEE so that she and DEFENDANTS would continue to wreak havoc in PLAINTIFF'S life in August 2013 so that the DEFENDANTS could continue to unconstitutionally surveil PLAINTIFF and get immediate jurisdiction to open an investigation against PLAINTIFF when it should have been closed from a long long long time ago.

The message (screenshot below) is what REBECCA WETHERBEE and PLAINTIFF had in August 2013. PLAINTIFF had to play it cool and be nice with her in which in PLAINTIFF'S head at the time, he is screaming "what the hell does this psychotic bitch want to do with me now?"

PLAINTIFF absolutely read her last sentence of "glad everything worked out for you!" as the most conceivably passive aggressive statement that whatever had transpired in 2011 was not yet over in which she would continue wreak havoc in

PLAINTIFF'S life in which things would not work out for PLAINTIFF after she saw me taking positive steps in my life. PLAINTIFF alleges that whether she was actually living in New Orleans is immaterial; what is material is the likelihood that the FBI'S NEW ORLEANS field office had been in contact with REBECCA WETHERBEE and knowingly, yet again, used perjured testimony to have the FBI'S NEW ORLEANS field office start watching and surveilling PLAINTIFF from the very first moments he stepped into LOUISIANA.

So back to August 2013. REBECCA WETHERBEE communicates with PLAINTIFF and then within two weeks or so after her doing so, financial aid issues happen yet again. PLAINTIFF was denied getting or obtaining federal student loans over supposedly PLAINTIFF not having paid a hospital in Pennsylvania $42 for his twisted ankle visit in Summer 2010. The stupidity and absurdity of the reason for this denial was apparent to PLAINTIFF where why would the US Federal Government deny loans for a supposed non-payment of $42 in which they would eventually reap in that $42 in interest on PLAINTIFF'S first payment even if PLAINTIFF only lasted for a semester at law school? PLAINTIFF alleges that FBI were after PLAINTIFF financially because of the shit PLAINTIFF'S parents put him through. PLAINTIFF--as he was standing outside his apartment door (#4) at 464 E. Boyd Dr., Baton Rouge, LA—told PLAINTIFF'S brother on the phone that it was the FBI after PLAINTIFF again—God, PLAINTIFF vividly recalls that and PLAINTIFF'S brother did what he always did and completely dismissed my intuition and observation because he never gave a damn to care what PLAINTIFF thought or felt. PLAINTIFF'S appeal process for the loans was successful and PLAINTIFF thought things were going to go his way, but this just further gave justification to DEFENDANTS to watch and launch an investigation into me yet again. But the simple request of having DEFENDANTS leave PLAINTIFF the fuck alone was not good enough for them. See: Some of DEFENDANTS crimes: 18 U.S.C §1951 (EXTORTION); Title VI of the Civil Rights Act, 18 U.S.C. §1862 (d); 18 U.S.C. §1862 (c); 18 U.S.C. §1862 (b); 18 U.S.C. §1862 (a); 42 U.S.C. §1981; 42 U.S.C. §1983, 42 U.S.C. §1985(2); 42 U.S.C. §1985(3); 42 U.S.C. §1986; 18 U.S.C. §226, 18 U.S.C. §241, 42 U.S.C. §1983, 18 U.S.C. §1961 Sections 1581-1590 (relating to peonage), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1510 (relating to obstruction of criminal investigations), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1343 (wire fraud), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1346 (to deprive another of the intangible right of honest services”), 18 U.S.C. §1961 Section 1503, 18 U.S. Code §201 (bribery), 18 U.S.C. §872 (Extortion by officer), 18 U.S. Code § 875, 18 U.S. Code § 880 (receives proceeds of extortion), Section 504, and PLAINTIFF'S 1st, 4th, 5th, 6th, 8th, 9th, 10th, 13th, and 14th Amendment rights.

PLAINTIFF believes and alleges, that between the first time REBECCA WETHERBEE messages PLAINTIFF in August 2013, by September 4th, 2013, DEFENDANTS/an intelligence agency gets some sort of warrant (for what crime, PLAINTIFF doesn't know because as this meme so aptly describes:

DEFENDANTS installs some malware that is a keylog tracker that tracks everything PLAINTIFF types in his laptop, DEFENDANTS obtain all of PLAINTIFF'S passwords, therefore, they have 100% complete access to PLAINTIFF'S laptop to see what he is doing at all times. PLAINTIFF will further discuss his laptop issues in An Anchor and a Pitchfork. See: Some of DEFENDANTS crimes: 18 U.S.C §1951 (EXTORTION); Title VI of the Civil Rights Act, 18 U.S.C. §1862 (d); 18 U.S.C. §1862 (c); 18 U.S.C. §1862 (b); 18 U.S.C. §1862 (a); 42 U.S.C. §1981; 42 U.S.C. §1983, 42 U.S.C. §1985(2); 42 U.S.C. §1985(3); 42 U.S.C. §1986; 18 U.S.C. §226, 18 U.S.C. §241, 42 U.S.C. §1983, 18 U.S.C. §1961 Sections 1581-1590 (relating to peonage), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1510 (relating to obstruction of criminal investigations), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1343 (wire fraud), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1346 (to deprive another of the intangible right of honest services”), 18 U.S.C. §1961 Section 1503, 18 U.S. Code §201 (bribery), 18 U.S.C. §872 (Extortion by officer), 18 U.S. Code § 875, 18 U.S. Code § 880 (receives proceeds of extortion), Section 504, and PLAINTIFF’S 1st, 4th, 5th, 6th, 8th, 9th, 10th, 13th, and 14th Amendment rights.

“However, the facts presented by this unique record do reveal circumstances which, in combination, require reversal of these convictions. First, it was Courtney who, after the 1962 raid and arrest, re-initiated telephone contact with Becker. This re-establishment of contact occurred at a time when [DEFENDANTS] would ordinarily have had no reason to re-contact the [PLAINTIFF], because his earlier undercover work had been successfully completed.

Second, the course of events which led to the 1966 arrests was of extremely long duration, lasting approximately two and one-half years if measured from the defendants' 1963 release from jail, or three and one-half years if measured from Courtney's reinitiation of contact.

Third, Courtney's involvement in the bootlegging activities was not only extended in duration, but also substantial in nature. He treated Thomas and Becker as partners. He offered to provide a still, a still site, still equipment, and an operator. He actually provided two thousand pounds of sugar at wholesale.

Fourth, Courtney applied pressure to prod Becker and Thomas into production of bootleg alcohol. The Government concedes that Courtney made the statement, "the boss is on my back." And we believe that in the context of criminal "syndicate" operations, of which Courtney was ostensibly a part, this statement could only be construed as a veiled threat.

Fifth, the Government, through its agent Courtney, did not simply attach itself to an on-going bootlegging operation for the purpose of closing it down and prosecuting the operators. Any continuing operation had been terminated with the 1962 raid and arrest. We think, rather, that the procedure followed by Courtney in this case helped first to re-establish, and then to sustain, criminal operations which had ceased with the first convictions.

Finally, throughout the entire period involved, the government agent was the only customer of the illegal operation he had helped to create. It is undisputed that the only alcohol sold went to Courtney, who paid for it with government funds.

It is true that the Government offers plausible explanations for some of Courtney's actions. We also acknowledge that, taken individually, none of the factors which we have pointed to as significant would necessarily require reversal of a conviction. In our view, it is the combination which is important.

We do not believe the Government may involve itself so directly and continuously over such a long period of time in the creation and maintenance of criminal operations, and yet prosecute its collaborators. As pointed out in Sherman v. United States, supra, 356 U.S. at 372, 78 S.Ct. at 821, a certain amount of stealth and strategy "are necessary weapons in the arsenal of the police officer." But, although this is not an entrapment case, when the Government permits itself to become enmeshed in criminal activity, from beginning to end, to the extent which appears here, the same underlying objections which render entrapment repugnant to American criminal justice are operative. Under these circumstances, the Government's conduct rises to a level of " creative activity" (Sherman, supra, at 372, 78 S.Ct. at 821), substantially more intense and aggressive than the level of such activity charged against the Government in numerous entrapment cases we have examined.

Greene v. United States, 454 F.2d 783, 786-87 (9th Cir. 1972)

When PLAINTIFF entered law school in August 2013, this was the exact time DEFENDANTS could have said: we have pushed PLAINTIFF way too far with our actions and we should stop it and leave him alone. If it wasn't for DEFENDANTS justifying their surveillance and RICO Enterprise via REBECCA WETHERBEE. This was a key junction in PLAINTIFF'S life where DEFENDANTS could have ceased their terrorist activities and RICO Enterprise 1 against PLAINTIFF because there should have been someone that recognized it was a huge fucking problem and should have put an immediate end to RICO Enterprise 1. But DEFENDANTS did not.

Fool Me Once, Shame On Me. Fool Me Twice, Shame On You.

Minimum amount of damage deriving from this incident and because of how it would be maliciously used by DEFENDANTS later against PLAINTIFF based on prior actions involving REBECCA WETHERBEE just because they used her as justification with those facebook messages: $100,000,000. With Treble Damages. $300,000,000.

PLAINTIFF lives exactly the way you would expect any normal first year law school student to live. PLAINTIFF doesn't do anything illegal in Louisiana. DEFENDANTS know this and DEFENDANTS have no reason to believe that PLAINTIFF is doing anything wrong in his life at that time. DEFENDANTS do what they have always done in PLAINTIFF'S life: unjustly provoke him and antagonize PLAINTIFF.

Late Fall 2013, a stranger named "Matt" moves into the apartment complex PLAINTIFF is living at. "Matt" allegedly is a male nurse from Indiana. PLAINTIFF'S father, who had full control of all the money in the family, buys PLAINTIFF in 2011 a 2007 Mercedes Benz E550. PLAINTIFF loved his Audi A4 more than the Mercedes Benz E550, but the Benz is a nice car nonetheless. The only plausible connection to "Matt" and Indiana is the Mercedes Benz E550 because the previous owner of the vehicle (from what PLAINTIFF ascertained) was from Indianapolis, Indiana. Again, PLAINTIFF receives the car as a gift in which there was always an understanding that the Mercedes Benz was PLAINTIFF'S father's vehicle, but that PLAINTIFF had the privilege of driving it. PLAINTIFF'S current understanding is that "Matt" was an undercover agent for either the DEA, FBI, DHS, or CIA, most likely than not for either DHS or DEA. DHS most likely though CIA is a distinct possibility. For what crime was "Matt" investigating or interrogating PLAINTIFF over? PLAINTIFF has no remote idea. But the issues always were with PLAINTIFF'S father. The reason why PLAINTIFF thinks "Matt" was an undercover agent was that in probably 2018 or 2019, PLAINTIFF can't recall exactly which year it was because of my Complex Post Traumatic Stress Disorder that effected PLAINTIFF'S memory recall from like 2017-2019, of when PLAINTIFF last saw "Matt" at that time, but he came back in my life. It took me more than 5 hours of being in the presence of “Matt” then for me to finally shout his undercover name of “Matt” in the car that PLAINTIFF was all but forced to ride with him. See some of DEFENDANTS crimes of 18 U.S.C §1951 (EXTORTION); Title VI of the Civil Rights Act, 18 U.S.C. §1862 (d); 18 U.S.C. §1862 (c); 18 U.S.C. §1862 (b); 18 U.S.C. §1862 (a); 42 U.S.C. §1981; 42 U.S.C. §1983, 42 U.S.C. §1985(2); 42 U.S.C. §1985(3); 42 U.S.C. §1986; 18 U.S.C. §226, 18 U.S.C. §241, 42 U.S.C. §1983, 18 U.S.C. §1961 Sections 1581-1590 (relating to peonage), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1510 (relating to obstruction of criminal investigations), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1343 (wire fraud), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1346 (to deprive another of the intangible right of honest services”), 18 U.S.C. §1961 Section 1503, 18 U.S. Code §201 (bribery), 18 U.S.C. §872 (Extortion by officer), 18 U.S. Code § 875, 18 U.S. Code § 880 (receives proceeds of extortion), Section 504, and PLAINTIFF’S 1st, 4th, 5th, 6th, 8th, 9th, 10th, 13th, and 14th Amendment rights.

PLAINTIFF tells Matt about the following during the time PLAINTIFF knows him in Louisiana. Let PLAINTIFF describe an issue that is difficult for people for autistic people to understand in courtship. As a man, a man must take initiative in courting a woman in which he must be the one that advances to a woman. If he fails to do so, then he is placed in the friend zone and/or he shows that he lacks ambition or desire for that woman because he doesn’t have the ‘drive’ for her. Furthermore, if he doesn’t advance at the opportune time, he is then perceived as lacking confidence. He must read these very small subtle signs or cues that are not verbally stated in courtship. Even if they are verbally stated, most of the time, these cues are said in such an unapparent manner that autistic people don’t know when it happens and it goes right over our heads. Sometimes, the escalation--driven by initiative--that is needed in courtship happens in a night; sometimes, it takes months; sometimes it takes year or more, it all completely depends on the circumstances. There’s no social manual. PLAINTIFF, despite what DEFENDANTS will allege, had some issues of being dominate or assertive in nature (because of all the shit DEFENDANTS put me through as well as all of the raging narcissistic, borderline psychotic, abuse experienced by PLAINTIFF by his father. Being assertive or dominating is a trait that a good proportion of women desire in men. PLAINTIFF had been flirting with a woman named Celeste Birdsall over text multiple nights and, from PLAINTIFF’S understanding, appeared to have some things going in which there was some romantic interest conveyed by Celeste Birdsall. It is Halloween 2013, and she is wearing a corset in which her large boobs are pretty much bouncing out of her corset. She looks at PLAINTIFF with these ‘come hither’ eyes and says something along the lines of “don’t my boobs look big ” then looks down at her large boobs that were nearly bouncing out of her corset, and then Celeste looks back up at PLAINTIFF with those ‘come hither’ eyes. Taking all of these facts together because PLAINTIFF doesn’t understand why a woman would talk about their boobs and how they look large (which is a trait that most men desire), look down at her boobs (thereby gesturing), look back at up at and stare at him with those ‘come hither’ eyes in which there is a response that is demanded. PLAINTIFF says demanded because of the following universally accepted truth: the odds of a heterosexual man, heck even some or most autistic men, having a response that completely ignores her boobs is nearly zero. Sure, there may be an autistic man or a man with ADD or someone stressed out here and there that got distracted with something else on their mind, but I mean...So PLAINTIFF touched her boob. Celeste Birdsall looks at PLAINTIFF and PLAINTIFF looks back at her the eyes in which PLAINTIFF puts his hand down after a couple of seconds. She doesn’t say stop or anything like that or no, that was not okay, or anything of the sort. Apparently, and to PLAINTIFF’S autistic misunderstanding, it was not her beckoning to touch her boobs because PLAINTIFF was questioned about it later by LSU Law administration. No Title IX charges are filed against me for touching Celeste Birdsall boobs after PLAINTIFF provided a statement.

Look, at the end of the day, what PLAINTIFF relied on the most was the knowledge that had been established, how Celeste Birdsall looked down at her boobs, and then looked back up at PLAINTIFF and stared at PLAINTIFF in the eyes; and PLAINTIFF construed the look down and back up to PLAINTIFF as a gesture. If Celeste Birdsall just said “don’t my boobs look big?” and kept looking at PLAINTIFF, obviously PLAINTIFF would have then looked down at them, but PLAINTIFF wouldn’t have touched them because PLAINTIFF would have construed it as her wanting to have PLAINTIFF acknowledge her boobs were large or just talk about her large boobs. PLAINTIFF wants to discuss this incident because PLAINTIFF got screwed on this incident: Celeste Birdsall knows her boob size (c or d cups probably) and knows her boobs are large; Celeste Birdsall probably spent more than 30 minutes that night getting ready for the Halloween party in which she necessarily put make up on and looked herself in the mirror before she left to the party. She knew what she looked like; the wind that night would have informed her that the tops of her large boobs are exposed to the public. There is not a single way Celeste Birdsall could not have known that a heterosexual man within a second of being in her presence knew that her boobs were large. Celeste Birdsall didn’t need to look down to “confirm” her boobs are large as though she completely forgot that her boobs are large. PLAINTIFF knew it as soon as he saw her that night in which he gave her a ride in his car. What PLAINTIFF is arguing is, say hypothetically and very crudely, you are in the office, and you go to a coworker’s desk and the only thing that is on their desk is a giant pen on the desk that would be readily and immediately apparent to anyone who steps foot into the office. There are no papers, no files, no other pens on the desk--nothing else on the desk except for the giant pen. You and the coworker then both place yourselves in the position in which you are standing right in front of the only thing on the desk, the giant pen, that is within your immediate arm’s reach and is right of front of your coworker in which your coworker is implicitly comfortable with you being so close to the giant pen (if the coworker wasn’t, there would have been far more separation). You know that the giant pen is there and is a giant pen and your coworker most definitely knows the giant pen is there and is a giant pen and has substantial and major reason to believe you know that the pen is giant. Knowledge as to the size and existence of the giant pen are not at issue and have been previously established and are comfortable with you being an immediate presence of the giant pen. So, then the coworker says to you: “doesn’t my pen look giant” and gestures with their head towards the giant pen by looking at the pen (that is within their reach and knowledge) and looks back up to you and says absolutely nothing else to you. What would you do? Or a better question you should be asking is why would someone who was comfortable with you being so close to the giant pen that clearly knows that the giant pen is giant and that you know the giant pen is giant that is within their reach gesture you towards that giant pen that is within your immediate arm’s reach? PLAINTIFF would dare say that a few of you just might happen to say: “oh do you mean this giant thing?” And would pick up the giant pen. Like the coworker didn’t do the following: the coworker looks to you and says: “doesn’t the pen look giant?” and then continue to keep staring at you—most likely than not, most people would look down at the giant pen and would look back up and wait for the coworker to explain the significance of such from the coworker’s perspective because the coworker kept staring at you in which the coworker was going to keep talking: “it is like yea, it is giant, so what about it?” Even in those circumstances, there is a distinct possibility that the giant pen may be touched or picked up. PLAINTIFF understands that there are always going to be a female/male misunderstanding about social dynamics. What PLAINTIFF is not okay with is that DEFENDANTS would use that information maliciously not understanding the totality of circumstances of what went into PLAINTIFF'S decision in furthering RICO Enterprise 1.

Back to PLAINTIFF'S life, when Undercover Agent Matt talked to PLAINTIFF in a bar called Bulldog in Baton Rouge in Early Winter/Spring 2014, I said things to him knowing well they were not true over the course of the 'friendship.' lied to him like I did Callie Sims about what my laptop contained because I was testing his trust. I did not have CSAM on it. I was hoping to catch him in a lie or that evidence would be planted on me in which I would catch him in that lie because of how much I mistrusted the federal government at that time and naively believed the administration of justice was on the side of truth and justice even more so after what was done to me in Sewanee. More importantly, I told multiple and easily verifiably false stories that night at Bulldogs to get him to question my credibility. I lied about me having caused a riot in a zoo in Bitola, North Macedonia that literally would have taken less than 2 minutes to do a google search to prove or disprove the legitimacy of the story. I told him a false story concerning having given a teacher of mine Viagra without his consent. Again, a simple phone call asking this teacher of "did you ever have an unexpected erection in which you ran out of the room when Miki Kotevski was one of your students ever happen" in which the agent would have immediately concluded that the story was false precisely because it was false. Another false story, I lied about giving my schoolmates at Northridge brownies and pastries that were laced with medical grade ex-lax in which numerous kids shit themselves at school. There would have been proof of this story: this would have been well known amongst every single student attending Northridge at the time in which multiple kids shit themselves—none did because I never gave laced brownies. Again, numerous stories for shock and entertainment (utilizing my stand-up comedy skills) and me having suspected 'Matt' was an undercover agent.

Furthermore, PLAINTIFF expressed to him that PLAINTIFF was concerned on how easy it would be to rob PLAINTIFF'S former place of employment at Credit Union 1 by explaining the details of it and not that PLAINTIFF had intended on robbing his former place of former employment. DEFENDANTS used this against PLAINTIFF like they did in Sewanee Sabotage, etc. and labeled PLAINTIFF as being an insider-threat to Credit Union 1. One thing PLAINTIFF did tell "Matt" was that PLAINTIFF'S brother and father were trying to grow their own marijuana plant in the house. PLAINTIFF had explicitly condemned his family's actions and had told his brother and his father to get rid of the plant as that would get the family into serious legal trouble. PLAINTIFF'S father and brother ignored PLAINTIFF intentionally after the warnings even though legally the house was under PLAINTIFF'S name. Like PLAINTIFF said earlier, PLAINTIFF'S brother and father did not respect a single god damn thing PLAINTIFF said nor did they consider PLAINTIFF'S advice prudent; and PLAINTIFF told "Matt" that too and this was ignored by "Matt." "Matt" would have understood and known that PLAINTIFF was subject to abuse by his father in which that would have provided exculpatory evidence regarding PLAINTIFF'S finances. This exculpatory evidence was omitted. PLAINTIFF lied to Matt about how the Benz PLAINTIFF was driving, and forced to be in PLAINTIFF'S name, was given to PLAINTIFF by my grandmother and not the fact that PLAINTIFF'S parents gave the car for PLAINTIFF to use, but not own. "Matt" had no furniture in his apartment and his mattress was on the ground like a drug den and he didn't eat at home. PLAINTIFF asked what was up with the situation and he said it was tolerable to him and PLAINTIFF said to each their own. If 'Matt' was undercover, what PLAINTIFF didn't infer at the time was most likely than not "Matt" was working out of Baton Rouge or New Orleans field office against PLAINTIFF in which he had his own home and a different car somewhere else in the nearby vicinity. PLAINTIFF thought it was sketchy that 'Matt' lived this way and that this was even very weird to PLAINTIFF, but PLAINTIFF didn't report the suspiciousness. What 'Matt' did have was a lot of guns and he even tried to sell PLAINTIFF guns. PLAINTIFF wanted to report 'Matt' to law enforcement because this was beyond sketchy, even for PLAINTIFF'S standards. PLAINTIFF made something up as to why PLAINTIFF didn't want to buy a gun from him and was trying to get me to conform to the Mick Sheedy incident. Speaking of Mick Sheedy and guns and the Sewanee era, it must have been a hell of a coincidence that one of PLAINTIFF'S neighbors living at Boyd, "RAY," had allegedly been arrested for having a gun in his truck. Either this is a complete coincidence, "RAY" worked for the government/DEFENDANTS, or PLAINTIFF has been intentionally kept out of the dark about public legal proceedings made against PLAINTIFF involving how PLAINTIFF had been framed in Meth (hence would be another reason why PLAINTIFF is bringing the lawsuit) that would only be possible because the CIA or DoD hacked into PLAINTIFF'S laptop preventing PLAINTIFF from knowing the truth.

Matt may have been an uncover agent because of the following. PLAINTIFF has a Vine channel under the name of "ipleadthemik." One day, Matt talks to PLAINTIFF about going to the gun range and shooting off his AK-74. Now as a southern Slavic person, shooting off AK-47s or AK-74s is completely acceptable because Russia and Serbia are great trading partners and Russia always viewed Serbia like its little brother. So in Russia (and Serbia alike), there was general hostility or dislike towards the LGBT crowd (though in Serbia that kind of changed, but not really). PLAINTIFF makes an "Itan" Vine video shooting off an AK-74 and making an extremely absurd Russian accent. It wasn't a video expressing support of shooting LGBT members, it was sarcastic meant to highlight and make fun of the fact that yes, generally, Slavic people don't like the gays. There isn't a call to commit violence or anything of the like that could be construed as a hate crime against LGBT. PLAINTIFF alleges that video was used maliciously against PLAINTIFF by American Intel in which they falsely alleged that PLAINTIFF was violent and had an anti-LGBT agenda. PLAINTIFF doesn't care if you are gay, lesbian, bisexual, or trans (in which you have a genetic anomaly). PLAINTIFF'S views are live and let live and keep your c out of PLAINTIFF'S a. That's it.

Then PLAINTIFF makes another video—PLAINTIFF calls it "rough patch." It starts off with the premise insinuating PLAINTIFF was drunk and was about to go drive drunk. PLAINTIFF had Coors Light in his fridge for whenever people were going to come over and, well, PLAINTIFF didn't have a lot of people come over to his apartment at the time, and his Coors Light just sat sad, cold, and alone in the fridge. PLAINTIFF, for "rough patch" built a wall of Coors Light (much like how he built a pyramid of Heineken in high school that was posted on Facebook⁴⁵⁹ in August 2007. See: Below) cans in which PLAINTIFF opened like 3 or 4 cans of Coors Light and poured them down the drain (blasphemous in wasting a delicious cold Coors ⁴⁵⁹ PLAINTIFF is autistic afterall and builds things like blocks or legos growing up. American Intel DEFENDANTS knew this, ignored the exculpatory evidence.

Light, PLAINTIFF agrees) so that he could crumble them up and put them on top of the unopened cans (thus obscuring they are in fact closed) so PLAINTIFF could give an impression and direction for the “rough patch” video that he drank a lot of beers, but in fact, PLAINTIFF did not even drink more than 1 or 2 cans of beer that time of making the video because PLAINTIFF wasn’t going to waste all of his beer now. In no way was PLAINTIFF drunk driving a vehicle in order to make “rough patch” that night. There was a service pipe/drainage indent on a road that was two blocks or so from PLAINTIFF’S apartment on 464 Boyd that spanned over the entire right side of the street. If you hit the drainage indent/service pipe at an exact angle and at an exact speed (but not fast), doing so really will make your car bounce around. So, the video goes something along the lines of: PLAINTIFF appears to be drunk (which is really easy for PLAINTIFF to fake as his cheeks are naturally rosy and it just takes a little heat to make them red), then the video shows the wall of Coors Light, then the video cues to PLAINTIFF grabbing his keys, then cue to PLAINTIFF hitting the drainage indent making him bounce around, and then the punch line of: I’ve hit a sourpatch in my life in which the last scene is PLAINTIFF’S Benz has sour patch kids on the left side of his hood. Rough Patch, Sour Patch (kids), do you get the corny punchline? In Vine, the way it was recorded was that you record a scene, pause, record another scene, pause, record a different scene to whatever way you wanted to. You couldn’t close the app and it essentially had to be done right in which PLAINTIFF could not have messed up the timing filming: plaintiff rosy cheek→wall of Coors Light→ keys→car going over drainage indent on road→ punchline. At least 5 different scenes in one clip recorded between 7-10 seconds long. Precision was a necessity. American Intel have the records and if they are going to be honest with you, American Intel could see that PLAINTIFF had driven around the block to the drainage indent more than 3 times within 10 minutes because the timing had to be impeccable. American Intel falsely alleged that PLAINTIFF was a reckless man and that he was a drunk driver when that was an outright fabrication. DEFENDANTS violated 18 U.S.C §1951 (EXTORTION); Title VI of the Civil Rights Act, 18 U.S.C.§1862 (d); 18 U.S.C.§1862 (c); 18 U.S.C.§1862 (b); 18 U.S.C.§1862 (a); 42 U.S.C. §1981; 42 U.S.C.§1983, 42 U.S.C. §1985(2); 42 U.S.C. §1985(3); 42 U.S.C. §1986; 18 U.S.C.§226, 18 U.S.C. §241, 42 U.S.C. §1983, 18 U.S.C. §1961 Sections 1581-1590 (relating to peonage), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1510 (relating to obstruction of criminal investigations), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1343

Matt’ “moved away” around March/April/May 2014. PLAINTIFF thought that it was the end of it. BBBBBUUUUTTTTT NNNNOOOOOO, it’ll come up later.

PLAINTIFF held on to this belief that the courts would admonish the federal government for their wrongdoing. Being routinely framed in college shocked his conscience and made PLAINTIFF so cynical. PLAINTIFF was going for the long run of proving his innocence; But that was very wrong and naïve assumption that contributed greatly to this situation. The odd thing is PLAINTIFF still naively and fundamentally believed that truth and justice will prevail; but PLAINTIFF doesn’t think it will because it is not in the interest of national security. But more importantly, PLAINTIFF truthfully expressed his sentiment to undercover agent ‘Matt’ that PLAINTIFF was scared of the US Federal Governmen/ the IRS and that PLAINTIFF would not mess with the government because they could destroy my life in a second. ‘

In United States v. Anderton, 629 F.2d 1044 (5th Cir.1980), the Fifth Circuit allowed the entrapment defense in a case where law enforcement officers specifically targeted the defendant, and then put unspecified "pressure" on the unwitting middleman to bring the defendant into a pre-designed criminal scheme.

Minimum amount of damage deriving from this incident: $0
Treble Damages: $0

Total Minimum Damages: $4,184,430,000+

PLAINTIFF had even told MATT that PLAINTIFF demanded father and brother cease growing in the home thereby trying to put an end of that scenario.

Second Chance.

In the Summer of 2014. I failed out of law school by literally 0.01 of a GPA point. Whether that was done in furtherance of RICO Enterprise 1 at the behest United States officials that were out to get PLAINTIFF, PLAINTIFF does not know nor does PLAINTIFF wish to explore it because PLAINTIFF failing out helped PLAINTIFF tremendously in dealing with his disability issues and PLAINTIFF does not want to harm LSU Law though there were questionable things that occurred in Spring 2014. The following is the petition for readmission that PLAINTIFF sent his school in the Summer of 2014 that explains the situation and what got PLAINTIFF readmitted into LSU Law.

Introduction:

I apologize for betraying the trust the Law Center had in me to do well when it gave me the opportunity to attend. I was unable to quickly find solutions during the 2013-14 year for learning difficulties I've long faced in order to meet the Law Center's expectations and my own. I would like to address why I deserve a rare second chance to attend school at the Paul M. Hebert Law Center.

I've never had it easy. I'm not talking about "how hard life is when I ordered a large cappuccino with no whip cream and I got a small one with whip cream." I'm talking about the difficulty of overcoming being a kid who rode the short-bus to attending a law school that is in the top 25% of schools in the country. If that in itself is not indicative of capacity, what is? I've gone further than anyone has ever expected, struggled at every step of the way, and I'm not remotely close to quitting. Knowing what went wrong and how it won't go wrong again is contingent on knowing background information in my past, present, and future of the factors⁴⁶⁰ that -- albeit not inherently detrimental in isolation--proved detrimental to me in unison.

Argument.

A: Certainty in Chaotic Uncertainty--My Capacity.

There is a fundamental difference between what I should be and what I am. The 'should be' were 'reasonable' expectations based on my 'current situation' and 'what I am' are expectations derived from my results based on my capacity. I should be deaf, in a wheelchair, have a genetic disease, never have been able to communicate effectively, and most importantly, never have been a good student⁴⁶¹. This chronological analysis highlights how I have the capacity to be a great attorney and student of the law.

I: Testing & Psychological Testing

⁴⁶⁰ The usage of the word factor(s) refers to these initial factors.

⁴⁶¹ See documents titled Fragile X & Miki Kotevski's Medical Records.

In May 1992, I underwent testing to see if I had Fragile X syndrome. I will signify through this petition the red flags that *I may have had it*⁴⁶² and those flags are vital in knowing what went wrong. Many doctors thought I had Fragile X because I had the exact symptoms: I had developmental delays χ , over-growth χ , large ears χ , hyperextensible joints χ , chronic otitis media χ , hypotonia χ , and speech, language, gross motor delays χ . Despite undergoing testing for Fragile X on at least 10 occasions, I tested negative for Fragile X (see footnote two).

While I was being tested for Fragile X, I underwent a major neuropsychological evaluation at the Lake McHenry Regional Program (here on known as: LMR). The reason why I will be referring to the LMR is because it was a comprehensive evaluation of my psychoeducational capacities and, even though a lot has changed as a proportion of the findings are no longer applicable to me, a proportion of the findings still are. LMR identified: “Miki’s adaptive behavior in the realms of communication, daily living skills, socialization, motor skills were low,” χ “Miki’s language comprehension skills were judged to be severely delayed/disordered,” χ “Miki’s language production skills were severely below age level expectations,” χ “Miki used visual-search strategizing and trial-and-error strategizing,” “Miki’s knowledge overall was fairly strong with rote knowledge and weaker with abstract,” and “Miki’s articulation skills were judged to be severely below age expectations.” χ

II: Life During Testing: The Checkmark Effect.

While I was in school battling my disabilities, two trends made themselves known: first, wildly fluctuating rates of improvements and regression of grasping, retaining, and learning material; and secondly major issues of adopting to a new setting. First, to summarize the fluctuations in subject materials quickly: I’ve tested from the 2nd to 99th percentile when it comes to language arts; the 38th to 90th percentile in Mathematics, 45th to 95th in Social Studies, 40th to 85th in Science. No matter what the subject is, there has always been a predictable upward fluctuation that I've worked my way into becoming an above average student compared to other students in the same setting.

Out of all the factors that were discussed, the most important one for this petition is the checkmark effect (here on CME): it can almost singlehandedly explain all of my behavior. CME is a three-step process⁴⁶³. First, there is a significant change in a setting that occurs such as moving to a new city, attending a different school, etc., and after the few initial months (three to five months or so) of the initial change taking place, my life will be satisfactory. Step two occurs after those initial months, then there will be extreme difficulty adjusting to the new setting and the consequences of such are: a prominent drop of social, work, and academic functionality and capabilities. 25 years later, I have found no reasonable explanation for step two. I can only offer factual observations, provide past medical records, and derive some inferable conclusions based on most of the recurring factors and the interaction of those factors. After the precipitous decline of social, work, and academic functioning, step three occurs when I pull myself out by understanding the interaction of the factors in step two, and then rise to reach my fullest capabilities. I want to accentuate that the checkmark effect is not applicable when it comes to adapting to fast changes that occur within a setting, CME only applies to the initial change in setting.

From the 4th grade through college (semesters were treated as quarters), the amount of times my grade point average decreased from first quarter to second quarter was 5-0-5 (positive change--unchanged--negative change). Compare that to the type of change that occurred from the first quarter to the third quarter, which was 7-3-0. First, there has never been a single occurrence when my third quarter grades were worse than my first quarter grades. Although the 5-0-5 is a fifty percent chance that my grades would either increase or decrease, the percentage is a little deceptive without an explanation. When my grades dropped between the 4th grade and college from the first quarter to the second quarter, 60% of the time (entering junior high school, high school, and college) the drop in grades occurred when I was in a new school setting. Furthermore, in the sixth, ninth, and freshman/sophomore year of college, there was a significant drop off in grades from the first quarter to the second quarter and a significant increase in grades from the first/second quarter to the third quarter.

B: How it went wrong: CME's Step Two at LSU Law.

I: Time Management, Focus, Čěžnja, and Childhood Factors.

For an explanation of how it went wrong, I am making the assumption that my second semester grades should have been equal to my first semester grades, which are indicative that I do have the capacity to pass and stay in school. I'm not saying those grades are ideal, the grades I'll strive for will be discussed in the how it won't go wrong again section. For now, I will list the major contributing factors, the causes of the factors, show how those factors affected my grades, and address my worst grades of the second semester--Obligations and ACJ.

The biggest factor that contributed to my failure in the second semester was my mismanagement of time and improper focus. The mismanagement began on January 6th, 2014 when I was driving from Chicago to come back home after I viewed my first semester grades. While driving, I utilized my trial and error strategizing (see LMR) to think of solutions⁴⁶⁴, which will be discussed in the following paragraphs, that could optimize the best approach for me to go from below average grades to above average grades.

I was particularly worried about my structural and organizational issues and while talking to some upperclassmen and viewing top-law-schools forums, a piece of advice was given more than once that could have helped my organizational and structural issues, which was: "When you outline a month or so before exams, you outline the material relatively close to the exam thereby allowing you to outline and structure your answers on the exam quicker since you covered all of the class material recently.” I turned that following piece of advice into a solution and I outlined three weeks before exams started.

There is no doubt in my mind that was conceivably the worst advice I have ever taken in my life for two reasons. First, I am certain that a matter of three weeks is one of the main differences between being 0.16 points above the cumulative G.P.A requirement to stay in school and being 0.02 below the threshold to fail out of school; and secondly, it exacerbated all my learning difficulties. Six weeks before the first semester ended, I stopped reading and started preparing for exams by outlining based out of necessity since I lost all my notes at the end of October due to a computer crash. During the second semester I continued to do all of the reading until April 7th. When I began outlining that Monday, I realized I had put myself into a hole bigger than the sinkhole in Bayou Corne. Where I needed the ability for my rote knowledge and reasoning formulation to kick in through seeing general topics and structure of the class from the first day and then later filling in the rest of the details of the important topics through constant and repetitive viewing of the cases throughout semester and developing my structure and organization based on that--I did the opposite and tried to do all of that in three weeks. All of my rushed outlines for all of my classes failed in their adequacy to cover all the vital information, and because of the rushed timing, I never had the adequate time for me to continue to look over my book briefing, notes, and outlines in order to provide the structure, organization and in depth analysis so quintessential to doing well on an exam.

When I took the exams during the second semester, I was unable to properly structure my answers due implementing a solution that did not complement my learning style, which exacerbated my issues of disorganization and disorganized speech. Without a break in studying in the prior three weeks before the exam, I dwelled in a rushed state; and when I started my first exam, I was still in a rushed state and became more rushed; the more rushed, the more severe my disorganizational issues became with each passing moment in the course of answering questions on the exams. I remember jumping back and forth whenever I answered a question on the exam because I would have fleeting points that would come to mind after I've stopped answering the question that I had to go back and put the point down in order to get more points. Furthermore, when I went back to answer the question again, I tried to fix the structural issues, which took time away from answering the other questions in depth that warranted a lower score in my exams.

I thought another one of my problems in my exams from the first semester was that my answers reflected a poor compare and contrast analysis of the facts presented and the law. I thought my answers lacked the depth and complexity because I stopped reading 6 weeks before the exams. I believed if I would have read for all 6 weeks, the material read would have provided a substantial increase in the ability to analyze each issue presented. So I thought of a few solutions: with the first piece of advice given in time management, I would then be able to extend my reading by 3 weeks which should have provided more knowledge and understanding of the issues; secondly, I would read outside relevant class material so I would then be able to use different perspectives in order to develop more depth and better contrast on the exam. I spent a fair amount of time reading outside relevant sources—that one day may possibly turn a case in my favor in practice—which were not relevant in the exam. What I didn't understand when I created the solution was that the depth and the ability to compare and contrast came from distinguishing the cases taught in class in a multitude of perspectives and not comparing and contrasting the issues by bringing a multitude of outside information that could distinguish the facts and law while marginally comparing and contrasting similar cases taught in class. So a lot of garbage I read came in and garbage came out on the exam.

Another situation that effected my time and focus cannot be described by an English word or concept, but can be described Serbian. The Serbian word is: Čežnja—an inconsolable and time transcending feeling deep within your soul for something that is missing that we don't understand and a longing for an extremely far place where your heart feels and understands it is at home. It is neither homesickness nor nostalgia nor a psychological abnormality such as a depressive episode. Čežnja always occurs within step two and it hit me at the start of Mardi Gras and ended on March 28th five minutes after I sat down at Portico's for 2L Briana Drescher's birthday when the table was alive in discussing the gift I brought.

Everyone experiences Čežnja; the difference between most and myself is that most can go to sleep after feeling it and in the morning, the feeling of Čežnja disappears; however, when I experience it, it is akin to when an autistic child becomes overwhelmed by an overstimulation and 'shuts down', I get extremely overwhelmed by it on a daily basis for an indefinite time. Signs of the extreme difficulty I have with dealing with Čežnja throughout my whole life can be found in the LM Report, Ms. Donev's letter, and more. I've found meditation eases Čežnja where I won't become completely useless, but I stop living in the moment and I withdraw from myself, socially, and academically in order to 'feel out' Čežnja. Even though I did do the reading during Čežnja, I did not retain anywhere near as much as I should have because my mental energy, cognition, and capacity were focused on feeling out Čežnja and not on the cases I was supposed to read for class. So for about a month, I read and heard what as important without retaining what was important.

There are two things that combine together to create a disaster for me, they are 8 am classes and classes that emphasize aspects of contracts. If you look at my grades for each semester, the worst grades in each semester were in 8 am classes and they were: Obligations and Contracts. So, what was the difference between passing contracts with a 2.0 and bombing Obligations with a 1.3—75% of the problem was sleep, the rest was CME and the factors listed above. I only slept for three hours the night before the exam even though I took 15 equate sleeping pills to knock myself out. I took five sleeping aid pills at two am—nothing; took four more at four—nothing; took three more at six—nothing; took three more at seven—passed out about an hour later. I woke up at 11:30 groggy, confused, and sleepy. I thought the adrenaline from beginning the exam would have taken care of the groggy, confused, and sleepy sensations—nothing. Confused, groggy, and sleepy is no way to take an exam, and furthermore, I lose my thinking and analytical abilities when I get less than four hours of sleep--the results show.

I slept well for the ACJ exam and including the CME and factors listed above, there were a few additional factors that resulted in the poor results in ACJ. First, Professor Lamonica's way of teaching and the way I learn are at extreme odds. I needed an energetic and highly structured environment and passionate professor in the classroom to strive and learn well. The biggest complaint I heard, not only my chief complaint but many other students' as well, was the disorganization and incoherence of the class material, confusing presentation of the subject material, and an unenergetic and dull professor where a select few within my section knew what was going on. Now I don't know if it is a personal subjective bias and it very well could be, but I'm almost willing to wager if you read the course evaluations in ACJ for Section 3, you will find evidence indicating (excluding my evaluation) that similar complaints to mine. Whenever I'm in that type of low energy and low structured environment, I do not do well nor learn well because I need that type of energy and structure initially in all my classes to develop and find the optimal way to learn the subject material before I can handle a disorganized and dull professor.

II a: Stigma.

A major factor occurred when my parents were growing up Yugoslavia. The stigma of mental illness in the former communist country has continually ranked as one of the worst in the world. For example as a common occurrence at that time, if a married woman gave birth to a child that had autism, mental retardation, etc. and after learning the child had one of the aforementioned incapacities, the child was immediately given a label, the husband would bring his wife back to her parents' house where one of two things would occur: she would live ostracized forever or she would get a gun or go by the river and kill her child and herself—there was no in between and labels over there are a matter of life and death. Fast forward to 1989 when I was born with my major issues. A decent proportion of the community expected my dad to leave my mom and me at her childhood home in Serbia and to meet the same fate of many of those wives and labeled children before me.

Luckily, I'm still here, but that same stigma still affects the interaction I have with anyone inside an educational setting. My parents drilled into me—ironically became a borderline obsession to them—to make the appearance that I was a 'normal' kid at school and at home. I was never ever allowed to allude to, let alone discuss, any of the disabilities I had or to show any signs that may indicate I was not 'normal'. Even when it came to psychologists who could help, that stigma made me lie by denying the existence of such issues. In K-8th grade, if you pay attention to the records from District 56 and LMR, there is not a single label as to my condition—problems are abundantly clear and everyone knew something wasn't normal, yet, those records never defined with enough adequacy to create a label or any expectation. I did not talk to many of my past teachers, or the vast majority of my law school professors, about my issues due to stigma, the trauma of the obsession, and the underlying sense of the futility to talk to teachers about my issues. I learned I had to find my own solutions without the help of teachers because it seemed in higher education teachers teach their specialized subject matter normally to normal students and could not teach students with learning disabilities in a specialized manner their specialties because they did not have the background or experience to do so. I was only able to identify one professor whom could have possibly helped based me on her background at the law center: Professor Barry.

So I tried to break the years of stigmatization when I talked to Professor Barry by opening up and talking about my learning issues. I did reveal to her my writing issues, but I remember in the fall semester around last week of October or first week of November talking to her about how to salvage my first semester because of my computer issues. She made an innocuous statement of "...so you have a little mania in you." When she said, it triggered the trauma of the years of being forced to create the appearance of normality and to reveal as little as possible to any indications of learning difficulties. From then on, besides the time I had a lot of wine by Professor Church's house, I did not reveal my problems throughout the second semester even though I was struggling. Furthermore, I tried talking to Professor Bockrath during the first semester to see if he could help me when I submitted a practice exam for us to discuss because I heard of his reputation when it comes to writing. Not to sound rude, must I elaborate how problematic the interaction was when a person who has suffered (and still does) from writing and language disabilities tries to receive writing help from Professor Bockrath? The lessons from college and high-school involving seeking help from teachers who didn't have the experience teaching those with different needs came to forefront and I felt as though it was up to me to find the solutions in order to overcome step 2 and to find the proper mentorship that complemented me where I could adequately work on my learning issues and have professors, who I would not bring up my learning issues with, that would help bring out most of my potential without pestering them.

C: Why it will not go wrong again.

If history is a good indicator of things to come, if I am readmitted, my grades will only continue to rise and be higher than the grades I earned the first semester I was at school. I'm going to be realistic about my grades in the future. It is quite possible I can cali either in the spring semester of my 2L year or in my 3L year. Based on history, my grades will start off around 2.65 (since I am repeating the material, I'll already be familiar with it which means it should even be higher than a 2.65) and then gradually go up and end up around a 3.2 or a 3.3. I'm not going to say I'm going to be in the top quarter and I do wholeheartedly plan on keeping my promise I made in one of my letters of continued interest when I stated I would be in the top half of the class of the entering class in the future.

Solutions to keeping that promise:

1: The zealous adherence to the following schedule for the fall semester and I will make a spring semester schedule when the fall semester ends⁴⁶⁵. The schedule takes into account all activities such as Tiger home football games, being the treasurer of the federalist society, teaching street law, networking, days of rest to avoid burnout, scheduled days to talk to professors on a weekly or biweekly basis, studying, preparing, reading, and other activities not otherwise mentioned. Explanation of the schedule is included in the schedule.

2: The LMR stated "Miki's attention span and cooperation increased over time" so historically speaking, my focus will be better when I enter school this year as compared to when I entered the law center last year. That being said LMR highlighted one of my strongest attributes is memory and memory based learning (repetition). That being said, the schedule takes into account a weekly 90-120 minute session where, after talking to the professors or derived from the front of the book, I would write by hand the topics and structure of the class from the first day and then later filling in the rest of the details of the important topics through constant and repetitive viewing of the cases. Each week, I would not simply just add whatever I learned throughout the week, but I would encompass everything from what I learned to that point in the class. My structural and organizational issues will be remedied through maintaining that type of work.

3: No outside reading sources or subject material unless discussed with the professor beforehand during one of the weekly or biweekly meetings.

4: In order to improve on my legal analysis, I will discuss and reference applicable legal standards and chose the controlling legal precepts, no longer make philosophical reasoning and morality and historical arguments and will instead focus on legal reasoning and logic on the exam, identify quickly the issues and conflicts presented in the fact pattern, analogize and distinguish cases from the fact pattern presented that forces a conclusion to be made from an analogy and/or inductive and deductive reasoning, distinguishing implications of what things should be and what they are, providing a scale of the issues presented are more macro or micro in nature, and finally take more time to recognize the permissible and reasonable inferences and/or permissible and reasonable implications derived from the facts. Between the days you read this and the day I can possibly come back, I will continue to work on my legal reasoning through working on exercises that will refine and enhance those aforementioned analytical tools.

Conclusion

In conclusion, a 1995 report says “as the content of what he is saying becomes more important to Miki he will simplify the syntactical form of his sentence.” Please, let me come back to begin anew.

An ANCHOR and a PITCHFORK.

An explanation of Spring 2015 and Summer 2015 from my perspective and the consequences thereof.

“The danger that high federal officials will disregard constitutional rights in their zeal to protect the national security is sufficiently real to counsel against affording such officials an absolute immunity.” Mitchell v. Forsyth, 472 U.S. 511 (1985). “Because the Amendment now affords protection against the uninvited ear, oral statements, if illegally overheard, and their fruits are also subject to suppression. Silverman v. United States, 365 U. S. 505 (1961); Katz v. United States, 389 U. S. 347 (1967)” 18 U.S. Code § 2234 - Authority exceeded in executing warrant; 18 U.S. Code § 2235 - Search warrant procured maliciously; 18 U.S. Code § 2236 - Searches without warrant.

United States v. Lentz, 624 F.2d 1280 (5th Cir. 1980): “Regardless of the undercover devices employed, it could hardly shock anyone's conscience to see an elected law enforcement official prosecuted for willfully and knowingly breaking a law designed to protect citizens from just such conduct. While Lentz came into the plan late, he seems to have embraced it wholeheartedly, provided some of the means by which to carry it out, and taken part with full knowledge of the plan's illegality. The fact that Lentz was merely helping the police in their alleged efforts to catch criminals should not make prosecution of him unfair if he voluntarily and knowingly employed illegal methods. To hold otherwise, would be tantamount to giving police carte blanche to ignore laws passed to protect all citizens against improper invasions of their rights by police conduct. Since the discussions about the proposed break-in were almost hopelessly intertwined with conversations about the wiretapping, we believe that the break-in evidence was necessary to the government in its attempt to tell the whole story of the crime. The government draws support from United States v. Beechum, 582 F.2d 898 (5th Cir. 1978) (en banc), which approved of proof of extrinsic offenses under a common scheme or res gestae analysis "if the uncharged offense is 'so linked together in point of time and circumstances with the crime charged that one cannot be fully shown without proving the other.'" Id. at 911-12, n. 15 (quoting Slough Knightly, Other Vices, Other Crimes, 41 Iowa L.Rev. 325, 331 (1956)). We believe that, since Lentz was brought into the law enforcement group by Hullum both to perform the wiretap and to commit the break-in, evidence of the break-in would be relevant and admissible under Beechum.”

PLAINTIFF is alleging: Aussies and NSA shared information about all factual circumstances that happened in An Anchor and a Pitchfork on NSANET. NSA and Aussies have a prior relationship in which NSA operates out of Geraldton, Pine Gap (which the CIA also operates out of) and Shoal Bay, Australia. Therefore, when PLAINTIFF was in both Baton Rouge, Louisiana and Tokyo, Japan in An Anchor and a Pitchfork, information concerning RICO Enterprise 1 in An Anchor and a Pitchfork was sent, submitted, and received in those Australian sites (i.e. part of mail and wire fraud) in which NSA, CIA, and Aussies at a minimum aided and abetted RICO Enterprise 1 and RICO Enterprise 2. NSA, CIA, and Aussies transmitted the entirety of all the factual circumstances An Anchor and a Pitchfork in which no one took any remedial measures nor prevented anyone from furthering RICO Enterprise 1. Not once did NSA, CIA, or Aussies attempt to stop An Anchor and a Pitchfork from happening in which they hid material information in which NSA, CIA, and Aussies had complete access to PLAINTIFF at all times when he was in Japan in Summer 2015. Even having direct and completely unimpeded access to National Security Operations Center (NSOC) in which all information about An Anchor and a Pitchfork was sent, received, and processed in which NSOC's core function is to handle time sensitive issues obtained via sigint—no Aussies nor NSA did anything despite being made aware of RICO Enterprise 1 and therefore aided and abetted and facilitated RICO Enterprise 1 (as well as RICO Enterprise 2).

The NSA has NSANet, which is a classified intranet network that connects Aussies and British Intel and shares intelligence data between NSA, British Intel, and Aussies. Money was/is spent on creating NSANet, maintaining NSANet, and utilizing NSANet that sends, receives, and processes information and data on NSANet, and British Intel utilized NSANet and transmitted the entirety of the factual circumstances of Miki's Tea Party and An Anchor and a Pitchfork in which an act of international and domestic terrorism against an American occurred that was not reported nor was anyone subsequently punished for their failure in doing so nor did anyone stop it having information from at least 5 months before that it was likely to occur against PLAINTIFF. At all relevant times, British Intel and NSA had immediate and direct communication with each other at all times in Miki's Tea Party & An Anchor and a Pitchfork and did not do anything to stop RICO Enterprise 1. Even having direct and completely unimpeded access to National Security Operations Center (NSOC) in which all information about Miki's Tea Party and An Anchor and a Pitchfork was sent, received, and processed in which NSOC's core function is to handle time sensitive issues obtained via sigint—neither British Intel nor NSA did anything despite being made aware of RICO Enterprise 1 from at least September 2010 and letting it happen in March 2011, and therefore, at a minimum, aided and abetted and facilitated RICO Enterprise 1 (as well as RICO Enterprise 2).

PLAINTIFF is alleging: NSA, CIA, and Japanese DEFENDANTS have a relationship in which NSA operates out of Misawa, Japan in which NSA, CIA, and Japanese DEFENDANTS shared, submitted, and received information concerning all the factual circumstances involved in An Anchor and a Pitchfork. Some of this data was transmitted through ORION 3, ORION 5, and ORION 7 from Japan to CIA and NSA headquarters in and around WASHINGTON DC that processed all the information from sources like City and County of San Francisco, 575 U.S. 600 (2015), BILL CLINTON'S visit with SHINZO ABE in March 2015, correspondence between CHIEF JUSTICE JOHN ROBERTS and the Japanese supreme court from March 2015 to July 2015, and HILLARY CLINTON'S speech on 06/26/2015 in their computers that was relayed also to the WHITE HOUSE. Everyone in NSA and CIA were intentionally unaware of the impending danger despite having every reason to know that it was going to happen in which they made An Anchor and a Pitchfork happen the way they did. CIA and NSA were in direct contact with PLAINTIFF at all times in Japan in Summer 2015 in which there was an affirmative duty to prevent RICO Enterprise 1 from furthering in which NSA, CIA, and Japanese DEFENDANTS all failed in furthering RICO Enterprise 1 in which they committed mail and wire fraud and other crimes in the process.

Executive Order 11905 No employee of the United States Government shall engage in, or conspire to engage in, political assassination."; 12036 The EO also expanded the U.S. ban on assassination by closing "loop-holes" and stating "No person employed by or acting on behalf of the United States Government shall engage in, or conspire to engage in, assassination." This ban on assassination would be restated in Executive Order 12333.

PLAINTIFF alleges JOHN BRENNAN, JEH JOHNSON, ANDREW MCCABE, PETER STRZOK, HILLARY CLINTON, BILL CLINTON, TOM PEREZ, LEON PANETTA, American DEFENDANTS, British DEFENDANTS, British Intel, Indian Intel, India, all had roles in An Anchor and a Pitchfork were some of the primary actors in furthering RICO Enterprise 1 in which those DEFENDANTS had committed some of the following violations of law:

In 1998, Johnson was appointed General Counsel of the Air Force by President Bill Clinton after confirmation by the U.S. Senate.

In light of Star Chambers, SCOTUS decided RJR NABISCO, INC. v. EUROPEAN COMMUNITY in 2016 that dealt with RICO foreign extraterritoriality. Judge JENNIFER B. COFFMAN, a Clinton friend, started her career at FISA in May 19th, 2011 (one week before Al-Kidd was decided)(which was four days after PLAINTIFF graduated from Sewanee), but what was uncharacteristically uncommon for a FISA judge is that she suddenly retired ~~forced to quit~~ on 01/08/2013. This is what is most peculiar. Bill Clinton appointed her to be a judge in Kentucky in 1993 (she was around 45 years old at the time). She was exactly 65 years old when she retired. Thankfully, she is still alive today. There is this quote from Nabisco that was decided in 2016: "Congress's more recent decision to exclude from the antitrust laws' reach most conduct that "causes only foreign injury," F. Hoffmann-La Roche Ltd v. Empagran S. A., 542 U. S. 155 also counsels against importing into RICO those Clayton Act principles that are at odds with the Court's current extraterritoriality doctrine. Pp. 22–27... In particular, while they are correct that RICO's private right of action was modeled after §4 of the Clayton Act, which allows recovery for injuries suffered abroad as a result of antitrust violations, see Pfizer Inc. v. Government of India, 434 U. S. 308, 314–315, this Court has declined to transplant features of the Clayton Act's cause of action into the RICO context where doing so would be inappropriate... Thus, as we have observed in other contexts, providing a private civil remedy for foreign conduct creates a potential for international friction beyond that presented by merely applying U. S. substantive law to that foreign conduct... "[t]he application . . . of American private treble-damages remedies to anticompetitive conduct taking place abroad has generated considerable controversy" in other nations, even when those nations agree with U. S. substantive law on such things as banning price fixing. F. Hoffmann-La Roche Ltd v. Empagran S. A., 542 U. S. 155, 167 (2004)." This right here gives enough suspicion that the Indian Government had something to do with what is to come. PLAINTIFF is alleging that the HOFFMAN reference is COFFMAN and is a reference to PLAINTIFF and Judge JENNIFER B. COFFMAN. The suspicions around Judge JENNIFER B. COFFMAN are supported by the following. She is one of the judges who spent the least amount of time on the Court around 1.5 years. That's it.

From what PLAINTIFF was able to ascertain, these are some of the judges that spent the least amount of time on the court: Thomas MacBride (spent 1 year on the FISA court when he left the court at 66 years old. Worked at the E.D. California Court until he died at 85), John Conway (1 year 5 months. Left FISA for unknown reasons. Really uncertain about his story. Allegedly retired from FISA in 2007. Worked at least for 7 years afterwards when he died as a Judge in New Mexico at 79); Lawrence Pierce (immediately went back to the 2nd Circuit at 57 y/o. retired at 71 around same amount of time spent on the Court as Coffman. Then worked for USAID. Died at 95.); Sidney Aronovitz (On FISA Court on June 1989. Left Court in May 1992. assumed senior status on October 31, 1988 in Florida and remained on the court until his death in Miami on January 8, 1997). Nearly every single FISA judge who had a short term continued to work in the judiciary afterwards. THE ONLY EXCEPTION TO THE RULE WAS CLINTON FRIEND: Judge JENNIFER B. COFFMAN, who is still alive more than 10 years after she left the FISA court, PLAINTIFF could not ascertain what she has been doing in her life besides like one or two speeches and lectures. Nothing else. PLAINTIFF is alleging that based on the suspiciousness of JENIFFER B. COFFMAN'S early departure, PLAINTIFF is alleging she knew of the legal fraud perpetuated against PLAINTIFF or ruled to coverup what American INTEL did against PLAINTIFF and was forced to leave early by Chief Justice John Roberts.

In July 2015, PLAINTIFF was in Ito/Orange Beach Japan. PLAINTIFF was staying at a hostel in which there was this obviously orange hair/strawberry blonde looking Slavic woman in the hostel. PLAINTIFF recognizes his kind when he sees fellow Slavic people and PLAINTIFF approached. PLAINTIFF said he was Serbian and she said she was from Ukraine. So this would have created an instant Slavic bond abroad, but she came off very uncharacteristically distant when slavs meet one another in foreign places. PLAINTIFF alleges she was in SZRU. CONGRESS passed a law that went into effect in which the following is an excerpt from the provision: "Section 315. Report on intelligence sharing with Ukraine. Section 315 expresses the sense of Congress that the President should provide the Government and armed forces of Ukraine with appropriate intelligence sharing support. Section 315 also requires the DNI and the Secretary of Defense to conduct an assessment of U.S. intelligence sharing with the Government of Ukraine and to submit a report on the assessment to the congressional intelligence committees." PLAINTIFF alleges that the Government of UKRAINE/SZRU, DNI, and DoD were sharing information about PLAINTIFF when PLAINTIFF was in Baton Rouge, LA and Japan in which they furthered RICO Enterprise 1 and utilized the previous provision to do so.

PLAINTIFF is alleging that PETER STRZOK, JAMES COMEY, ANDREW MCCABE, DHS, JEH JOHNSON, and/or JOHN O. BRENNAN, violated 18 U.S.C. § 2517(a) in An Anchor and a Pitchfork when they gave specifically identifiable information obtained in the course of an ongoing investigation to Hillary Clinton about PLAINTIFF.

See: some of DEFENDANTS' crimes of: 18 U.S.C §1951 (EXTORTION); Title VI of the Civil Rights Act, 18 U.S.C. §1862 (d); 18 U.S.C. §1862 (c); 18 U.S.C. §1862 (b); 18 U.S.C. §1862 (a); 42 U.S.C. §1981; 42 U.S.C. §1983, 42 U.S.C. §1985(2); 42 U.S.C. §1985(3); 42 U.S.C. §1986; 18 U.S.C. §226, 18 U.S.C. §241, 42 U.S.C. §1983, 18 U.S.C. §1961 Sections 1581-1590 (relating to peonage), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1510 (relating to obstruction of criminal investigations), 18

U.S.C. §1961 section 1343 (wire fraud), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1346 (to deprive another of the intangible right of honest services”), 18 U.S.C. §1961 Section 1503, 18 U.S. Code §201 (bribery), 18 U.S.C. §872 (Extortion by officer), 18 U.S. Code § 875, 18 U.S. Code § 880 (receives proceeds of extortion), Section 504, and PLAINTIFF’S 1st, 4th, 5th, 6th, 8th, 9th, 10th, 13th, and 14th Amendment rights.

In Fall 2014 PLAINTIFF moved in at 773 John Henry, Baton Rouge, LA. 70820 with my new roommate, Warwick Allen, a New Zealander studying at LSU; and then Jacob as an additional roommate later.

The home PLAINTIFF was renting a bedroom from was owned by an Armenian man in October 2014 at 773 John Henry in Baton Rouge, Louisiana. Armenians are kind of like Slavic people (PLAINTIFF’s upbringing is Slavic) due to being once under the USSR and PLAINTIFF found it easy to relate to my landlord Arthur. One day, the kitchen sink is backing up and not draining. PLAINTIFF calls landlord Arthur to fix it. Arthur gets a plumber who then determines the cost of the repair is going to be quite extensive. The plumbing issue and fixing the kitchen sink are repairs that can be called a home repair—HILLARY CLINTON will directly allude to this in a speech she made on 06/26/2015. If PLAINTIFF recalls correctly, PLAINTIFF told landlord Arthur that it would be prudent file a claim with his homeowner’s insurance. PLAINTIFF texts these messages to landlord Arthur and DEFENDANTS have a copy of the exculpatory evidence it contains in which DEFENDANTS intentionally ignored it. Landlord Arthur then complains it is going to raise his rates. DEFENDANTS have now found a false justification and connect to--yet again against their better reasonable judgment--try to falsely connect PLAINTIFF to PLAINTIFF’S house having burned down in May 2010 to connect PLAINTIFF with insurance fraud. As previously stated, PLAINTIFF never committed insurance fraud nor did PLAINTIFF burn down his own home as his cat, Sparky, was far more valuable to PLAINTIFF than any monetary gain that could ever be obtained through burning down the home and DEFENDANTS falsely allege that PLAINTIFF is telling landlord Arthur to commit insurance fraud when PLAINTIFF never told him to commit insurance fraud in the first place. PLAINTIFF wishes he could tell the Court more; but there is probably something with the situation that PLAINTIFF adequately can’t remember because it was that non-consequential to PLAINTIFF’S mind at the time because PLAINTIFF was telling landlord Arthur the truth that he should do things legally and that he should bite the cost on the increase in insurance rates going up due to the necessary repairs. ANDREW MCCABE and DEFENDANTS OMIT this information.

One day, PLAINTIFF wants to say around late 2014, “cable installers” come into the home. PLAINTIFF is very suspicious of these activities as PLAINTIFF had done nothing to be caused to be under surveillance at the time. PLAINTIFF alleges it was the CIA, JOHN O. BRENNAN, JEH JOHNSON, DHS, JAMES COMEY, PETER STRZOK, ANDREW MCCABE, FBI, ERIC HOLDER, BARACK OBAMA, and/or LORETTA LYNCH, that ordered surveillance to be installed in PLAINTIFF’S home. So, FBI, CIA, NSA, DHS, JEH JOHNSON,

JOHN O. BRENNAN, JAMES COMEY, etc. knowing of Alderman v. United States, 394 U.S. 165 (1968) wanted to violate and distinguish the case again as they had in This Side of the Street. Alderman v. United States, 394 U.S. 165 (1968) said: "We adhere to the established view in this Court that the right to be secure in one's house against unauthorized intrusion is not limited to protection against a policeman viewing or seizing tangible property -- "papers" and "effects." Otherwise, the express security for the home provided by the Fourth Amendment would approach redundancy. The rights of the owner of the premises are as clearly invaded when the police enter and install a listening device in his house as they are when the entry is made to undertake a warrantless search for tangible property, and the prosecution as surely employs the fruits of an illegal search of the home when it offers overheard third-party conversations as it does when it introduces tangible evidence belonging not to the homeowner, but to others. "This Court has never held that a federal officer may, without warrant and without consent, physically entrench into a man's office or home, there secretly observe or listen, and relate at the man's subsequent criminal trial what was seen or heard."

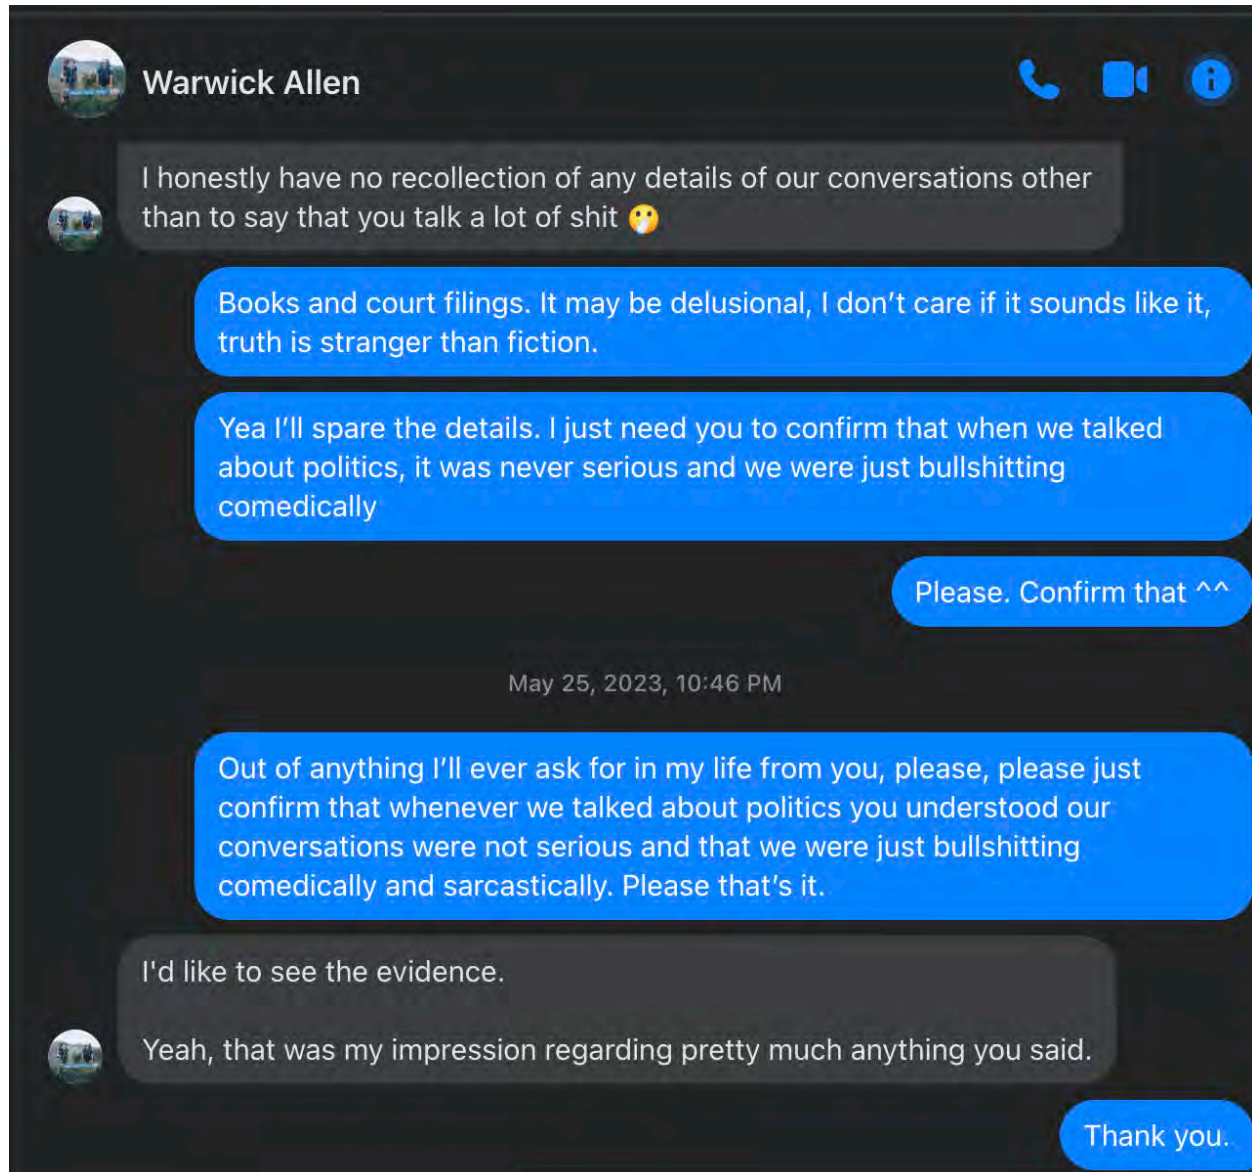

But for CIA, JOHN O. BRENNAN, JEH JOHNSON, DHS, JAMES COMEY, PETER STRZOK, ANDREW MCCABE, FBI, ERIC HOLDER, BARACK OBAMA, and/or LORETTA LYNCH's violation of Alderman v. United States, 394 U.S. 165 (1968), an Anchor and a Pitchfork could not have happened. Period.

PLAINTIFF has to describe the relationship between WARWICK ALLEN, the New Zealander, and PLAINTIFF who were roommates at 773 John Henry, Baton Rouge, LA. 70820. This is absolutely vital in determining that in fact a WAR CRIME took place against PLAINTIFF. There is a video that PLAINTIFF is requesting the Court to watch before the Court understands—fundamentally-- what PLAINTIFF is getting at and conveying to the Court. It is called Bikie Wars by Auntie Donna on Youtube,⁴⁶⁶ which is a good example of Australian/New Zealand humor. PLAINTIFF doesn't like having to explain humor, but it is necessary to do so. If the DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE went to court and they said they had a defendant on video that admitted to extortion, selling cocaine to kids, giving him $20 to perform unlicensed abortions, killing a crooked police officer, and then the DOJ showed the Court Bikie Wars by Auntie Donna as the video confession and proof of the crimes, DOJ would literally be laughed right out of court. Two integral facets of aussie/kiwi (New Zealand) humor are: sarcasm and absurdity. In sarcastic and absurd humor, there is an inherent conflict in personality where something is said that is 'not right' with the known facts of that particular character and personality thus creating the tension necessary for a joke. For example, seeing how WARWICK ALLEN is an atheist environmentalist, if he started rambling on about how Exxon-Mobil saved Jesus and the Church, that is not in congruence with the known facts of who he is, hence it is absurd and sarcastic. PLAINTIFF had performed some stand-up comedy (sometimes good, sometimes PLAINTIFF bombed), loved God and Christ, and loved America and the Constitution. My personality character would be that of "Constitutional Christian Comic." Unless the Constitution, Christianity, and Comedy are now on the same level of Uranium and Terrorism to US intelligence agencies, which this case has now proven to be true, DEFENDANTS had no business falsely labeling PLAINTIFF as being averse to the United States in Spring 2015. Furthermore, PLAINTIFF had minored in philosophy and had so many musings about politics, life, etc. to be a political philosopher during these 1st Amendment protected conversations in the privacy of PLAINTIFF's own home. Utilizing these conversations against PLAINTIFF is on par with the tactics of what the Stasi and KGB used to do during the Cold War and should be abhorrently and fundamentally Anti-American and DEFENDANTS shouldn't be doing that, But then again....

WARWICK and PLAINTIFF understood the comedic, and yet sometimes serious, nature of the conversations we were having with one another in the privacy of our home and fundamentally understood when we were being serious and when we were being sarcastic throughout our time as being roommates. Our conversations could be akin to a comedic podcast in nature.⁴⁶⁷ See: Screenshot below that confirms such. DEFENDANTS did not understand these important facts and were intentionally that deceitful and full of malice or that grossly negligent in understanding the totality of the circumstances here and intentionally misrepresented what WARWICK ALLEN and PLAINTIFF were talking about. WARWICK and PLAINTIFF, as roommates (along with RACHAEL MASON, WARWICK's girlfriend, and then later JACOB), would just bullshit comically and talk about whatever came to mind, had the completely reasonable privacy expectation that DEFENDANTS were not listening in on us (because they had no reason to, BUT THEY WERE), and that the DEFENDANTS would not be so low as to ⁴⁶⁷ God did not make me into a psychic prophet and there is no way I could have foreseen what was about to come.

share what two bullshitters said in the family room in the privacy of their own homes with people like HILLARY and BILL CLINTON that WARWICK and PLAINTIFF made fun of (BUT DEFENDANTS DID). WARWICK and PLAINTIFF talked a lot about the Government in which PLAINTIFF expressed his canonical views and principles that DEFENDANTS:

- shouldn't be corrupt;
- should obey the Constitution;
- Most importantly DEFENDANTS shouldn't do extremely stupid things that imperil the nation.cough like commit acts of terrorism against a special needs man cough cough

As Chief Justice Hughes wrote in Stromberg v. California, 283 U.S. 359 (1931), "The maintenance of the opportunity for free political discussion to the end that government may be responsive to the will of the people and that changes may be obtained by lawful means, an opportunity essential to the security of the Republic, is a fundamental principle of our constitutional system. A statute which upon its face, and as authoritatively construed, is so vague and indefinite as to permit the punishment of the fair use of this opportunity is repugnant to the guaranty of liberty contained in the Fourteenth Amendment. . . ." The United States Government was absolutely not responsive to the will of the People (that includes PLAINTIFF) and that changes of non-corruption can be obtained by having DEFENDANTS follow the law and not be corrupt. These discussions, quite frankly, were essential to the security of the Republic. PLAINTIFF would be punished for these talks and it was completely repugnant to the guaranty of liberty and DEFENDANTS would absolutely not use these conversations fairly.

When PLAINTIFF was having these musing First Amendment protected conversations in the privacy of his home with WARWICK ALLEN, first and foremost, PLAINTIFF had no reason to believe that PLAINTIFF was under such heavy, or any, surveillance at the time because PLAINTIFF was good and not that PLAINTIFF had been committing federal crimes left and right by slaughtering scores of people, raping, and pillaging villages like some barbaric Viking because there was no probable cause to have PLAINTIFF under such heavy surveillance. Period. All PLAINTIFF had been doing with his life at that time was completely minding his own business by going to school, studying, eating, sleeping, trying to have a girlfriend and failing at that miserably, and trying to have some life and progress to PLAINTIFF'S goal of being a constitutional and disability lawyer. Next, PLAINTIFF believed at the time that PLAINTIFF was a nobody and was a loser at this time because of how damaging SEWANEE era had been to PLAINTIFF and had not been fully socially accepted by his peers at LSU Law despite trying to do things like creating a monthly bbq sessions with students in his section at law school. PLAINTIFF believed that PLAINTIFF was that inconsequential to the DC ELITE since PLAINTIFF believed he was of no legal or political importance to anyone in Washington D.C and could not influence anyone in Washington D.C or the DC Elite because PLAINTIFF did not have the power or money to do so. Most importantly PLAINTIFF would not actually protest outside the home of SUPREME COURT Justices and, one day, PLAINTIFF made a joke based on the absurdity of the facts contained in the joke. DOJ/MERRICK GARLAND referenced this joke to Congress. PLAINTIFF had no manifest intention on ever acting on a bunch of the things WARWICK and PLAINTIFF talked about.

One day, 100% true, WARWICK ALLEN brings up conversations about spying and foreign intelligence. WARWICK ALLEN induces PLAINTIFF into answering a question in which WARWICK ALLEN poses something to the effect of: IF you had to choose to be a spy for an adverse foreign country, who would you choose? PLAINTIFF first confirms that he would never choose to be a spy for a foreign country because he loves America and that PLAINTIFF would make a horrible spy because PLAINTIFF wasn't that smart, PLAINTIFF was obvious, and PLAINTIFF was awkward. WARWICK ALLEN kept prodding and then PLAINTIFF completely understanding the hypothetical nature of the conversation in which WARWICK ALLEN and PLAINTIFF would just regularly shoot shit because it was 'itan' and Serbian and American-esque bullshit and it was entertaining conversation, PLAINTIFF said Serbia or Macedonia, and if not, then Russia because of the similar slavic nature in which Slavic blood runs deep seeing how Serbia and Russia were friendly. PLAINTIFF was never a spy for Russia. PLAINTIFF alleges that ANDREW MCCABE and PETER STRZOK having knowingly utilized perjured testimony and fabricated evidence in obtaining a warrant for PLAINTIFF because DEFENDANTS themselves burned down PLAINTIFF'S home and wanted to allege PLAINTIFF had done so for whatever reason. So having fraudulently induced the court, JOHN O. BRENNAN, ANDREW MCCABE, and PETER STRZOK utilized the Rachael Sanders wooing joke from Whoopsie when they had PLAINTIFF under surveillance in which they fundamentally knew that PLAINTIFF had never been to Russia or worked on behalf of Russia and then ANDREW MCCABE, PETER STRZOK, JOHN O. BRENNAN, and JEH JOHSON completely omitted the complete context of the conversation later on to the Courts. Then WARWICK ALLEN prodded PLAINTIFF further and somehow the conversation ended up going to a place where PLAINTIFF talked about "LEROY was here" in WWII with American and Allied soldiers in which if Russia wanted to replicate something like that, they would need an easy symbol to draw in which PLAINTIFF gave the example of 'Z.' Somehow, later on, in the war in Ukraine, some letter 'Z's ended being on russian tanks in which PLAINTIFF read a news article and that made PLAINTIFF remember and that freaked out PLAINTIFF. Remember, this is 2015, PLAINTIFF also talked about how if Ukraine wanted to send a propaganda message to Russia--in which PLAINTIFF talked about the stereotypical nature of serbs and Russians loving sunflower seeds—if Russia decided to invade Ukraine, they would tell a story about an Ukrainian woman telling a Russian soldier about killing the Russian soldier in which the Russian soldier would be buried with sunflower seeds and sunflowers would sprout from his grave. PLAINTIFF said that in 2015. Again, it is this material context and omission by American INTEL that kept causing the fucking problems.

So who was PLAINTIFF during Spring 2015?

Who was PLAINTIFF outside of the descriptions provided for in the Upbringing Section?

PLAINTIFF was a blue-collar, libertarian, making it and living semester to semester during his entire time in law school in which PLAINTIFF would be kicked out at any second (it is not that PLAINTIFF couldn't pass academically and grasp and comprehend the material without the proper help; but PLAINTIFF would be kicked out because of financial aid or administrative issues), a Constitutional Christian Comic, PLAINTIFF trusted people too easily and had a deep skepticism of those in power, PLAINTIFF wanted to explore, learn about anything and everything that interested him, live life, and understand the entirety of the world, and finally, a disabled autistic man that overcame it all through the years.

Suppose DEFENDANTS falsely alleged PLAINTIFF was hostile against the US and that DEFENDANTS had the “proper” legal authority to install software in my laptop (as per ANDREW MCCABE’S admissions made in his book), there should have been evidence of my alleged hostility on my laptop or personality red flags that would require further investigation. No, the only thing they would have found is only adult porn (in which there was no porn: that degraded women, that involved BDSM, that involved ropes and tying, that was extremely hard-core); there did not find any animal crush videos or any evidence of mutilating animals or people or anything that harmed individuals; DEFENDANTS found normal Hollywood movies, a music collection that consisted mostly of classical, country, and pop music, school related documents, class notes, cases, etc. Pretty much exactly everything and anything you would expect to find on a normal male American law school student’s laptop. DEFENDANTS can confirm their search did not yield PLAINTIFF visiting any extremist or terrorist websites (DEFENDANTS had my browsing history and google search history via Chrome), PLAINTIFF posted no extremist views anywhere on social media in which PLAINTIFF posted on Reddit to help people and occasionally posted on Facebook to let people know what was going on in his life and messages on Facebook from time to time, PLAINTIFF did not write nor had any documents that had extremist views written on any documents; PLAINTIFF had no extremist or terrorism documents in his laptop; PLAINTIFF had no documents that expressed any hostility against anyone and anyone in the United States Government; there was absolutely nothing that would be remotely indicative of being plausibly construed in any way or sense or form that expressed any hostility towards the United States or anyone else or that was not constitutionally protected that would constitute or warrant the counterterrorism division or heads of the FBI and CIA to be so interested in PLAINTIFF. Period.

BRIANA (BRI) DRESCHER and PLAINTIFF were friends from the very beginning of law school. How we met was the fact that PLAINTIFF was wearing a “BFM” shirt and BRI made a comment on my shirt during orientation in August 2013 during PLAINTIFF’s first 1L year, and from that moment on, we became instant friends. BRI was romantically involved with her now husband at the time when we met and they had been together for a long time prior to that. BRI and PLAINTIFF developed a deep friendship until something happened in March 2015. BRI and PLAINTIFF went to Twin Peaks and then there was something very different about that night. Through the course of the night and talking late into the night, the connection we had changed from being friends to lovers. We talked about everything. PLAINTIFF admitted to part of Financial Terrorism story because I felt comfortable with her and it was beyond the statute of limitations. PLAINTIFF had driven that night so PLAINTIFF at most had either 2 or 3 beers like PLAINTIFF normally does and BRI had the same amount. PLAINTIFF believes there were times prior to this incident and afterwards in which BRI had consumed alcohol, wasn’t legally intoxicated, and drove home from the restaurant or bars afterwards. Yes there was some alcohol involved in this incident, but neither BRI nor PLAINTIFF drank to the point where it would have been an issue. BRI drove to Twin Peaks that night where we would just end up meeting at Twin Peaks.⁴⁶⁸ What PLAINTIFF most definitely remembers was that PLAINTIFF and BRI stayed at Twin Peaks for more than two hours in which BRI and PLAINTIFF were some of the very last people to leave because of the conversation between us just flowed so smoothly and BRI and PLAINTIFF both lost the track of time. Even through the dinner we did things that a couple would do that BRI and PLAINTIFF have never done before such as BRI wanting to share food with PLAINTIFF and trying to feed PLAINTIFF with her food. What PLAINTIFF distinctly recalls as BRI and PLAINTIFF were leaving that night was that BRI said that she wanted to go back to my place with me in my car. BRI could have driven herself home from Twin Peaks that night because she wasn't legally intoxicated,⁴⁶⁹ but she didn't. She decided to come to back home with me that night and leave her car at Twin Peaks.

So BRI and PLAINTIFF drove back to PLAINTIFF'S place, entered through the kitchen, and then went to my bedroom. PLAINTIFF doesn't remember what PLAINTIFF was showing her in my bedroom, but BRI and PLAINTIFF got really close to one another. BRI looked at me and PLAINTIFF looked at her and her body language was one that she really wanted to kiss—eyes staring directly into mine, chest pushed up and towards me taking slow and deep breaths, and mouth slightly open. Now before PLAINTIFF says anything further, BRI is hot. BRI modeled prior to law school, has large breasts that PLAINTIFF most definitely wanted to motor boat in, blonde hair, blue eyes, would be considered extremely attractive to everyone. PLAINTIFF wanted to go with her, do things with her and make sounds in the process like complete romantic savages. BUT PLAINTIFF started to lean in to kiss BRI, but then PLAINTIFF stopped. PLAINTIFF stopped primarily for the reason that PLAINTIFF thought about the relationship she had with her boyfriend at the time and PLAINTIFF didn't want to ruin their relationship for a one-time mistake on her part. It became really awkward after PLAINTIFF stopped and then PLAINTIFF said do you want me to take you back home and she said yes. PLAINTIFF drove her back home. Our friendship became really strained after that night. It was one of the last times within the last 8 years PLAINTIFF felt anything romantic in his heart. Then PLAINTIFF remembers in December 2016 PLAINTIFF texted her and told her PLAINTIFF was leaving Louisiana and that PLAINTIFF had no idea when PLAINTIFF would ever see her again, and wanted to see if she wanted to talk before PLAINTIFF left the state. She said yes and had agreed to meet me at Starbucks. But she made up some excuse and blew me off. Sometimes PLAINTIFF wonders if he was actually texting BRI that day in December where it could have been someone that took over BRI's phone and posed as her. PLAINTIFF was not invited to Bri's wedding that took place in 2017. BRI is now a mother. Like PLAINTIFF said, the last time PLAINTIFF felt that deep of a connection with a woman was on that night. PLAINTIFF was even more heart broken than before in Spring 2015.

So after being completely heart broken by BRI DRESCHER, one of the documents DEFENDANTS did have by having conducted an illegal search on PLAINTIFF'S laptop in violation 18 U.S.C. §1961 Section 1028/1029 was that PLAINTIFF made a document in April 2015 which PLAINTIFF noted that he had wished upon a huge meteor shower having taken place in April 2015 that PLAINTIFF would soon find PLAINTIFF'S wife (the love of PLAINTIFF'S life); and if not, if PLAINTIFF could marry Kristina Khomova or Vera Pochtarev.⁴⁷⁰ Without a meteor shower, Christianity as we know it may not have existed.

⁴⁶⁹ If I recall correctly, I don't think she paid in cash and used her debit/credit card that night so it's quite possible to pull up how much she had to drink based on the receipt from that night.

⁴⁷⁰ Just like how meteor shows fade into the abyss, the hope of marrying either one of these women has been faded into the abyss for a long time now.

Emperor Constantine-- on October 27th, 312 A.D-- who made Christianity legal in the Roman Empire. The following from Amusing Planet that describes why it was important⁴⁷¹:

“Eusebius, one of the Christian Church's early historians, describes a vision that Constantine had while marching towards the site of the battle:

...while he was thus praying with fervent entreaty, a most marvelous sign appeared to him from heaven, the account of which it might have been hard to believe had it been related by any other person.

...about noon, when the day was already beginning to decline, he saw with his own eyes the trophy of a cross of light in the heavens, above the Sun, and bearing the inscription 'conquer by this'. At this sight he himself was struck with amazement, and his whole army also, which followed him on this expedition, and witnessed the miracle.

At first Constantine was unsure of the meaning of the apparition, but the following night he had a dream in which Christ explained to him that he should use the sign against his enemies. Constantine then commanded his troops to adorn their shields with the Christian symbol, the Chi-Rho, which he had seen in the skies. Constantine's army won the battle, and the new emperor dedicated the victory to Christ whom he believed had helped him.”⁴⁷² So without a meteor shower, no Christianity. See also: Battle of Milvian Bridge.

PLAINTIFF prayed to the God during the meteor shower to find the love of his life soon and for her to be completely faithful. No open marriage or anything like that--No marrying someone or something under any circumstances that PLAINTIFF would find completely disgusting. DEFENDANTS knew all of this. Marriage was one of the major and only hopes PLAINTIFF had to look forward to in his miserable life up to that point of time and looked forward to it so much *because if PLAINTIFF’S family wouldn’t love PLAINTIFF for himself, then at least his future wife would; and PLAINTIFF just wanted that so badly. Furthermore, PLAINTIFF wanted to be married inside an Orthodox Church or All Saints Chapel as marriage is extremely important in the Orthodox Christian faith. It would deeply offend PLAINTIFF beyond belief to be married to anyone if PLAINTIFF did not get married inside a church. Period. Does this sound like terrorist or counter-espionage related activity to you? NO! Did PLAINTIFF write that PLAINTIFF would shout out loud Allahu Akbar and screaming about infidels in a public place in my future marriage proposal? No, no PLAINTIFF did not. Again, nothing criminal or terrorist like.

If any competent intelligence agency DEFENDANTS would have talked to school administrators, teachers, students in the Spring of 2015, everyone (if they were being honest) would have expressed the same thing of what PLAINTIFF wanted to do and who PLAINTIFF was at that time: “Miki wanted to do constitutional and disability work, and despite his social struggles, he could occasionally be funny at times.” If they would have asked PLAINTIFF’S friend CHERRY ROBERTS-MATHERNE, an interrogator of terrorists overseas during the Gulf War, if PLAINTIFF had done or said anything remotely conceivable as hostile to the United States in the two years of having known each other in the Spring of 2015, and if she was being truthful, she would have told the Court and them: NO. Texts between CHERRY ROBERTS-MATHERNE and PLAINTIFF would have proven that to be true. These wonderful pieces of exculpatory evidence were omitted. If anything, PLAINTIFF'S actions would have showed cooperation as, PLAINTIFF will explain in a bit, cooperated with CHERRY ROBERTS-MATHERNE and LSU Law on dealing with financial aid issues yet again.

“FUCK the CRIPPLES”—FBI under ANDREW MCCABE AND PETER STRZOK

DEFENDANTS hated PLAINTIFF beyond any measure or any comprehensible or articulable standards or limits that was so manifestly unjust and undeserved. PLAINTIFF tried finding a case where the DEFENDANTS hatred of a subject was so existent as to effectively deny due process but can't find a case like that.

So why does PLAINTIFF have this contention? By all means, be skeptical! Give the benefit of the doubt here to DEFENDANTS/FBI/CIA, etc. who were “just doing their jobs.”

Just read everything below and consider the question: would this be a factual explanation based on circumstantial evidence describing the beginning steps on how war-crimes and RICO violations were committed against an American in which there was not any semblance of Due Process protections afforded to him and that these crimes were done against his conscience, legal, and constitutional rights? PLAINTIFF has to show you--by evidence--what was going on the minds of the DOJ and FBI when it came to individuals with disabilities in 2015 and 2016.

First, did the BILL and HILLARY CLINTON ever take advantage of a disabled man where they had the opportunity to stop a specific and direct harm to a disabled man in which they executed a disabled man for their own political purposes? Yes. Yes, in fact, BILL and HILLARY CLINTON did that with--RICKEY RAY RECTOR. “Clinton leaves the campaign trail [in 1992 or so] to attend the execution of cop-killer Ricky Ray Rector, a mentally incompetent black man given to howling who is so dysfunctional that he asks his guards at his last meal to save his pie for later.”⁴⁷³ As from Christopher Hitchens book on the CLINTONS, No One Left To Lie To, this is an excerpt on who HILLARY CLINTON is a person: “Mrs. Clinton has the most unappetizing combination of qualities to be met in many days’ march: she is a tyrant and a bully when she can dare to be, and an ingratiating populist when that will serve. She will sometimes appear in the guise of a strong woman and sometimes in the softer garb of a winsome and vulnerable female. She is entirely un-self-critical and quite devoid of reflective capacity, and has never found that any of her numerous misfortunes or embarrassments are her own fault, because the fault invariably lies with others...Like (Bill Clinton), she is not just a liar, but a lie; a phony construct of shreds and patches and hysterical, self-pitying, demagogic improvisations.”

But can you give multiple examples of how the DEFENDANTS/FBI referred to you, PLAINTIFF, in their investigations and how that would prove beyond a reasonable doubt their malice for PLAINTIFF based on how DEFENDANTS talked about PLAINTIFF that led to their actions concerning PLAINTIFF. Great question and suggestion!

First, as previously explained in MID-YEAR: The FBI started their whole entire investigation into PLAINTIFF on the basis of PLAINTIFF'S writing disability issues that stem from PLAINTIFF'S autism in 2008 and chose that specific incident to characterize PLAINTIFF on the basis of his disability. PLAINTIFF is kind of jumping ahead here, but it is vital to know and is introducing the Court to the issues that will come up: PETER STRZOK sent a message to LISA PAIGE and JR on 02/05/2016 at 8:02am: "Lisa—you were right, I was wrong (first time for everything), you're good. Andy, however needs [ME] (as does Bill P). I will take care of Bill—would you or someone on DD staff handle paperwork for Andy? Looking to get a bulk read-in done next week; to the extent Andy wants to join, I will let you know the time. I suspect he/(you) may need other compartments as well, so it might make sense to do his separately en masse (that's French for "all at once"...I'm not just a leader, I'm an educator)." 'Bulk read in' is DEFENDANTS, the FBI, getting Bulk Meta-Data collection from Section 702 or Section 215 to circumvent PLAINTIFF'S Constitutional Rights. (ME) can mean one of two things, 1st, it could be a self-reference by PETER STRZOK, but based on the date of the message and content of the sentence and the circumstances that occurred after Summer 2015, ME is referring to Midyear Exam (which is PLAINTIFF: See: MIDYEAR EXAM) as ME is an abbreviation of Midyear Exam and DEFENDANTS need to prosecute PLAINTIFF because ANDREW MCCABE needed to prosecute me on behalf of the CLINTONS as per their fundraiser stipulation on 06/26/2015. Most importantly in that message, DD can mean one of two things: 1st, DD is an abbreviation that could refer to Deputy Director (as that was ANDREW MCCABE'S position), but as PLAINTIFF is arguing based on the context, it is also an abbreviation for—developmental delays (which PLAINTIFF had from his childhood) in which DEFENDANTS had included documentation about PLAINTIFF'S developmental delays to his school in (See: Second Chance) that DEFENDANTS had access to, possessed, and utilized adversely against PLAINTIFF via the USA PATRIOT ACT and "didn't" need a warrant to obtain that information. The context of the statement proves such: the statement is "would you or someone on DD staff handle paperwork for Andy." People who work under Deputy Director ANDREW MCCABE already know they are staff members of the Deputy Director and that they handle paperwork for the Deputy Director—there's no need to repeat that fact. This phrasing also means that ANDREW MCCABE needs to keep some plausible distance from PLAINTIFF to ANDREW MCCABE and have different staff members deal with paperwork that involves PLAINTIFF to whatever ANDREW MCCABE is directing his staff to do against PLAINTIFF'S Constitutional and legal interests. This is further supported in the text as PETER STRZOK himself notes the distance litmus test: "to the extent that ANDY (ANDREW MCCABE) wants to join" because of what happened in 06/26/2015. The FBI were literally referring to PLAINTIFF on the basis of his disability as 'DD' and the agents and case handlers in the FBI that were working against PLAINTIFF'S interests were on the DD staff that concerned PLAINTIFF. In the previous message on 02/05/2016 at 8:02am, by "taking care of BILL," PLAINTIFF is alleging that DEFENDANTS are taking care of BILL CLINTON and covering up for him after what BILL CLINTON did on March 17th, 2015 and thereafter. This is extremely plausible because there is a reference to two different BILLS where you can separate them as being distinct individuals:

BILL P is individual 1 and BILL is individual 2. BILL CLINTON is BILL INDIVIDUAL 2 above. You may be thinking, that was a bit of stretch in which certain individuals in the FBI refer to you on the basis of your disability, and PLAINTIFF says to you, it is not.

PETER STRZOK admits behind closed door testimony to Congress in 2018 that DEFENDANTS routinely and systematically--without any form accountability or a single pause to reflect that their actions were that demonstrably unconstitutional and illegal under at least Section 504—referred to PLAINTIFF on the basis of his disability since 2008. The SUBJECT

Q So, to be clear, it sounds like the term "special," either in an older FBI, and maybe the term has just carried over, it meant how something administratively was done with the case, not the subject matter of the case.

A Both. I mean, typically, I think it was an administrative process, but there was also a recognition that, you know, if there was

So I saw that as immediately appropriately addressed, and I continued then to look at the wide range of responsibilities I had, one which was -- is truly significant, the Russia investigations, but there are any number of other espionage cases or counterintelligence matters that were going on at the same time.

MATTER OF THE CASE (i.e. the person of the investigation or case) is "SPECIAL" which refers to PLAINTIFF being a former special education student as the word "Special" is commonly associated with "Special Education" students and disabled individuals, particularly those who are on the autism spectrum and/or have an intellectual disability. Like PETER STRZOK said: "THERE WAS ALSO A RECOGNITION" in regards to using certain terms that related to PLAINTIFF'S disability that identified PLAINTIFF. Like PLAINTIFF doesn't mind if DEFENDANTS, friends, or anyone for that matter jokingly and lovingly called me a Crazy Cripple, Terrorist Al-Derp-e-Dur, Downie the Bear, etc. PLAINTIFF understands that it is joking and comes from a place of good intent and will and makes light of the situation that PLAINTIFF was in special ed, factual circumstances, and that PLAINTIFF is being accepted anyway even though he was a special ed student. However PLAINTIFF objectively and factually recognizes how there was no good-will on part of DEFENDANTS that spanned over the years through an unbelievable amount of times and references that prejudiced PLAINTIFF. Just imagine the outrage and uproar that would occur if the FBI referred to staff that were working on a potential case involving an African-American suspect with the acronym of NEGRO or BLACK Staff; and that's exactly how the FBI referred to PLAINTIFF—on the basis of his legally protected status. You will find out later, PLAINTIFF will become so obsessed with the word "other" to the point of an obsession that related to some disability issues so one of the terms they use to refer to me is "other." (See picture above: other espionage cases). As PLAINTIFF made an earlier argument with the case of: Yamaha Motor Corp v. Riney, 21 F.3d 793 (8th Cir. 1994), DEFENDANTS ANDREW MCCABE, LISA PAGE, and PETER STRZOK should have been disqualified from the very beginning and it is clear that their decision-making processes was drenched, covered, and smothered in actual bias and prejudice that objective reasonableness was an impossibility and a non-existent reality.

How this gets even more fucked up is the Espionage case they're talking about and arguing over is the following factual scenario that DEFENDANTS are desperately trying to prosecute PLAINTIFF over:

WikiLeaks, completely unconnected to PLAINTIFF, leaks HILLARY CLINTON'S emails that contain proof and evidence of HILLARY CLINTON'S involvement in part of the terrorist activity in LONDON on 03/11/2011 via Miki's Tea Party that impacted PLAINTIFF and was committed against PLAINTIFF in which PLAINTIFF had a copy of HILLARY CLINTON'S emails that documents the connection between HILLARY CLINTON, PLAINTIFF, and REBECCA WETHERBEE and the RICO ENTERPRISE that existed in 2010 and 2011 AND DEFENDANTS ARE TRYING TO PROSECUTE PLAINTIFF FOR POSSESSING EMAILS THAT HE WAS PART OF AND WAS BEING REFERENCED TO, in which if DEFENDANTS--were being completely honest during discovery and providing Brady material to PLAINTIFF as a DEFENDANT--would have had to necessarily provide PLAINTIFF the same exact emails anyway (even if they were not leaked or leaked).

That's a travesty of justice. That's how ridiculous this all became.

PETER STRZOK, ANDREW MCCABE, LISA PAGE, and other DEFENDANTS never saw PLAINTIFF for who PLAINTIFF was because all PLAINTIFF was to them was just something that was completely outside of my control that PLAINTIFF was born with and spent his whole life fixing and trying to fix. Some of the different keywords that, in certain contexts, serve as an identifier for PLAINTIFF, that all relate to his legally protected disability status are: "other," "DD," "simple," and "Special."

In New York Times Co. v. United States, 403 U.S. 713 (1971), The Court granted Certiorari when some newspapers wanted to publish a classified study--that detailed U.S. decision making in a foreign country--entitled: "History of U.S. Decision-Making Process on Vietnam Policy." The Court necessarily and unequivocally ruled these factual circumstances as Constitutional and protected under the 1st and 14th Amendments: some REPORTERS had obtained, possessed, and utilized a source of CLASSIFIED materials concerning decision making abroad in which someone had LEAKED the information. PERIOD. PLAINTIFF did not commit a single crime in possessing HILLARY CLINTON'S confidential Emails in which some of them concerned PLAINTIFF. The Court discussed how The Government "thus carries a heavy burden of showing justification for the imposition of such a restraint." Organization for a Better Austin v. Keefe, 402 U. S. 415, 402 U. S. 419 (1971)" and that they did not meet the heavy burden of showing the justification for imposing the restraint.

wrote: "In other words, we are asked to hold that, despite the First Amendment's emphatic command, the Executive Branch, the Congress, and the Judiciary can make laws enjoining publication of current news and abridging freedom of the press in the name of "national security." The Government does not even attempt to rely on any act of Congress. Instead, it makes the bold and dangerously far-reaching contention that the courts should take it upon themselves to "make" a law abridging freedom of the press in the name of equity, presidential power and national security, even when the representatives of the people in Congress have adhered to the command of the First Amendment and refused to make such a law. To find that the President has "inherent power" to halt the publication of news by resort to the courts would wipe out the First Amendment and destroy the fundamental liberty and security of the very people the Government hopes to make "secure." No one can read the history of the adoption of the First Amendment without being convinced beyond any doubt that it was injunctions like those sought here that Madison and his collaborators intended to outlaw in this Nation for all time. The word "security" is a broad, vague generality whose contours should not be invoked to abrogate the fundamental law embodied in the First Amendment. The guarding of military and diplomatic secrets at the expense of informed representative government provides no real security for our Republic... This thought was eloquently expressed in 1937 by Mr. Chief Justice Hughes -- great man and great Chief Justice that he was -- when the Court held a man could not be punished for attending a meeting run by Communists. "The greater the importance of safeguarding the community from incitements to the overthrow of our institutions by force and violence, the more imperative is the need to preserve inviolate the constitutional rights of free speech, free press and free assembly in order to maintain the opportunity for free political discussion, to the end that government may be responsive to the will of the people and that changes, if desired, may be obtained by peaceful means. Therein lies the security of the Republic, the very foundation of constitutional government."

The Court in New York Times Co. v. United States, 403 U.S. 713 (1971) cited Chief Justice Hughes's opinion in Near v. Minnesota, 283 U. S. 697 (1931) (that said: "While reckless assaults upon public men, and efforts to bring obloquy upon those who are endeavoring faithfully to discharge official duties, exert a baleful influence and deserve the severest condemnation in public opinion, it cannot be said that this abuse is greater, and it is believed to be less, than that which characterized the period in which our institutions took shape. Meanwhile, the administration of government has become more complex, the opportunities for malfeasance and corruption have multiplied, crime has grown to most serious proportions, and the danger of its protection by unfaithful officials and of the impairment of the fundamental security of life and property by criminal alliances⁴⁷⁴ and official neglect, emphasizes the primary need of a vigilant and courageous press, especially in great cities. The fact that the liberty of the press may be abused by miscreant purveyors of scandal does not make any the less necessary the immunity of the press from previous restraint in dealing with official misconduct."

But PETER STRZOK testified the following to Congress and obstructed justice by completely mischaracterizing what this was all about:

⁴⁷⁴ Cough. RICO ENTERPRISE Cough Cough.

Mr. Krishnamoorthi. why not?

Mr. Strzok. That's not who we are. That is not -- my decades of FBI experience, we are driven by a pursuit of the truth. Just as I would never allow any personal opinion or belief to drive an action, I wouldn't tolerate it in others, and that is a -- the code of the Bureau. And what distresses me the most are people's suggestion that the FBI is the sort of place where that even could possibly occur is destructive to the rule of law and the mission of the FBI to protect the United States.

DEFENDANTS were not driven by a pursuit of truth. PLAINTIFF demonstrated what the truth was in the previous paragraphs and sections and the FBI/DEFENDANTS intentionally and deliberately ignored the truth at every single step of the way since at least 2008. PETER STRZOK said he would not allow any personal opinion or belief to drive the action. This is empirically and categorically false. What is but an opinion of hatred about someone when you only refer to that person on the basis of their legally protected status? On Nov. 9, 2016, to demonstrate how long DEFENDANTS have been after PLAINTIFF and their complete hatred of PLAINTIFF, "FBI attorney instant messaged another FBI employee: "I am so stressed about what I could have done differently...I just can't imagine the systematic disassembly of the progress we made over the last 8 years."⁴⁷⁵ So DEFENDANTS know of the systematic corruption committed against PLAINTIFF over at least 8 years of 50+ RICO Predicate Acts and are that dead-set on prosecuting PLAINTIFF. So FBI opens the "Crossfire Hurricane" investigation (CFH) and PETER STRZOK texts Page "And damn this feels momentous. Because this matters. The other one did, too, but that was to ensure we didn't F something up. This matters because this MATTERS. So super glad to be on this voyage with you." Yet another investigation after they fucked it up before. On, Jan. 19, 2018, FBI notifies Congress that it did not preserve five months of Strzok/Page text messages. Poof. Evidence of concerning PETER STRZOK and PLAINTIFF disappeared. Furthermore, there is clear demonstrated hatred and animus on the basis of PLAINTIFF'S Disability that makes itself known between PETER STRZOK and LISA PAGE on May 19, 2017 when PETER STRZOK texts Page: "For me, and this case, I personally have a sense of unfinished business. I unleashed it with MYE. Now I need to fix it and finish it."⁴⁷⁶ MYE is Mid-Year Exam and is a reference to PLAINTIFF. PLAINTIFF is not a person to PETER STRZOK; he is a thing to PETER STRZOK that must be ominously finished off and fixed to PETER STRZOK's liking regardless of PLAINTIFF's disabilities or issues. LISA PAGE stated on 10/30/2016: " Yeah. I saw it. Makes me feel WAY less bad about throwing him under the bus in the forthcoming CF article Strzok – Yep the whole tone is anti Bu. Just a tiny bit from is. And serves him right. He's gonna be pissed..." Throwing PLAINTIFF under the bus is personal animus against PLAINTIFF. Serves him right shows animus towards plaintiff that drives the investigation. Bu is DEFENDANT THAO BUI. See some of DEFENDANTS crimes of:

Can you show FBI's and DOJ's bias during this time when it came to American citizens with disabilities. Yes. Yes, PLAINTIFF can by pointing to FBI's 2015 DIOG. Section 504 prohibits federal employees from discriminating against individuals with disabilities--that has been law of the land since 1973; the Americans with Disabilities Act became law of the land in 1990. Do you see Disability in any of the following text from Section 4.3 Equal Protection Under the Law in DIOG 2015: "Specifically, federal government employees are prohibited from engaging in invidious discrimination against individuals on the basis of race, ethnicity, gender, national origin, religion, sexual orientation, or gender identity. This principle is further reflected and implemented for federal law enforcement in the United States Department of Justice's Guidance for Federal Law Enforcement Agencies Regarding the Use of Race, Ethnicity, Gender, National Origin, Religion, Sexual Orientation, or Gender Identity (hereinafter "DOJ's 2014 Guidance on Use of Race, etc."). Investigative and intelligence collection activities must not be based solely on race, ethnicity, gender, national origin, religion, sexual orientation, or gender identity. Any such activities that are based solely on such considerations are invidious by definition, and therefore, unconstitutional. This standard applies to all investigative and collection activity, including collecting and retaining information, opening investigations, disseminating information, and indicting and prosecuting defendants. It is applicable to the retention and dissemination of personally identifying information about an individual—as further illustrated in the examples enumerated below." "In order to rely on a listed characteristic, federal law enforcement or task officers must also reasonably believe that the law enforcement, security, or intelligence activity to be undertaken is merited under the totality of the circumstances, such as any temporal exigency and the nature of any potential harm to be averted." Id. If I'm not mistaken, gender identity issues were ruled to be protected AFTER Congress and SCOTUS created and ruled on multiple disability laws and cases since at least 1973, but FBI did not care about it enough to include it. If PLAINTIFF would have been a cross dressing tranny, he would have got their protection but not as a disabled individual. Even then, there were pictures of PLAINTIFF having crossed dressed and even then that wasn't even good enough. Shows you DEFENDANTS' priorities by completely omitting disability from equal protection law section. JAPLAN is on the basis of his autism is based solely on his autism and doing JAPLAN is invidious by definition; and therefore, unconstitutional.

Oh come on you're thinking, there's no way that the DOJ and FBI in FBI's 2015 DIOG were that completely oblivious at the time when it came to disability issues, which would necessarily include behavior seeing how a myriad of disabilities are cognitive and behavior based, under the Equal Treatment Under the Law Section? WRONG. Section 4.3.3.2.3 specifically talks about "General Ethnic/Racial Behavior," Section 4.3.3.2.4 specifically talks about "Specific and Relevant Ethnic Behavior," and Section 4.3.3.2.5 specifically talks about "Ethnic Behavior." PLAINTIFF doesn't suppose these aforementioned sections specifically talk about some organization having "specific behavioral characteristics" and then effectively allows the Agent to analyze based on whether or not someone has specific behavioral characteristics or not that would classify them as having a certain attribute? There is! Not even once do these sections talk about disabilities, do they? CORRECT. This is just a piece of the puzzle and not an entire reflection about the FBI at the time.

But wait, there's more! Something compelled the FBI and DOJ to suddenly change their DIOG (Domestic Investigations and Operations Guide) in November 2015⁴⁷⁷ (after PLAINTIFF came back from Japan in July 2015) and was published in March 2016. What was the purpose of the revision? According to James Comey, it was "to better equip [the FBI] to protect the people of the United States against crime and threats to the national security and to collect foreign intelligence." So DEFENDANTAS could falsely label PLAINTIFF a threat for national security purposes prior to Japan 2015 after being subject to acts of international and domestic terrorism committed by DEFENDANTS and then they could collect foreign intelligence while PLAINTIFF was in Japan... Was there something that was intentionally and deliberately underlined and italicized to emphasize the importance of it in this DIOG? Yes. Original emphasis on the DEFENDANT FBI: "Finally for national security and foreign intelligence investigations, FBI investigative activities will continue to be processed as set forth in the classified Memorandum of Understanding Concerning Overseas and Domestic Activities of the Central Intelligence Agency and the Federal Bureau of Investigation (2005)."⁴⁷⁸ There is that cooperation agreement between CIA and FBI; and so for all intents and purposes, they are one and of the same in Summer 2015.

The FBI DIOG of 2015 says "the FBI's core values must be fully understood, practiced, shared, vigorously defended, and preserved. The values are: a) rigorous obedience to the Constitution of the United States; b) respect for the dignity of all those we protect; c) Compassion; d) Fairness; e) uncompromising personal integrity and institutional integrity; f) accountability by accepting responsibility for our actions and decisions and their consequences; g) leadership, by example, both personal and professional... We who enforce the law must not merely obey it. We have an obligation to set a moral example that those whom we protect can follow."⁴⁷⁹ PLAINTIFF is presuming FBI has an obligation to set a moral example of those that they protect, they would do so when there is a "temporal exigency and the nature of any potential harm to be averted" in which averting the harm of RICO, Torture, War Crimes, Hate Crimes against an autistic man is one of those moral examples. Let's see how well FBI's core values were understood, practiced, shared, defended, and preserved by certain FBI officials, shall we?

XX. Speech and More Speech in Spring 2015.

As previously stated, WARWICK ALLEN and PLAINTIFF talked about HILLARY CLINTON and WIKILEAKS and HILLARY CLINTON'S corruption. WARWICK ALLEN and PLAINTIFF made fun of HILLARY CLINTON and PLAINTIFF made a specific joke about HILLARY CLINTON that HILLARY CLINTON herself would cite on 06/26/2015 (a factual nexus connecting it to PLAINTIFF is a substantial and motivating factor). Boy oh Boy did PLAINTIFF ever piss off DEFENDANTS, HILLARY CLINTON, PETER STRZOK, ANDREW MCCABE, et. al. in these talks. PLAINTIFF talked about how PLAINTIFF had kept HILLARY CLINTON'S emails to write a story about her corruption and WikiLeaks one day (not knowing at the time that some of those WikiLeaks emails were about PLAINTIFF and could have discovered it sooner as it would have been fresher in PLAINTIFF'S memory). Not once did

PLAINTIFF come even remotely close to crossing the threshold of wondering into unprotected speech in the privacy and confines of his own home in these conversations with WARWICK ALLEN--DEFENDANTS have the evidence that proves such. This was a huge legal, financial, and political liability to HILLARY CLINTON.

In the Spring of 2015, PLAINTIFF wanted to explore the world further and was considering going to North Korea so PLAINTIFF could write about North Korean propaganda to demonstrate the importance of the First Amendment in the U.S as a journalist. PLAINTIFF was a journalist at this time having written an article on gay marriage for a gay magazine having submitted the article to JAMES GRADY, the editor of a gay magazine in NASHVILLE, when PLAINTIFF lived at 773 John Henry, Baton Rouge, LA.70820. If you went to North Korea's Wikipedia page, it doesn't mean that you're sympathizing with North Korea or by doing so you are doing it with any hostile intent against the United States. Mere curiosity of wanting to know what it is like in North Korea with North Korean propaganda to show the importance of the First Amendment is not a good basis of a search warrant utilizing the most intensive surveillance tools known to man. If PLAINTIFF would have bought a ticket to China to get to North Korea, fine by all means, go get that warrant to investigate and surveil PLAINTIFF because that means PLAINTIFF took substantial and meaningful steps to get to North Korea; but PLAINTIFF took no substantial and meaningful steps involving anything with North Korea besides maybe preliminary research.

At this time, PLAINTIFF was a liability of the $14.9 Billion Dollar transaction that occurred in October 2010 in which that would have cost DEFENDANTS $44.7 Billion in Treble Damages owed to PLAINTIFF because "trade is in the offing." Furthermore, WARWICK ALLEN and PLAINTIFF, between 09/01/2014 and 05/26/2015, talked about: the ROTHSCHILD family (which include: BARON DAVID RENE de ROTHSCHILD, LYNN FORESTER DE ROTHSCHILD, E.L. ROTHSCHILD HOLDING COMPANY, and ROTHCHILD CONTINUATION HOLDINGS (i.e.the ROTHSCHILD Banking Empire). PLAINTIFF explained to WARWICK ALLEN how the ROTHSCHILDS were also RACKETEERS when they funded war through the centuries and presently and how war was a racket in explicit detail. Rich people understand when their money is at risk and will dispose of all potential liability corruptly through the courts and through politicians that suckle at their tits. LYNN DE ROTHSCHILD⁴⁸⁰ was talked about and mentioned in the Clinton Emails that Wikileaks released so she was personally close to DEFENDANT HILLARY CLINTON. BARON DAVID RENE ROTHSCHILD is the head of the ROTHSCHILD family and banking empire. As PLAINTIFF will conclusively prove later, FBI, DHS, and CIA and/or unknown DEFENDANTS babbled on to HILLARY CLINTON about what PLAINTIFF and WARWICK ALLEN said about her and her corruption in the privacy of his home in SPRING 2015. This was a direct threat to the CLINTONS and LYNN FORESTER de ROTHSCHILD since: "From 1993 to 1995, Lynn Forester de Rothschild served on President Bill Clinton's National Information Infrastructure Advisory Council. From 1998 to 2000, she served on the US Secretary of Energy's advisory committee. Rothschild has donated to all of Bill and Hillary Clinton's federal races since 1992. Although Rothschild was a major fund raiser for Hillary Clinton's 2008 presidential bid, she transferred her support to Republican candidate John McCain when Barack Obama beat Clinton, becoming a minor celebrity on cable television at the time for attacking Obama in a series of interviews.”⁴⁸¹ In Summer 2016, LYNN FORESTER de ROTHSCHILD held a fundraiser for HILLARY CLINTON.⁴⁸² HILLARY CLINTON has constantly BABBLED on to the ROTHSCHILDS and they have a strong financial relationship with one another. PLAINTIFF talked about both the ROTHSCHILDS and HILLARY CLINTON in Spring 2015 in the context of corruption, racketeering, and writing articles on it in which DEFENDANTS have conclusively proven to have shared the content of PLAINTIFF’S speech with the subject’s of PLAINTIFF’S speech. PLAINTIFF is alleging DEFENDANTS gave HILLARY CLINTON and she talked about it with LYNN FORESTER de ROTHSCHILD in which PLAINTIFF just became even more of a liability to HILLARY CLINTON and the ROTHSCHILDS. So HILLARY CLINTON and LYNN FORESTER de ROTHSCHILD conspired against PLAINTIFF based on the content of these conversations. It is absolutely NOT that far of a stretch of the imagination that the ROTHSCHILDS were made aware of what PLAINTIFF and WARWICK ALLEN had talked about on multiple occasions by DEFENDANTS because DEFENDANTS made HILLARY CLINTON aware of the content of the conversations and HILLARY CLINTON intentionally retaliated on the basis of the content of PLAINTIFF’S speech involving her corruption in her fundraising speech on 06/26/2015 and LYNN FORESTER de ROTHSCHILD held a fundraiser for HILLARY CLINTON in SUMMER 2016 and it would also be in the ROTHSCHILD’S interest to retaliate against PLAINTIFF as that would expose their racketeering enterprise. Put in another way, seeing how the discussions between WARWICK and PLAINTIFF were FACTUALLY leaked to HILLARY CLINTON by DEFENDANTS in the course of an on-going investigation in which HILLARY CLINTON FACTUALLY referenced them in a speech given on 06/26/2015 and used them against PLAINTIFF, there is absolutely no reason to suspect that DEFENDANTS ROTHSCHILDS and ROTHSCHILD HOLDINGS were not made aware of PLAINTIFF’S conversations explaining how ROTHSCHILDS had financed the United States Government and controlled them thereby giving a reason to retaliate against PLAINTIFF and the war racket above. Simply, it arose out of the same factual nexus thereby providing a legal connection to it. PLAINTIFF specifically incorporates the allegations against the ROTHSCHILD in Miki’s Tea Party [here]. SCOTUS proved the theory of this allegation correct connecting LYNN FORESTER de ROTHSCHILD to An Anchor and a Pitchfork, absolving DEFENDANT law enforcement actions that PLAINTIFF could have sought redress for under RICO in County of Los Angeles v. Mendez, 581 U.S. __ (2017).

Do you remember the point of PLAINTIFF’S argument concerning Fowler v. United States, 563 U.S. 668 (2011) in Star Chambers above? The point was that PLAINTIFF had cooperated numerous times with Law Enforcement that SCOTUS directly knows about (which means there was a reasonable likelihood that PLAINTIFF would have informed the cops of HILLARY CLINTON, BILL CLINTON’S, LYNN FORESTER de ROTHSCHILD’S RACKETEERING ACTIVITY once PLAINTIFF wrote about HILLARY CLINTON’S corruption starting from PLAINTIFF discovery of Miki’s Tea Party that would have been a $44.7 Billion in Treble Damages liability to HILLARY CLINTON, BILL CLINTON, ANDREW MCCABE, JEH JOHNSON, The ROTHSCHILDS, and the UNITED STATES GOVERNEMENT. Lesson here is that DEFENDANTS got so outrageously corrupt that it completely impaired their rational and reasonable decision-making and did not understand the factual realities and the truth that existed at the time and were completely delusional in which Fowler v. United States, 563 U.S. 668 (2011) is completely applicable to PLAINTIFF because DEFENDANTS had factual reasons to know what PLAINTIFF would do and because of such, DEFENDANTS retaliated against PLAINTIFF.

As PLAINTIFF established earlier about his point about Frank v. Mangum, 237 U. S. 309, (1915), DEFENDANTS are a mob exceeding 800+ people that are inside and outside your home at all times. The Case of Terminiello v. Chicago, 337 U.S. 1 (1949) is exactly on point. The Court noted how the “auditorium was filled to capacity with over eight hundred persons present. Others were turned away. Outside of the auditorium a crowd of about one thousand persons gathered to protest against the meeting. A cordon of policemen was assigned to the meeting to maintain order; but they were not able to prevent several disturbances. The crowd outside was angry and turbulent. Petitioner in his speech condemned the conduct of the crowd outside and vigorously, if not viciously, criticized various political and racial groups whose activities he denounced as inimical to the nation's welfare.” The Court ruled in favor of Terminiello in which the Court said:

“The vitality of civil and political institutions in our society depends on free discussion. As Chief Justice Hughes wrote [omitted], it is only through free debate and free exchange of ideas that government remains responsive to the will of the people and peaceful change is effected. The right to speak freely and to promote diversity of ideas and programs is therefore one of the chief distinctions that sets us apart from totalitarian regimes.

Accordingly a function of free speech under our system of government is to invite dispute. It may indeed best serve its high purpose when it induces a condition of unrest, creates dissatisfaction with conditions as they are, or even stirs people to anger. Speech is often provocative and challenging. It may strike at prejudices and preconceptions and have profound unsettling effects as it presses for acceptance of an idea. That is why freedom of speech, though not absolute, [omitted] is nevertheless protected against censorship or punishment, unless shown likely to produce a clear and present danger of a serious substantive evil that rises far above public inconvenience, annoyance, or unrest. There is no room under our Constitution for a more restrictive view. For the alternative would lead to standardization of ideas either by legislatures, courts, or dominant political or community groups.” Id.

DEFENDANTS violated PLAINTIFF’S 1st, 4th, 5th, 6th, 7th, 8th, 9th, 10th, 13th, and 14th Amendment Rights because DEFENDANTS retaliated and punished PLAINTIFF for his speech made inside the privacy of his home. See also: Wilson v. Seiter, 501 U.S 294 (1994) (holding for purposes of 8th Amendment and 14th Amendment violations: one claiming that the conditions of his confinement violate the Eighth Amendment must show a culpable state of mind on the part of officials; the "wantonness" of conduct depends not on its effect on the individual, but on the

Did PLAINTIFF’S sarcastic mouth unintentionally get you in trouble during Spring 2015 involving HILLARY CLINTON at LSU LAW? You guessed it. Oh come on! I know, I know. If PLAINTIFF recalls the date correctly, this took place in Spring 2015; I’m not sure on the date; but what PLAINTIFF is sure of is the content of the story. PLAINTIFF was the treasurer of the Federalist Society at LSU Law. PLAINTIFF loves nearly everything the organization does in the legal community. POLLY FINLEY was an officer ranked above PLAINTIFF in the Federalist Society and she started usurping my roles and authority in the club. PLAINTIFF wanted to contribute meaningfully to the club being an elected member of the club. PLAINTIFF confronted her about her actions, demanded she stop, and she refused to stop taking over my role. PLAINTIFF was upset with her, and in the course of having a conversation with her one day, I said something along the lines of HILLARY CLINTON is never going to be president to her in order to offend her because she had offended me with her actions; not because PLAINTIFF didn’t believe HILLARY CLINTON couldn’t be POTUS (at that time PLAINTIFF thought she could have been even if PLAINTIFF didn’t like her). POLLY FINLEY was or still is in the Army and PLAINTIFF doesn’t know if she took any adverse actions against me. But she is petty, and PLAINTIFF wouldn’t be surprised if she exacerbated the problem in anyway.

Why are you trying to keep LSU Law out of it? They gave me a chance to pursue my education on two separate and distinct times and I’ll forever be thankful and in their debt for them for the opportunity. They seemed to like and respect me for whatever reason. Do you also believe your school won’t be of help to you in this? Kind of. What makes you say that? Do you want to know who LSU Law’s Class of 2017 commencement speaker was in 2017? LOUIS JOSEPH FREEH. Who is that? The head of the FBI during BILL CLINTON’S presidency. But BILL CLINTON and LOUIS FREEH had a contentious relationship. PLAINTIFF is scared because there is something clearly is going on with the CLINTONS and PLAINTIFF and PLAINTIFF is too small politically, financially, and legally to adequately defend myself in this situation. .

Of the utmost importance, PLAINTIFF described in extraordinary detail to WARWICK ALLEN, over the course of multiple days in Spring 2015, how to commit the perfect hate crime against PLAINTIFF on the basis of PLAINTIFF’S disability.⁴⁸³ This is called JAPLAN.

This is JAPLAN and some of the conditions under which it happens: PLAINTIFF described how: 1) PLAINTIFF would be completely isolated from PLAINTIFF’S few friends and family because there would be no one there to help PLAINTIFF (i.e. completely isolated); 2) that there would be some type of barrier that would hinder PLAINTIFF in connecting to or reaching out to getting help; 3) that PLAINTIFF would be in a different country in which PLAINTIFF did not know that country’s laws nor language; 4) that there would be a spurious association to someone PLAINTIFF knows or knew that would be used against me if ⁴⁸³ This is a sad reality of interacting with the FBI or someone undercover. When you express concern on how easy it would be to commit a crime and give the details of such, it is ALWAYS used against you.

PLAINTIFF sought to fight back; 5) that the country's law enforcement would be of no help to PLAINTIFF when these crimes occurred; 6) trickery, deception, intentional manipulation, lies, directed actions, in which PLAINTIFF would be put in a position as to have complete sympathy over PLAINTIFF so that the sympathy would overpower reasonable doubts; 7) that someone would drug PLAINTIFF; 8) permanent mental, psychological, social, emotional scars for the rest of PLAINTIFF'S life; 9) not have the ability to leave the situation; and 10) more importantly and the biggest devastating thing you could do to someone is have war crimes committed against your will, conscience, faith, and knowledge. If PLAINTIFF recalls correctly, PLAINTIFF described what is called the Anchoring effect in Psychology to some degree during these conversations on why JAPLAN would be so terrible and especially sinister. "The anchoring effect "is a cognitive bias that describes the common human tendency to rely too heavily on the first pieces of information offered (the "anchor") when making decisions."⁴⁸⁴ There may be some arguments that PLAINTIFF did not say for DEFENDANTS to do this; that is immaterial because DEFENDANTS had the knowledge of JAPLAN. Furthermore, it is American INTEL's pattern in Sewanee Sabotage, Victoria Flight, Meth, etc over and over again in which American INTEL takes PLAINTIFF'S words and foments and creates a plan against PLAINTIFF.

Another aspect that PLAINTIFF necessarily talked about out loud in which DEFENDANTS (DHS, CIA, and FBI) necessarily had at one time in their possession prior to June 2015 was a recording of (or had a recording and deleted it) that legally demonstrated an important issue to PLAINTIFF. In JAPLAN, that is of extreme legal importance, was that PLAINTIFF said if the people in charge wanted to do some heinous shit to PLAINTIFF, killing or murdering PLAINTIFF and physically ending his life wouldn't be the way to do it as murdering or killing PLAINTIFF would be quick, and would therefore, ultimately end

PLAINTIFF'S suffering quickly, but having PLAINTIFF suffer for the rest of PLAINTIFF'S prolonged life would be far more devastating, severe, and worse to PLAINTIFF than actually murdering PLAINTIFF in cold blood in which

PLAINTIFF would remember what happened. Just to repeat how important this is: PLAINTIFF specifically said out loud doing JAPLAN was far worse, severe, and more horrendous to PLAINTIFF than actually murdering PLAINTIFF. Furthermore, PLAINTIFF and WARWICK ALLEN, between 09/01/2014 and 05/26/2015, discussed: [the worst and most evil aspects of JAPLAN in which PLAINTIFF completely said why it was one of the worst evils one can commit because of the harm done to PLAINTIFF as well as to different individuals].

BBUUUUUTT NNNNOOO. EXCULPATORY EVIDENCE BE DAMNED apparently.

Additionally, PLAINTIFF talked about his allergy issues and how if one does not breathe correctly during sleep, the sleep is adversely affected where one is more tired and more prone to cognitive errors and mistakes. A disabled individual with mental disabilities cannot compensate for their disabilities as much and as readily and would thereby have a worsening of the psychological symptoms. "Caregiver-reported sleep problems are found to relate to core ASD symptoms" in autistic individuals. In particular, there is extensive evidence for the relationship between sleep problems in ASD and internalizing behaviors such as anxiety as well as externalizing behaviors such as hyperactivity and challenging behaviors such as aggression.⁴⁸⁵ Next, being Autistic, we are already prone to miss emotional detection and is not as sensitive. Sleep deprivation impairs the ability to accurately discriminate between degrees of emotional saliency.⁴⁸⁶ Being Sleep Deprived and having ADHD causes the worsening of these issues associated with having ADHD and AUTISM: “Working memory — the neural basis of which overlaps anatomically with the attention system — is also impaired by SD. Deficits in both working- memory and attention tasks have been found to correlate with reductions in DLPFC and posterior parietal activity.”⁴⁸⁷ Sleep Deprivation effects DOPAMINE levels and DOPAMINE regulation is a vital part of ADHD.⁴⁸⁸ Being Sleep Deprived significantly increases the tendency of reward sensitivity, risk taking and impulsivity, and disrupts reward-value updating and integration.⁴⁸⁹ Sleep loss reliably triggers changes in negative (aversive) emotional processing, including irritability, emotional volatility, anxiety and aggression as well as suicidal ideation, suicide attempts and suicide completion. These findings suggest that Sleep Deprivation alters specific process domains, including basic affective reactivity, as well as emotional discrimination and emotional expression, which are more complex.”⁴⁹⁰ Simply, Sleep Deprivation worsens the psychological symptoms of ADHD and Autism. If there is a situation in which PLAINTIFF is deprived of sleep, it makes PLAINTIFF especially more vulnerable and the symptoms of his disabilities would worsen under those conditions.

Executive Order 11905 mandates that “No employee of the United States Government shall engage in, or conspire to engage in, political assassination.” EO 12036 also expanded the U.S. ban on assassination by closing “loop-holes” and stating “No person employed by or acting on behalf of the United States Government shall engage in, or conspire to engage in, assassination.” This ban on assassination would be restated in Executive Order 12333. Three different executive orders that dictate and mandate that every single intelligence agency shall not do Miki’s Nightmare because it was worse than death to him and PLAINTIFF expressed such beyond any reasonable doubt.

Speaking of executing individuals on the basis of their disability. In Ford v. Wainwright, 477 U.S. 399 (1986), the Supreme Court talked about executing a mentally disabled man and how barbaric it was on that accord: “the reasons at common law for not condoning the execution of the insane -- that such an execution has questionable retributive value, presents no example to others, and thus has no deterrence value, and simply offends humanity--have no less logical, moral, and practical force at present. Whether the aim is to protect the condemned from fear and pain without comfort of understanding, or to protect the dignity of society itself from the barbarity of exacting mindless vengeance, the restriction finds enforcement in the Eighth Amendment...” Id.

PLAINTIFF doesn’t understand what he did wrong because he never did anything wrong directly to the United States Government-- it was always the other way around. It was not logical, it was not moral, everything the United States Government did against PLAINTIFF was wrong. So there is a retributive value in an American PLAINTIFF sarcastically talking in the confines of his own home that demanded war crimes and torture to be undertaken against PLAINTIFF? There was “dignity” to the United States in executing PLAINTIFF when he never did anything direct to them? What the true fundamental nature of An Anchor and a Pitchfork is that it was an exacting of mindless vengeance against PLAINTIFF because he exercised his rights and was a liability to the United States government on their own unconstitutional doing.

So the Court continued: “Now that the Eighth Amendment has been recognized to affect significantly both the procedural and the substantive aspects of the death penalty, the question of executing the insane takes on a wholly different complexion. The adequacy of the procedures chosen by a State to determine sanity, therefore, will depend upon an issue that this Court has never addressed: whether the Constitution places a substantive restriction on the State's power to take the life of an insane prisoner... Moreover, the Eighth Amendment's proscriptions are not limited to those practices condemned by the common law in 1789. [omitted]. Not bound by the sparing humanitarian concessions of our forebears, the Amendment also recognizes the “evolving standards of decency that mark the progress of a maturing society.” Trop v. Dulles, 356 U. S. 86, 356 U. S. 101 (1958) (plurality opinion). In addition to considering the barbarous methods generally outlawed in the 18th century, therefore, this Court takes into account objective evidence of contemporary values before determining whether a particular punishment comports with the fundamental human dignity that the Amendment protects. See Coker v. Georgia, 433 U. S. 584, 433 U. S. 597 (1977) (plurality opinion)...Blackstone, Commentaries *24-*25 (hereinafter Blackstone). Blackstone explained: “[I]diots and lunatics are not chargeable for their own acts, if committed when under these incapacities: no, not even for treason itself. Also, if a man in his sound memory commits a capital offence, and before arraignment for it, he becomes mad, he ought not to be arraigned for it: because he is not able to plead to it with that advice and caution that he ought. And if, after he has pleaded, the prisoner becomes mad, he shall not be tried: for how can he make his defence? If, after he be tried and found guilty, he loses his senses before judgment, judgment shall not be pronounced; and if, after judgment, he becomes of nonsane memory, execution shall be stayed: for peradventure, says the humanity of the English law, had the prisoner been of sound memory, he might have alleged something in stay of judgment or execution.” “[B]y intendment of Law, the execution of the offender is for example, . . . but so it is not when a mad man is executed, but should be a miserable spectacle, both against Law, and of extream inhumanity and cruelty, and can be no example to others.”...” Id.

What substantive Due Process rights were afforded to PLAINTIFF? How could there have been in Miki's Tea Party and this being undertaken in Japan under CIA and the State Department's jurisdiction when you had in HAROLD HONGJU KOH'S mind, it was completely 100% acceptable that the executive branch can completely evade legal obstacles (to him, John O. Brennan, Eric Holder, Barack Obama, Chief Justice John Roberts etc.) like definitional limits, procedures, substantive terms, IGNORE REQUIREMENTS INVOLVING FINDINGS OF FACT in which the executive branch will operate in a unified manner, swift manner (i.e. rushed uninformed decisions in which findings of fact is completely ignored), be legally absolved by SCOTUS prior to PLAINTIFF going to Japan, and most importantly those decisions are done in a secret manner in which the courts won't do shit and Congress can't do shit involving national security and policy in which when things are done in a secret manner as In re Murchison, 349 U.S. 133 (1955) when it is impossible for any Judge or executive branch officers to free themselves of the malicious influence they would obtain in a secret session in which it would ultimately come down to the subject's attitude or sarcastic quips (bias that denies Due Process under law is created when it necessarily involves secret sessions in which the judges and executive branch officials grow to hate the subject because of a biased and completely fraudulent presentation of the subject's attitude by law enforcement and DOJ in which perjured testimony and fabricated evidence and materials was used against PLAINTIFF). Does the US Federal Government really want to proffer the position that they didn't hate PLAINTIFF when they made over $14,900,000,000 on him in which he didn't see a dime of it when they committed acts of domestic and international terrorism against him?

The Court continued: "Rather, consistent with the heightened concern for fairness and accuracy that has characterized our review of the process requisite to the taking of a human life, we believe that any procedure that precludes the prisoner or his counsel from presenting material relevant to his sanity (i.e. disability) or bars consideration of that material by the factfinder is necessarily inadequate... We recently had occasion to underscore the value to be derived from a factfinder's consideration of differing psychiatric opinions when resolving contested issues of mental state. In Ake v. Oklahoma, 470 U. S. 68 (1985), we recognized that, because "psychiatrists disagree widely and frequently on what constitutes mental illness [and] on the appropriate diagnosis to be attached to given behavior and symptoms," the factfinder must resolve differences in opinion within the psychiatric profession "on the basis of the evidence offered by each party" when a defendant's sanity is at issue in a criminal trial. Id. at 470 U. S. 81. The same holds true after conviction; without any adversarial assistance from the prisoner's representative -- especially when the psychiatric opinion he proffers is based on much more extensive evaluation than that of the state-appointed commission -- the factfinder loses the substantial benefit of potentially probative information. *The result is a much greater likelihood of an erroneous decision...In no other circumstance of which we are aware is the vindication of a constitutional right entrusted to the unreviewable discretion of an administrative tribunal..." Id.

Take note: in 1986, the Court said there was no circumstance in the entirety of history was there a process to vindicate one's constitutional and legal rights based an erroneous decision that was entrusted to the unreviewable discretion of an executive tribunal. Even with actual Star Chambers in England existed, which because of the abuse of power and authority of the officials made the Star Chambers end when they owed a duty to the people of fairness and trust, there was some type of legal process afforded. Not with PLAINTIFF though. JOHN O. BRENNAN, JEH JOHNSON, BARACK OBAMA, HILLARY CLINTON, BILL CLINTON, etc. knew exactly what the fuck they were doing based on a completely erroneous decision. PLAINTIFF genuinely wants to know and demands to know who between September 24th, 2010 and June 26th, 2015 in the United States Government afforded PLAINTIFF any type of Due Process. Was there anyone that said: maybe don't do this to PLAINTIFF because he is autistic. What ended up happening in Washington D.C. was that it was an erroneous decision after an erroneous decision after an erroneous decision over and over and over and over and over again in which SCOTUS under Chief Justice John Roberts direction completely enabled all of it and kept restricting essential freedoms like holding attorneys liable for their actions, cut out and degraded the 4th and 5th Amendment. Not once did anyone say: are we the baddies? Is restricting freedom over and over again actually going to make us out to be bad based on perjury, fabricated materials, fabricated narratives, plunder, and abuse of some of the most vulnerable individuals?

The Court continued: “Yet the lodestar of any effort to devise a procedure must be the overriding dual imperative of providing redress for those with substantial claims and of encouraging accuracy in the factfinding determination. The stakes are high, and the "evidence" will always be imprecise. It is all the more important that the adversary presentation of relevant information be as unrestricted as possible. Also essential is that the manner of selecting and using the experts responsible for producing that "evidence" be conducive to the formation of neutral, sound, and professional judgments as to the prisoner's ability to comprehend the nature of the penalty. Fidelity to these principles is the solemn obligation of a civilized society... It is no less abhorrent today than it has been for centuries to exact in penance the life of one whose mental illness prevents him from comprehending the reasons for the penalty or its implications.” Id.

One of main points being, there was no accuracy or fairness in the decisions the United States Government made involving PLAINTIFF. PLAINTIFF does not understand based on his autism what he ACTIONS he did to deserve what was done to him in Miki's Tea Party and An Anchor and a Pitchfork. PLAINTIFF was absolutely not predisposed to those actions unless there was an intentional creation of the requisite conditions necessary by DEFENDANTS when they had overheard the content and conditions of JAPLAN. If the DEFENDANTS do not have the conversations discussing JAPLAN recorded when they had reason to record it (based on what ANDREW MCCABE wrote in the book) and if DEFENDANTS have older conversations that PLAINTIFF talked about, that is an inference of obstruction of justice in which they purposefully destroyed the evidence because it was the nexus connecting DEFENDANTS to HILLARY CLINTON and BILL CLINTON to Chief Justice JOHN ROBERTS and ALITO to JAPAN to PLAINTIFF and would absolutely be 100% exculpatory in nature. “In order to prove entrapment as a matter of law, there must be undisputed evidence that a government agent induced an otherwise innocent person to commit the alleged crime by trickery, persuasion, or fraud. "The controlling question on review is whether the defendant lack[ed] the predisposition to commit the act." U.S. v. Citro, 842 F.2d 1149 (9th Cir. 1988). JAPLAN necessarily involves trickery and fraud. Inducement would occur by someone's handlers completely directing the actions of conspirators in the scheme. Contributing factors and psychological phenomenon would diminish the mental capacity of PLAINTIFF. Then add PLAINTIFF'S autistic features, , it is a recipe for disaster and therefore meets the threshold required under at least U.S. v. Citro, 842 F.2d 1149 (9th Cir. 1988). As the Court in United States v. Twigg, 588 F.2d 373 (3d Cir. 1978) highlighted, without the government agent, the defendants in the case would not have known how to produce [it], and the assistance the defendants provided was minimal. Without DEFENDANTS' invasive surveillance techniques, sharing information with one another, and RICO Enterprise, DEFENDANTS would not have been made aware of components and conditions necessary of formulating JAPLAN into existence. Period.

DEFENDANTS had absolutely no right, authority, or justification to seize the contents of JAPLAN and give it to HILLARY CLINTON. Period. See: Stanford v. Texas, 379 U.S. 476 (1965). When DEFENDANTS, like JEH JOHNSON, JAMES COMEY, PETER STRZOK, ANDREW MCCABE, JAMES CLAPPER, or British INTEL or Aussies or Indian Intel, revealed the content of Miki's Nightmare in the course of an on-going investigation to HILLARY CLINTON and BILL CLINTON, they necessarily violated 5 U. S. C. § 7324 (a) (2), in which Section 7324 (a) provides: that "An employee in an Executive agency or an individual employed by the government of the District of Columbia may not (1) use his official authority or influence for the purpose of interfering with or affecting the result of an election; or (2) take an active part in political management or in political campaigns." Giving DEFENDANTS the info of Miki's Nightmare disposed of PLAINTIFF as a political liability to HILLARY CLINTON after Miki's Tea Party in which JEH JOHNSON, JOHN O. BRENNAN, BARACK OBAMA, HILLARY CLINTON, BILL CLINTON, JAMES COMEY, ANDREW MCCABE, acted on those decisions. Therefore, it was an active part of a political management decision because getting rid of political liabilities is a management decision.

U.S. v. Matiz, 14 F.3d 79 (1st Cir. 1994) ruled on the proposition that an act of perjury can be an act of obstruction of justice under 18 U.S.C. 1961 Section 1503 since "The findings (of obstruction of justice) encompass all the elements of perjury — falsity, materiality, and willfulness. The only matter about which the court was not explicit was whether Matiz's testimony was material. A sentencing court, however, is not required to address each element of perjury in a separate and clear finding. See id. In fact, the Court in Dunnigan affirmed a district court's finding that did not use the term willful...Dunnigan only requires that a sentencing court's findings encompass all of the factual predicates for a finding of perjury." "The Supreme Court has stated that a witness testifying under oath commits perjury if "she gives false testimony concerning a material matter with the willful intent to provide false testimony, rather than as a result of confusion, mistake, or faulty memory." United States v. Dunnigan, 113 S.Ct. 1111 (1993)." U.S. v. Matiz, 14 F.3d 79 (1st Cir. 1994). U.S. v. Ashland Oil Inc., 705 F. Supp. 270 (W.D. Pa. 1989) discussed what constituted materiality: "A concise summary of this materiality requirement is set forth in Justice Stevens' concurring opinion in Youngblood: Our cases make clear that "[t]he proper standard of materiality must reflect our overriding concern with the justice of the finding of guilt," and the State's failure to turn over (or preserve) potentially exculpatory evidence therefore "must be evaluated in the context of the entire record." United States v. Agurs, 427 U.S. 97 (1976) (footnotes omitted); see also California v. Trombetta, 467 U.S. 479 (1984) (duty to preserve evidence "must be limited to evidence that might be expected to play a significant role in the suspect's defense")." "By limiting §1503 to acts having the "natural and probable effect" of interfering with the due administration of justice, the Court effectively reads the word "endeavor," which we said in Russell embraced "any effort or essay" to obstruct justice out of the omnibus clause, leaving a prohibition of only actual obstruction and competent attempts...A §1503 violation occurs when "an act is done corruptly if it's done voluntarily and intentionally to bring about either an unlawful result or a lawful result by some unlawful method, with a hope or expectation of either financial gain or other benefit to oneself or a benefit of another person." United States v. Aguilar, 515 U.S. 593 (1995).

United States v. Cook, 793 F.2d 734 (5th Cir. 1986) ("[b]oth the fact of conspiracy and a defendant's participation in it may be proved by circumstantial evidence." 793 F.2d at 736). "As was the case in United States v. Postal, 589 F.2d 862 (5th Cir.) ... "the mere fact that [defendant] made the statement is relevant to the issues of [his] knowledge of the conspiracy and his participation in it."...As Professor McCormick explains: "Proof that one talks about a matter demonstrates on its face that he was conscious or aware of it, and his veracity simply does not enter into the situation." [omitted]. " U.S. v. Jones, 839 F.2d 1041 (5th Cir. 1988). United States v. Bower, 575 F.2d 499 (5th Cir.): "The government's provision of aid, incentive, and opportunity to commit the crime does not amount to entrapment unless it appears that the "defendant has done that which he would never have done were it not for the inducement of Government operatives." "If the government's conduct in the investigation through a sting operation is so active that its conduct fabricated elements of the offense, it might be considered a violation of due process to prosecute the defendant." U.S. v. Steinhorn, 739 F. Supp. 268 (D. Md. 1990).

Entrapment occurs when the government overcomes the defendant's lack of predisposition to commit the crime by implanting the criminal intent. The government's conduct must create a substantial risk that someone not ready to commit the offense would nevertheless commit it. To find entrapment as a matter of law requires the conclusion that a reasonable jury could not have believed beyond a reasonable doubt that Arteaga was predisposed to distribute cocaine... "The due process clause protects defendants against outrageous conduct by law enforcement agents. While entrapment focuses on the defendant's intent and his predisposition to commit the crime, the due process clause forbids the government to act improperly even against culpable persons...Nor does the government's failure to record many of the conversations between Arteaga and the informant violate due process. While there is an obligation to preserve recordings once they have been created, there is no general duty to make recordings in the first place, and Arteaga has not explained how evidence from the unrecorded conversations would have aided his defense. " United States v. Arteaga, 807 F.2d 424 (5th Cir. 1986)

"However, in People v Turner, supra, this Court renounced the subjective test followed by the United States Supreme Court and a majority of states, reasoning that the objective test is preferable because: "[B]y definition, the entrapment defense cannot arise unless the defendant actually committed the proscribed act, that defendant is manifestly covered by the terms of the criminal statute involved. "Furthermore, to say that such a defendant is 'otherwise innocent' or not 'predisposed' to commit the crime is misleading, at best. The very fact that he has committed an act that Congress has determined to be illegal demonstrates conclusively that he is not innocent of the offense. . . . "The purpose of the entrapment defense, then, cannot be to protect persons who are 'otherwise innocent.' Rather, it must be to prohibit unlawful governmental activity in instigating crime." [Id. at 20, quoting Russell, supra at 442.] The Turner Court held that the defendant was entrapped as a matter of law. It stated that the agent engaged in overreaching conduct by pursuing the defendant after the first investigation did not turn up any evidence. Turner was not a drug dealer, and the agent played upon Turner's sympathy as a friend. The law enforcement officer went beyond merely creating an opportunity for the commission of a crime. California case, People v Barraza, 23 Cal.3d 675; 153 Cal.Rptr. 459; 591 P.2d 947 (1979), also provides a rationale for adopting the objective approach instead of the subjective test. The Barraza court stated: "[A] test that looks to the character and predisposition of the defendant rather than the conduct of the police loses sight of the underlying reason for the defense of entrapment. No matter what the defendant's past record and present inclinations to criminality, or the depths to which he has sunk in the estimation of society, certain police conduct to ensnare him into further crime is not to be tolerated by an advanced society. . . . Human nature is weak enough . . . and sufficiently beset by temptations without government adding to them and generating crime." [Id. at 687, quoting Sherman, supra at 382-384.] Further the Barraza court gives examples of impermissible police conduct which would constitute entrapment under the objective test. The court listed as examples the following: (1) an appeal by police because of friendship or sympathy rather than for personal gain; (2) inducement that would make the commission of crime unusually attractive to a normal "law-abiding person," id. at 689; (3) a guarantee that the act was not illegal; (4) an offer of exorbitant consideration or similar enticement. [W]hile the inquiry must focus primarily on the conduct of the law enforcement agent, that conduct is not to be viewed in a vacuum. . . . We reiterate, however, that under this test such matters as the character of the suspect, his predisposition to commit the offense, and his subjective intent are irrelevant. [Id. at 690-691.]” People v. Jamieson, 436 Mich. 61, 72-73 (Mich. 1990) “The courts of appeals that have considered this sort of claim in similar contexts, however, note that it would succeed only if the government "consciously set out to use sex as a weapon in its investigatory arsenal" or at least "acquiesce[d] in such conduct for its own purposes upon learning that such a relationship existed." United States v. Cuervelo, 949 F.2d 559 (2d Cir. 1991).” United States v. Therrien, 847 F.3d 9, 15 (1st Cir. 2017).

“Although there is no infallible means of divining a defendant's predisposition to commit a crime after the fact, there are several factors recognized as relevant in making this determination. We start with the observation that predisposition is, by definition, "the defendant's state of mind and inclinations before his initial exposure to government agents." United States v. Jannotti, 501 F. Supp. 1182 (E.D.Pa. 1980), rev'd on other grounds, 673 F.2d 578 (3rd Cir.)...This answers defendant's bizarre contention that "the agents literally entrapped him into a state of predisposition." One is either predisposed to commit a crime before coming into contact with the Government or one is not, so the argument that one could be entrapped into having a state of predisposition is meaningless. We now turn our attention to the factors relevant in determining predisposition. Among these are the character or reputation of the defendant, including any prior criminal record; whether the suggestion of the criminal activity was initially made by the Government; whether the defendant was engaged in the criminal activity for profit; whether the defendant evidenced reluctance to commit the offense, overcome only by repeated Government inducement or persuasion; and the nature of the inducement or persuasion supplied by the Government. While none of the factors alone indicates either the presence or absence of predisposition, the most important factor . . . is whether the defendant evidenced reluctance to engage in criminal activity which was overcome by repeated Government inducement...” United States v. Kaminski, 703 F.2d 1004 (7th Cir. 1983)

“This Circuit recognized the outrageous conduct defense in United States v. Graves, 556 F.2d 1319 (5th Cir. 1977), supra, in which we wrote: “[A]part from any question of predisposition of a defendant to commit the offense in question, governmental participation may be so outrageous or fundamentally unfair as to deprive the defendant of due process of law or to move the courts in the exercise of their supervisory jurisdiction over the administration of criminal justice to hold that the defendant was “entrapped” as a matter of law.” 556 F.2d at 1322 (quoting United States v. Quinn, 543 F.2d 640, 647-48 (8th Cir. 1976)).” United States v. Yater, 756 F.2d 1058 (5th Cir. 1985).

Executive Order 11905 mandates that “No employee of the United States Government shall engage in, or conspire to engage in, political assassination.” EO 12036 also expanded the U.S. ban on assassination by closing “loop-holes” and stating “No person employed by or acting on behalf of the United States Government shall engage in, or conspire to engage in, assassination.” This ban on assassination would be restated in Executive Order 12333. Three different executive orders that dictate and mandate that every single intelligence agency shall not do Miki’s Nightmare because it was worse than death to him and PLAINTIFF expressed such beyond any reasonable doubt.

2016-03-29 02:49:01, Tue	INBOX	Apr 18 I'm in nz...although I wonder if I should cancel with the case where it is....

PETER STRZOK and LISA PAGE made a connection to WARWICK ALLEN via New Zealand (NZ) and the fundamental basis the case against PLAINTIFF in which they knew of all the conversation WARWICK ALLEN and PLAINTIFF had. See Text Message sent on 03/29/2016 above.

Imagine how sinister it would be for an FBI agent like ANDREW MCCABE, JEH JOHNSON, JAMES COMEY, JOHN O. BRENNAN at the CIA, DEFENDANTS etc. to give BILL and HILLARY CLINTON, who having exploited a disabled man to gain a political advantage for their own political purposes prior to 2015, an exact copy of JAPLAN that describes how to exploit PLAINTIFF on the inherent weaknesses that PLAINTIFF has based on PLAINTIFF’S autism in order to get rid of a political liability. The patterns of behavior the CLINTONS exhibited and partook in were, at one time, already given to the FBI and CIA so the FBI and CIA knew exactly who they were dealing with when it came to the CLINTONS. Time will tell on whether the FBI and CIA enabled the CLINTONS to continue with their dastardly behavior because, based on PLAINTIFF’S initial impressions, they absolutely did. Just imagine if the FBI DIOG would have said: when working with a potential witness, victim, or even subject, who has a disability like autism, that makes them susceptible to being exploited by malicious actors or individuals (especially psychopaths), do not reveal information obtained in the course of an on-going investigation to particular individuals--that have an adverse interest to that disabled individual--an exact plan on how to exploit and effectively execute that disabled individual.

It can’t even get more crazily coincidental, right? WRONG. PLAINTIFF had taken an international law class with LSU Law Professor Sullivan in the Spring 2015 semester in May 2015. On Professor Sullivan's final exam, he created a prompt for students to do (for PLAINTIFF believes some extra credit): write a fictional scenario for an international law exam using certain specified criteria. So PLAINTIFF wrote a scenario that talked about the US Government entrapping and labeling a Russian named Mikhail (a student attending college learning about international relations if PLAINTIFF recalls correctly) as hostile against the United States when Mikhail spent time in either a Central or South American war-zone country in which that Mikhail is profiled incorrectly as hostile based on innocuous Russian things and that Mikhail expresses some anti-American sentiment after being trapped for an extended period of time by the U.S. Government against his will and intentions. The Russian is associated with a "terrorist" rebel group named F.A.R.T (yes, fart jokes were made because PLAINTIFF is a simpleton and fart jokes are always funny) in which his uncle or relative sold arms to F.A.R.T and he went to that country to visit that relative. Let me repeat it again: THIS WAS A HYPOTHETICAL SCENARIO FOR A LAW SCHOOL EXAM AND NOT THE TRUTH. If PLAINTIFF is not mistaken, PLAINTIFF experienced computer issues submitting this exam, and on this exam, and PLAINTIFF necessarily would have had to directly email Professor Sullivan this hypothetical and under the USA PATRIOT ACT, US Intel doesn't need a warrant to get this email. Does this mean the CIA, NSA, DHS, and FBI would have received the email since they were monitoring your email accounts, right? Right! Additionally and prior to the exam in Spring 2015, PLAINTIFF also asked Professor Sullivan what would happen if PLAINTIFF, as a dual-citizen Serbian-American, went to North Korea where PLAINTIFF could go as a Serbian and not as an American; and he said something along the lines of me not being allowed to ever practice law in America, and my North Korean trip ended at that exact second—never to be brought up again in 2015. DEFENDANTS used this hypothetical against PLAINTIFF in proceedings.

PLAINTIFF's contention is that the DEFENDANTS always had direct access to his laptop in the Spring of 2015 and in the home, were listening in on all of the conversations WARWICK and PLAINTIFF were having throughout Spring 2015, and were sharing that information with each other constantly throughout Spring and Summer 2015. DHS, CIA, and FBI being the most likely culprits, especially DHS, because of a stupid SCOTUS ruling effectively denying privacy rights from DHS if you live 100 miles from a border.⁴⁹¹ Furthermore, DEFENDANTS, at the time, were completely hostile to PLAINTIFF and his legal and constitutional interests in every conceivable and imaginable way. What PLAINTIFF didn't know nor understand is the actual lengths DEFENDANTS would go to because of their hostility and willful blindness of duty, bravery, integrity, and fidelity to the laws of the United States and the Constitution violating every single sense and notion of traditional justice and fairness along the way.

XX. Conspiracy? What Conspiracy? The Initial RED FLAGS

United States v. Cook, 793 F.2d 734 (5th Cir. 1986) ("[b]oth the fact of conspiracy and a defendant's participation in it may be proved by circumstantial evidence." 793 F.2d at 736). "As was the case in United States v. Postal, 589 F.2d 862 (5th Cir.) ... "the mere fact that [defendant] made the statement is relevant to the issues of [his] knowledge of the conspiracy and his participation in it."...As Professor McCormick explains: "Proof that one talks about a matter demonstrates on its face that he was conscious or aware of it, and his veracity simply does not enter into the situation." [omitted]." U.S. v. Jones, 839 F.2d 1041 (5th Cir. 1988). "If the government's conduct in the investigation through a sting operation is so active that its conduct fabricated elements of the offense, it might be considered a violation of due process to prosecute the defendant." U.S. v. Steinhorn, 739 F. Supp. 268, 271 (D. Md. 1990).

The following paragraph is quotes from ANDREW MCCABE'S book, my opinion, and, of course some conjecture. In March 2015, ANDREW MCCABE, of the FBI, wrote in his book when talking about his wife JILL MCCABE running for VA State Senate—"The next step, as Jill weighed her options—and the Democrats weighed whether they wanted her to run—would be for her to meet the governor [Terry McAuliffe]. If Jill wanted to run for office, my support for her would be as solid as hers had always been for me...If Jill wanted to run for office, I would also respect absolutely all legal and ethical limits that her service might place on my own." Ummm, first off, future FBI Director, it is not a matter of respecting legal limits, the actual standard Mr. FBI agent and former Director of the FBI ANDREW MCCABE is complying with and adhering to legal and ethical standards and limits. Goes to show what happens to the FBI when you have people like ANDREW MCCABE running and ruining it. You can still do things that are the exact opposite of something even if you respect something. PLAINTIFF respects eating healthily as proper nutrition leads to a healthier lifestyle, but yet, when that 20oz T-Bone steak beckons PLAINTIFF, that respect disappears faster than that steak off my plate.

Next, as it doesn't need proof as it is common knowledge, during March 2015 and afterwards, the Governor of Virginia (Terry McAuliffe) is a Clinton friend from his time in the White House (25 or so years at this point in time in 2015); and that the CLINTONS and the CGI were fundraisers for the Democrat party in which the Terry McAuliffe raised funds for the CLINTONS while the CLINTON'S were in the White House. You may be thinking, PLAINTIFF is biased against Democrats here—Nope. DEFENDANTS may have hated PLAINTIFF; but PLAINTIFF still respected and loved them enough because they're people and PLAINTIFF had done nothing directly to harm them in any capacity at this point in Spring 2015 that DEFENDANTS didn't inflict upon themselves.

What else did ANDREW MCCABE say about his wife's political office run from March 2015: "I removed myself from any involvement in cases that had anything to do with Virginia politicians."⁴⁹² ANDREW MCCABE does know there are 49 different states, U.S. Territories, and, more importantly, cases in Washington D.C. that involve politicians or politics that are not included in "Virginia politicians," right? That includes Illinois, Louisiana, Washington D.C., and Tennessee politicians and issues. Next, he didn't remove himself when it came to cases involving PLAINTIFF. What is PLAINTIFF'S ultimate point in the previous paragraph and this one? Suppose ANDREW MCCABE is a good loving husband, and he wants to see his wife succeed as a Virginia State Senator, but he must ingratiate himself in the Democrat party or the CLINTONS somehow, in order for JILL MCCABE to succeed. No ingratiation, no approval from either HILLARY CLINTON or TERRY MCAULIFFE (thereby no funds for her campaign) in 2015 for ANDREW MCCABE'S wife to successfully run as Virginia state senator because that is precisely how American politics works. There's no such thing as a free lunch and funds are necessary to successfully run as a politician. The CLINTONS are great fundraisers. This is a motivating factor in the mail and wire fraud as well as the bribery scheme between ANDREW MCCABE, TERRY MCAULIFFE, CLINTONS.

What if the CLINTONS had a problem that the FBI and ANDREW MCCABE or the CIA and JOHN BRENNAN and/or American INTEL, British INTEL, Indian Intel, could “dispose of” so that ANDREW MCCABE can ingratiate himself with the Democrats and HILLARY and BILL CLINTON or JOHN BRENNAN or DEFENDANTS returns a favor to BILL CLINTON? Wouldn’t it be easier for the CLINTONS to “dispose of” a problem they had if their newly ingratiated ‘hitman’ ANDREW MCCABE got a promotion in September 2015 as the associate deputy director of the FBI and then be miraculously promoted yet again within 3 months of his previous promotion in January 2016 as the Deputy Director of the FBI (#2 in the FBI)? Furthermore, with each promotion, A PAY RAISE, which is increased money. which also affects interstate and intrastate commerce. So not only does ANDREW MCCABE’S promotion affect interstate and intrastate commerce, but the CLINTONS or MCAULIFFE giving JILL MCCABE funds does as well! This is part of the kickback and bribery scheme between the CLINTONS, American INTEL, and ANDREW MCCABE

This ‘hitman’ just so happens to be the overseer of the CLINTON Investigation. Hey ANDREW MCCABE, how would you describe the investigation into the CLINTONS—“It was head-quarters “Special” in which “The SET UP for Midyear was simple.”⁴⁹³ Special as in special needs people and special ed people—that’s respectful and in light of what PETER STRZOK and ANDREW MCCABE did in MIDYEAR. Where did PLAINTIFF see Midyear again? Sewanee Freshman year. See: Midyear. Would a “set-up” be simple if PLAINTIFF described in excruciating detail how to commit the perfect hate crime against PLAINTIFF on the basis of his disability in revealing the details of JAPLAN that ANDREW MCCABE, JOHN O. BRENNAN, JAMES COMEY, JEH JOHNSON, and PETER STRZOK and/or Indian Intel or British Intel heard the details of in Spring 2015? YES! There goes the FBI referring to PLAINTIFF on the basis of his disability and how they set up PLAINTIFF.

Let PLAINTIFF give the benefit of the doubt to “non-corrupt” ANDREW MCCABE. This is what he said: “The laptop⁴⁹⁴ was a find, but finding the laptop was not self-evidently a six-alarm situation.⁴⁹⁵ During Midyear,⁴⁹⁶ each of the many, many times we got a new tranche of emails,⁴⁹⁷ a first order of business was having them “de-duplicated”⁴⁹⁸—that is, compared

⁴⁹⁴ Plaintiff’s laptop

⁴⁹⁵ My parents home burned down in May 2010 and it was either a “six-alarm” or “seven-alarm” fire in which fire departments from two different states came to try to put the fire out. Again, trying to pinpoint insurance fraud on PLAINTIFF when PLAINTIFF didn’t commit insurance fraud. Again, notice how there was no evidence of me committing insurance fraud, but omitting the fact there was no evidence of any counterespionage or terrorist activity on my laptop. Furthermore, this shows bad faith as DEFENDANTS knew PLAINTIFF’S laptop had been cleaned from at least October 2008 and wouldn’t contain evidence of the anarchist cookbook. See: Anarchy. BUT YET WENT TO COURT in which they somehow gained “legal” access in which the Court was deceived in granting them legal access to PLAINTIFF’S laptop.

⁴⁹⁷ JAPLAN EMAIL. DEFENDANTS had JAPLAN email in Spring 2015

⁴⁹⁸ Plaintiff is alleging this is how DEFENDANTS BUNDESNACHRICHTENDIENST are factually connected and is a factual nexus to them. “De-duplicated” refers to “DE,” which is an abbreviation for Germany, already having a with the ones we already had to see what might be new.⁴⁹⁹ This time, we would do the same thing. I tasked the job of looking into this to the counterintelligence division,⁵⁰⁰ and I expected to receive reports as things developed...[MCCABE is still talking about Midyear when he says] I'd been home for two days when the Bureau applied for and received a FISA warrant to surveil a subject⁵⁰¹ in connection with the Russia investigation...[MCCABE is continuing to talk about Midyear when he says] as noted, I had nothing to do with Jill's campaign. And Jill's campaign had nothing to do with the Clinton email investigation...I sought ethics advice and followed it, observed all of these prohibitions and more, avoiding even activities that might have been permitted...and even if [Virginia Governor] McAuliffe had wanted to CURRY⁵⁰² FAVOR⁵⁰³ with me on Hillary Clinton's behalf,⁵⁰⁴ he would have had to be a clairvoyant. Jill's campaign was over—and she lost—in November 2015, months before I had any knowledge of, or involvement in, the Clinton case.”⁵⁰⁵

There is something really up with the passage: “even if [Virginia Governor] McAuliffe had wanted to CURRY FAVOR with ME on Hillary Clinton's behalf.” This passage is great for a lot of different ways. PLAINTIFF alleges it refers to “Trade is in the Offing” and why they would want to retaliate against PLAINTIFF. Clairvoyant is tricky in a lot of different ways in which all the following are plausible explanations: 1) the most likely: ANDREW MCCABE, PETER STRZOK, JEH JOHNSON, and JOHN O. BRENNAN, having listened in on PLAINTIFF knew the details of JAPLAN so ANDREW MCCABE is actively trying to mitigate the harm to DEFENDANTS and say that PLAINTIFF would not be able to credibly connect all of them in which MCAULIFFE had directed some unknown Indians to retaliate against PLAINTIFF in JAPAN via JAPLAN as a favor because all PLAINTIFF had was a sense of clairvoyance in Spring 2015 that Hillary Clinton and Bill Clinton had intended on completely harming PLAINTIFF along with Andrew McCabe and Chief Justice John Roberts. Clairvoyant could refer to Santa CLARA and PLAINTIFF'S semester abroad in which he would travel like a bon-voy-ant in his travel abroad. So PLAINTIFF alleges that this is obstruction of justice, obstruction of a criminal investigation because ANDREW MCCABE would be deliberately ignorant of McAuliffe directing some Indians to retaliate against ME (midyear)(PLAINTIFF) on

DUPLICATE copy of all of PLAINTIFF'S emails after having stepped foot in Germany in Financial Terrorism in 2009 in which American DEFENDANTS circumvented PLAINTIFF'S Constitutional rights and thereby sharing all the information and emails with DEFENDANTS in which they committed war crimes similar akin to Aktion T4 yet again and can be held liable as aiding and abetting based on their own precedent.

⁴⁹⁹ Also, note the fact that DEFENDANTS had email concerning Angel's. [Sidenote: who is giving the FBI all of these emails? CIA? GOOGLE being bribed and acting as state agents on behalf of the FBI and CIA thereby incurring Pinkerton Liability?]

⁵⁰⁰ So this is ANDREW MCCABE directing PETER STRZOK on what to do because PETER STRZOK was the head of the counter-intelligence division.

⁵⁰¹ PLAINTIFF'S Factual Nexus establishing use of FISA against PLAINTIFF as PLAINTIFF was the subject.

⁵⁰² Curry: the common spice of INDIAN food and the association between curry and Indians is that commonly understood and accepted. This is a factual nexus to Miki's Tea Party. This sentence in sum proves the retaliation against PLAINTIFF for Miki's Tea Party by doing what they were about to do against PLAINTIFF in Tokyo 2015 and is the factual nexus establishing such. Guess what, irony upon irony here, this shows what liberals would call XENOPHOBIA and racism against INDIANS by referring to them on a cultural value and spice Curry in violation of Title VI. Lol. Plaintiff laughs at the absurdity of all of this.

⁵⁰³ CURRY FAVOR= “TRADE IS IN THE OFFING.”

⁵⁰⁵ McCabe, Andrew. The Threat. How the FBI Protects America in the Age of Terror and Trump. 2019.

behalf of Hillary Clinton because of “trade is in the offing” in which McAuliffe would grant the funds to Jill McCabe’s campaign. THIS is in violation of XX.

The point being: THE COMMON DENOMINATOR HERE IS ANDREW MCCABE. First, even if we take and accept ANDREW MCCABE’S words to be true here and not an obfuscation of the truth and a complete lie, there isn’t a denial that ANDREW MCCABE spurned MCAULIFFE’s favors. The question isn’t so much Jill’s campaign having allegedly done nothing with the Clinton email investigation, but the question is how and who did ANDREW MCCABE ingratiate himself to in order for his wife’s campaign to be successful by getting funds? By allowing McAuliffe to direct the Indians to retaliate against PLAINTIFF via JAPLAN. Next, it’s not TERRY MCAULIFE currying favor with ANDREW MCCABE, it is the exact opposite—ANDREW MCCABE currying favor with TERRY MCAULIFE to curry favor with BILL and HILLARY CLINTON and then ANDREW MCCABE currying favor with BILL AND HILLARY CLINTON for his wife and getting rid of their liability--PLAINTIFF; and maybe, just maybe, by doing this ingratiating favor, ANDREW MCCABE Cough “earned” TWO promotions for himself in THREE MONTHS Cough Cough and got the funds for his wife’s campaign. A pay raise for ANDREW MCCABE and his wife, which affects interstate and intrastate commerce. So just to be clear, PLAINTIFF had nothing to do with PLAINTIFF’S parents’ home burning down in May 2010 (i.e. 6 alarm fire); and PLAINTIFF never committed insurance fraud to the best of his recollection; and it is PLAINTIFF’S belief that the FBI was looking for proof on that in PLAINTIFF’s laptop. MUAH! kisses ANDREW MCCABE on the forehead and promptly gets accused of sexual assault by ANDREW MCCABE MUAH! MUAH! PLAINTIFF loves the shortsightedness of ANDREW MCCABE and complete shortsightedness. Because guess what? Knowing what happened in Miki’s Tea Party and then receiving funds to cover up and ignore an actual act of domestic and international terrorism while being the boss to the head of counterterrorism (PETER STRZOK) in the FBI is aiding and abetting terrorism and most importantly, Financing Terrorism and Harboring Terrorists because ANDREW MCCABE got a pay raise because of it.⁵⁰⁶ Total Knock Out.

Between September 30 and October 29, 2015, Governor McAuliffe’s PAC Common Good VA donated $450,000 to your wife’s state senate campaign,¹⁶ while the Democratic Party of Virginia made additional in-kind contributions totaling $207,788.¹⁷ Much of that money was raised by McAuliffe following a June 26, 2015, Fairfax, Virginia fundraiser headlined by former Secretary Clinton.¹⁸ Some of the money raised from Clinton associates, such as Doug Band¹⁹ and Robert Johnson, was donated prior to the commencement of the FBI’s investigation.²⁰ However, a significant amount was donated after the FBI had initiated its investigation and begun meeting with Secretary Clinton’s attorneys in August 2015.²¹

To even beat a dead horse with a stick, PLAINTIFF is alleging the FISA Court is aiding and abetting terrorism after any and all decisions made in March 2011 because they knew domestic and international terrorism occurred, knew DEFENDANTS engaged in actual financing of terrorism, and therefore, every single one of FISA Court’s Rulings are prejudicial against ⁵⁰⁶ See: United States v. Horak, 833 F.2d 1235 (7th Cir. 1987) (Holding that the DEFENDANT’S job was acquired and maintained through racketeering activity and remanding the case to district court to determine whether defendant’s salary, bonuses, and pension, and profit sharing plans were acquired and maintained as a result of the racketeering activity).

PLAINTIFF based on these facts. Furthermore, MCAULIFFE'S PAC gave money to Jill McCabe's State Senate run in October 2015 (two months prior to November 2015). Picture below is from U.S. Senator Grassley's letter to Andrew McCabe describing Andrew McCabe and his wife's election run as State Senator. REMEMBER THE DATE OF JUNE 26th, 2015. See: Some of DEFENDANT'S RELEVANT CRIMES OF: 18. U.S.C. 1956 (FINANCING TERRORISM).

PLAINTIFF said earlier that there was a problem that the CLINTON'S had, what is this problem? The following paragraph is all opinion and quotes from ANDREW MCCABE--that problem was, super obviously by now, PLAINTIFF. "Painstakingly, the Midyear team pieced together the whole timeline of what constituted Clinton's "private email server" at every moment from 2008 through March 2015. It seemed as if every time the investigators turned over another rock, they found yet another laptop that was used to fix or process or transfer Hillary Clinton's data and yet another place where some of Clinton's emails, which could have contained classified information,⁵⁰⁷ might have been."⁵⁰⁸

Do you see what Andrew MCCABE did in the previous passage with the dates? So as PLAINTIFF argued in Midyear, ANDREW MCCABE, PETER STRZOK, CIA, FBI, DHS, etc. all chose to retaliate against PLAINTIFF on the basis of his disability because of his politically protected speech made in the confines of his home and in the classroom. So there initial plan wasn't successful so what came up by March 2015? JAPLAN, BILL CLINTON going to Japan on March 17th, 2015, and Chief Justice JOHN ROBERTS having correspondence with the Chief Justice of Japan. An Anchor and a Pitchfork is fundamentally—yet again—ANDREW MCCABE, PETER STRZOK, et al attacking PLAINTIFF on the basis of his politically protected speech made in the confines of his home and in the classroom with the additional features of needing to cover up Miki's Tea Party in which Indians and the Japanese would do the dirty work as a favor to Hillary Clinton and having Andrew McCabe be "separate" enough from the case to give that evidence to the DOJ when JAPLAN happened that the Chief Justice of Japan knew about. So DEFENDANTS' first attempt was a failure in Midyear and the only reason why Andrew McCabe said Midyear ended in March 2015 is that you put Midyear to rest in March 2015 when there is a new opportunity for them--or as Hillary Clinton would say, "a rare development"--to attack PLAINTIFF on the basis of his disability because of his speech via JAPLAN.

So PLAINTIFF is a complete legal liability to SCOTUS, DOJ, HILLARY and BILL CLINTON, India, Britain, FBI, CIA, DHS, et al and PLAINTIFF completely unknowingly and unwittingly gave them the tools to make sure PLAINTIFF would never be a liability to them (so they think). Furthermore, PLAINTIFF is a liability to CLINTON GLOBAL INITIATIVE FINANCING where if HILLARY CLINTON does not win the amount of benefactors and donors to CGI will go down, which is indeed what happened. CGI received $62.9 million in 2016 and then only received $16.3 million in 2020 in which the amount of donations steadily decreased year after year from 2016 through 2020.⁵⁰⁹ So RICO actors do what they do and they have to get rid of the problem somehow and seek to destroy PLAINTIFF'S credibility and likability (barbarically) in case of any future reprisals from PLAINTIFF for their actions committed against PLAINTIFF.

⁵⁰⁸ McCabe, Andrew. The Threat. How the FBI Protects America in the Age of Terror and Trump. 2019.

To demonstrate the tightness between ANDREW MCCABE and PETER STRZOK and how PETER STRZOK was beholden to ANDREW MCCABE so that ANDREW MCCABE could keep some distance from the investigation (thereby having plausible deniability he was beholden to the CLINTONS), evidence shows that on: July 28-31, 2016: "Neither CD AD Priestap nor EAD Steinbach want Strzok to lead the investigation because of his personal relationship with L. Page and instances of Strzok-Page bypassing the chain of command to advise FBI Deputy Dir. Andrew McCabe; McCabe overrules decision to exclude Strzok."⁵¹⁰ STRZOK is not excluded because of the relationship STRZOK and MCCABE have in prosecuting PLAINTIFF. On, Oct. 11, 2016: STRZOK advises L. PAGE that, the IG writes, "support from MCCABE might be necessary to move the FISA application forward." ANDREW MCCABE said: "I tasked the job of looking into this to the counterintelligence division."⁵¹¹ PETER STRZOK said: "McCabe wanted the Counterintelligence Division (that PETER STRZOK was in charge of) rather than the FBI's Cyber Division to run the investigation. And he wanted the investigation opened immediately."⁵¹²

CHIEF JUSTICE JOHN ROBERTS, overseer of the FISA court, was allegedly invited to go to Japan by CHIEF JUSTICE ITSURO TERADA of the JAPANESE SUPREME COURT in March 2015 to talk about their love of "anime," "sushi," and how AMERICA made JAPAN their "equal counterpart" after WWII and not their complete bitch (joke, but there was an invitation sent). CHIEF JUSTICE JOHN ROBERTS graciously accepted the invitation to go to JAPAN in JULY 2015 after the work was done by March 27th, 2015. As stated before, WARWICK ALLEN and PLAINTIFF had First Amendment protected conversations in the privacy of PLAINTIFF'S own home that were leaked to DEFENDANTS that were recorded by DEFENDANTS that were utilized by the FISA Court in which CHIEF JUSTICE JOHN ROBERTS is the overseer of the FISA Court. These conversations were leaked in the course of an on-going investigation that violated DEFENDANT FBI Procedures. CHIEF JUSTICE JOHN ROBERTS was in JAPAN for more than one week after 07/07/2015. During his time in JAPAN, CHIEF JUSTICE JOHN ROBERTS furthered the conspiracy in some way.

Next, PETER STRZOK said: "From a counterintelligence perspective, the most important players in some embassies include the ambassador, the deputy chief of the mission, the CIA chief of station, the FBI's LEGAT, and sometimes the State Department's regional security officer. Work that touches on other FBI investigations might include representatives from the ⁵¹² Strzok, Peter. Compromised. Counterintelligence and the Threat of Donald J. Trump.

Drug Enforcement Agency⁵¹³ or the Department of Defense⁵¹⁴ and Homeland Security.”⁵¹⁵

Thank you PETER STRZOK for this as this officially ties in State Department, CIA, FBI, DEA, DOD, and DHS all in the same conspiracy and cannot be separated. First, whatever privacy rights PLAINTIFF had in the privacy of his home—when PLAINTIFF was engaging in 1st Amendment protected speech in which PLAINTIFF never expected those conversations to be used or recorded against my consent-- could have easily been circumvented by DOD, DHS,⁵¹⁶ or DEA; and then DHS/DEA/DOD gave these recordings to FBI, CIA, et al. This also proves a conspiracy existing amongst DEFENDANTS as they have work that touched on investigations involving PLAINTIFF. Also a distinct possibility is the FBI themselves having recorded all the conversations about me in Spring 2015. The point being, what this shows is all the collaboration and coconspirators agreement to further the enterprise prior to PLAINTIFF leaving for Japan in the Summer of 2015.

Do you have anymore evidence of their hostility and PETER STRZOK’S extreme manifest bias against me that would show malice and incompetence as an investigator? Yes. PLAINTIFF established FBI’s need to prosecute me because of the relationship between ANDREW MCCABE and the CLINTONS and DEFENDANTS and that they were looking for anything that they could use to prosecute PLAINTIFF because PLAINTIFF proved to be that much of a legal liability to the CLINTONS because of their corruption, primarily with at least what happened in London in 2010. Later on in 2016, PETER STRZOK said: “We began weekly meetings with them (DOJ and FBI) to ensure that we were tightly coordinated and that nothing was falling through the cracks—for example, that a piece of intelligence which might have appeared to be an unrelated cyber matter would be brought to the team’s attention if there was any conceivable way it could be related to our investigation.”⁵¹⁷ This is bias, confirmation bias, and cherry-picking of information. Instead of allowing the truth to be fully understood and appreciated, they were that determined on getting me or preventing the true and fair administration of justice because even if something was unrelated (and therefore not applicable), it could be imagined and misconstrued (i.e. something that is imagined, inapplicable, and misconstrued is a conceived way) to them trying to get me at any costs because someone worked on behalf of HILLARY and BILL CLINTON and would show their complete depravity and corruption. Depending on how this is interpreted, PETER STRZOK really hated PLAINTIFF and thought possibly PRESIDENT TRUMP would be on PETER STRZOK’S side when PETER STRZOK said: “This is unfortunate, because within that gap lies a story of personal and national bravery against a common enemy, taking place within a unique and storied⁵¹⁸ setting.”⁵¹⁹

⁵¹³ Probably because they falsely believed I was a drug dealer

The FBI 2015 DIOG says in regard to Assist[ing] Victims: “Identify victims who have suffered direct physical, emotional, or financial harm as a result of the commission of Federal crimes, offer the FBI’s assistance to victims of these crimes and provide victims’ contact information to the responsible FBI Victim Specialist (VS). The VS is thereafter responsible for keeping victims updated on the status of the investigation to the extent permitted by law, regulation, or policy, unless the victim has opted not to receive assistance. The FBI’s responsibility for assisting victims is continuous as long as there is an open investigation (see the Victim Assistance Policy Guide, 0505PG).”⁵²⁰ Not once, not even a single time, did the FBI or DOJ ever inform PLAINTIFF of any crimes committed against PLAINTIFF in which PLAINTIFF has suffered extreme and direct physical, emotional, and financial harm. PLAINTIFF never opted out of receiving these notifications. Above is a screenshot from 5 EYES meeting group that the FBI had⁵²¹ that discussed Victim Services. DEFENDANTS met and for purposes of establishing facts, conventions were had and money was spent thereby effecting interstate and intrastate commerce.

PLAINTIFF was a journalist in college and PLAINTIFF wrote for the Sewanee Purple. One time, PLAINTIFF wrote an article on Free Speech talking about how disgusting the book Lolita was, but that you should still read it anyway. PLAINTIFF never said it was a role-model book that should be acted out in real life in anyway; I believe quite the opposite actually. PLAINTIFF thinks this piece of exculpatory evidence was omitted. Also talked, as alluded to earlier, political correctness and how an aspect of the allowing a population to accept the holocaust was through politically correct language. There was so much exculpatory evidence in the Sewanee Purple articles that PLAINTIFF wrote. PLAINTIFF still was a journalist in 2014/2015 as PLAINTIFF had reestablished himself as a journalist from at least November 6th, 2014 onwards in which PLAINTIFF had written an article for a LGBT publication discussing the legality of gay marriage in either late 2014 or early 2015. In Spring 2015 in the privacy of the home, PLAINTIFF had discussed with WARWICK ALLEN the possibility of and my intention of writing an article on HILLARY CLINTON that involved her corruption and Wikileaks and made some bullshit joking remarks about HILLARY CLINTON. PLAINTIFF planned on writing an article and had the source material, but PLAINTIFF did not know then how to interpret the data and information as PLAINTIFF does now. Yes, PLAINTIFF had the material via CLINTON’S emails, but having the material is constitutionally protected per SCOTUS’ ruling in the Pentagon papers case as a journalist. Suppose ANDREW MCCABE of the FBI was dirty and relayed what two bullshitters said about HILLARY CLINTON in the privacy of their own home to ingratiate himself with BILL AND HILLARY CLINTON to provide cause to have the CLINTONS harm me. Furthermore, this violates FBI policy where he is sharing the details of an ongoing investigation. This is all motive, opportunity, and justification. Things are not looking good for PLAINTIFF at all at this point.

Do you have proof that the FBI or someone else probably recorded these conversations. Not exactly, but an inference that PLAINTIFF does. PLAINTIFF was under investigation by at least the FBI at this time, so let us use FBI's 2015 DIOG Section 4.2.1 on Free Speech to see what they said about retaining 1st Amendment protected speech: "The exercise of free speech includes far more than simply speaking on a controversial topic in the town square. It includes such activities as carrying placards in a parade, sending letters to a Newspaper editor,...and publishing books or articles...Law enforcement activity that diminishes a person's ability to communicate in any of these ways may interfere with his or her freedom of speech—and thus may not be undertaken by the FBI solely for that purpose. It is important to understand the line between constitutionally protected speech and advocacy of violence or of conduct that may lead to violence or other unlawful activity...Therefore, even heated rhetoric or offensive provocation that could conceivably lead to a violent response in the future is usually protected...Despite the high standard for interfering with free speech or punishing those engaged in it, the law doesn't preclude FBI employees from observing and collecting any of the forms of protected speech and considering its content—as long as those activities are done for a valid law enforcement or national security purpose and are conducted in a manner that does not unduly infringe upon the ability of the speaker to deliver his or her message... the FBI will ensure there is a rational relationship between the authorized purpose and the protected speech to be collected such that a reasonable person with knowledge of the circumstances could understand why the information is being collected. In summary, during the course of lawful investigative activities, the FBI may lawfully collect, retain, and consider the content of constitutionally protected speech, so long as: ...the collection does not actually infringe on the ability of the speaker to deliver his or her message...." Do you know what would infringe on PLAINTIFF'S ability to deliver PLAINTIFF's message more persuasively? DEFENDANTS sharing with each other the info of JAPLAN, an exact plan on how to exploit and effectively execute PLAINTIFF as a disabled individual on the basis of my disability, with some lets say questionable people that have adverse interests to PLAINTIFF's because THE CLINTONS AND DEFENDANTS just might make it happen.

DEFENDANTS are going to allege that PLAINTIFF was going to sell my Adderall when PLAINTIFF was in Tokyo--this is a complete fabrication. First off, PLAINTIFF did not have a problem with Adderall until REBECCA WETHERBEE and DEFENDANTS made PLAINTIFF'S Adderall a problem in which they continued a pattern of obstructing PLAINTIFF from getting the proper medical help when necessary. Next, DEFENDANTS had a hatred of PLAINTIFF using Adderall because it facilitated PLAINTIFF writing things down where it could slow down the thoughts in PLAINTIFF'S brain to let his hands catch up with the speed of his thoughts. JAMES COMEY, ANDREW MCCABE, and PETER STRZOK talk about Adderall (which is also called speed): "the problem with Comey's imperative—and with the urgency all of us were feeling in mid-August 2016—was that speed doesn't mesh well with good counterintelligence, which is typically slow and methodical. Nor, for that matter, does it aid secrecy."⁵²² PLAINTIFF doesn't recall if PLAINTIFF said out loud whether or not he was going to take Adderall with me to Japan for PLAINTIFF's own medically necessary purposes while there. There is absolutely no proof or evidence of me having any intention on selling any drugs while PLAINTIFF was in Japan in Spring 2015 in which DEFENDANTS would have no reason to have PLAINTIFF under surveillance there. PERIOD. Furthermore, lets grant DEFENDANTS lie that this was about Adderall trafficking. The purpose of the investigation was not Trafficking and Sexual Trafficking of Children—this would violate “the investigating officer initiated and permitted the escalation of sexual contact that was unnecessary to any reasonable investigation, appellant's conviction is reversed.” State v. Burkland, 775 N.W.2d 372, (Minn. Ct. App. 2009)

There is list, screenshot below, of all the computer issues PLAINTIFF had from September 4th, 2013—two weeks after the REBECCA WETHERBEE August 2013 Messages to demonstrate and prove 18 USC 1961 Sec 1028/1029. By hacking and not having proper legal authority, they acquired the knowledge to harm me.

- Hard drive stores everything on the laptop.

11/2013—Keyboard Malfunctioning

- Tracking of everything typed on a laptop

09/2014—Black screen in which cursor is only available.

- Some type of hard-drive issue again.

More relevantly, here are the searches PLAINTIFF had searched from March 2015 onwards that establishes something was very wrong with his laptop and/or that it had malware installed on it by DEFENDANTS (the laptop was a 2010 Macbook Pro):

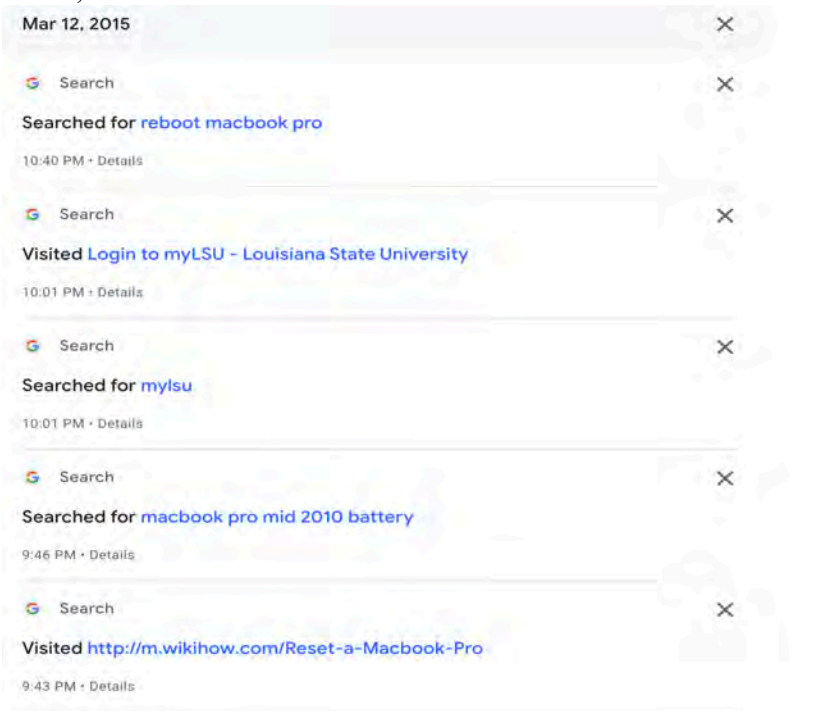

March 7th, 2015:

I'm experiencing battery issues with my laptop and search for a replacement battery. PLAINTIFF purchases a Chinese battery as I could not find an OEM Apple battery for my make and model as it was too old (the problems of being poor I suppose _(ツ)_/).

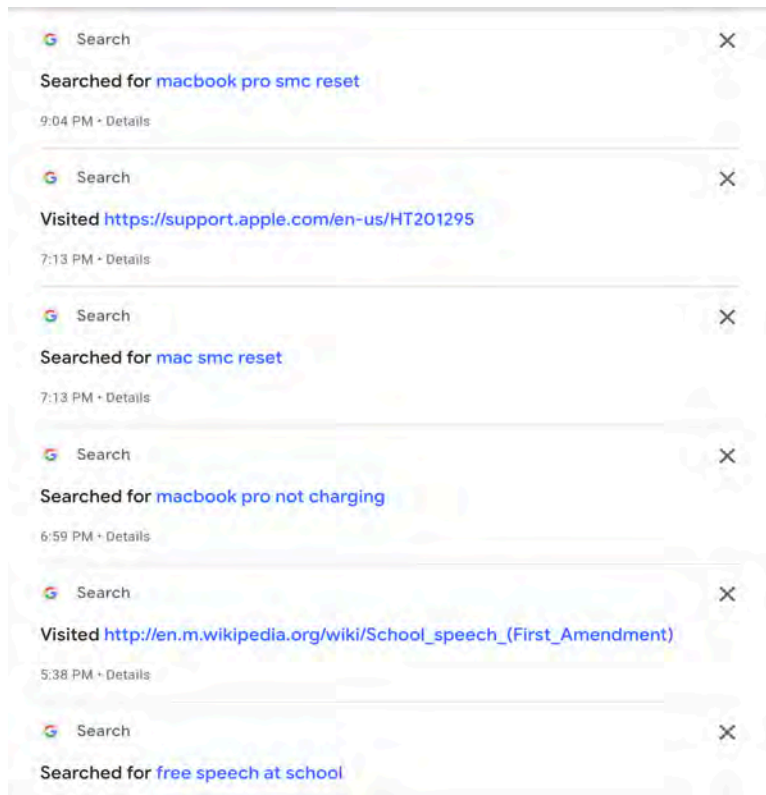

March 12th, 2015: PLAINTIFF'S laptop battery issues persist, and PLAINTIFF looks up how to do a PRAM/SMC reset. The following explains why PLAINTIFF did this: "What is PRAM? PRAM is the memory that stores core details about your Mac. PRAM stands for parameter random access memory, and it's where settings information related to your Mac's operating system is stored. This system settings info includes display settings (like resolution and color depth), time zone, speaker volume, and more. Unlike RAM memory, which is like your computer's short-term memory, info stored in the PRAM isn't temporary, so it doesn't get cleared. Instead, the PRAM uses a small internal battery, so these settings are saved even when your Mac is turned off. Intel-based Macs have a type of memory called NVRAM (non-volatile random access memory). Like PRAM, NVRAM is a small amount of memory used to store specific system settings for quick access. While less prone to corruption, NVRAM occasionally needs to be reset — the steps for resetting PRAM or NVRAM on a Mac are the same. When should you reset PRAM? When problems with your PRAM or NVRAM happen, settings can be lost and connectivity issues can arise, because your Mac can't figure out what to do. If you start noticing strange behavior from clocks, lights, your Mac's battery meter, ports, or even the power button, this could indicate that the PRAM or SMC needs to be reset."⁵²³

I attempt to get help from LSU's computer help desk for numerous issues involving my laptop at this time and ghost icons appearing on my desktop.

June 26th, 2015:

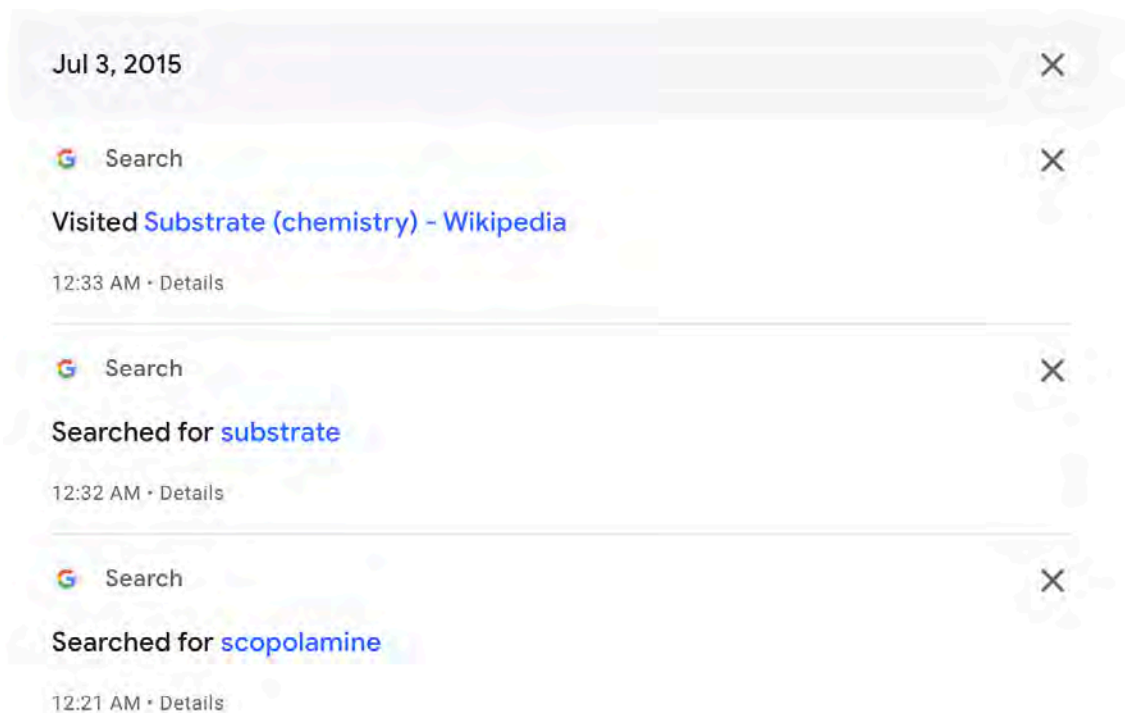

It comes to PLAINTIFF'S attention that someone or DEFENDANTS create a backup of PLAINTIFF'S laptop in which PLAINTIFF can't access it, or someone or DEFENDANTS created and installed something in my computer that is causing my memory to become full in which PLAINTIFF can't use my computer correctly because a full memory slows down a laptop.

There is something obviously very wrong with PLAINTIFF'S laptop at this time, but PLAINTIFF is too poor and cannot afford to purchase a new laptop. PLAINTIFF tries finding ways of freeing up space on PLAINTIFF'S laptop to get it properly functioning again. If PLAINTIFF recalls correctly, PLAINTIFF doesn't have access to this hidden backup that appeared out of nowhere on my laptop, but someone or DEFENDANTS do, and what DEFENDANTS decide to do with this UNAUTHORIZED ACCESS TO PLAINTIFF'S LAPTOP, PLAINTIFF has no idea. Foreshadowing: This is around the same time there is an unexpected guest standing outside SAKURA HOTEL (SAKURA GUEST HOUSE).

DEFENDANTS were corrupt and heard how to commit the perfect crime against PLAINTIFF via JAPLAN because they were listening in on Spring 2015 when they were given the details of JAPLAN. There is no reasonable doubt that PLAINTIFF was an absolute liability to these people and had a purpose on doing so. Suppose DEFENDANTS, having already obstructed justice and having already committed one act of international and domestic terrorism at this point in Spring 2015, needed a different justification for surveilling PLAINTIFF because they knew of the crimes DEFENDANTS were GOING to commit against PLAINTIFF in the future at SAKURA HOTEL (SAKURA GUEST HOUSE) because they had a reason for doing so--what is the point of committing extortion, torture, blackmail, and war crimes if it is not recorded for later 'extortiony' purposes when they had already installed devices like that in 2011 in PLAINTIFF'S dorm room after their first terrorist event? Didn't you say something earlier about privacy, Indians, and hotels? WHY YES, YES PLAINTIFF DID in STAR CHAMBERS! Just to repeat:

SCOTUS decided a case on 06/22/2015, exactly four days before HILLARY CLINTON'S speech on 06/26/2015, but is actually far more sinister in light of PLAINTIFF and Miki's Tea Party and here is why: City of Los Angeles v. Patel, 576 U.S. 409 (2015). It was argued on 03/03/2015, two weeks prior to BILL CLINTON going to JAPAN, one month after PLAINTIFF obtained approval from his school to study abroad in JAPAN in which PLAINTIFF explained JAPLAN, and around the same time that CHIEF JUSTICE started talking to his Japanese counterpart in Tokyo. As argued earlier, foreign persons or corporations don't have any constitutional rights abroad in which 4th Amendment protects "People," not places, and foreign owners of hotels have no expectation of privacy in their properties in which it would be completely constitutional for DEFENDANTS to search and seize HOTEL SAKURA paperwork and installing cameras and microphones in Sakura House in which it would be constitutional for DEFENDANTS to do so because it was a place, not a person. PLAINTIFF would decide to live in SAKURA HOUSE. DEFENDANTS knew of JAPLAN at this time. DEFENDANTS knew of PLAINTIFF'S vulnerabilities abroad. It was decided exactly one day before PLAINTIFF would no longer have assistance in Japan in people who could reach out and help PLAINTIFF. The case overruled 9th Circuit Precedent in which the State of California had jurisdiction over PLAINTIFF in 2015. The case involved the INDIAN owners of hotels in which there was a city ordinance that required the Hotel to keep records of specified information about their guests. Police officers under that ordinance are allowed to search and seize the Hotel records at any time without a search warrant. Defendants don't need a warrant abroad for a Japanese hotel owner to search and seize records about PLAINTIFF staying in their hotel... The Court held that an individual may challenge a statute for violating the Constitution on its face without needing to allege unconstitutional enforcement, and that the municipal ordinance in question is unconstitutional on its face because it does not allow for hotel operators to engage in pre-compliance review by questioning the reasonableness of the subpoena in district court. The type of search the municipal ordinance authorizes is an administrative one, which means that its purpose is to ensure that the hotel operators are complying with the record requirement, and judicial precedent has held that there must be an opportunity for the subpoenaed party to contest the subpoena for an administrative search before penalties are imposed. Such pre-compliance review is necessary to ensure that the search is not a pretext to harass the business owner. The Court also held that hotels are not a “closely regulated” business and therefore do not fall under that exception to the warrant requirement.” JUSTICE SCALIA did not like PLAINTIFF at the time. He wrote the dissenting opinion in which he argued that the municipal ordinance in question is constitutional under the Fourth Amendment in most, if not all, of its applications because warrantless searches are not unreasonable under certain conditions. (such as taking place overseas). One of those conditions is when the premises to be searched is that of a closely regulated business, as long as the regulatory scheme of which the search is a part furthers a substantial government interest (there was a government substantial interest in framing PLAINTIFF after having committed an act of international and domestic terrorism against PLAINTIFF), the search is necessary to further the regulatory scheme, and the regulatory scheme provides a constitutionally adequate substitute for a warrant.”⁵²⁴

Suppose there was a document that the CIA had that showed how to circumvent security at certain major airports in a particular country, which also happens to be an island: Japan.⁵²⁵ Suppose this island nation of Japan is completely beholden to the US as it depends on the US and the US’ military for its very own survival against the superpower China (how is Japan supposed to fight back against China with an aging society? Alright Grandpa-san, here is your rifle and fighter jet, go get ‘em). Suppose BILL CLINTON and the CIA had a relationship from when the CIA ran drugs into Arkansas during BILL CLINTON’S time as Arkansas’ governor in the 1980s in Mena, ARKANSAS and that is “not” how the CLINTONS made some money through the illegal drug trade and made politically connected friends and CIA connections at the time; suppose the CIA did favors for BILL CLINTON while he was President; and suppose BILL CLINTON covered up things for the CIA in which the CIA owed BILL CLINTON ‘a favor’? Suppose “BILL CLINTON, according to several agency sources interviewed by biographer Roger Morris, worked as a CIA informer while briefly and erratically a Rhodes Scholar in England,”⁵²⁶ which means BILL CLINTON and the CIA had an established working relationship for more than 20 years at this point of time in my story.

XX. “STANDARDS FOR ME, BUT NOT FOR THEE”—DEFENDANTS.

How two-tiered has the U.S. Justice system become? Is this a fundamental reason why PLAINTIFF is so pissed off based on the principle of it? So glad you asked. Yes PLAINTIFF affirms this to be true. PLAINTIFF routinely and falsely gets labeled as a drug dealer, domestic terrorist, and committer of insurance fraud and has every single American Intelligence Agency, every single British Intelligence Agency, every single Indian Intelligence Agency, every single German Intelligence agency, and the IRS after PLAINTIFF because education was PLAINTIFF'S priority. See: TAR; METH; Financial Terrorism; Miki's Tea Party; Calm Down, Man; Guess Who's Back; etc. BUT "according to later sworn testimony by Arkansas trooper Arkansas becomes a major center of gun-running, drugs and money laundering. The IRS warns other law enforcement agencies of the state's "enticing climate." According to Clinton biographer Roger Morris, operatives go into banks with duffel bags full of cash, which bank officers then distribute to tellers in sums under $10,000 so they don't have to report the transaction."⁵³⁰ "An IRS memorandum reveals that even at this late [80s or 90s] "the CIA still has ongoing operations out of the Mena, AR airport"⁵³¹ and U.S. Intelligence doesn't blackmail nor extort BILL and HILLARY CLINTON over this nor does anything happen to BILL C:OMTPM and HILLARY CLINTON by U.S. Intelligence. #4.

True, after what was done to PLAINTIFF from 2008 to 2023, PLAINTIFF used 90mg of Adderall instead of my prescribed 60mg at some points in 2016 in discovering RICO Enterprise 2. Details of what DEFENDANTS and CLINTONS did in his life from June 26th, 2015 are not included. PLAINTIFF, for all intents and purposes, is put in solitary confinement after December 2016 for reasons PLAINTIFF has not been made aware of by the DEFENDANTS and PLAINTIFF still suffers horribly from June 26th, 2015 onwards. BUT “Jim McDougal, who once said that the Clintons move through people's lives like a tornado, dies after being placed in solitary confinement again. An unusual Prozac level is found during autopsy. PLAINTIFF specifically says something about a detail of JAPLAN, that for all intents and purposes, DEFENDANTS knew of. Furthermore, PLAINTIFF prays upon a meteor shower to find the love of his life soon in which one of the most fundamental and sacred ways in the Orthodox Church to connect to God is through marriage. This will be used against PLAINTIFF in July 2015 and afterwards. Furthermore, PLAINTIFF talks about the same content as BILL CLINTON does below, that the following BILL CLINTON story contains in a camp in Camp Wayne in Pennsylvania in 2010, this will be used against me. BUT “Bill Clinton speaks to a group of Southeast Washington high school students about sex: "This is not a sport, this is a solemn responsibility." He tells the young men at the gathering that they should stop having sex ⁵⁴⁰ Do you know what PLAINTIFF remembers most about this experience? For the first time in my life (this is during high school), PLAINTIFF sees unconditional love. PLAINTIFF sees unconditional love given by Mormons there to fellow Mormons that embrace each other with open arms and spirit without question to disability or any other perceived issues. PLAINTIFF understands the importance of unconditional love and PLAINTIFF was so awe-struck by how loving any Mormons were whenever they rolled through the hospital at CTCA in Zion, IL.

"when they're not prepared to marry the others, they're not prepared to take responsibility for the children and they're not even able to take responsibility for themselves."⁵⁴⁴ #17.

So, "an FBI employee has the right to "[e]xpress his or her opinion as an individual privately and publicly on political subjects and candidates." 5 C.F.R. §734.402(a),"⁵⁴⁵ but, yet that standard apparently and completely didn't apply to PLAINTIFF in Spring 2015 or in his entire life for that matter.

At least 17 ways in which the CLINTONS are treated completely differently from the rest of ordinary, now broke, Americans like myself. Equal treatment under the law my ass. But the question is why? What would compel someone in the DEFENDANTS to treat PLAINTIFF completely different than BILL and HILLARY CLINTON?

There is a rush to blackmail and prosecute PLAINTIFF for the sake of HILLARY CLINTON and DEFENDANTS because DEFENDANTS knew from at least April 12th, 2015 that HILLARY CLINTON was running to be President and that DEFENDANTS knew—or it was that reasonably foreseeable from April 12th, 2015 inside DC political and DC intelligence circles at that time—that HILLARY CLINTON was going to be the Democrat's primary candidate in 2016. It makes sense to get rid of all legal and potential liabilities to HILLARY CLINTON prior to November 2016 as quickly as possible before she became president (if elected by the People). The Republican party in Spring and Summer 2015 didn't have a strong front runner candidate that was commonly accepted and DONALD TRUMP at this time was not a clear frontrunner. PLAINTIFF believes and alleges that DEFENDANTS in Spring and Summer 2015 thought HILLARY was going to be President in 2016 and were conforming themselves by acting in a manner of who they thought was going to be the future President in which they would do things for HILLARY CLINTON-- in whatever way she wanted--because it was DEFENDANTS' complete interest to do so.

Corrupted DEFENDANTS wanted to get jurisdiction on PLAINTIFF by a different state to investigate PLAINTIFF at the behest of BILL and HILLARY CLINTON to absolve themselves of blame, supposedly have a "good faith" basis in surveilling PLAINTIFF thereby circumventing Wong Sun, and thereby having plausible deniability that they were not illegally surveilling PLAINTIFF. How would they do that? First, use DHS and JEH JOHNSON to completely circumvent PLAINTIFF'S constitutional interests being within 100 miles of a border. Then DEFENDANTS could have a parallel investigation done by a different state (i.e. California or Washington D.C.) to commence a criminal investigation into PLAINTIFF for any alleged crime (fictitious or legitimate, it doesn't matter) and thereby abuse legal process. As ANDREW MCCABE previously stated, he wasn't involved in "cases with Virginia politicians" but there are 49 different options to utilize. PLAINTIFF enrolled at Santa Clara University in Santa Clara, California for their Summer in Tokyo Program by March 15th, 2015. Do you know who else was a resident of California based on information and belief? Despite having lived in New Orleans for the Summer of 2013 and having worked and conspired with DEFENDANTS and was a full-time student at Sewanee until May 2014, REBECCA WETHERBEE was a resident of California until maybe around August 2014. Undercover DHS Agent Matt left in Spring 2014; suppose if some corrupted officials had a personal vendetta and could open an investigation on PLAINTIFF between August 2013 through August 2014 in California; or more plausibly and easily, they could get subsequent jurisdiction on me once the first payment of my student's loans from the Federal Government was given to Santa Clara in May 2015 in the State of California IN SAN FRANCISCO where City and County of San Francisco v. Sheehan, 500 US. 675 (2015) was decided on top of being a place Robert Mueller could call home thereby subjecting PLAINTIFF to the long arm statute of California. Would the issue of DEFENDANTS being up to no good again with funds come up again? By now, you should know the answer to this. YES! PETER STRZOK confirms this theory with the following text message:

2015-11-12 02:01:19, Thu	INBOX	You should go to SF. I'll set a reminder to bring it up in April.

Suppose the CIA has a book (hereon: the handbook) that describes how to compromise an unwilling asset in which they describe their tactics from the central American country of Nicaragua (i.e. commit war-crimes against someone's will through blackmail, extortion, and torture. Suppose this handbook explicitly says "they could neutralize carefully selected and planned for targets" in which they would take "extreme precautions and to gather the affected population together to formulate accusations against the 'oppressor'" (i.e. through getting information via DEFENDANTS) or target (in PLAINTIFF's opinion). Suppose this handbook states that a target "must be selected on the spontaneous hostility which the majority of the population may feel against the target" and "using potential rejection or hate on the part of the majority of the affected population against the target, rousing the population and making them see all of the individual's negative and hostile acts against the people, the degree of violence possible without causing damage or danger to other individuals in the area around the target, and, the foreseeable degree of reprisals on the part of the enemy towards the affected population or other individuals in the area around the target." Suppose this handbook discusses "problems which they may have with offices of the regime, visitors, and taxes." Suppose this handbook talks about "cutting all external lines of communication" of the targets and "setting up ambushes" for the targets. Suppose this handbook talks about "reducing the influence of individuals...without damaging them publicly." Cough you can always reduce the influence of a journalist or a future lawyer defending himself in future reprisals based on what DEFENDANTS did to PLAINTIFF because of Miki's Tea Party. Cough Cough. Excuse me, these coughs are out of control. Suppose this handbook talks about “notifying the police” against the target and “if the target doesn’t seem susceptible to voluntary recruitment that they will be confronted and they will have reprisals on the part of the regime’s police or military,” WHICH HAS HAPPENED TO PLAINTIFF.

JOHN O. BRENNAN said: "Some of my other views and policy positions also generated opposition inside CIA components. For instance, I adamantly opposed during my time in the White House and as CIA director the intentional dissemination of false information by any U.S. government department or agency, even if done so clandestinely or covertly. I knew full well that spreading disinformation was a time-honored intelligence practice used, including by many western services, to discredit adversaries and to shape public perceptions."⁵⁴⁶

HOLD ON A SECOND. JOHN O. BRENNAN, repeat what you just said:

“I knew full well that spreading disinformation was a time-honored intelligence practice used, including by many western services, to discredit adversaries and to shape public perceptions.”⁵⁴⁷

Did JOHN O. BRENNAN just in fact prove PLAINTIFF’S underlying theory on the case and JAPLAN?

YES.

That is a core component of JAPLAN. John O. Brennan just admitted in his book that he knew that the CIA as well as FBI, German Intel, British Intel, INTENTIONALLY spread misinformation to discredit “adversaries” to shape public perceptions. This was done under his leadership against PLAINTIFF on purpose, willfully, wantonly, maliciously, and unconstitutionally in which there was no actual or real reason to believe that PLAINTIFF was an adversary. PLAINTIFF got coerced by Joe Bello as an autistic high schooler in which Joe Bello knew that PLAINTIFF was not actually pledging allegiance to Al-Qaeda nor ISIS nor whatever terrorist group. PLAINTIFF had an intellectual discussion and debate with Griffin Fry who was probably paid by the FBI or CIA to get PLAINTIFF to talk about terrorism to keep justifying surveilling PLAINTIFF when the facts of the case demonstrated beyond any reasonable doubt that PLAINTIFF was not a terrorist from the time he was coerced by Joe Bellow about Peachy Miami to Joe Bello’s. John O. Brennan knew PLAINTIFF made a sarcastic quip about being a spy in wooing an American who had an interest in Russians. It was because of FBI’s, CIA’s, DHS’, NSA’s, intentionally reckless conduct involving PLAINTIFF over the years in which they shared

⁵⁴⁶ Brennan, John. Undaunted: My Fight Against America’s Enemies, At Home and Abroad. 2020

⁵⁴⁷ Brennan, John. Undaunted: My Fight Against America’s Enemies, At Home and Abroad. 2020

According to the handbook, they're more than willing to notify the police against the target and "you can't have reprisals on the part of the regime's police or military" unless you make shit up about them, ambush them, or DEFENDANTS having dug up ancient awkward situations and misunderstandings and emails like Angel's. More importantly, CIA can make things up about someone because it's a time-honored intelligence practice, falsely label them as an adversary to the DC political elite where these officials take sarcastic musings and protected First Amendment speech of a special needs man as truth and omit the context on numerous occasions, and then notify the police precisely for the "target" to face reprisals. Suppose the CIA and JEFFREY EPSTEIN and foreign intel like the MOSSAD and MI6 had a relationship with one another in which they regularly blackmailed political leaders and entertainers.

Suppose the CIA did something 'off the books' by their handbook? PLAINTIFF is alleging that DEFENDANTS did something "off the books" by their handbook with direct WHITE HOUSE STAFF APPROVAL and KNOWLEDGE (SEE DEFENDANTS: BARACK OBAMA, VALERIE JARRETT, and BEN RHODES, etc). DEFENDANTS BARACK OBAMA and his staff VALERIE JARRETT, BEN RHODES, etc. all knew of what was going on in JAPAN. BILL CLINTON and HILLARY CLINTON were all former WHITE HOUSE members. PETER STRZOK said: "because of the independence of FBI's law enforcement role, for instance, we didn't discuss our investigations of individual U.S. citizens with the White House—nor did we ask for permission to open those cases...The CIA collects intelligence to support the President; its work exists to support national security goals driven by the White House. Like FBI agents who didn't always understand how to operate abroad, CIA officers sometimes didn't appreciate the impact of the FBI's domestic law enforcement role and the nuanced ways in which that authority required separation and independence from the White House."⁵⁴⁸

Here is the thing or other explanation. There is no way PLAINTIFF was not known amongst "Allied" DEFENDANTS so to speak at the very highest level amongst DEFENDANTS like VALERIE JARRETT, MICHAEL MORRELL, BARACK OBAMA, JOHN O. BRENNAN, ROBERT MUELLER III, JAMES COMEY, JAMES CLAPPER, etc. Ironically, constantly having put PLAINTIFF under intense surveillance for that long very well could have attracted hostile intelligence services to PLAINTIFF. DEFENDANTS should have been aware because it was that readily obvious or they knew of this risk when it came to PLAINTIFF. With the increased risk of heightened compromise by hostile intelligence services because of DEFENDANTS' very own actions regarding PLAINTIFF, DEFENDANTS knew, especially with PLAINTIFF'S autistic vulnerabilities, how PLAINTIFF could be compromised. Rrrriiggghhhhttttt... so it wasn't that PLAINTIFF wasn't in their forefront of knowledge because PLAINTIFF was damn well in their forefront of knowledge after being a victim of domestic and international terrorism by DEFENDANTS in October 2010; but this 'stupid' 'retarded' special needs PLAINTIFF could serve as something else entirely to DEFENDANTS. Either CIA/FBI did it or DEFENDANTS would become intentionally unaware and ignorant of PLAINTIFF to let hostile foreign intelligence services compromise PLAINTIFF so that PLAINTIFF then could be arrested by DEFENDANTS after having been compromised to show or justify DEFENDANTS invasive surveillance tools purporting to stop “domestic terrorism” or “foreign spy/adversary” and thereby covering up what happened on 03/11/2011 in Miki’s Tea Party if HILLARY CLINTON became President. Furthermore, this would absolve WHITE HOUSE staff and DEFENDANTS for having bugged PLAINTIFF’S room in Spring 2011 that connects HILLARY CLINTON to BARACK OBAMA. That is a very plausible national security goal by the White House and motivation by DEFENDANTS in the WHITE HOUSE. Why would PLAINTIFF think FBI was of good repute when they only referred to PLAINTIFF on the basis of his disability, talked about throwing PLAINTIFF under the bus, and when the FBI has consistently through the years of 2008-Present have set up different individuals similar to PLAINTIFF?⁵⁴⁹ But give credit where credit is due as DEFENDANT FBI seems to be changing in the right direction: “FBI launches hate crime investigation after a swastika was carved into the back of a Jewish teen with autism, report says.”⁵⁵⁰

IMPORTANT: Suppose the CIA or FBI were not careful and made some mistakes. PLAINTIFF had discussed in the privacy of his own home about taking PLAINTIFF’S laptop somewhere and having a search done on it to see if the CIA or FBI had compromised it in January or February 2017 (because the CIA and FBI did in fact do this) through the installation of their malware. There were times in 2016 in writing the story that PLAINTIFF had to put my phone and laptop in the freezer because they became too physically hot for PLAINTIFF to work on in which PLAINTIFF thought it was the CIA that was preventing PLAINTIFF from working on the story. Most importantly, suppose the CIA could not conceive of the “foreseeable degree of reprisals on the part of” myself when PLAINTIFF was going to write the story and the events that transpired in Fall 2015 and the entirety of 2016 when they gave their approval to do what they were going to do to me in Tokyo in the Summer of 2015. Suppose the CIA knowing everything that transpired in 2015 and 2016, had took a precaution where they had one of their own employees give to WikiLeaks certain info/malware to release to public in 2017 because DEFENDANTS had installed it on PLAINTIFF’S laptop (from at least Spring and Summer 2015) so PLAINTIFF could not directly connect that malware to them with the malware being PLAINTIFF’s direct, tangible, and actual physical evidence connecting DEFENDANTS to me via my laptop in court if PLAINTIFF sued them. The following malware was publicly released from March 2017 onwards in which at least one of the following was most definitely placed in my laptop: project dark matter (See: REBECCA WETHERBEE)⁵⁵¹ that is specifically designed to infect Apple products; *weeping angel*⁵⁵² in which the tv in the kitchen at Sakura Hotel (Sakura Guest House) was of the type (if PLAINTIFF is not mistaken); cherry blossom (or in Japanese: Sakura (Sakura Hotel) PLAINTIFF was staying at in Tokyo in 2015) in which it tracks your internet history and manipulates the internet traffic of connected users⁵⁵³⁵⁵⁴; brutal kangaroo (like a kangaroo court that PLAINTIFF had discussed in the story in 2016); elsa (gotta keep track where your blackmail and targets are going)⁵⁵⁵; bothan spy (accesses security credentials on a computer, which I know my security credentials were compromised in at least Spring 2015 and sought repairs in 2016.⁵⁵⁶; *couch potato (self-explanatory)*⁵⁵⁷ in which, if PLAINTIFF understand it correctly, provides a livestream from a corrupted computer or source that has a camera; angelfire; *Imperial*⁵⁵⁸ in which a subcategory of that is SeaPea that hides files and directories and causes issues with socket connections and processes (which PLAINTIFF had documented issues with); *Marble*⁵⁵⁹ so even if PLAINTIFF tried to get a forensic investigator to prove it was the CIA, the CIA had their ways of escaping proof.

⁵⁵¹ Wikileaks: “Dark Matter”, which contains documentation for several CIA projects that infect Apple Mac firmware (meaning the infection persists even if the operating system is re-installed) developed by the CIA’s Embedded Development Branch (EDB). These documents explain the techniques used by CIA to gain ‘persistence’ on Apple Mac devices, including Macs and iPhones and demonstrate their use of EFI/UEFI and firmware malware.

Speaking of a bugged TV in a hotel room in Asia involving politics and the CLINTONS, the following: “According to a later report in Insight Magazine, the Clinton administration eavesdrops on over 300 locations during the Seattle Asia-Pacific Economic Cooperation Conference. FBI videotapes of diplomatic suites "show underage boys engaging in sexcapades with men in several rooms over a period of days." The operation involves the FBI, CIA, NSA and Office of Naval Intelligence. Bugged are hotel rooms, telephones, conference centers, cars, and even a charter boat. Some of the information obtained is apparently passed on to individuals with financial interests in Asia.”⁵⁶⁰ PLAINTIFF guesses History repeats itself.

⁵⁵³ Wikileaks: CherryBlossom provides a means of monitoring the Internet activity of and performing software exploits on Targets of interest. In particular, CherryBlossom is focused on compromising wireless networking devices, such as wireless routers and access points (APs), to achieve these goals. Such Wi-Fi devices are commonly used as part of the Internet infrastructure in private homes, public spaces (bars, hotels or airports), small and medium sized companies as well as enterprise offices. Therefore these devices are the ideal spot for "Man-In-The-Middle" attacks, as they can easily monitor, control and manipulate the Internet traffic of connected users

⁵⁵⁴ So when PLAINTIFF tried to see if the Indian visa issue was wrong, got directed by the CIA to whatever they wanted PLAINTIFF to believe.

⁵⁵⁵ Wikileaks: “ELSA is a geo-location malware for WiFi-enabled devices like laptops running the Microsoft Windows operating system. Once persistently installed on a target machine using separate CIA exploits, the malware scans visible WiFi access points and records the ESS identifier, MAC address and signal strength at regular intervals. To perform the data collection the target machine does not have to be online or connected to an access point; it only needs to be running with an enabled WiFi device. If it is connected to the internet, the malware automatically tries to use public geo-location databases from Google or Microsoft to resolve the position of the device and stores the longitude and latitude data along with the timestamp. The collected access point/geo-location information is stored in encrypted form on the device for later exfiltration. The malware itself does not beacon this data to a CIA back-end; instead the operator must actively retrieve the log file from the device - again using separate CIA exploits and backdoors.

⁵⁵⁶ Wikileaks: “The BothanSpy and Gyr Falcon projects of the CIA. The implants described in both projects are designed to intercept and exfiltrate SSH credentials but work on different operating systems with different attack vectors.”

⁵⁵⁹ Wikileaks: “Marble is used to hamper forensic investigators and anti-virus companies from attributing viruses, trojans and hacking attacks to the CIA.”

PLAINTIFF submitted a FOIA request for John Brennan's emails that talked about PLAINTIFF from either 2015 to 2016 onwards to the CIA in 2021 and prior to that. This request has been ignored by the CIA; and if there were no emails, all the CIA would have to do is say no pertinent records exist, but they haven't done so, and it has been more than 2 years. So that speaks for itself. Furthermore, PLAINTIFF submitted a FOIA request for all data about PLAINTIFF in 2015 while PLAINTIFF was in Japan that was transmitted through a very specific data center in Australia in order to reach CIA Headquarters and JOHN O. BRENNAN'S computer to prove what happened to PLAINTIFF: this request has gone ignored for more than 6 months. If no data existed, all the CIA would have to do is say no pertinent records exist, but they haven't done so. So that wonderful exculpatory data exists in the CIA somewhere, they have it, and they're obstructing justice. JOHN O. BRENNAN was in on the RICO ENTERPRISE as he and "The CIA chief of station typically represents the direction of national intelligence and as such oversees all intelligence activity, including that of agencies other than the CIA." ⁵⁶¹ That direction being provided either by HILLARY CLINTON, BILL CLINTON, along with BARACK OBAMA/WHITE HOUSE STAFF of VALERIE JARRETT, BEN RHODES, etc.

Funny thing is, PLAINTIFF went to the CIA in person to try to amicably resolve the issues. PLAINTIFF flew to Washington D.C and drove to Langley on June 22nd, 2020. PLAINTIFF went straight up to CIA's gate and asked them for a tour. Why would PLAINTIFF ask CIA to give PLAINTIFF a tour? First, to provide CIA a cover story; second, and most importantly, to talk to PLAINTIFF and have his rights vindicated and resolve the issues through dialogue and understanding. CIA ignored this request that was totally in their best interests. PLAINTIFF then demanded my rights to be vindicated at the gate, and to let them know PLAINTIFF was here and get them to acknowledge what they deliberately and intentionally either allowed to happen or made happen. Do you know what DEFENDANTS did to PLAINTIFF then? DEFENDANTS threatened PLAINTIFF. DEFENDANTS threatened me in their intel-speak manner of threatening someone but conceivably saying they didn't mean to threaten PLAINTIFF and that PLAINTIFF misinterpreted what they said. Then later on that night, PLAINTIFF was walking around downtown WASHINGTON D.C around 9pm through 10pm just minding his own business. Bored out of his mind because nothing else could have been done that day. PLAINTIFF was scared out of his mind that he was going to be subject to another assassination attempt by DEFENDANTS. PLAINTIFF is standing on a street corner and PLAINTIFF sees two black Chevy Suburbans roll perpendicular past by PLAINTIFF. In the 2nd Black Chevy Suburban, there appeared to be DEFENDANT JAMES COMEY was in the motorcade and stared at PLAINTIFF and made eye contact with PLAINTIFF. This could be an act of intimidation because there is no way nor did DEFENDANTS have any valid reason why DEFENDANTS told JAMES COMEY where PLAINTIFF was and PLAINTIFF'S projected path to intimidate PLAINTIFF to make contact with PLAINTIFF. JAMES COMEY should have stopped and talked to PLAINTIFF and should have been a man, but yet, DEFENDANTS continued to show their cowardice through the entirety of the day of June 22nd, 2020.

Failing to give the requested info from the FOIA is breaking the law because of the specific data requested. JOHN O. BRENNAN says: "as director, I tried to dispel what I thought was the image of the CIA as a lawbreaking organization, and I believed that some of the terminology used inside the Agency was part of the problem. [during an interview, a reporter] pressed me on several alleged CIA programs involving clandestine technical collection, aggressive counterterrorism actions, harsh interrogation tactics, and covert arming and training of foreign rebel forces.. [being the big emotional man-baby that John O. Brennan is, he says] We don't steal secrets. Everything we do is consistent with U.S. law. We uncover, we discover, we reveal, we obtain, we elicit, we solicit.⁵⁶²

Do you see where all of this is going?

Japan fascinated PLAINTIFF and PLAINTIFF loved the culture. Side note, the Japanese prime minister from 2012 to 2020 was Shinzo Abe. Shinzo Abe was assassinated in 2022 in Okinawa/Nara. It is important to note. For once, PLAINTIFF thought, PLAINTIFF was going to have a trip for himself in Japan in which PLAINTIFF could do things that PLAINTIFF loved doing—learning and exploring new places, all of which made PLAINTIFF happy. PLAINTIFF never got the chance to study abroad as undergrad at Sewanee because of financial aid issues, grade issues, and having that trip in Financial Terrorism and being prevented from going to go in Miki's Tea Party. PLAINTIFF can't stress enough the importance of how this study abroad trip to Japan was fundamentally conceived as the trip for PLAINTIFF and it was supposed to be the best trip of his life and doing the things PLAINTIFF love to do in my constitutionally guaranteed pursuit of happiness (and do nothing illegal there) before having many more wonderful trips with my future family. So, PLAINTIFF starts working with LSU Law's administration and LSU's financial aid office from February 2015 to make this dream trip happen. PLAINTIFF was on academic probation in 2015 and PLAINTIFF talked to Academic Dean, Cheney Joseph (now deceased from cancer), to get his approval and blessing for me to go to Japan in the Summer of 2015. This was granted.

Then PLAINTIFF starts working with Rachel Fontenot at LSU's financial aid office to make sure this trip is paid for via Federal Student Loans, and that is when things start going downhill in April/May 2015. PLAINTIFF gets Ms. Fontenot's initial word that, financially, everything was alright, and PLAINTIFF thought for once things are starting to go his way, Bbbbbuuuuutttt nnnnnnnnoooooooooooooooooo, it can never be that easy with PLAINTIFF. If PLAINTIFF recalls correctly, Ms. Fontenot tells me something is wrong, and the loans are not approved. PLAINTIFF talks to CHERRY ROBERTS-MATHERNE and she is also having financial aid issues. So together, CHERRY and PLAINTIFF go talk to the financial aid office either in April or May 2015 to go work things out. PLAINTIFF truthfully divulges what PLAINTIFF understood to be facts behind my finances at the time. That PLAINTIFF was broke, had no assets, and was completely dependent on the US Federal Government for student loans. PLAINTIFF doesn't remember the reason why or when, but to the best of my recollection, Ms. Fontenot got fired from her job around this time or later in 2015. Then CHERRY and PLAINTIFF start working with Ms. JESSICA OTT. PLAINTIFF had recorded these conversations detailing our financial aid issues, but someone, not going to say who, cough DEFENDANTS cough cough, had installed some malware on the storage devices (plural, two—external hard drive and laptop) on which PLAINTIFF kept these recordings that were lost to

⁵⁶² Brennan, John. Undaunted: My Fight Against America's Enemies, At Home and Abroad. 2020

PLAINTIFF but DEFENDANTS might still have it. It may be possible to recover it as PLAINTIFF still have the corrupted external hard drives (but can no longer find it), who knows. So PLAINTIFF's aunt works for United Airlines and PLAINTIFF'S ticket to Tokyo was through United Airlines. PLAINTIFF gets only a one-way ticket to Tokyo (PLAINTIFF was traveling on standby and I was supposed to leave on May 26th, but I left on the 28th) and not a round-trip ticket. Then the unthinkable happens as PLAINTIFF will let an email that PLAINTIFF found describe what happens between Ms. Ott and PLAINTIFF in late May 2015:

"I do not care what you and ms.ott or any other member of the financial aid office has to do, but understand if you two or the office don't come up with a solution, your office and yourselves will make me homeless here is why.

I'm in a foreign country with no relatives or anyone who can help me nearby. I have literally eaten only one meal a day since my flight left on the 28th, I only had a week supply of cash for an emergency and that would cover a place to sleep (hostel), transport to go from the school here to the hostel, and one meal a day for a week. Well the first week is gone, my emergency money covered the IT problem⁵⁶³, but that is gone and now I have this shitty situation.

I will have no money to eat, to sleep anywhere, or go to school-- i'm going to be homeless on thursday (that is no exaggeration). My grandparents absolutely have no money, my brother is living at home (unemployed) with my mom who is unemployed and a father on disability. Why do you think I was in such contact with your office trying to ensure everything would go right

And then your office keeps coming up with more, and more, and more excuses on me. I already had to pay a fee for cancelling my airplane tickets so I can hear a decision on the 26th and then immediately leave afterwards, I had to work a deal with the landlord of the room I was supposed to rent and they wanted money on the 26th of May, somehow I got them to postpone it to this thursday because I showed them your prior e-mail, and if I don't pay them by thursday, they are going to take my security deposit of $300. I have no idea what the hell i'm going to do."

There were a ton of issues with financial aid in May 2015 and PLAINTIFF cannot recall anymore and the substance of such right now. First, not only did PLAINTIFF have IT issues, but LSU also had IT issues. The only ones who were really capable of doing these things were DEFENDANTS and they did at the exact time they needed to do it against PLAINTIFF'S

⁵⁶³ The school informed me via a couple of emails prior to this one that there was an IT problem that prevented my funds from being disbursed on time interests causing damage to LSU'S computer systems. In hindsight, PLAINTIFF really should have called his aunt at United and told her to get me a standby ticket back to Chicago when PLAINTIFF sent this email; and PLAINTIFF should have cut his losses and lived with the disappointment of not having a dream trip at the time. In my opinion, this really seemed to be another attempt by DEFENDANTS in hindering my life, preventing PLAINTIFF from attaining an education, and/or it was the DEFENDANTS up to their nefarious tricks again. Suppose DEFENDANTS wanted to get me for something at this time (probably something involving money because my parents); but what if DEFENDANTS--and PLAINTIFF is alleging they did this--said "grant the funds" because they deliberately wanted me go to JAPAN since DEFENDANTS had concocted an ambush for PLAINTIFF while PLAINTIFF was in Japan? BILL CLINTON visited Japan and conspired with different DEFENDANTS on MARCH 17th, 2015. CHIEF JUSTICE ROBERTS accepted an invite to go to JAPAN around late MARCH 2015. Court decided City & County of S.F. v. Sheehan on May 18th, 2015 after arguments were heard in March 2015 thereby absolving government officials from ADA liability violations via qualified immunity.

^^^^^^^would you say the previous is a problem that PLAINTIFF may have "locally with the offices of the regime"—CIA Handbook?

Before the Japan trip, PLAINTIFF needs to talk about two different things that happened prior to the financial aid issues in late May 2015.

In Spring 2015, something else very peculiar happens. PLAINTIFF receives an email from someone in LSU's administration (the undergrad) that contains a super confidential spreadsheet. The spreadsheet contains a list of names of LSU students who are perceived as being potential threats to the institution and the reasons why they are perceived as threats. Upon receiving this info and reviewing it, PLAINTIFF immediately sends an email to whomever sent it to PLAINTIFF and explained quite clearly that PLAINTIFF received it and that PLAINTIFF shouldn't have received it. The law makes you liable for having received unauthorized confidential information regardless of whether you had intended on receiving it. Then after receiving this super confidential email, PLAINTIFF has the financial aid issues above. In PLAINTIFF'S opinion, PLAINTIFF thinks DEFENDANTS were messing me to see if PLAINTIFF would use this information in an extortionate manner against my school in which PLAINTIFF did not (and would not actually use confidential information as leverage or for extortion purposes). PLAINTIFF might have been frustrated with my school at this time, but just because PLAINTIFF was frustrated doesn't mean PLAINTIFF would extort my school with confidential information. In PLAINTIFF'S opinion, this is the 2nd attempt by someone either at school or within the US federal government to get me kicked out of school and/or be prosecuted by DEFENDANTS in Spring 2015. Reminds me of the Rhetoric story in Sewanee. Trying to reinforce PLAINTIFF falsely posed a threat when PLAINTIFF did not in fact do so simply for arguing. Connecting a theme, when talking about mishandling cases and receiving info, PETER STRZOK said: "was an unauthorized party, such as a journalist or a foreign nation, the recipient?...Finally how did the person behave after mishandling the information—did he or she lie to us or destroy evidence? Or did that person behave normally, apart from the violation itself?" The biggest obstacle was our inability to prove intent at a level consistent with previous cases in which DOJ had brought criminal charges. In each case in which classified information appeared in Clinton's email, it was in the context of people doing their job—it wasn't being sent to someone who should have had it, like a reporter or a foreign intelligence officer."⁵⁶⁴ Again, PETER STRZOK wouldn't leave PLAINTIFF alone and kept the RICO ENTERPRISE going. ^^^^^^^^would you say the previous is a problem that PLAINTIFF may have "locally with the offices of the regime"—CIA Handbook? You know, the school acting on behest of the FBI and CIA?

2 attempts made. There can't be a third one? Wrong!

At this point in time (a little after May 28th, 2015), PLAINTIFF arrives in Japan. PLAINTIFF will let the following emails that PLAINTIFF found explain the situation. Things to note: JAKE HENRY is the Head of Admissions at LSU Law. I've already discussed TRACY BLANCHARD and CHERRY ROBERTS-MATHERNE. CHENEY JOSEPH was a dean at LSU Law and professor of Criminal Law until he succumbed to cancer in December 2015 (if I'm not mistaken about the month of his death). I have not altered the emphasis contained in the emails.

Hello Miki,

A student came to see me today and was insistent that you told them that you were on a full tuition scholarship after being academically dismissed from the university.⁵⁶⁵ Is that true?

Thanks in advance,

Mr. Henry,

I dont know who would tell you that, I'm actually perplexed that someone would actually take the time to lie to you and actually take the time to insinuate that I'm a liar by claiming on a full ride scholarship after being academically dismissed. Nothing against you, but that sentence in itself is so utterly ridiculous in itself (i'm sorry, truly sorry that someone wasted your time with that) that I am lost for words on how to adequately respond. I understand that with my comedic nature, some unbelievable absurd and funny sentences will come out of my mouth, which I admit is true, but this doesn't apply at all.

This is my official response: i have never received any type of scholarships (though I have applied to two during my time and I failed to get a response back from both of those scholarships and I was never awarded those scholarships) since I have been at LSU and whatever money I had to pay for LSU directly came from working with the financial aid office. I have never stated that nor insinuated in any way (including joking) that I have got any type of scholarship help.⁵⁶⁶ I mean things got so bad for me financially, for instance, yesterday that I was on the verge of being homeless and I've copied part of an e-mail that I sent the financial aid office this week that highlights such:

"I do not care what you and ms.ott or any other member of the financial aid office has to do, but understand if you two or the office don't come up with a solution, your office and yourselves will make me homeless here is why.

I'm in a foreign country with no relatives or anyone who can help me nearby. I have literally eaten only one meal a day since my flight left on the 28th, I only had a week supply of cash for an emergency and that would cover a place to sleep (hostel), transport to go from the school here to the hostel, and one meal a day for a week. Well the first week is gone, my emergency money covered the IT problem⁵⁶⁷, but that is gone and now I have this shitty situation.

I will have no money to eat, to sleep anywhere, or go to school--i'm going to be homeless on thursday (that is no exaggeration). My grandparents absolutely have no money, my brother is living at home (unemployed) with my mom who is unemployed and a father on disability. Why do you think I was in such contact with your office trying to ensure everything would go right

And then your office keeps coming up with more, and more, and more excuses on me. I have no idea what the hell i'm going to do."

Most importantly, after the whole fiasco my first 1L year and proving myself this 1L year, I would never disparage or talk negatively about the people and the school that gave me a second chance when I barely deserved one. I would not state anything that could make LSU Law out to be bad or so dysfunctional as to give someone a scholarship after being on academic bankruptcy because of how much more deserving other students would be and it would be an extremely ⁵⁶⁶ I was saving my ass here and I lied so I could continue to get educational funds to finish schooling and my education like I did with Financial Terrorism because I didn't think that saying a ridiculous joke that wasn't plausible on its face and the joke was that absurd with a snitch Vanessa would actually mean that she would go visit my school's administration and tell my school I said that joke.

⁵⁶⁷ The school informed me via a couple of emails prior to this one that there was an IT problem that prevented my funds from being disbursed on time stupid and honestly an extremely reckless decision as to give scholarships to a student that clearly didn't earn it.

May I please receive a response back from you, how this all started, who said it, and where do we go from here

I want to know who accused me of saying that because it may be something that I may want to bring to the student bar association, which depends more on the facts and the person that stated such. When I read that this person was "insistent that you told them you were...", I want to know what insistent entails because that person took the time to accuse me by talking to the admissions committee. It becomes a personal issue because although gossip is existent amongst students and faculty itself (people are going to gossip so I can dismiss it as it being nothing more than gossip), but this is a different matter because the student took the time to lie to you all and made the administration involved.

A response is requested.

Miki

Let this go; it is not anything that warrants the involvement of the student bar association. Nothing has been reported to anyone.

Hi Tracy,

I finally got the money so things are okay financially here, and overall, going pretty decently. There is another thing I wanted to draw your attention to. I've forwarded you a conversation that Mr. Henry from the admissions office and I had. Sometimes, coincidences happen, but my intuition and gut is telling me this is not a coincidence. The timing of the e-mail in light of the financially unstable situation I was in recently, the content of the issue Mr. Henry brought, and most importantly, the lack of a very simple answer that I asked for repeatedly just leads me to believe that it is not a coincidence.

What makes me a little irked and a little irate about the whole situation is the following: so this unnamed person accused me and took the time to lob these false claims against me and sought some type of redress when s/he reported it to the admissions committee. yet, I, the person who got falsely accused, when I want to know who took the time to do such and I want some type of redress whether it be through the student bar association or just the simple ability to discuss it with the person one on one, somehow becomes an impossibility.

It is okay for now, I'm not going to bring it up again in Japan or the summer (not going to let it ruin this opportunity I have here). Maybe when I'm back in August, I may want to address it, but that is such a low possibility anyway.

I don't know much about the admissions process, but surely if you had funding elsewhere this would be something they could verify themselves. I am not sure why this occurred but I would concentrate on your studies and focus on you. If it is a continual issues please let me know, but since you did nothing wrong I would continue to take the time now to spend on your studies.

I am sorry all this occurred.

Are you OK now?

I am unable to be reached by phone and I only have a data plan where I can only text, write emails, or use whatsapp on my phone. Also Japan is 14 hours ahead so the timing is extremely problematic of when our schedules would align in order to get a hold of me.

-----End of Emails

^^^^^^^would you say the previous is a problem that I may have “locally with the offices of the regime”—CIA Handbook? You know, the school acting on behest of the FBI and CIA?

What happens next is appalling and will shock your conscience.

Romans 16:17

“Now I urge you, brethren, keep your eye on those who cause dissensions and hindrances contrary to the teaching which you learned, and turn away from them.”

A summary of we are at in June 01, 2015:

- 3 different orchestrated plans to prevent me from getting an education.
- DEFENDANTS Malware installed on laptop and phone with no demonstrable evidence PLAINTIFF posed any type of national security risk.
- 17 ways in which PLAINTIFF treated differently under the law than the Clintons.

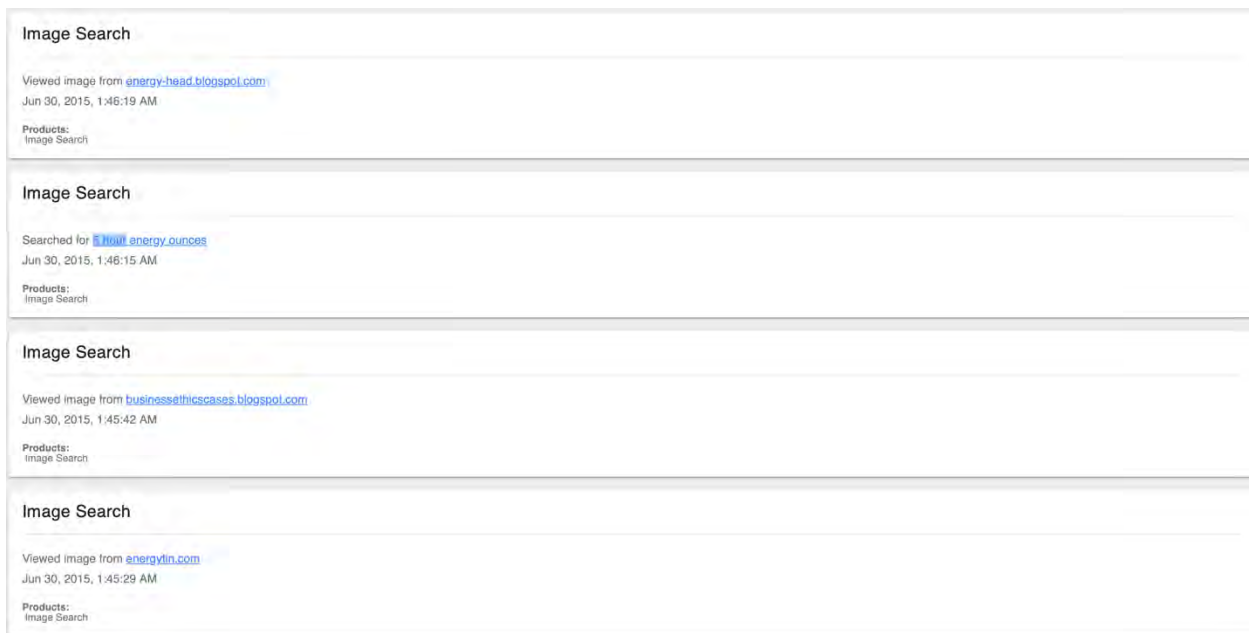

PLAINTIFF has to describe the structure of the Santa Clara University Tokyo Program to emphasize how brutal and savage the attack was going to be. The Santa Clara University Tokyo Program of 2015 is broken into two distinct parts. The first half consists of classes and the second half consists of the internship. The “internships commence[d] on Monday, June 29 and end[ed] on Friday, July 24, 2015.” Seeing how this info was publicly available at that time, PLAINTIFF is assuming the DEFENDANTS had that info whether it was publicly known or through the USA PATRIOT ACT—DEFENDANTS knew PLAINTIFF’S schedule and DEFENDANTS knew all of the times PLAINTIFF would be especially vulnerable and the ways PLAINTIFF was already vulnerable based on his disabilities. In the first part of the program, PLAINTIFF is routinely surrounded by American classmates that speak Japanese and can be of assistance in PLAINTIFF’S time of need, PLAINTIFF regularly goes to class, PLAINTIFF regularly hangs out with the fellow students—PLAINTIFF is safe and JAPLAN can’t happen during this time.

XX. BUT FROM JUNE 26th, 2015:

DEFENDANTS, JOHN O. BRENNAN, HILLARY CLINTON, ANDREW MCCABE, JAMES COMEY, etc. violated 42 U.S.C. § 3631 when they interfered with PLAINTIFF’S housing rights because of PLAINTIFF’S religion, handicap, and national origin the entire time PLAINTIFF was in Tokyo, JAPAN living at the Sakura House.

There are major things that are going to go wrong though. First and most important thing is the lack of sleep throughout PLAINTIFF’S entire time in TOKYO. It is commonly known phenomenon that poor breathing during sleep causes poor sleep quality. Outside SAKURA HOUSE, there is an enormous amount of cat shit and PLAINTIFF can't breathe adequately because of the amount of uncleaned cat shit outside Sakura House through Summer 2015, which makes PLAINTIFF’S nose congested. PLAINTIFF, to the best of his recollection, looks for a hose outside the home to wash the cat shit away and may have tried to try to clean up some of it. PLAINTIFF did not have the hose or tools to clean up the piles of cat shit outside Sakura House. PLAINTIFF would have cleaned up the shit if he could have. PLAINTIFF must manage his

FLONASE and runs out quickly and conserves whatever little amounts he had left in which PLAINTIFF needed more FLONASE to breathe adequately, but PLAINTIFF does not know where to buy FLONASE in Japan to de-congest PLAINTIFF'S nose. The Summer Heat of Japan exacerbates the problem in which there was not a single day the house did not smell of cat shit. PLAINTIFF alleges after murdering PLAINTIFF'S cat, DEFENDANTS intentionally put the cat shit there to further retaliate against PLAINTIFF and prohibit PLAINTIFF from breathing right when he was at home. Throughout most of the trip, PLAINTIFF was not happy in JAPAN despite the fact that this should have been PLAINTIFF'S dream trip. PLAINTIFF at first recognizes the bed at Sakura Hotel (Sakura Guest House) was absolutely awful and uncomfortable—PLAINTIFF is 6'2" and around this time 300lbs and it is a short bed where PLAINTIFF'S feet would dangle off the bed unless PLAINTIFF slept in a very particular way that deprived PLAINTIFF of quality sleep where PLAINTIFF wouldn't have been able to get adequate sleep with his feet hanging off the bed. PLAINTIFF google searches 5 Hour Energy to see the list of ingredients to find a similar substitute to 5 Hour Energy so PLAINTIFF can have some energy throughout the day and not be tired all the time and PLAINTIFF desperately goes through 4 different images to see what ingredients there are so PLAINTIFF can save himself. See: Screenshot Below. PLAINTIFF also starts drinking cold coffee when PLAINTIFF never drank coffee before from Japanese coffee maker Georgia coffee because of how routinely tired PLAINTIFF is during the trip. PLAINTIFF sends a snapchat to Ted Robinson, who is from Georgia, about the Georgia Coffee so there is proof of this. PLAINTIFF becomes sleep deprived and is sleep deprived for about a month before JAPLAN is implemented. This is a core part of JAPLAN where decreased sleep decreases brain function.

You know, if PLAINTIFF would have had part of the $14,900,000,000 DEFENDANTS made off of him in Miki's Tea Party, PLAINTIFF would have stayed at the recommended lounging Santa Clara Law recommended and this would have never happened, but PLAINTIFF could not have afforded the recommended housing; and for all intents and purposes lived in decrepit and unsanitary conditions the entire time PLAINTIFF was in Japan in violation of United States v. Kozminski and necessarily extremely dangerous conditions to PLAINTIFF.

DEFENDANTS violated: Wilson v. Seiter, 501 U.S. 294 (1994) (holding for purposes of 8th Amendment and 14th Amendment violations: one claiming that the conditions of his confinement violate the Eighth Amendment must show a culpable state of mind on the part of officials; the "wantonness" of conduct depends not on its effect on the individual, but on the constraints facing the official; there must be "deliberate indifference" to one's "serious" medical needs"). JOHN O. BRENNAN, JAMES COMEY, ANDREW MCCABE, PETER STRZOK, all knew of the decrepit and unsanitary conditions PLAINTIFF was living in at Sakura House and they knew how much the United States Government profited off of PLAINTIFF.

The second part of the Santa Clara Law Program was the most dangerous for PLAINTIFF: PLAINTIFF was the only American working in his internship and no known Americans in the immediate vicinity of where he lived. Whatever issues PLAINTIFF was having at the residence PLAINTIFF was staying at would not be brought up with his bosses as PLAINTIFF was new and trying to establish himself and in which one has to separate work from their home life. If it wasn't for DEFENDANTS who intentionally put PLAINTIFF in harm's way in which he would never be able to attain employment, PLAINTIFF wouldn't have tried so hard and did whatever his bosses wanted out of PLAINTIFF in which PLAINTIFF was completely broke law school student and became an indentured servant to DEFENDANTS. None of the classmates who spoke Japanese were there with PLAINTIFF at the internship and we barely hung out in the second part of the internship. There were two meetings with the administrators of the Santa Clara program in July 2015. PLAINTIFF cannot recall what was stated in these meetings.

PLAINTIFF was at SAKURA HOUSE with two Vietnamese roommates that barely spoke any English that were staying in one of the three bedrooms available to rent on the floor of the hotel/apartment. For all intents and purposes, PLAINTIFF was all by himself from at least June 26th, 2015 in a foreign country with no help nearby and NO airplane ticket home as previously known to DEFENDANTS in email. This is another core part of JAPLAN. As PLAINTIFF said earlier in the email: "I'm in a foreign country with no relatives or anyone who can help me nearby... my emergency money covered the IT problem⁵⁶⁸, but that is gone... My grandparents absolutely have no money, my brother is living at home (unemployed) with my mom who is unemployed and a father on disability." How would PLAINTIFF afford a lawyer in Japan based on the facts? PLAINTIFF absolutely could not have defended himself in the court of law in Japan with no money to pay for an attorney and DEFENDANTS knew this fact. DEFENDANTS knew PLAINTIFF was lonely, got away from a racket involving DEFENDANTS and ASHLEY MAIDEN as will be explained later, was generally inexperienced with women, had experienced a major heart break Spring 2015 because PLAINTIFF did the right thing with BRI DRESCHER.

Do you see where all of this is going?

XX. These are the facts of what I remember from late June 2015 to July 2015:

⁵⁶⁸ The school informed me via a couple of emails prior to this one that there was an IT problem that prevented my funds from being disbursed on time

First a prelude written by JOHN O. BRENNAN: “I also supported President Obama’s view that covert action should be undertaken only when there is no viable diplomatic, military, or other option available and when the hand of the United States needs to be hidden for national security purposes, not for political reasons.”⁵⁶⁹ The CIA always had the viable action of intervening or talking to PLAINTIFF and truly understanding what PLAINTIFF represents prior to Summer 2015. They could have helped their own fellow American, BUT THEY DID NOT.

HOLD ON a second. Let me describe two very important quotes JOHN BRENNAN said. JOHN BRENNAN knew full well that spreading disinformation was a time-honored intelligence practiced used to discredit “adversaries” to shape public perceptions in which he would take covert action against “adversaries.” PLAINTIFF when he filed his FOIA requests with Custom and Border Patrol and Navy both alluded to JAPLAN on intuition. Now either the CIA was that incompetent or that malicious in regard to JAPLAN and PLAINTIFF. There is no plausible different or rational explanation besides criminal incompetence or criminal malice. PLAINTIFF proved why they egregiously and unrelentingly viewed PLAINTIFF as an adversary when PLAINTIFF was never an adversary to America. JOHN BRENNAN, ROBERT MUELLER, PETER STRZOK, ANDREW MCCABE, all had the ability to stop JAPLAN.

BARACK OBAMA gave the following Executive Order on June 17th, 2015. E.O. 13696.

PLAINTIFF alleges that BARACK OBAMA was trying to prosecute PLAINTIFF in a military tribunal for having committed no crime and for DEFENDANTS having committed an act of international and domestic terrorism against PLAINTIFF. The E.O. states the following: “Sec. 2. These amendments shall take effect as of the date of this order, subject to the following: (a) Nothing in these amendments shall be construed to make punishable any act done or omitted prior to the effective date of this order that was not punishable when done or omitted. (b) Nothing in these amendments shall be construed to invalidate any nonjudicial punishment proceedings, restraint, investigation, referral of charges, trial in which arraignment occurred, or other action begun prior to the effective date of this order, and any such nonjudicial punishment, restraint, investigation, referral of charges, trial, or other action may proceed in the same manner and with the same effect as if these amendments had not been prescribed.

PLAINTIFF alleges that Section 2(a) is absolving White House and American INTEL staff of omitting to PLAINTIFF that “trade is in the offing” occurred and the value of his work. That is where Barack Obama is wrong though—an omission can be a but for proximate cause in RICO when determining mail and wire fraud. Next, Section 2B. restraint is referring to “trade is in the offing,” they were trying to prosecute PLAINTIFF having knowingly utilized fabricated evidence, misleading narratives, and perjured testimony in which the FBI had opened a case on them falsely alleging that PLAINTIFF had burned down PLAINTIFF'S home when DEFENDANTS murdered PLAINTIFF'S cat and burned down PLAINTIFF'S home. PLAINTIFF DEFENDANTS were completely absolving themselves of "Trade is in the offing" knowingly going to commit war crimes against PLAINTIFF.

Furthermore, Executive Order 13698 issued on June 24th, 2015 (two days before 06/26/2015) said the following: June 24, 2015: Section 1. Purpose. The 21st century has witnessed a significant shift in hostage-takings by terrorist organizations and criminal groups abroad. Hostage-takers frequently operate in unstable environments that challenge the ability of the United States Government and its partners and allies to operate effectively. Increasingly, hostage-takers target private citizens—including journalists and aid workers—as well as Government officials. They also utilize increasingly sophisticated networks and tactics to derive financial, propaganda, and recruitment benefits from hostage-taking operations. The United States is committed to securing the safe recovery of U.S. nationals held hostage abroad and deterring future hostage-takings by denying hostage-takers any benefits from their actions. Because such hostage-takings pose unique challenges, the United States Government must be organized and work in a coordinated effort to use all instruments of national power to achieve these goals, consistent with the United States Government's no concessions policy." PLAINTIFF alleges that American INTEL

Specifically, Sec. 2. States the following: Establishment and Responsibilities of the Hostage Recovery Fusion Cell. (a) The Attorney General, acting through the Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI), shall establish within the FBI for administrative purposes an interagency Hostage Recovery Fusion Cell (HRFC). Take out one letter from HRFC and you get HRC=HILLARY RODHAM CLINTON. PLAINTIFF would have to HOST someone on AGE (host and age=hostage) as well as allowing HILLARY CLINTON to recover from "trade is in the offing." So PLAINTIFF is alleging that at least one, if not most, if not all of the following agencies knew of JAPLAN:

- (i) the Department of State;
- (ii) the Department of the Treasury;
- (iii) the Department of Defense;
- (iv) the Department of Justice;
- (v) the Office of the Director of National Intelligence;
- (vi) the FBI;
- (vii) the Central Intelligence Agency; and
- (viii) other agencies as the President or the Attorney General...

JAMES COMEY, JOHN O. BRENNAN, HILLARY CLINTON, ANDREW MCCABE, PETER STRZOK, BILL CLINTON, SHINZO ABE, JEH JOHNSON, etc. wanted to allege that PLAINTIFF was a terrorist hostage child sex trafficker—simply, DEFENDANTS wanted every malign lie and malicious accusation in the book and get PLAINTIFF arrested in Japan utilizing either a military tribunal in Japan or the Japanese legal system knowing just how screwed PLAINTIFF would be because of their actions.

Certain leaders on following the law:

JOHN O. BRENNAN: “as director, I tried to dispel what I thought was the image of the CIA as a lawbreaking organization...Everything we do is consistent with U.S. law.”⁵⁷⁰ He swore to uphold and defend the Constitution and thereby protect all Americans and their Constitutional Rights.

ANDREW MCCABE: “I would also respect absolutely all legal and ethical limits that her service might place on my own.”⁵⁷¹ He swore to uphold and defend the Constitution and thereby protect all Americans and their Constitutional Rights.

JUST IN CASE: PLAINTIFF incorporates the legal arguments he made in RICO Enterprise 2 as a defense [here] for JAPLAN.

United States v. Cook, 793 F.2d 734 (5th Cir. 1986) (“[b]oth the fact of conspiracy and a defendant's participation in it may be proved by circumstantial evidence.” 793 F.2d at 736). “As was the case in United States v. Postal, 589 F.2d 862 (5th Cir.) ... “the mere fact that [defendant] made the statement is relevant to the issues of [his] knowledge of the conspiracy and his participation in it.”...As Professor McCormick explains: “Proof that one talks about a matter demonstrates on its face that he was conscious or aware of it, and his veracity simply does not enter into the situation.” [omitted].” U.S. v. Jones, 839 F.2d 1041 (5th Cir. 1988). “If the government's conduct in the investigation through a sting operation is so active that its conduct fabricated elements of the offense, it might be considered a violation of due process to prosecute the defendant.” U.S. v. Steinhorn, 739 F. Supp. 268, 271 (D. Md. 1990).

Suppose PLAINTIFF is wrong, and it was a hostile foreign intelligence agency and not an US intel agency or Indian intel agency doing what is to come; that being said, no one in any of the 10+ US Intel agencies did anything to stop it despite US Intel having the prerequisite knowledge for the entirety of the Summer of 2015. The conduct in Summer 2015 is either intentional by the DEFENDANTS or constituted that gross incompetence by DEFENDANTS when they had PLAINTIFF under surveillance. Surveillance is never there to help you. Someone in a US Intel agency failed in their duty when they had a reasonable reason to believe that something was fundamentally wrong in July 2015.

Here is another important fact: if the FBI was not working with my school or against my school in Spring 2015, they have nothing to worry about; HOWEVER, if they did work with my school or against my school in the Spring Semester of 2015 that involved any issues with PLAINTIFF, by necessarily working with the school, they would have been aware of the letter and UM and therefore they are liable. Plus, they said in “FBI’s The Key TO US Student Safety Overseas pamphlet”:

⁵⁷⁰ Brennan, John. Undaunted: My Fight Against America’s Enemies, At Home and Abroad. 2020

⁵⁷¹ McCabe, Andrew. The Threat. How the FBI Protects America in the Age of Terror and Trump. 2019.

- The US government seeks to protect US students overseas from risks posed by foreign intelligence services to ensure their safety and future career prospects

When talking about his work, PETER STRZOK said of the FBI: “What was the purpose of the email? Had the sender tried to write in a way to make in unclassified? Was there an exigent circumstance, a decision in which someone’s life was at risk? Determining any of those was a herculean task that required tracking down people around the world, from the State Department command center to U.S. embassies and consulates abroad, and sending agents to interview each person.”⁵⁷² There was a blackmail and extortion email sent near the end of June or early July 2015. DEFENDANTS having repeatedly utilized Section 215 and Section 702 against PLAINTIFF knew of this email and did not immediately inform PLAINTIFF what was going on and who it was coming from. NOTHING WAS DONE ABOUT THAT EMAIL with DEFENDANTS knowing full well what happened and having that email in their possession and within their knowledge. Let us grant the assumption it wasn't DEFENDANTS that did the following to PLAINTIFF and let us suppose the Russians or Chinese that wanted to compromise me in Summer 2015 in Tokyo via kompromat. First, they, the FBI and CIA, are supposed to do things in exigent circumstances even when those circumstances occur overseas, right? Correct. PETER STRZOK would recognize when kompromat is being done being one of the heads of counterintelligence at FBI, correct? Yes. Would stopping JAPLAN from becoming a reality based on the malice of some people in the DC bubble be an exigent circumstance based on PLAINTIFF'S disability because PLAINTIFF elaborately described how it was such? Yes. Let's see where this goes.

In Fikes v. Alabama, 352 U.S. 191 (1957), a mentally disabled black man was "convicted of burglary with intent to commit rape and was sentenced to death. Two confessions admitted in evidence at his trial were obtained while he was held in a state prison far from his home, without the preliminary hearing required by Alabama law and without advice of counsel, friends or family. The first confession was obtained after five days of intermittent questioning by police officers for several hours at a time and the second five days later after more such questioning... Captain Baker continued questioning for two hours in the morning. He testified that a warrant was served on petitioner in jail, but that petitioner did not request a preliminary hearing. In fact, he was not taken before any judicial officer prior to the confessions....First confession was obtained on tape..." Id. During the second confession and thereafter: This outline of the facts surrounding the taking of the confessions comes entirely from the testimony of the State witnesses, who, under the circumstances, were the only ones who could testify at the trial on this subject other than the prisoner himself." Id. The conditions the Petitioner experienced in the case was so important since the Court said:

“petitioner's location and the conditions of his incarceration are facts to be weighed in connection with the issue before us. For a period of a week, he was kept in isolation, except for sessions of questioning. He saw no friend or relative. Both his father and a lawyer were barred in attempts to see him.” Id. The Court went on to say that “the totality of the circumstances that preceded the confessions in this case goes beyond the allowable limits. The use of the confessions secured in this setting was a denial of due process.”

Do you have an inference of malicious intent that you want to share? Sure. It would show my phone was hacked and that people were probably listening in on me every single day to ensure the blackmail and extortion happened. This necessarily implicates Miki's Tea Party because it involves HILLARY CLINTON, “defense is in the offing,” and INDIAN airlines in which INDIA had a major reason to do that against PLAINTIFF as well thereby absolving INDIA of their crimes. This may be a little bit of a stretch, but if true, would show the lengths they would go to. As PLAINTIFF mentioned earlier, PLAINTIFF had a one-way stand-by ticket on United Airlines from Chicago to Tokyo. PLAINTIFF knew and understood at the time that his return ticket would, necessarily, have been through United Airlines, and only United Airlines, because PLAINTIFF'S aunt was working for United Airlines and she was the one giving PLAINTIFF the ticket. On June 7th, 2015, someone had hacked PLAINTIFF'S phone and downloaded the Jet Airways application on PLAINTIFF'S phone. (See: Screenshot below of all songs and apps made around that time). Jet Airways was an INDIAN airline that is now currently defunct, but is allegedly making a comeback later this year (according to Wikipedia and Jet Airways website).⁵⁷³

But do you want to know what this could be proof of? Well first off, Jet Airways is connected to corruption and Indian organized crime.⁵⁷⁴ PLAINTIFF necessarily incorporates the totality and the relevant part of A Feast of Vultures: The Hidden Business of Democracy in India by Josy Joseph that talks about the issues involving the Indian Government and Jet Airways (that PLAINTIFF has not read but will probably confirm something along the lines of SpiceJET. Additionally, PLAINTIFF incorporates this argument in Miki's Tea Party. PLAINTIFF is alleging that in the alternative, JET AIRWAYS were part of RICO ENTERPRISE 1 in JAPAN. The JET AIRWAYS orders were part of "trade is in the offing." The JET AIRWAYS Order again from Miki's Tea Party:

25 BOEING 737 MAX in 2014.

Which is a total of 92 BOEING 737 aircraft (75 Boeing 737 MAX and 17 BOEING 737NG). Treble option of: 276 BOEING 737s. But at the end of the day, PLAINTIFF is at least alleging an aiding and abetting and being a member of RICO Enterprise 1 by JET AIRWAYS in which "trade is in the offing," HILLARY CLINTON, Indian and British Government, and hacking PLAINTIFF'S phone to download the Jet Airways app are all necessarily connected somehow. BRITISH AND INDIAN intel had interests above and the ability for DEFENDANTS to continue to RICO Enterprise against PLAINTIFF.

⁵⁷⁴ https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Jet_Airways. Last Checked: 08/26/2023

This is all suspicious for the following reasons. In February 2016, JET AIRWAYS had the second highest amount of the Indian aviation market share at 21.2%, which was beyond IndiGo.⁵⁷⁵ Allegedly, SpiceJET, who was one of their competitors, and IndiGo had lowered prices in 2017 and that caused Jet Airways to lose profitability from 2017 on in which they declared bankruptcy in 2019.⁵⁷⁶ There were signs in 2018 of some of the financial issues and then in November 2018, that is when Jet Airways had declared a negative financial outlook. Then in March 2019 just four months later, that is when Jet Airways collapsed. Emergency funds in April 2019 were rejected by their creditors. PLAINTIFF had absolutely no reason to download the Jet Airways' app on my phone or to use the Jet Airways', an INDIAN airline, app at any time during my trip to Japan. PLAINTIFF had searched for vacation locations in July 2015 in which he had not looked to fly from Tokyo to India. PLAINTIFF did decide to fly to Nara/Okinawa and used SkyMark Airlines to do so; but PLAINTIFF did not even download the SkyMark Airlines app when he used SkyMark Airlines to fly to them in July 2015 according to the screenshot above. Side note and speaking of SkyMark Airlines and Nara. Shinzo Abe, the former Prime Minister, was assassinated in Nara (i.e. Okinawa) in 2022.

PLAINTIFF alleges American INTEL, British INTEL, German INTEL, Japanese INTEL, Indian INTEL, JOHN O. BRENNAN, PETER STRZOK, ANDREW MCCABE, JEH JOHNSON, BARACK OBAMA, HILLARY CLINTON, BILL CLINTON, SHINZO ABE, and CHIEF JUSTICE JOHN ROBERTS retaliated against PLAINTIFF on the basis of PLAINTIFF'S disability in squalid and horrendous conditions having knowingly utilized constitutionally tainted evidence against PLAINTIFF when aforementioned DEFENDANTS intentionally implemented JAPLAN and freed themselves of liability in which DEFENDANTS wanted to prosecute PLAINTIFF in a military court because PLAINTIFF was a liability to HILLARY CLINTON and those aforementioned DEFENDANTS because of "trade is in the offing" and having murdered PLAINTIFF'S cat. PLAINTIFF is not incorporating the factual circumstances of the 18 U.S.C. 2340 and 18 U.S.C. 2441 conduct and behavior; but what matters is at least ANDREW MCCABE, JOHN O. BRENNAN, PETER STRZOK, HILLARY CLINTON, BILL CLINTON, AMBASSADOR KENNEDY, all knew about it and they did nothing because either they planned it and/or allowed a different foreign agency or government to commit the acts (PLAINTIFF believes India and Indian INTEL). German INTEL knew, British INTEL knew, Japanese INTEL knew, and Canadian INTEL knew. When PLAINTIFF necessarily says JAPLAN, aforementioned DEFENDANTS have enough reason to know what it exactly refers to. For whatever dignity is left of PLAINTIFF and the United States, PLAINTIFF is incorporating the facts of July 27th, 2015 through August 5th, 2015 [here]. PLAINTIFF has typed out the facts that he recalls (in which he wasn't drugged at the time) in a separate document that PLAINTIFF can give the Court at any time.

Then later on in late July 2015, DEFENDANTS at his work internship also made PLAINTIFF work on process and being served in JAPAN as a foreign corporation and prevent the corporation from being served—this was also around the same time PLAINTIFF had a rooftop bar meeting with DEFENDANTS: JIM BIDEN and HUNTER BIDEN in which PLAINTIFF signed paperwork, the details of which, PLAINTIFF did not know nor read, and did it to appease his bosses at TOKYO ROPPONGI LAW & PATENT OFFICES. PLAINTIFF understood that JAPANESE Culture was one that had established “Respect for elders is an integral part of Japanese culture, and it has been this way for centuries. In Japan, the elder is seen as a source of wisdom and guidance, and they are highly respected by younger generations. This respect is rooted in Confucianism, which has been a major influence on Japanese culture since its introduction to Japan during the 6th century AD. According to Confucianism, elders should be treated with respect due to their experience and knowledge of life.”⁵⁷⁷ PLAINTIFF TRULY THEN AND TRULY NOW HAD NO FUCKING IDEA WHY PLAINTIFF WAS MEETING THE AVANT GARDE OF D.C. BUT WIRE FRAUD AND MAIL FRAUD WAS COMMITTED THAT IS FOR SURE. HAD TO DO WITH WHAT HILLARY CLINTON AND ANDREW MCCABE DID ON JUNE 26TH, 2015 AND WAS PART OF RICO ENTERPRISE 1. At the time, if PLAINTIFF questioned his boss’s direction when DEFENDANTS urged him to sign the paperwork without reading what it entailed; and if PLAINTIFF talked back to his bosses by questioning their wisdom and guidance of not reading the paperwork to be signed in front of their faces to them at that moment in the middle of a “business or legal meeting,” that would have been a sign of major disrespect in the Japanese culture (PLAINTIFF after all did just take a course on how to do business in Japan the previous month in June 2015) and would have caused significant and severe problems with DEFENDANTS PHILIP JIMENEZ and MARCUS KOSINS that PLAINTIFF severely disrespected his bosses. Furthermore, PLAINTIFF was in the position that he had to keep kissing so much ass and not show an iota of disrespect by questioning or talking back because of what DEFENDANTS continuously kept putting PLAINTIFF through since at least SEWANEE. See: Some of DEFENDANTS violations:

PLAINTIFF is alleging that DEFENDANTS JEH JOHNSON, JOHN O. BRENNAN, HILLARY CLINTON, ANDREW MCCABE, SHINZO ABE, BILL CLINTON, [retaliated against PLAINTIFF on the basis of his disability) because that is what justice requires based on everything in this complaint

To show it was retaliation for PLAINTIFF because of “trade is in the offing,” BARACK OBAMA issued Executive Order 13701—Delegation of Certain Authorities and Assignment of Certain Functions Under the Bipartisan Congressional Trade Priorities and Accountability Act of 2015 on July 17th, 2015 that talked about the Secretary of State and Trade. PLAINTIFF alleges and incorporates the retaliation undertaken against PLAINTIFF for DEFENDANTS actions in “trade is in the offing” and that this E.O confirmed it would falsely hold PLAINTIFF accountable and not HILLARY CLINTON, HAROLD HONGJU KOH, JOHN O. BRENNAN, PETER STRZOK, ANDREW MCCABE, ROBERT MUELLER, American INTEL, British INTEL, Indian INTEL, Japanese INTEL, etc.

One of the happiest days of PLAINTIFF’s life and happiest moments of my life was when PLAINTIFF was leaving his dream trip because of how much of a nightmare DEFENDANTS made it. JAPLAN became true and the DEFENDANTS made it happen or allowed it to happen and violated the law in the process.

What was that PETER STRZOK quote again? “The FBI can and does gather credible allegations from overseas including counterintelligence information. The information can come from an intelligence agency, from a newspaper, or from an alert businessman, a suspicious scientist, your neighbor, or your grandmother.”⁵⁷⁸ Yep. How about another PETER STRZOK quote: “Sources are rarely angels,”⁵⁷⁹ in fact, the best information sometimes comes from devils, wrapped in lies and half-truths.”⁵⁸⁰ Is this all a factual story that contains “a problem which [PLAINTIFF] may have locally with their neighbors?”--CIA handbook.

What was DEFENDANT’S FBI quote again: “The key to that new mandate, Director Mueller knew, was intelligence—the holy grail of national security work, the ability to collect and connect the dots, to know your enemies and the threats they pose inside and out, to arm everyone from leaders in the Oval Office to police officers on the street with information that enables them to stop terrorist and criminal plots before they are carried out.”⁵⁸¹ Yep, that’s it. LOL.

DEFENDANTS, having me under surveillance at this point for the entirety of Summer 2015, seeing these War Crimes and RICO violations unwinding in their face, did nothing. Even if it was the Russians or Chinese who PLAINTIFF has included as DEFENDANTS in the chance it wasn’t AMERICAN INTELLIGENCE that set up the ambush, US counterintelligence was apt enough to spot and recognize “kompromat” when it was happening, and DEFENDANTS STILL DID NOTHING. Even if we are going to believe DEFENDANTS (or the lie they concocted to cover their own malfeasance because they were working on behalf of the CLINTONS), DEFENDANTS are going to allege it was the Russians or Chinese (who PLAINTIFF has included as DEFENDANTS) that were up to no good in JAPLAN when they sent someone to stand outside PLAINTIFF’S hotel after June, 26th, 2015. DEFENDANTS knew when the kompromat was happening. You’re asking if there is a duty that the FBI had in warning me when it was happening. They did; especially when it came to someone that was that much of a liability to the DEFENDANTS. This whole entire scenario was willful and complete blindness to stopping the crimes that DEFENDANTS had set up completely so that DEFENDANTS could prosecute PLAINTIFF at a later time.

It bothers PLAINTIFF fucking deeply that DEFENDANTS did nothing; but PLAINTIFF can at least fathom why they did it to PLAINTIFF. It's not hubris; it is the fact of PLAINTIFF knows what PLAINTIFF said in Spring 2015 that was used against PLAINTIFF and made into a horrific reality and some DEFENDANTS made it happen or allowed it to happen. Yes, I'm extremely fucking wounded and yes, it is fucking ridiculous that PLAINTIFF has to describe why this is so fucking outrageous.

So the conversations WARWICK ALLEN and PLAINTIFF had in Spring 2015 were recorded? Correct. So, PLAINTIFF was a victim of international and domestic terrorism in 2010 and DEFENDANTS clearly knew who PLAINTIFF was since MID-YEAR? Correct. The question then becomes what does the FBI and DEFENDANTS do with PLAINTIFF'S Spring 2015 conversations? According to DOJ OIG: "Deputy Director, McCabe was authorized to disclose the existence of the CF Investigation publicly if such a disclosure fell within the "public interest" exception in applicable FBI and DOJ policies generally prohibiting such a disclosure of an ongoing investigation." It would be a complete bastardization of Justice if DEFENDANTS argue that revealing JAPLAN to HILLARY and BILL CLINTON fell within the public interest exception seeing how they executed of a black disabled man political purposes via RICKEY RAY RECTOR. PETER STRZOK testified under oath about how the FBI gives defensive briefing in which "the general practice in a defensive brief is not only to sensitize and make the person being brief what the threats are, but also to ask and encourage them for any information that they have or might come across that would indicate any such attempt or activity to let us know." PETER STRZOK and ANDREW MCCABE both knew of the RICKEY RAY RECTOR incident with the CLINTONS. So the likely culprits of the people that leaked the private conversations of WARWICK ALLEN and PLAINTIFF was the FBI via PETER STRZOK and ANDREW MCCABE and UNKNOWN DEFENDANTS giving "defensive briefing" to the CLINTONS. Furthermore, 28 C.F.R. §50.2 specifically provides that "where background information or information relating to the circumstances of an arrest or investigation would be highly prejudicial or where the release thereof would serve no law enforcement function, such information should not be made public." So there was a regulation that should have stopped the FBI and DEFENDANTS from revealing the content of JAPLAN to HILLARY CLINTON (let alone the content of the conversations PLAINTIFF and WARWICK ALLEN had about HILLARY CLINTON) would be extremely prejudicial to PLAINTIFF because she is precisely the type of woman that would implement it and revealing JAPLAN to HILLARY CLINTON served no legitimate law enforcement function. If the CIA, FBI, DHS, and NSA do not have these recorded conversations between WARWICK ALLEN and PLAINTIFF, they knowingly destroyed exculpatory evidence on purpose.

THE FBI NEVER CAME TO PLAINTIFF. DOJ OIG provided two examples of when it "may be permissible to selectively release [nonclassified] information to assure the public that an investigation is in progress" with prior approval of specific components at FBI headquarters: (1) to protect the public interest, welfare or safety. (2) to solicit information from the public that might be relevant to an investigation."⁵⁸² Do you think stopping war crimes, torture, and international and domestic acts of terrorism to the victim of JAPLAN was in the public interest of the FBI as well as in the interest of the FBI to stop that from happening or nah? Giving HILLARY CLINTON a defensive briefing about jokes PLAINTIFF said about her and then FBI failing to give PLAINTIFF a defensive briefing when HILLARY CLINTON would blackmail and extort PLAINTIFF (in his own term's worse than actually murdering PLAINTIFF) by making JAPLAN come true in congruence with a previously established pattern of the CLINTONS executing disabled individuals. How many times did PLAINTIFF previously establish how DEFENDANTS treated the CLINTONS differently than PLAINTIFF? 17 ways in which the CLINTONS are treated completely differently from the rest of ordinary, now broke, Americans like PLAINTIFF.

Now, it is 18. 18 different examples of how the FBI/CIA and DEFENDANTS treated the CLINTONS completely different than PLAINTIFF.

DEFENDANTS ANDREW MCCABE and PETER STRZOK were completely in on it on the behest of the CLINTONS and gave DEFENDANTS all the evidence to prosecute PLAINTIFF. PETER STRZOK and ANDREW MCCABE were some of the highest-ranking officers and officials in the FBI. PETER STRZOK and ANDREW MCCABE were the main ring leaders in FBI. ANDREW MCCABE having more operational control over the RICO ENTERPRISE within FBI in which PETER STRZOK was ANDREW MCCABE'S right hand man. See: Text Message Below confirming PETER STRZOK works for ANDREW MCCABE:

2015-08-28 11:17:47, Fri	INBOX	Plus, I'm willing to bet that Andy can identify something for you to do between now and then. Did you two talk about that at all? I mean you working for him in his current capacity?

As PETER STRZOK wrote in his book "to keep the matter as compartmented as possible, McCabe decided to talk to an extremely limited number of his counterparts in the intelligence community. THE AGENCIES WITH WHICH HE SPOKE WERE OUR CLOSEST PARTNERS, and in the world of counterintelligence, because of their size and ACCESS TO INFORMATION, they along with the FBI are the heavyweights in the room."⁵⁸³ See the matter of when this statement was said occurred after July 2015 so it does refer to Angel's Plan. To demonstrate the tightness between ANDREW MCCABE and PETER STRZOK and how PETER STRZOK was beholden to ANDREW MCCABE in which ANDREW MCCABE was one of the leaders of the RICO ENTERPRISE in the FBI: PETER STRZOK was assigned to the FBI's investigation of HILLARY CLINTON’S use of a private email server from August 2015 until July 2016. LISA PAGE was FBI Deputy Director Andrew McCabe’s Special Counsel during the relevant period of the OIG’s review and provided support to the investigation from early February 2016 until July 2016. The investigation was resumed by FBI on or about October 28, 2016, and both PETER STRZOK and LISA PAGE were involved in the investigation until it was concluded on or about November 6, 2016.⁵⁸⁴ Evidence shows that on: July 28-31, 2016: “Neither CD AD Priestap nor EAD Steinbach want PETER STRZOK to lead the investigation because of his personal relationship with LISA PAGE and instances of STRZOK-PAGE bypassing the chain of command (not following proper procedures) to advise FBI Deputy Dir. ANDREW MCCABE; MCCABE overrules decision to exclude PETER STRZOK.”⁵⁸⁵ PETER STRZOK is not excluded because of the relationship PETER STRZOK and ANDREW MCCABE have in prosecuting PLAINTIFF at the behest of the CLINTONS. On, Oct. 11, 2016: PETER STRZOK advises LISA PAGE that, the IG writes, “support from MCCABE might be necessary to move the FISA application forward.” PETER STRZOK texts PAGE: “Currently fighting with Stu [Evans] for this FISA.” It doesn’t matter what DEFENDANTS’ objections are here, but that it was it was referred to: the matter. As stipulated earlier, PETER STRZOK would “take care of Bill” and ANDREW MCCABE used PETER STRZOK to go after me to provide some “distance” between the crimes being committed against PLAINTIFF and DEFENDANTS. Just to reemphasize this point: such operational control by ANDREW MCCABE can be seen by the following in regards to PLAINTIFF issues: “to keep the matter as compartmented as possible, McCabe decided to talk to an extremely limited number of his counterparts in the intelligence community. THE AGENCIES WITH WHICH HE SPOKE WERE OUR CLOSEST PARTNERS, and in the world of counterintelligence, because of their size and ACCESS TO INFORMATION, they along with the FBI are the heavyweights in the room.”⁵⁸⁶

PLAINTIFF is going to repeat himself and give a different perspective to a previous paragraph written (with some parts omitted), but with a different emphasis to show ANDREW MCCABE trying to keep some distance (while maintaining complete control) and having PETER STRZOK go after PLAINTIFF: “First, as previously explained in MID-YEAR: The FBI started their whole entire investigation into PLAINTIFF on the basis of PLAINTIFF’S writing disability issues that stem from PLAINTIFF’S autism in 2008 and chose that specific incident to characterize PLAINTIFF on the basis of his disability. PLAINTIFF is kind of jumping ahead here, but it is vital to know and is introducing the Court to the issues that will come up: PETER STRZOK sent a message to LISA PAGE and JR on 02/05/2016 at 8:02am: “Lisa—you were right, I was wrong (first time for everything), you’re good. Andy, however needs [ME] (as does Bill P). I will take care of Bill—would you or someone on DD staff handle paperwork for Andy? Looking to get a bulk read-in done next week; to the extent Andy wants to join, I will let you know the time. I suspect he(/you) may need other compartments as well, so it might make sense to do his separately en masse (that’s French for “all at once”...I’m not just a leader, I’m an educator).” Educator refers to FBI/DEFENDANTS utilizing Section 508. ‘Bulk read in’ is DEFENDANTS, the FBI, getting Bulk Meta-Data collection from Section 702 or Section 215 to circumvent PLAINTIFF’S Constitutional Rights... DEFENDANTS need to prosecute PLAINTIFF because ANDREW MCCABE needed to prosecute me on behalf of the CLINTONS as per their fundraiser stipulation on 06/26/2015. ...The statement is “would you or someone on DD staff handle paperwork for Andy.” People who work under Deputy Director ANDREW MCCABE already know they are staff members of the Deputy Director and that they handle paperwork for the Deputy Director—there’s no need to repeat that fact. This phrasing also means that ANDREW MCCABE needs to keep some plausible distance from PLAINTIFF to ANDREW MCCABE and have different staff members deal with paperwork that involves PLAINTIFF to whatever ANDREW MCCABE is directing his staff to do against PLAINTIFF’S Constitutional and legal interests in which PETER STRZOK furthers the Enterprise. This is further supported in the text as PETER STRZOK himself notes the distance litmus test: “to the extent that ANDY (ANDREW MCCABE) wants to join” because of what happened in 06/26/2015.

As a refresher from earlier: “According to the handbook, the CIA are more than willing to notify the police against the target and “you can’t have reprisals on the part of the regime’s police or military” unless you make shit up about them or ambush them.” PETER STRZOK admits having worked with Department of Defense and the CIA, FBI, and DOD all worked together against PLAINTIFF. With that in mind, consider this quote from ANDREW MCCABE describing what was going on in the FBI during this time: “During the summer and fall of 2015, in Washington, patience and discipline were countercultural values...In July (2015), the FBI opened a case to see if such a spill had occurred, and, if so, whether it occurred accidentally or on purpose.”⁵⁸⁷ At one time either in 2015 or 2016, “McCabe, for his part, had spoken with his counterparts at the CIA and NSA.”⁵⁸⁸ Is it so far-fetched for me to say that in the exact month ANGIE ORTIZ is in Tokyo with PLAINTIFF in July 2015, someone in the DEFENDANTS provides the FBI evidence that causes the FBI to immediately open a case in July 2015? That’s a big coincidence. PLAINTIFF was about to be railroaded for political purposes because PLAINTIFF was a legal liability to the CLINTONS and DEFENDANTS’ RICO ENTERPRISE. Furthermore, this is an extreme rush to prevent the fair administration of justice by DEFENDANTS.

Any more proof to supplement the argument made in the previous paragraph? Sure: “shortly after we opened Crossfire (in August 2016 or so), CIA director John Brennan approached Comey about disturbing intelligence that was beginning to come in about Russia’s burgeoning interference in the elections...Crossfire would be part of this interagency effort...the FBI would wall off anything relating to our investigations of U.S. citizens from the rest of the intelligence community, as we were legally required to do.”⁵⁸⁹ This was in August 2016 or so. However, what if BRENNAN had approached COMEY earlier and talked about me earlier and what happened in Tokyo? What did you say about the handbook earlier? Are you thinking actions the Director of the CIA would take against a target? “Suppose this handbook talks about “notifying the police” against the target and “if the target doesn’t seem susceptible to voluntary recruitment that they will be confronted they will have reprisals on the part of the regime’s police or military.” That would be it. Done by the handbook.

XX. “We can’t hear you over our laughter.”—FBI, DOJ, CIA, etc.

How was the DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE handling these issues after submitting Sheehan’s brief in January 2015 during the Fall of 2015? Good question. ANDREW MCCABE wrote: “In September 2015, the first time Lynch and Comey discussed how they would publicly acknowledge the case, she told him not to call it an investigation. She told him to refer to it as a “matter.” This became a running joke whenever anyone at the FBI felt like Justice was dragging its feet. If someone on our side of the street felt slowed down by someone on their side of the street, someone would ask, what have we become, the federal bureau of matters?”⁵⁹⁰ In regards to the ‘matter’, ANDREW MCCABE alleges: “we never brief them. [Lynch and Yates]. Maybe they were getting information on the case from the Justice team? I don’t know. As far as we know, they were totally hands-off.”⁵⁹¹ There goes MCCABE again talking about the side of a street, where did I hear side of a street in something that involved law enforcement before? That’s right, Sewanee: This Side of the Street. Fall 2009. ‘Matters,’ where did I hear that one before? Sewanee: The Devil Reincarnate via a message between REBECCA WETHERBEE and PLAINTIFF. On top of describing something as a six-alarm situation, that is 3/3 on ANDREW MCCABE directly reflecting upon factual circumstances in my life. Coincidence?

Then there are these text messages (See: Below). So even after July 2015 in which DEFENDANTS all knew what happened through an illegal investigation, war crimes, etc., they still wanted to quickly prosecute PLAINTIFF because after having war crimes and torture be committed on you by the hands of DEFENDANTS and pressuring PLAINTIFF means PLAINTIFF would most likely crack and fall apart to secure themselves a conviction in which PLAINTIFF would have never had the ability to even know the malice that was done to him.

Some time passes from September 2015, but DEFENDANTS intentionally ignore how PLAINTIFF has had War Crimes, Torture, and RICO predicate acts committed against him either by dirty DEFENDANTS or some foreign intel for blackmail and recruitment purposes, or someone else OR, more importantly, DEFENDANTS were the ones doing it. FBI are still completely out to get PLAINTIFF from February 2016 as the following passage from Andrew McCabe describes such: “From the time I joined the meetings on this investigation [Midyear and the Clinton], in February 2016,⁵⁹² the midyear team was bridling at what they perceived to be a lack of aggression on the case among their partners at Justice. Bridling was in this team’s nature. It was a group of aggressive, determined, people—typical FBI investigators. They knocked heads with Justice on many points of procedure.”⁵⁹³ So DEFENDANTS regularly gave CLINTON and other leaders defensive briefings but never gave PLAINTIFF a defensive briefing or assisted when they knew what was happening to PLAINTIFF. The FBI, DHS, and CIA’s goals were to quickly and aggressively take PLAINTIFF out—by who? HILLARY CLINTON, BILL CLINTON, ANDREW MCCABE, JEH JOHNSON, JOHN O. BRENNAN, and PETER STRZOK. Legal and Constitutional Procedures be damned according to the FBI when there is a special needs man to be framed and be convicted of the same exact crimes that were committed against him and his conscience because who gives a damn about RICO and War-Crimes when you’re the government? Talk about the fair administration of Justice, am I right?

PETER STRZOK said: “McCabe wanted the Counterintelligence Division rather than the FBI’s Cyber Division to run the investigation. And he wanted the investigation opened immediately. He conveyed a sense of urgency: our investigative work was to be measured in hours and days, not weeks and months. Bill conveyed the order: Open the case now.”⁵⁹⁴ First off, which BILL is PETER STRZOK referring to here? BILL CLINTON or a different BILL? Obviously, it isn’t BILL COSBY, although what happened to PLAINTIFF does fit his M.O. Given the factual circumstances of what happened in Spring 2015 and Summer 2015 and to ensure that his favor by DEFENDANTS was executed properly, it very well could have been BILL CLINTON to make sure he got rid of a problem. There would be a rush to prosecute me to get rid of PLAINTIFF and his ability to properly defend himself against these outrageous actions committed by DEFENDANTS. Ironically, PLAINTIFF was of help to the FBI at the time as PLAINTIFF was required to document how he spent his hours in days (to the best of PLAINTIFF’S drugged up mind or lacking mental capacity mind at the time) for Santa Clara so the FBI does have that timesheet to them. Also, there would be a rush to prosecute PLAINTIFF for the sake of HILLARY CLINTON and BILL CLINTON after conspiring against me in Japan in March 2015 along with Chief Justice John Roberts. Furthermore, a damning piece of evidence showing the hostility towards PLAINTIFF by PETER STRZOK and LISA PAIGE. LP to PS and JR. 02/05/2016: 8:27am. “Aww~ it's so cute that you think this is the first time you've been wrong. No reason to disrupt the fantasy now; the sad truth of reality will come crushing down soon. I'll take care of the paperwork for Andy, if you would be so kind as to send it to me? Jim, off thw top of your head, are the other compartments that Andy or I should seek now, while the getting's good.” Andy is ANDREW MCCABE. ANDREW MCCABE probably completely relied on PETER STRZOK and knew that PETER STRZOK would do whatever ANDREW MCCABE wanted. More shockingly and tellingly, PETER STRZOK texts FBI Special Counsel

⁵⁹⁴ Strzok, Peter. Compromised. Counterintelligence and the Threat of Donald J. Trump.

Lisa Page in 2016 and says: “Now the pressure really starts to finish MYE.” Page responds: “It sure does.”⁵⁹⁵ MYE is PLAINTIFF.

Adding on the previous paragraph’s themes, on Nov. 9, 2016, to demonstrate how long DEFENDANTS have been after PLAINTIFF and their complete hatred of PLAINTIFF, “FBI attorney instant messaged another FBI employee: “I am so stressed about what I could have done differently...I just can’t imagine the systematic disassembly of the progress we made over the last 8 years.”⁵⁹⁶ So DEFENDANTS know of the systematic corruption committed against PLAINTIFF over at least 8 years of 50+ RICO Predicate Acts and are that dead-set on prosecuting PLAINTIFF. This is further seen with the following: On Dec. 19, 2016, PETER STRZOK texts LISA PAGE: “I hope this upcoming presidency doesn’t fill my years with regret, wonderwishing [sic] what we might have done differently.” DEFENDANTS should have regretted having been so corrupt for one thing! So FBI opens the “Crossfire Hurricane” investigation (CFH), which for all intents and purposes, is MIDYEAR 2.0, and PETER STRZOK texts Page “And damn this feels momentous. Because this matters. The other one did, too, but that was to ensure we didn’t F something up. This matters because this MATTERS. So super glad to be on this voyage with you.” They knew they fucked something up in Midyear (i.e. Miki’s Tea Party, This Side of the Street, Tar, Meth, Peachy Miami, False Identification, etc.). Yet here is another investigation after they fucked it up before. THEY SHOULD HAVE JUST LEFT PLAINTIFF ALONE. On, Jan. 19, 2018, FBI notifies Congress that it did not preserve five months of Strzok/Page text messages. Poof. Evidence of PETER STRZOK and PLAINTIFF disappeared. To demonstrate the tightness between ANDREW MCCABE and PETER STRZOK and how PETER STRZOK was beholden to ANDREW MCCABE, evidence shows that on: July 28-31, 2016: “Neither CD AD Priestap nor EAD Steinbach want Strzok to lead the investigation because of his personal relationship with L. Page and instances of Strzok-Page bypassing the chain of command to advise FBI Deputy Dir. Andrew McCabe; McCabe overrules decision to exclude Strzok.”⁵⁹⁷ STRZOK is not excluded because of the relationship STRZOK and MCCABE have in prosecuting PLAINTIFF. On, Oct. 11, 2016: STRZOK advises L. PAGE that, the IG writes, “support from MCCABE might be necessary to move the FISA application forward.” PLAINTIFF alleges that the FISA court warrant and order here that Andrew McCabe submitted are necessarily and legally fraudulent and done in furtherance of RICO Enterprise 1.

PETER STRZOK texts PAGE: “Currently fighting with Stu [Evans] for this FISA. Furthermore, there is clear demonstrated hatred and animus on the basis of PLAINTIFF’S Disability that makes itself known between PETER STRZOK and LISA PAGE on May 19, 2017 when PETER STRZOK texts Page: “For me, and this case, I personally have a sense of unfinished business. I unleashed it with MYE. Now I need to fix it and finish it.”⁵⁹⁸ PLAINTIFF is not a person to PETER STRZOK; he is a thing to PETER STRZOK that must be finished regardless of PLAINTIFF’S disabilities or issues. LISA PAGE stated on 10/30/2016: “Yeah. I saw it. Makes me feel WAY less bad about throwing him under the bus in the forthcoming CF article Strzok – Yep the whole tone is anti Bu. Just a tiny bit from is. And serves him right. He's gonna be pissed...” Bu is DEFENDANT THAO BUI.

Do you believe the FBI and DOJ were doing anything else to get you and prosecute you from Fall 2015 through December 2016: OBVIOUSLY.

The COURT may be thinking, PLAINTIFF has just rambled on and has not provided the tying piece of proof need to connect everything that PLAINTIFF just alleged. This is true, and the Court may be thinking, where are the Motivations and irrefutable proof of what happened seeing how PLAINTIFF clearly established OPPORTUNITY above.

Here you go:

But WHY ANDREW MCCABE and HILLARY CLINTON? PLAINTIFF provided some explanation above; but PLAINTIFF will provide more proof to back up his claims. The court may be thinking that all PLAINTIFF has provided is circumstantial evidence on what was done to PLAINTIFF and actions by FBI and DOJ during a certain period of time. What is ANDREW MCCABE’S motivation and who directed all of this to be done to PLAINTIFF? Where is the proof of this. May PLAINTIFF present the following as a refresher from the FBI themselves and Senator GRASSLEY:

Between September 30 and October 29, 2015, Governor McAuliffe’s PAC Common Good VA donated $450,000 to your wife’s state senate campaign,¹⁶ while the Democratic Party of Virginia made additional in-kind contributions totaling $207,788.¹⁷ Much of that money was raised by McAuliffe following a June 26, 2015, Fairfax, Virginia fundraiser headlined by former ¹⁸ Did Andrew McCabe have any oversight of the investigation into Secretary Clinton’s email server while his wife was running for political office? ¹⁹

No. The FBI investigation into Secretary Clinton’s email server began in July 2015 after a referral was received by the Intelligence Community Inspector General. At that time, Andrew McCabe served as the Assistant Director in Charge of the Washington Field Office and had no oversight of the investigation. Jill McCabe lost the election on Nov. 3, 2015. It was not until he assumed the position of Deputy Director in February 2016 that he had oversight of the investigation, well after her political campaign had concluded.

Money talks and bullshit and everything thing we hold sacred walks in politics in America today. Also covering up acts of international and domestic terrorism and war crimes and torture because of DEFENDANTS addiction to power, money, and control. First off, why did JILL MCCABE receive the most amount of money AFTER July 2015 and not prior to July 2015? Most of the money JILL MCCABE'S campaign received was in or after OCTOBER 2015, which was only two months before election, which seems short sighted anyway unless you were hiding something and to give plausible deniability. ANDREW MCCABE had a job to do after June 26th, 2015 in which ANDREW MCCABE'S wife's campaign would be paid after that job and task was completed after JULY 2015. The condition on receiving the money from the CLINTONS/MCAULIFFE to ANDREW MCCABE is attempting to prosecute PLAINTIFF and making him no longer a legal liability to HILLARY and BILL CLINTON because of ANGIE ORTIZ and PLAINTIFF. 18 U.S.C. § 1956 (Financing Terrorism).

That money can mean anything, the Court is thinking, and is not directly tied to PLAINTIFF. Where is the actual connection proving such? Great question your honor!

JACKSON-JEFFERSON 06/26/2015.

As a refresher from earlier from much earlier in this complaint: "PLAINTIFF understands this appears to be "political" and some DEFENDANTS may allege PLAINTIFF is going after Democrats. This is so far from the truth. What PLAINTIFF is doing is using a case against the Democrats in which "Kay v. Bruno, 605 F. Supp 767 (D. N.H. 1985), held "that the New Hampshire Democratic Party was an unincorporated association. The court found that the common understanding of most citizens of New Hampshire was that there was in existence a New Hampshire Democratic Party, commonly referred to and contributed to as such, which met regularly in convention. Under these definitions and holdings, it appears that a group such as an organized crime "family" would be recognized by a court as an unincorporated association."⁵⁹⁹ Jackson-Jefferson 2015 was a fundraising dinner that took place on 06/26/2015—this necessarily effects interstate and intrastate commerce and had an impact in Japan and was an act that initiated domestic and international terrorism. PLAINTIFF couldn't find evidence of who was attending, but PLAINTIFF is willing to bet his life that ANDREW MCCABE and JILL MCCABE were attending the dinner that was a fundraiser for democrat politicians and candidates in the state of Virginia, along with HILLARY CLINTON and TERRY MCAULIFFE, because JILL MCCABE was a Democrat running for office as State Senator in Virginia at the time (and her husband, ANDREW MCCABE, would be attending as well) and attendance would be one of the necessary events for politicians to attend to for money and raising funds for Jill MCCABE'S run as a Virginia State Senator.

Let us listen in on and read what HILLARY CLINTON conveyed explicitly and implicitly on June 26th, 2015⁶⁰⁰ and PLAINTIFF'S corresponding analysis and factual connections to allegations made:

⁶⁰⁰ <https://awpc.cattcenter.iastate.edu/2017/03/09/remarks-at-virginias-2015-jefferson-jackson-dinner-june-26-2015/>

“I love your governor...Now, we've always known Terry [TERRY MCAULIFE] could talk the talk, but as governor he's proving every day he can also walk the walk.⁶⁰¹ I'm delighted to be here with so many friends...Today was one of those days when we're reminded that like any family, our American family is strongest when we cherish what unites us and fight back against those who would divide us⁶⁰²...I'm gonna talk a little politics here, not just because we're at a political event and not just because I'm running for president,⁶⁰³ but because politics is about the choices we make—the choices we make.⁶⁰⁴ Not only about our leaders,⁶⁰⁵ but about how we govern ourselves. There's so much for us to do...We have a long agenda^{606 607} in front of us and we need to show respect for one another...We need to call out derogatory language, insults, personal attacks wherever they occur.⁶⁰⁸ There is enough for us to debate without going there.⁶⁰⁹...Now, these are not the only problems.⁶¹⁰ We need to condemn divisive rhetoric, but

⁶⁰¹ Leadership by example. Painting a clear message to a certain recipient in the crowd (ANDREW MCCABE) that HILLARY CLINTON loves the Governor MCAULIFFE and has a history with Governor MCAULIFFE, who would then give funds to JILL MCCABE if ANDREW MCCABE walks the walk in prosecuting PLAINTIFF. For what must the listener prove in order to walk the walk on behalf of HILLARY CLINTON? That's the question.

⁶⁰³ Motivation for HILLARY CLINTON

⁶⁰⁴ HILLARY CLINTON emphasizes through repetition that someone in the crowd must make a choice. The choice to make is whether or not DEFENDANTS will tarnish themselves to prosecute and blackmail and commit war crimes against PLAINTIFF.

⁶⁰⁵ HILLARY CLINTON will be a future leader if she is elected President of the US in 2016. Andrew McCabe is a leader in the FBI at the time. After July 2015, Andrew McCabe gets TWO PROMOTIONS IN HIGHER RANKING LEADERSHIP POSITIONS IN THE FBI. So at this time in the speech, it is clear that certain leaders must make a certain choice and fight back against those that “would divide us.” (i.e. PLAINTIFF because he would divide them because they belong in jail)

⁶⁰⁶ The explicit inclusion of political AGENDAS necessarily makes JAPLAN domestic and international terrorism because it was a thing that affected the course of government conduct. Furthermore, agendas are not physically long; but what is long is the long period of time needed to implement her political agendas. PLAINTIFF argues in HILLARY CLINTON'S mind, a long agenda would at least cover the next 5 years if not 1 year.

⁶⁰⁷ Agendas must be met and there are some obstacles that obviously need to be removed to implement agendas if she is to be President (i.e. PLAINTIFF).

⁶⁰⁸ Not only is this anti-free speech, but it goes to show a call to action if she perceived PLAINTIFF as a political threat based on PLAINTIFF'S speech in Baton Rouge, LA. A personal attack on HILLARY CLINTON from her perspective would be PLAINTIFF telling the truth of what HILLARY CLINTON did in LONDON in 2010 and PLAINTIFF'S intent on using wikileaks emails to talk about her corruption. HILLARY CLINTON did not understand the concept that PLAINTIFF damn well could have talked shit about her in his home if he pleased. But she said it was a personal attack that had to be addressed in which she has complete authority to enter and barge into the private homes of anyone. HILLARY CLINTON heard everything PLAINTIFF said in Spring 2015 and what PLAINTIFF told Polly Finley through at least DEFENDANTS use of sharing information and defensive briefs and other unknown methods. Irony she talks about calling out derogatory language; but committing war crimes against cripples? Nah that's fine in BILL and HILLARY CLINTON'S playbook.

⁶⁰⁹ Would one have a debate in political musings with a roommate and what PLAINTIFF told Polly Finley? Would there be a debate to my alleged (and false) hostility PLAINTIFF had for HILLARY CLINTON at that time? PLAINTIFF'S don't have to go there means that DEFENDANTS don't have to prosecute PLAINTIFF in AMERICA as BILL CLINTON had arranged for it to be done in JAPAN when BILL CLINTON visited JAPAN on March 17th, 2015 in addition to Chief Justice JOHN ROBERTS conspiring with the Supreme Court of JAPAN while he was there.

⁶¹⁰ So what other problems does she have? Maybe Miki's Tea Party?

we also need to make sure that people are looking at the real problems of our country⁶¹¹...The question is: when does all your hard work pay off? When does YOUR FAMILY get ahead? Now! Now!⁶¹² You brought our country back and it is your time.⁶¹³ [applause]

“And you know what? *America succeeds when you succeed....Look across this commonwealth. You see so much that's working, so much to build on.*⁶¹⁴ After the worst economic crisis since the Great Depression, Virginians across this Commonwealth are making a new beginning for themselves...And I know what you did. You worked extra shifts. You took second jobs. You postponed those home repairs.”⁶¹⁵

“You figured out how to make it work...I'm running for president to make our economy and our country work for you and for every American. I will go to bat for the successful,..., for the small business owners who took risks, for the gay couple who love each other, for the black child who still lives in the shadow of discrimination and the Hispanic child who still lives in the shadow of deportation.⁶¹⁶ [applause] (must read: Footnote 559). Just as Terry [MCAULIFFE] said, I'm on the side for everyone who's ever been knocked down but refused to be ⁶¹¹ The FBI could be looking through surveillance at some of “real problems” that Hillary Clinton believes me to be.

⁶¹² When is the time for MCCABE’S family to get ahead? Now now now! Clear timing that whatever actions must be done, they must be done now. But how and what must be done?! Also, sometimes Hillary Clinton can be pretty stupid—she initially said one question and then in fact posed two questions so the right thing she should have said is: the questions are:..... Dumbass.

⁶¹³ When is the time for ANDREW MCCABE’S family to get ahead when they would receive funds from TERRY McAULIFFE? Now now now! But how and what must be done?!

⁶¹⁵ This is one of PLAINTIFF’S factual nexus connecting PLAINTIFF to 773 John Henry to Andrew McCabe to HILLARY CLINTON (who was leading and telling MCCABE what to do). HILLARY CLINTON and ANDREW MCCABE were trying to get PLAINTIFF for mail fraud (postpone. Mail=post) because of the plumbing issues at 773 John Henry, Baton Rouge, LA. trying to get me for home/insurance fraud when PLAINTIFF did not commit it when PLAINTIFF TEXTED his landlord to file a claim with the insurance company thereby ignoring exculpatory evidence where DEFENDANTS falsely believed PLAINTIFF committed insurance fraud when PLAINTIFF would never kill his cat. See: The Roof is On Fire when ANDREW MCCABE talks about Spring 2015 and says “The laptop was a find, but finding the laptop was not self-evidently a six-alarm situation.”

⁶¹⁶ FACTUAL NEXUS #2. That’s JAPLAN and giving the go-ahead. At this point in the speech if you watch the video, HILLARY CLINTON death stares angrily (see the picture above) to someone that is in the rightside of her podium as to make a point. This is the only time in the entirety of the speech that she spends such a long-extended period of time looking at one direction at one specific spot in the audience (at least 5 seconds) at one specific person.

knocked out⁶¹⁷...I will always stand my ground so you and our country can gain ground.⁶¹⁸
 [applause] If you'll give me the chance, I will wage and win four fights for you and we'll do it together to build that economy for tomorrow not yesterday; to strengthen America's families, because when OUR FAMILIES⁶¹⁹ are strong America is strong; to harness all our power, our smarts and our values to maintain American leadership in the world.⁶²⁰⁶²¹ and to reform our government and revitalize our democracy so it works for everyday Americans.⁶²² Now, to win these fights, our next president [i.e. HRC] will have to work with Congress and every other willing partner in our country. I will do just that.⁶²³ I did it before⁶²⁴...

If she wanted to look at the whole audience, she would have looked to the front, but she was staring off to the side at someone when she said this. That's the moment of PLAINTIFF'S execution.

⁶¹⁷ So say if PLAINTIFF refuses to be knocked out or killed, do they just drug PLAINTIFF then with something like a roofie or scopolamine and commit JAPLAN against PLAINTIFF, which was said in the context of someone raising funds for ANDREW MCCABE'S wife?

⁶¹⁸ That's defiance and a hell-bent attitude on having committed acts of domestic and international terrorism before on 03/11/2011. Also, more importantly, an inference of doing something on the behest of her that would allow that person (or their family) to benefit themselves in which she would completely support that individual when she is President and have no limits to what she would pull off: See: Miki's Tea Party & RICKEY RAY RECTOR.

⁶¹⁹ The MCCABES and CLINTONS

⁶²⁰ What smarts did she acquire through the power of surveillance that she could harness somewhere in the world (that includes Japan) to ensure her American leadership as President? Did she do something prior to June 26th, 2015 and afterwards that would prevent her from maintaining her leadership in the world? She was given Miki's Nightmare by ANDREW MCCABE or PETER STRZOK or other DEFENDANT.

⁶²¹ Explicit reference and conjunction together of MCCABE'S FAMILY being strong and harnessing their surveillance power over PLAINTIFF and smarts acquired over DEFENDANT how to destroy PLAINTIFF someone where in the world via their SURVEILLANCE power to maintain HILLARY CLINTON'S Leadership in the world after her husband BILL CLINTON, who is a leader, met with SHINZO ABE, a leader the US approves of, and both are considered part of AMERICAN leadership in the world.

⁶²² Is PLAINTIFF not an everyday American? Seems like a shitty factual distinction.

⁶²³ She really considered herself to be the next President of America so who is the other partner (partner implies husband and wife team) HILLARY CLINTON is willing to work with because she will do just that!?! Points to ANDREW MCCABE

⁶²⁴ When and how did HILLARY CLINTON work with ANDREW MCCABE before? Ahhh, that's right! Working with fellow DEFENDANTS like ROBERT MUELLER III, JAMES COMEY, ANDREW MCCABE, PETER STRZOK, JOHN O. BRENNAN, British Intel, Indian Intel, India, United Kingdom, Japan, Australia, Aussies, that covered up Miki's Tea Party

If you look over here, this is where we fuck over Miki-San. *BILL CLINTON GLEE*⁶²⁵

You know how all our presidents come into office looking so vigorous and then we watch their hair grow⁶²⁶ grayer and grayer? Well, you won't see my hair turn white in the White House.⁶²⁷ [laughing] [applause]. I may not be youngest candidate in this race, but with your help I will be youngest woman president in the history of the United States! [applause]...So, Virginia... [applause] Virginia, let's work together to make sure this beloved

Commonwealth is blue, that we have DEMOCRATS in the STATE LEGISLATURE to work with that

⁶²⁶ Factual Nexus #3: this is a specific reference to JAPLAN EMAIL.

⁶²⁷ This is, at a minimum, FACTUAL NEXUS #4 to jokes and corruption PLAINTIFF made about HILLARY CLINTON in the privacy of his home in Spring 2015 and her retaliation against PLAINTIFF in June and July 2015 and thereafter on the basis of PLAINTIFF'S politically protected speech in addition to furthering the RICO Enterprise. True, stress in the political office can cause hair to become grey or turn white. BUT when hair GROWS, it becomes longer in length in different stages.. HILLARY CLINTON clearly knows and fundamentally understands the difference between simply hair growing and HER OWN hair turning white. If you eliminated a source of stress, your hair would not gray nor turn white because the source of stress is no longer a problem. Message clear: her hair would not turn gray/white as president because someone needs to rid of the source of stress in her life. This is precisely the stupid entitlement and power Hillary Clinton has and lives by at this point in 2015 in which she firmly believes that 1) (stupidly believes) there won't be any stresses while she is President, 2) that the condition of JILL MCCABE receiving money from TERRY MCAULIFFE'/CLINTONS will solely be approved by herself once whatever task she wants is completed, and 3) to demonstrate HILLARY CLINTON'S malice, the lengths she will go to get rid any possible potential stressors from her Presidency that she committed prior to becoming President.

GOVERNOR, and that we do have a Democratic president in the White House in 2017!⁶²⁸ [applause].”

I want you to stop reading for at least 30 minutes and silently take in what you just read.

⁶²⁸ I do not need to explain this one because it should be that blatantly obvious by now. State legislature in the state of Virginia includes Virginia state senate and JILL MCCABE. Also HILLARY CLINTON being in the WHITE HOUSE.

That is a political assassination. PLAINTIFF would agree to spending a day in a jail cell if it is not on his record and if there is no court case. There can be no precedent set where a person doesn't spend time for JAPLAN. PLAINTIFF is not admitting to his guilt; but there must be consequences for those that implemented it. Even though PLAINTIFF is a victim of JAPLAN; he would agree to spend a day in jail because of what happened and how it was implemented against PLAINTIFF.

How does ANDREW MCCABE describe himself? Remember, this is under oath in a court submission —though it wouldn't be the first time he lied under oath, just saying—when he was suing his former employer, CHRIS WRAY, BILL BARR, DOJ, Etc?⁶²⁹ “Plaintiff (ANDREW MCCABE) served the FBI with fidelity, bravery, and integrity for more than 21 years, defending the United States against enemies both foreign and domestic... Defendants responded to Plaintiff's two decades of unblemished and non-partisan public service with a politically motivated and retaliatory demotion in January 2018 and public firing in March 2018— on the very night of Plaintiff's long-planned retirement from the FBI. Defendants' actions have harmed Plaintiff's reputation, professional standing, and dramatically reduced his retirement benefits.” ANDREW MCCABE should not have a single dollar for his work done in the FBI.

HILLARY CLINTON'S Jackson-Jefferson Speech to anyone in the “know” within FBI and CIA and WHITE HOUSE could figure out what the Speech was about. It took 8 years after the fact for PLAINTIFF to prove beyond a reasonable doubt what that speech at Jackson-Jefferson was all about in June 26th, 2015.

Do you think that it is not even more possible to get even more shocking? WRONG!

Based on Luna Torres v. Lynch, 578 U.S. 452 (2016), PLAINTIFF alleges the specific allegations: on 06/26/2015, HILLARY CLINTON demanded INDIAN INTEL, NARENDRA MODI, and/or INDIA to traffic one they would call Angie Ortiz to conform to the JAPLAN email. DONALD B. VERRILLI, JR.⁶³⁰ had talked to SCOTUS about PLAINTIFF'S political blackmail, torture, war crimes, RICO predicate acts, and case in their secret sessions sometime between July 2015 and May 2016 in which they ruled on Luna Torres v. Lynch, 578 U.S. 452 (2016). PLAINTIFF said something about Indians when he was in JAPAN and SCOTUS freaked out about that. At HILLARY CLINTON and BILL CLINTON'S direction, American INTEL aided and abetted INDIA, INDIAN INTEL, and/or NARENDRA MODI to send someone, probably via JET AIRWAYS for politically retaliatory purposes because HILLARY CLINTON had demanded it. Congress knew of the plot as well in which they and SCOTUS wanted someone to stand outside this side of the street closest to Sakura House that fateful day PLAINTIFF arrived home from his internship one day as a retaliation against PLAINTIFF for This Side of the Street and Miki's Tea Party. SCOTUS, HILLARY CLINTON, BILL CLINTON, SHINZO ABE, AMBASSADOR KENNEDY, and CONGRESS knew PLAINTIFF'S disabilities would cause PLAINTIFF to act in certain ways. American INTEL, INDIAN INTEL, JAPANESE INTEL, and/or White House had directed someone to never reveal how he/she got there because a different court could convict PLAINTIFF for trafficking EVEN WHEN PLAINTIFF HAD NO CLUE in which they would use fabricated evidence from two Chapters in Narcoterrorism. SCOTUS and Congress knew that American INTEL had burned down PLAINTIFF'S home and murdered PLAINTIFF'S beloved cat in MAY 2010 because they wanted to convict PLAINTIFF in MAY 2016 and prior to that. DOJ and White House knew they obtained a warrant marred in legal and unconstitutional in fraud in which they knowingly falsely alleged PLAINTIFF burned down PLAINTIFF'S home in May 2010 and President Obama released two presidential orders absolving themselves of any liability. German INTEL knew of the plot undertaken against PLAINTIFF and they did nothing in which they would allege that PLAINTIFF received something and/or stolen property on different occasions in which PLAINTIFF would not have willingly done so. CONGRESS, SCOTUS, CIA (JOHN BRENNAN and LEON PANETTA), and HILLARY CLINTON wanted to falsely prosecute PLAINTIFF for "selling" a product. CIA, DHS, DoD, and FBI via ROBERT MUELLER, LEON PANETTA, MICHAEL HAYDEN, JEH JOHNSON, JANET NAPOLITANO, PETER STRZOK, ANDREW MCCABE, JAMES COMEY, etc. at one time or another alleged that PLAINTIFF had received explosives in which PLAINTIFF never in his life received explosives. Just because of PLAINTIFF'S sketchy family history and extended family history were CONGRESS, CIA, FBI, SCOTUS able to falsely allege that PLAINTIFF received stolen property in which PLAINTIFF routinely never directly received nor was a part of such a scheme. Then SCOTUS somehow alleges that PLAINTIFF operated an unlawful casino and PLAINTIFF has no fucking idea where that came from. THEN SCOTUS in an utter and complete betrayal to fidelity, trust, and truth falsely alleged and believed that PLAINTIFF was an evil when it was in fact people like LEON PANETTA, JOHN O. BRENNAN, ROBERT MUELLER, CIA, NSA, DHS, FBI, that continuously falsely alleged PLAINTIFF was evil through the years in which they utilized fabricated narratives, utilized known perjured testimony, utilized known fabricated evidence, and so many other constitutionally heinous acts when they committed war crimes and torture against PLAINTIFF. SCOTUS acknowledged that CONGRESS wanted the evil to befall upon PLAINTIFF in which PLAINTIFF would never receive equal treatment under the law and they aided and abetted people like LEON PANETTA, ROBERT MUELLER, JOHN BRENNAN, in ensuring that PLAINTIFF would be denied his 5th and 14th Amendment rights. SCOTUS explicitly approved of the material deceptions and lies that would be perpetuated against PLAINTIFF in JAPLAN. PLAINTIFF alleges that pre-crime analysis was utilized against PLAINTIFF by LOUIS FREEH. AMBASSADOR KENNEDY, JOHN BRENNAN, ROBERT MUELLER, and JEH JOHNSON had conspired together in violation of 18 U.S.C. 1962(d), 18 U.S.C. 241, and 18 U.S.C. 1985 (2) in which SCOTUS affirmed that JOHN BRENNAN, ROBERT MUELLER, JEH JOHNSON, and AMBASSADOR KENNEDY wanted ANGIE ORTIZ to be dropped off at Sakura House. PLAINTIFF alleges that ERIC HOLDER conspired with unknown Santa Clara officials before departing the DOJ in which he heard and knew of JAPLAN in violation of 18 U.S.C. 241 and 18 U.S.C. 1962(d). PLAINTIFF alleges that Aussies, American INTEL, Indian INTEL, Canadian INTEL, German INTEL and Japanese INTEL were all monitoring and watching PLAINTIFF. SCOTUS most importantly obstructed justice when they said that “But jurisdictional elements are not the only elements a defendant need not know” which refers to “trade is in the offing.” Luna Torres v. Lynch, 578 U.S. 452 (2016)

There is a nexus in a speech sometime HILLARY CLINTON gave after 09/24/2010 during her time as the Secretary of State that connects to JAPLAN more that makes it extremely outrageous. HILLARY CLINTON is exactly that type of woman that will profess in public the horrors about something, but when it comes to a liability, she will unleash that hell against someone with that exact something in which she does and did not have a single ounce of regret nor remorse nor sympathy nor qualm nor have any issue in ordering the hit. When HILLARY CLINTON, BILL CLINTON, ROBERT MUELLER, JOHN O. BRENNAN, ERIC HOLDER, ANDREW MCCABE, PETER STRZOK, JEH JOHNSON, KAMALA HARRIS, unknown BRITISH INTEL officers, unknown JAPANESE INTEL officers, unknown GERMAN INTEL officers, unknown INDIAN INTEL, SINGH or MODI, unknown DOJ and FBI officials in the Northern District of California and Central District of California, DoD (Navy sailor Bri and others), ordered the hit (i.e JAPLAN), aided and abetted JAPLAN, implemented JAPLAN, and facilitated the hit in which they would get rid of a political liability and CGI, India, Germany, Japan, Britain would get more funds in the process, aforementioned DEFENDANTS for at least Constitutional Rights, RICO, War Crimes, and Torture purposes are bound together (severally & jointly) by PINKERTON liability and/or previous case law from the Nuremberg trials finding REICHSBANK, WALTHER FUNK, and HJALMAR SCHACHT, at a minimum, guilty as co-conspirators & having aided and abetted the Nazi’s war crimes and/or as RICO co-conspirators & members of the Enterprise or association (primarily through the principles outlined in 18 U.S.C.§2) and/or are co-conspirators via 18 U.S.C. §241 and 42 U.S.C. §1985(3) and/or are vicariously liable for DEFENDANTS actions and/or are principals & accessories after the fact for any instance that took place when PLAINTIFF resided in Louisiana under Louisiana Revised Statutes RS 14 §24 & RS 14 §25 and/or any other conspiracy case mentioned in this complaint; and therefore, aforementioned DEFEDANTS violated the following: May 2016. Miller*, 116 F.3d 641, 674-75 (2d Cir. 1997) (act involving murder need not be actual murder as long as the act directly concerned murder, and facilitation of murder was a proper RICO predicate because accessorial offenses described in the New York State statutory provisions involved murder within the meaning of RICO where defendant provided information he knew would enable inquirer to commit murder or other RICO violations. Furthermore, United States v. Perrin, 580 F.2d 730 (5th Cir. 1978) highlighted the following: "Perrin was a consulting geologist who had to interpret and analyze data stolen from one of the co-defendants. The court said: "We simply need not determine if the gravity maps were an essential part of the scheme. Since it is undisputed by the appellants that the gravity maps would have been used to exploit the stolen data, the requirements for jurisdiction under the Travel Act are met. There is no requirement that the use of interstate facilities be essential to the scheme: it is enough that the interstate travel or the use of interstate facilities makes easier or facilitates the unlawful activity.” Whenever any employee of APPLE, AT&T, VERIZON, XFINITY, etc. shared any information about PLAINTIFF when American INTEL DEFENDANTS requested it in furtherance of their Enterprise, Tech DEFENDANTS then became co-conspirators under 18 U.S.C. 1962(d), 18 U.S.C. 241, 42 U.S.C. 1985 (2), 42 U.S.C. 1985 (3) aided and abetted RICO Enterprise 1 and are therefore substantively liable for the co-conspirators actions under Pinkerton, etc.

What does JOHN O. How about ANDREW MCCABE: "I would also respect absolutely all legal and ethical limits that her service might place on my own."⁶³² He swore to uphold and defend the Constitution and thereby protect all Americans and their Constitutional Rights.

Whatever unknown officer in an intelligence agency shared the JAPLAN email, they violated... DEFENDANTS for RICO and War Crimes and Torture purposes are bound together (severally & jointly) by PINKERTON liability and/or previous case law from the Nuremberg trials finding REICHSBANK, WALTHER FUNK, and HJALMAR SCHACHT, at a minimum, guilty as co-conspirators & having aided and abetted the Nazi's war crimes and/or as RICO co-conspirators & members of the Enterprise or association (primarily through the principles outlined in 18 U.S.C. §2) and/or are co-conspirators via 18 U.S.C. §241 and 42 U.S.C. §1985(3) and/or are vicariously liable for DEFENDANTS actions and/or are principals & accessories after the fact for any instance that took place when PLAINTIFF resided in Louisiana under Louisiana Revised Statutes RS 14 §24 & RS 14 §25 and/or any other conspiracy case listed herein.

Any more proof in addition to the previous two paragraphs about why information sharing is so important to the success of a RICO Enterprise? Sure. “McCabe, for his part, had spoken with his counterparts at the CIA and NSA.”⁶³³ PETER STRZOK when talking about how ANDREW MCCABE was keeping control of the ENTERPRISE to violate PLAINTIFF'S legal interests through the use of foreign DEFENDANTS and Tech DEFENDANTS, MCCABE had: “to keep the matter as compartmented as possible, McCabe decided to talk to an extremely limited number of his counterparts in the intelligence community. THE AGENCIES WITH WHICH HE SPOKE WERE OUR CLOSEST PARTNERS, and in the world of counterintelligence, because of their size and ACCESS TO INFORMATION, they along with the FBI are the heavyweights in the room.”⁶³⁴ Having access to all the information DEFENDANTS needed to continue the ENTERPRISE against PLAINTIFF from at least August 4th, 2016, PETER STRZOK said: “I was surprised by the amount of information the analysts had already found. Usually, because initial briefings take place at the very beginning of an investigation, they are short on facts and long on conjecture about all of the various avenues we might pursue for information. In this case, there were already a lot of facts and several individuals—not just one—had already cropped up in other cases, in other intelligence collection, in other surveillance activity.”⁶³⁵ Like PLAINTIFF stipulated earlier, PETER STRZOK is referring to PLAINTIFF on the basis of my disability through the excessive repetition of ‘other.’ Ahhhh so what PLAINTIFF is telling the Court is that DEFENDANTS like NSA, CIA, STATE, DOD, FBI, DHS, etc. had collected all the information from at least 2015 through DEFENDANTS such as META, APPLE, GOOGLE, AWS, AT&T, VERIZON, SANTA

CLARA, UNIVERSITY OF THE SOUTH, LSU PAUL M. HEBERT LAW CENTER, etc. onwards already and then gave it to the DEFENDANTS. Right-O! There is foreign intel PETER STRZOK talked about, probably the BRITISH, AUSTRALIAN, and JAPANESE INTEL, when he said the following about receiving foreign intel: “Our foreign ally had been so deliberate and careful in giving us the information, that according to this line of thinking, we should be equally deliberate and careful in protecting the source, given that exposure could threaten the relationship with the U.S., not to mention the Trump campaign, which, as already noted, was also of paramount concern.”⁶³⁶ Furthermore, to show the intermingling of info about PLAINTIFF within various agencies: “Sharing the Clinton email with the various stakeholders in the U.S. Government was a monumental effort in and of itself, because in many cases multiple agencies needed to weigh in on a single email. A hypothetical example: a U.S. ambassador overseas sends a foreign minister’s reaction to a U.S. military action that includes some U.S. intelligence assessment of the impact on the foreign country. That email would be flagged for review by the Department of State and Defense as well as the CIA. We did that for thousands upon thousands of email messages, most of which did not end up being classified.”⁶³⁷ Showing the existence that information was released in the course of an on-going investigation and confidential information was released: “That spill of information from the top secret program was the outlier; the overwhelming majority of the mishandled information in Midyear Exam was confidential, the lowest level of the classification guidelines.”⁶³⁸

Then what happens with all of that information that was unconstitutionally and illegally obtained through the RICO ENTERPRISE? Why don’t we have PETER STRZOK explain: “As the intelligence piled up, it became clear that we would soon have sufficient probable cause to seek a FISA warrant—a warrant for wiretapping foreign intelligence targets, which is reviewed and granted by a special FISA court following rigorous legal standards established in the 1970s—for at least one of our four unsub candidates. Indeed, we might already have had enough evidence... (an aside about FISA is merited here. FISA warrants give investigators permission to unsheathe a tremendously powerful surveillance tool which can also be enormously invasive.”⁶³⁹ DEFENDANTS exploit the constitutional loopholes and have foreign intelligence surveil PLAINTIFF in which they would have a “good faith” exception to the fruit of the poisonous tree doctrine and gather enough info to have probable cause to prosecute PLAINTIFF. So DEFENDANTS necessarily obstructed justice through obtaining unconstitutional and illegally obtained information from DEFENDANTS and went to the FISA court with corrupted information. PLAINTIFF is alleging all FISA court decisions that concern PLAINTIFF are patently illegal for the aforementioned reasons and these reasons:

From DEFENDANTS DOJ themselves: “The right to free expression and law enforcement's desire to control dissent and challenges to authority pose vexing problems for police officials. By combining police sanction concepts, citizen demeanor literature, and case law on civil liability, the author shows how police officers increase liability risks by arresting or otherwise retaliating against vocal critics, uncooperative suspects, and citizens with an attitude problem. After identifying the retaliation standard articulated by the U.S. Supreme Court in Mt.

Healthy City School District Board of Education v. Doyle (1977), the author examines lower cases pursuant to Mt. Healthy's three-pronged test: (1) whether plaintiff conduct is protected by the first amendment; (2) whether plaintiff's protected first amendment activity is a substantial or motivating factor in police officer conduct; and (3) whether a police officer would respond the same in the absence of the protected first amendment activity. He concludes that police officers need more training in anger management and interpersonal communication to avoid liability for violating the first amendment right of citizens to verbally confront and challenge the police."⁶⁴⁰

- 1) PLAINTIFF'S conduct was protected by the First Amendment;
- 2) PLAINTIFF proved beyond a reasonable doubt that PLAINTIFF'S 1A activity was a motivating factor since it was directly cited in the context of the hit HILLARY CLINTON ordered on PLAINTIFF to implement Miki's Nightmare against PLAINTIFF.
- 3) Police officers enabled it and failed to respond to it because they were corrupted by HILLARY CLINTON.

As the Court in Brandenburg v. Ohio, 395 U.S. 444 (1969) stated how their "decisions have fashioned the principle that the constitutional guarantees of free speech and free press do not permit a State to forbid or proscribe advocacy of the use of force or of law violation except where such advocacy is directed to inciting or producing imminent lawless action and is likely to incite or produce such action." The Court highlighted how they said in Noto v. United States, 367 U. S. 290, (1961), "the mere abstract teaching . . . of the moral propriety or even moral necessity for a resort to force and violence is not the same as preparing a group for violent action and steeling it to such action." PLAINTIFF, through his discussion of Miki's Nightmare said in the privacy of his own home, taught his weaknesses. DEFENDANTS prepared as a group for violent action to be undertaken and committed against PLAINTIFF. HILLARY CLINTON'S speech produced imminent lawless action that was absolutely likely to incite and produce such an imminent lawless action for the following reasons: the financial incentives HILLARY CLINTON and TERRY MCAULIFFE gave ANDREW MCCABE for his wife's campaign; the need of DEFENDANTS to coverup Miki's Tea Party in which DEFENDANTS wasted $646,500,000,000 from 2007-2015 in which they couldn't figure out who within their own ranks committed Angel's Plan, prosecute them for committing Angel's Plan, and prevented Miki's Tea Party from ever occurring; DEFENDANTS harnessed their power in the world through their RICO Enterprise when BILL CLINTON talked and met with SHINZO ABE and had illegally overheard how to commit Angel's Plan; and there was an imminent time of when to conduct the operation (NOW NOW NOW); HILLARY and BILL CLINTON'S indifference in executing mentally disabled men; No other conditions in the world or in modern existence could have produced such a devastating incitement of imminent lawless action and would produce such results and actions. And DEFENDANTS did in fact do this.

What is that one ANDREW MCCABE quote again? "The SET UP for Midyear was simple."⁶⁴¹ Yep, that's it. What was DEFENDANT'S FBI quote again: "The key to that new mandate, Director MUELLER knew, was intelligence—the holy grail of national security work, the ability to collect and connect the dots, to know your enemies and the threats they pose inside and out, to arm everyone from leaders in the Oval Office to police officers on the street with information that enables them to stop terrorist and criminal plots before they are carried out.”⁶⁴² Yep, that’s it. LOL. There’s no way the FBI didn’t connect the dots on June 26th, 2015 at the end of the major round of applause HILLARY CLINTON received for her hit on PLAINTIFF. This was 100% Terrorism by HILLARY CLINTON and DEFENDANTS because it affected the course of Government—a DOJ OIG report is conduct being done by the government because of what DEFENDANTS did.⁶⁴³

This was 100% terrorism by DEFENDANTS because on top of HILLARY CLINTON establishing the hit was for her long agenda (which is a political agenda), even PETER STRZOK and LISA PAGE were worried about the perception between HILLARY CLINTON and ANDREW MCCABE when it came to ANDREW MCCABE, HILLARY CLINTON, and TERRY MCAULIFFE’S fundraising? Yes. DEFENDANTS ACTUALLY WANT TO RESCUE ANDREW MCCABE by RECUSING HIM and allow another terrorist act to go unpunished. See: Text Message Below. DOJ documents the issue and creates a misconduct report that “addresses the accuracy of statements made by then Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI)

(See: Below)

Continuing on from the previous paragraph, a print version of the article was published in the WSJ on Monday, October 31, 2016, in an article entitled “FBI, Justice Feud in Clinton Probe.” So two days prior, PETER STRZOK knows there is going to be a perception issue, which is around the same time the Wall Street Journal releases their article documenting the financing between MCCABE, MCAULIFFE, and CLINTONS. Do you know what characterized ANDREW MCCABE’S Candor issues in DOJ OIG’s report of: “A Report of Investigation of Certain Allegations Relating to Former FBI Deputy Director Andrew McCabe”? There was someone underneath him that leaked information in the course of an ongoing investigation! Lack of Candor 1: McCabe lied about not having authorized the disclosure and did not know who did; Lack of Candor 2 is when ANDREW MCCABE told the agents that he had not authorized the disclosure to the WSJ and did not know who did; Lack of Candor 3 is when ANDREW MCCABE lied about not being aware of Special Counsel having been authorized to speak to reporters around October 30th; and Lack of Candor 4: ANDREW MCCABE contradicted his prior statements by acknowledging that he had authorized the disclosure to the WSJ & ANDREW MCCABE lacked candor when he: (a) stated that he told Comey on October 31, 2016, that he had authorized the disclosure to the WSJ; (b) denied telling INSD agents on May 9 that he had not authorized the disclosure to the WSJ about the PADAG call; and (c) asserted that INSD’s questioning of him on May 9 about the October 30 WSJ article occurred at the end of an unrelated meeting when one of the INSD agents pulled him aside and asked him one or two questions about the article”.⁶⁴⁸ PETER STRZOK texted LISA PAGE the following text message below in which LISA PAGE AND PETER STRZOK HAD THE FOLLOWING MESSAGE about the FEDS investigating GOVERNOR MCAULIFFE’S CAMPAGIN DONATIONS FROM 06/26/2015, which necessarily included ANDREW MCCABE, BILL CLINTON, and HILLARY CLINTON. Does the court want to see the clearest proof of Witness Intimidation and Retaliation in violation of 18 U.S.C. 1961 (section 1512) committed by DEFENDANTS (PETER STRZOK) in furtherance of RICO Enterprise 1? PETER STRZOK texted the following on 03/29/2016

What did ANDREW MCCABE'S little minion PETER STRZOK, the head of Counterterrorism, think of the incidents involving money and politics on the HILL (that necessarily includes CLINTON and the MCCABES)? would be completely acceptable for ANDREW MCCABE to make money for JILL MCCABE'S campaign in which DEFENDANTS would commit horrible acts of international and domestic terrorism against PLAINTIFF on numerous occasions and PAID TO COVER IT ALL UP since ANDREW MCCABE made money on covering up the crimes. In United States v. Kessee, 992 F.2d 1001 (9th Cir. 1993), the Court held "entrapment occurred when the government: "flashed a roll of hundred-dollar bills and repeatedly pressured defendant to sell drugs in order to earn money for a period of time after defendant lost both of his jobs and expressed concern to the agent about "where he would get the money for rent and food for his family."

So a coercive factor was when the government agent flashed a roll of hundred-dollar bills to induce the subject into a crime. Let's take that reasoning and apply it in PLAINTIFF'S complaint. The U.S Bureau of Engraving and Printing states that a bundle of 100 new $100 bills is about 1.2 inches thick for a total of $10,000.⁶⁴⁹ If you cup your hand into a shape of the letter 'c' and grab stacks that way, you can hold 3 stacks of 100 new $100 bills for a total of $30,000 in one hand. Using both hands, you have a total of $60,000. Do you know how many people it would take to hold $14,900,000,000 in $100 bills? 248,333 or so people. A city with a population of 248,333 would make it the 92nd largest city in America below Winston-Salem, North Carolina and above Scottsdale, Arizona putting it on par with other cities like Norfolk, Virginia, Richmond Virginia, Spokane, Washington, Baton Rouge, Louisiana (221,453), Des Moines, Iowa, Salt Lake City, Utah, and Little Rock, Arkansas with 27 brand new BOEING 737s, 12 Boeing 777-300ERs, and Boeing 777F flying and circling overhead and all of their friends got richer and better off. PLAINTIFF was living on student loans in which he became an indentured servant to DEFENDANTS. DEFENDANTS knew by doing this to PLAINTIFF there was no way he would ever be able to get a job after trying to prosecute him in JAPAN.

The court in United States v. Kelly, 707 F.2d 1460, (D.C. Cir. 1983) said: “dishonest public officials, responsive more to money than to their obligations to the nation, may cause grave harm to our society, we recognize the need for law enforcement efforts to detect official corruption.” Based on everything above, DEFENDANTS do not have the honor nor respect for their mission of rooting official public corruption because how could they not detect it in themselves and therefore the protection under United States v. Kelly, 707 F.2d 1460, (D.C. Cir. 1983) does not apply to them. Period.

DEFENDANTS feloniously used the PATRIOT ACT against PLAINTIFF in 2016 to further their RICO Enterprise in which they did not utilize the PATRIOT ACT against ANDREW MCCABE and HILLARY CLINTON when they were the actual terrorists and DEFENDANTS KNEW IT. See: PETER STRZOK and LISA PAGE TEXT MESSAGE below:

DEFENDANTS NEVER ONCE ASKED THEMSELVES THIS QUESTION:

Minimum amount of damage deriving from this incident in which PLAINTIFF was a victim of domestic and international terrorism, war crimes, and torture committed by DEFENDANTS: $10,000,000,000. With Treble Damages. $30,000,000,000.

The Court in Sorrells v. United States, 287 U.S. 435 (1932) said: “It is manifest that these arguments rest entirely upon the letter of the statute. They take no account of the fact that its application in the circumstances under consideration is foreign to its purpose; that such an application is so shocking to the sense of justice that it has been urged that it is the duty of the court to stop the prosecution in the interest of the Government itself, to protect it from the illegal conduct of its officers and to preserve the purity of its courts...But can an application of the statute having such an effect — creating a situation so contrary to the purpose of the law and so inconsistent with its proper enforcement as to invoke such a challenge — fairly be deemed to be within its intendment... We think that this established principle of construction is applicable here. We are unable to conclude that it was the intention of the Congress in enacting this statute that its processes of detection and enforcement should be abused by the instigation by government officials of an act on the part of persons otherwise innocent in order to lure them to its commission and to punish them. We are not forced by the letter to do violence to the spirit and purpose of the statute. This, we think, has been the underlying and controlling thought in the suggestions in judicial opinions that the Government in such a case is estopped to prosecute or that the courts should bar the prosecution. If the requirements of the highest public policy in the maintenance of the integrity of administration would preclude the enforcement of the statute in such circumstances as are present here, the same considerations justify the conclusion that the case lies outside the purview of the Act and that its general words should not be construed to demand a proceeding at once inconsistent with that policy and abhorrent to the sense of justice.” Everybody was against PLAINTIFF.” The Court can still rule that DEFENDANTS retaliated against PLAINTIFF on the basis of his disability in which they tortured PLAINTIFF, committed acts of international and domestic terrorism against PLAINTIFF, and the Court has no affirmative duty to fully disclose the details of JAPLAN.

DEFENDANTS’ explicit approval of having committed acts of international and domestic terrorism against PLAINTIFF, torturing PLAINTIFF at the behest of the CLINTONS, and justifying why they did so:

OIG received text message productions from the FBI; however, we noted that no text messages were provided for Page during the period December 15, 2016 to May 7th, 2017, and no text messages were provided for STRZOK during the period June 18, 2016 through July 5, 2017. Thus, for the period from December 15, 2016, to May 17, 2017, we received no text messages between LISA PAGE and PETER STRZOK, and for the period from June 18, 2016, to December 14, 2016, and from May 18, 2017, to July 5, 2017, the PAGE-STRZOK text messages that we received came solely from Page's text archives.⁶⁵⁰ That is obstruction of justice in which those texts necessarily included damning information against PETER STRZOK and LISA PAGE against PLAINTIFF.

A letter from DOJ Assistant Attorney General Stephen E. Boyd to Chairman Charles E. Grassley, Senate Judiciary Committee, dated January 19, 2018, stated that the FBI's technical system for retaining text messages sent and received on FBI mobile devices failed to preserve text messages for Strzok and Page from December 14, 2016 to approximately May 17, 2017. The letter indicates that the collection tool failure was due to "misconfiguration issues related to rollouts, provisioning, and software upgrades that conflicted with the FBI's collection capabilities."⁶⁵¹

The Court in BANTAM BOOKS, INC., et al. v. SULLIVAN et al., 372 U.S. 58 (1963) was concerned with the arbitrary and capricious power of an entity that regulated speech that caused informal censorship. The Court found the Commission in the case was completely unconstitutional and the system of informal censorship the Commission created through its defining features violated the Constitution. The Commission in the case was: "limited to informal sanctions, the threat of invoking legal sanctions and other means of coercion, persuasion, and intimidation the record amply demonstrates that the Commission deliberately set about to achieve the suppression of publications deemed "objectionable" and succeeded in its aim. We are not the first court to look through forms to the substance and recognize that informal censorship may sufficiently inhibit the circulation of publications to warrant injunctive relief." Id. Furthermore, the Commission's system of informal censorship that was created "had no saving features" in which the Commission "did not follow judicial determinations;⁶⁵²" Id. the Commission's "capacity for suppression of constitutionally protected publications [wa]s far in excess of that of the typical licensing scheme held constitutionally invalid by this Court," Id. there was "no provision whatever for judicial superintendence before notices issue or even for judicial review of the Commission's determinations of objectionableness;" Id. people were not "even entitled to notice and hearing" Id. before a determination of objectionableness was made by the Commission; the Commission's statutory mandate was "vague and uninformative" and the Commission had "done nothing to make it more precise;" Id. The decisions' justification for having a publication listed as "objectionable" was "without further elucidation;" Id. The people to whom the decisions were made to were "left to speculate whether the Commission considers [their] publication was "objectionable." Id.

"The Fourteenth Amendment does not permit a State to make criminal the peaceful expression of unpopular views. "[A] function of free speech under our system of government is to invite dispute. It may indeed best serve its high purpose when it induces a condition of unrest, creates dissatisfaction with conditions as they are, or even stirs people to anger. Speech is often provocative and challenging. It may strike at prejudices and preconceptions and have profound unsettling effects as it presses for acceptance of an idea. That is why freedom of speech is protected against censorship or punishment, unless shown likely to produce a clear and present danger of a serious substantive evil that rises far above public inconvenience, annoyance, or unrest. . . ."

PLAINTIFF stated earlier that US Intel in 2015 probably thought HILLARY CLINTON was going to be President in 2016 so they would accordingly be acting in a manner of who they thought was going to be the future President from 2015 onwards in which they would do things to help HILLARY CLINTON in whatever way she deemed fit because it was in their interest to do so. That's right. Do you think HILLARY CLINTON was still obsessed⁶⁵³ with PLAINTIFF and was actually directing certain agencies to do certain things in the direction HILLARY CLINTON, a presidential candidate, wanted DEFENDANTS to do and areas they should be looking into to get PLAINTIFF in Winter 2015? PLAINTIFF says: "Damn straight."

Does PLAINTIFF know or have something similar to the evidence you presented above in the form of the 06/26/2015 speech in a different speech she gave in 2015? YEP; and as of 9:33pm on August 14th, 2023, PLAINTIFF doesn't have the energy to fully analyze it and similar speeches, but it is there. HILLARY CLINTON gave a speech on December 15th, 2015, in Minneapolis, Minnesota on foreign policy and counterterrorism.⁶⁵⁴ To show you how she, and certain actors in different US intelligence agencies, deliberately misconstrued facts about PLAINTIFF in order to get PLAINTIFF for her own vindictive purposes and was directing leadership (in this case, JEH JOHNSON at DHS) to act in a certain way after she committed two acts of domestic and international terrorism against PLAINTIFF (London and ANGIE ORTIZ), is this pristine example:

⁶⁵³ Ironic, I should have been the one to file a restraining order and an order of protection against Hillary Clinton for stalking me, committing numerous federal crimes against me, and using US intelligence to do so in violation of Title IX.

⁶⁵⁴ See: <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=rRlqs-Lc66Y>

“Right now, European nations don’t always alert each other when they turn away a suspected extremist at the border⁶⁵⁵ or when a passport is stolen.⁶⁵⁶ They have to dramatically improve intelligence sharing and counterterrorism cooperation; and we’re ready to help them do that...”⁶⁵⁷

DEFENDANTS FBI and CIA would have to both agree this quote is in reference to PLAINTIFF? Why? First off, when lying about the subject, a brain through using cognitive efforts of creating and maintaining a lie will use as little energy or thought as possible to the truth of what the statement was actually about for the sake of brain efficiency and not insert additional words to separate the concepts in HILLARY CLINTON’S mind. Simply, there must be some brevity in the truth in the creation of a lie not to waste brain energy resources. HILLARY is creating a lie about the purpose of the speech so the fact that the two examples are in direct reference to PLAINTIFF said as briefly and concisely as possible indicates not only the deceit by HILLARY CLINTON, but the purpose of the speech. (Tell me I’m wrong DEFENDANTS FBI and CIA because I’m not.)

Next, European nations necessarily includes the United Kingdom. PLAINTIFF was not turned away in the European nation of the United Kingdom at Heathrow airport for being a suspected extremist, PLAINTIFF was not allowed to continue his flight on Qatar Airlines because PLAINTIFF didn’t have the necessary INDIAN visa to continue his trip to INDIA in light of DEFENDANTS’ terrorist act and air piracy on 03/11/2011. See: Miki’s Tea Party. Secondly, PLAINTIFF asked for the FBI & SCOTLAND YARD/MI6 for help because PLAINTIFF was scammed by an apparent Scottish company in which the scammers were from the United Kingdom that took my passport; and look how that is used against PLAINTIFF. Outrageously, the fact that PLAINTIFF was scammed was used against PLAINTIFF in order to get DEFENDANTS United Kingdom and MI6/Scotland Yard as an additional justification in sharing whatever information they had on me with HILLARY CLINTON who shouldn’t have had it in the first place and DEFENDANTS did so against my US legal and constitutional interests AT THE BEHEST OF HILLARY CLINTON. They falsely alleged that PLAINTIFF was a suspected extremist to get the label of counterterrorism to apply to me so DEFENDANTS British Intelligence could surveil me

Most importantly, then HILLARY CLINTON talked about utilizing DHS (against PLAINTIFF) in which HILLARY CLINTON said: “We also should dispatch more homeland security agents

⁶⁵⁵ See: Miki’s Tea Party (in London, England, which is a European nation). So not only does HILLARY CLINTON want to prevent PLAINTIFF from going to ENGLAND, but all other European countries where PLAINTIFF would be turned away including Serbia, PLAINTIFF’S dual-citizenship. HILLARY CLINTON is so hellbent on power that she wants to control how PLAINTIFF can travel and is directing all other European nations to do the same AFTER she committed TWO acts of domestic and international terrorism: See: Miki’s Tea Party and ANGIE ORTIZ.

⁶⁵⁶ These two examples next to each other is no way or form a coincidence. See: British MI6/Heathrow Incident. Passport was stolen in 2012 in Scotland. These two examples in sum right next to one another leads to the inescapable conclusion that she was talking about PLAINTIFF. Next sentence is a specific direction that British MI6 must share all info they have acquired on me (as they have falsely and ridiculously used counterterrorism resources against me at the US’ direction) TO HILLARY CLINTON, A PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATE AT THE TIME and not someone in any American intel agency.

⁶⁵⁷ As though they haven’t already done that enough. Ridiculous. <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=rRlqs-Lc66Y> to high-risk countries to better investigate visa applicants...”⁶⁵⁸ Visa applicants could mean visa credit card applications and some issues admittedly do arise therein. However, and more realistically, VISA applicants could include and be ANGIE ORTIZ after PLAINTIFF tried to rescue HILLARY CLINTON’s blackmail in which PLAINTIFF tried to get her a visa to escape whatever harm ANGIE ORTIZ was in because of the shit DEFENDANTS pulled to investigate PLAINTIFF and ANGIE ORTIZ, and by investigating her, investigating PLAINTIFF. Furthermore, if DHS did these things at the behest of HILLARY CLINTON, HILLARY CLINTON would reward them for their own self-interest since HILLARY CLINTON said: “so we should be providing the Department of Homeland Security the resources it needs to stay one step ahead...”⁶⁵⁹ This shows DHS’ motive for doing whatever they did against PLAINTIFF. Where were DEFENDANTS on stopping the sex trafficking of children like ANGIE ORTIZ from going from Central America to Japan when DEFENDANTS all knew ANGIE ORTIZ was going to be used against me at the behest of BILL and HILLARY CLINTON that was planned out in 03/17/2015 and 06/26/2015. DEFENDANTS from at least 2008 and onwards worked with JAPANESE airport officials to get their security procedures to AMERICAN standards. MI6, DHS, and 10 more different US Intel agencies combined all had the resources they needed to track one person—ANGIE ORTIZ or PLAINTIFF with more than $1,000,000,000 in resources to track one person: Don’t you dare forget about that. ANGIE ORTIZ and PLAINTIFF are not OSAMA BIN LADEN where it would be difficult to track us. Furthermore, in the speech, HILLARY CLINTON talked about: “enhancing our technical surveillance of overseas targets,⁶⁶⁰ intercepting terrorist communications,⁶⁶¹ flying more reconnaissance missions to track terrorist movements,⁶⁶² and developing even closer partnerships with other intelligence services...”⁶⁶³ PETER STRZOK said: “When talking about Clinton—we didn’t find any digital fingerprints that suggested foreign hacking or snooping, though nations like Russia and China are good enough to break in without leaving a trace, especially if we get to the evidence well after the fact, when logs and other files have been overwritten or deleted.”⁶⁶⁵

Finally, HILLARY CLINTON talked about law enforcement working with tech companies in the speech;⁶⁶⁶ so DEFENDANTS shared amongst each other and gave everything to law enforcement and HILLARY CLINTON in which they would be liable under Pinkerton liability precedent after HILLARY CLINTON said to do it. This is one of the fundamental reasons why I’m excoriating myself to such an extensive and compulsively high degree of self-disclosure and probably self-harm and revealing everything I can think of in my history, even against my legal interests, to you because if PLAINTIFF doesn’t fully disclose the truth, then there will be another day in the future where people like HILLARY CLINTON are going to be in the same position HILLARY CLINTON was in 2015 and will continue to wreak havoc, corrupt law enforcement, and hurt fellow autistic individuals. It was done to PLAINTIFF. In fact, it did happen; and PLAINTIFF promises you, it will happen to you, your family, your loved ones, and your loved ones that may be autistic or suffer from a cognitive disability if this type of behavior continues to be tolerated if you don't put a stop to it now.

PLAINTIFF can probably go through more videos of HILLARY CLINTON between 2015-2016 and point out all the times she was out to get PLAINTIFF; how HILLARY CLINTON stole my ideas and words in the course of the campaign where she now gets credit for those ideas and words in which she was only capable of doing so because certain DEFENDANTS enabled her where they falsely labeled me as being an extremist, terrorist, etc; and just more generally fucked things about politics and DC.

What was DEFENDANT'S FBI quote again: "The key to that new mandate, Director Mueller knew, was intelligence—the holy grail of national security work, the ability to collect and connect the dots, to know your enemies and the threats they pose inside and out, to arm everyone from leaders in the Oval Office to police officers on the street with information that enables them to stop terrorist and criminal plots before they are carried out."⁶⁶⁷ Yep, that's it. LOL.

Establishing JOHN BRENNAN and BILL CLINTON as a members of the conspiracy to PETER STRZOK and ANDREW MCCABE'S leadership and leaking of information in the course of an ongoing investigation.

In August 2016, PETER STRZOK goes to either LONDON or BERLIN to work together with and conspire with DEFENDANTS against PLAINTIFF. The reason why: he was investigating “the most consequential and chilling case of my career: whether a major political campaign had conspired with a foreign enemy to throw the outcome of a presidential election. This new investigation was a nascent one—a mere threat compared to the fully formed tapestry of the Clinton case that we had just wrapped up. But its political and diplomatic implications were so profound, so potentially explosive, that our trip across the Atlantic had been organized under the utmost security.”⁶⁶⁸ PETER STRZOK continues: “a communication arrived from overseas that shook me to my core...a major candidate for the PRESIDENCY had invited a foreign adversary to meddle in an election.” PETER STRZOK learned of something on July 28th, 2016 when he said it: “was alarming to us on several levels when we learned of it on July 28. It came to us in the form of an email from our legal attaché (or LEGAT, in bureau speak, the senior FBI agent assigned to a U.S. embassy) in a European capital; this American official had forwarded an excerpt of a report about the meeting from the friendly foreign government.”⁶⁶⁹

If PLAINTIFF had his way, PLAINTIFF, ideally, would have HILLARY CLINTON pay me at least $22 (one Jackson twenty-dollar bill and one Jefferson two-dollar bill) after doing the following: lead her down the center Pennsylvania Avenue in DC in which PLAINTIFF would poke her behind from behind with a pitchfork at various times to the front doors of the White House while a gypsy brass band played music behind me. Then, once HILLARY CLINTON reached the front door, she would pay me the $22 and additional amount; and then with one last pitchfork push, tell her to get the fuck out of here. People like HILLARY CLINTON, if she went to jail, would think she was justified in what she did to me in the entirety of her time spent to prison so she wouldn’t learn a damn thing. But if we did it my way, she’d remember that for the rest of her life. And that’s the point.

How does this get any worse? Just you wait! Section 702--a monstrosity and an unconstitutional pile of steaming legislative bullshit that should be flushed into the lowest shit tanks in DC where it belongs--according to Matt Olsen, the head of the DOJ Nat Sec division, allows the “incidental” collection of information on Americans overseas. More relevantly, it completely allows DEFENDANTS to listen, record, and monitor any conversations that foreigners have with one another even when those individuals talk about an AMERICAN like PLAINTIFF. ANGIE ORTIZ had a tablet with her in Japan in which she regularly communicated with her family and friends back home in Central America and her handlers that were directing her actions against PLAINTIFF and PLAINTIFF is 100% sure she talked about PLAINTIFF in July 2015. When, proven in documented fact, DEFENDANTS were completely beholden to HILLARY CLINTON in 2015 and were in fact being directed by HILLARY CLINTON at this time, what the fuck do you think happened to that Section 702 data the US Government obtained on ANGIE ORTIZ that had information about the crimes they did? PLAINTIFF is alleging HILLARY CLINTON, a non-government individual, received Section 702 data via DEFENDANTS to make sure PLAINTIFF was effectively blackmailed “in order for her hair not to turn white as President.” Do you know when Section 702 should be made unconstitutional or have rules in place? Now.

The FBI DIOG of 2015 says “the FBI’s core values must be fully understood, practiced, shared, vigorously defended, and preserved. The values are: a) rigorous obedience to the Constitution of the United States; b) respect for the dignity of all those we protect; c) Compassion; d) Fairness; e) uncompromising personal integrity and institutional integrity; f) accountability by accepting responsibility for our actions and decisions and their consequences; g) leadership, by example, both personal and professional...We who enforce the law must not merely obey it. We have an obligation to set a moral example that those whom we protect can follow.”⁶⁷⁰ Did anything above meet an exigent circumstance? Did they warn or do an intervention on behalf of PLAINTIFF? NO. DID THE FBI MEET THIS EXPECTATION WHEN IT CAME TO PLAINTIFF? FUCK NO.

At various times, he talked about the inauguration and crowd size, the campaign and his effective use of free media (“earned media”), the extraordinary luxury of the White House (which he favorably compared to Mar-a-lago), his many activities during the day and week, his young son’s height, the viciousness of the campaign (where I interjected about Adams and Jefferson; he said he had been given a book about it, which was upstairs), how he had not been mocking a handicapped reporter, had not assaulted any of the women who claimed he did (reviewing in detail several of the allegations), and many other things. I will attempt to recount in some detail only those parts that related in some way to my work.

How did JAMES COMEY tell President TRUMP about everything above in January 2017? The following: If you read into the following excerpt from Comey to Trump in January

At this point he asked me (and asked again later) whether “your guy McCabe” has a problem with me, explaining that “I was pretty rough on him and his wife during the campaign.” I explained that Andy was a true professional and had no problem at all. I then explained what FBI people were like, that whatever their personal views, they strip them when they step into their bureau roles and actually hold “political people” in slight contempt, without regard to party.

2017, PLAINTIFF has no idea whether JAMES COMEY omitted the all the relevant info from TRUMP about the Jefferson-Jackson Dinner Speech by HILLARY CLINTON at George Mason University on June 26th, 2015--“the viciousness of the campaign (where I interjected about Adams and Jefferson; he said he had been given a book about it, which was upstairs)...” But it would truly matter. The exact details of what was said and shared, PLAINTIFF doesn’t know, but it is about PLAINTIFF because it connects to PLAINTIFF in numerous ways. First, “Jefferson” meant JACKSON-JEFFERSON Dinner Speech by HILLARY CLINTON at George Mason University on June 26th, 2015 and necessarily about the political aspect of the retaliation against PLAINTIFF. “A book about it” is most likely than not a reference to the story wrote during the campaign. PLAINTIFF did not cause it to be political; HILLARY CLINTON and DEFENDANTS did first. PLAINTIFF was defending himself as under Louisiana Revised Statutes. True, PLAINTIFF is speaking out of some ignorance here and PLAINTIFF don’t know all the facts, but if, we as a country, are allowing people to succeed, be promoted, and get rich in America based on committing war-crimes against vulnerable American citizens due to their disabilities, we have failed as a country and a society (and that is what is destabilizing); and it would be a dastardly shame if TRUMP promoted MCCABE because he allowed war-crimes to be committed against PLAINTIFF, which, if PLAINTIFF may add, were only possible when certain DEFENDANTS violated my 4th Amendment rights against reasonable search and seizures when they listened in on me in the privacy of the home against my 4th Amendment rights and had heard how to make Miki's Nightmare a reality. PLAINTIFF does not know just how much PRESIDENT DONALD TRUMP contributed to the issue since PLAINTIFF has a miniscule amount of knowledge about what PRESIDENT TRUMP knew or did concerning PLAINTIFF.

Why would the United States Government allow this to happen? Would a motivating factor be the following facts. DEFENDANTS, the UNITED STATES Government, appropriated DNI/Intelligence agencies an astronomical $646,500,000,000 between 2007-2015 to stop international and domestic terrorism, stop war crimes, and stop torture. On top of that figure, additionally, “the total amount the United States ~~stole~~ collected through TSA taxes and fees at the airport-- which should have thwarted air piracy from occurring—was at least around $32,250,000,000 from 01/01/2002 to 03/11/2011. DNI appropriation figures below:

2009—76,200,000,000
2010—80,100,000,000
2011—78,600,000,000
Total: 2007-2011: $368,280,000,000

2012—75,400,000,000
2013—67,600,000,000
2014—67,900,000,000
2015—66,800,000,000
Total: 2011-2015: $XX

Total 2007-2015: $646,500,000,000

Yet, DEFENDANTS couldn't even stop themselves. They couldn't stop themselves doing the things that they were sworn to protect the People from and the People gave them $646,500,000,000 to prevent domestic and international terrorism, air piracy, war crimes, and torture from occurring and they couldn't stop even themselves. DEFENDANTS got greedy and stupidly psychopathic and psychotic. PLAINTIFF doesn't even want to add TREBLE damages to that figure. DEFENDANTS are going to accuse PLAINTIFF of being a drug abuser; fine; don't know, don't care. But even if they do, it takes an addict to know an addict and DEFENDANTS got a serious fucking problem when it comes to their addiction of power and greed. They need help immediately.

The total amount DNI spent combatting terrorism, war crimes, and torture between 2007-2015 was: $646,500,000,000. Yet look at what they allowed and did in 2010, 2015, 2016.

Let me repeat that again: $646,500,000,000. Let me put it in some factual scenarios that are relevant to PLAINTIFF'S ties of Serbia and North Macedonia and ANGIE ORTIZ's alleged ties of Nicaragua and Honduras. In 2023, the GDP per Capita of Serbia was $73,961,000,000; Honduras' was $32,860,000,000; Nicaragua's was $17,287,000,000; North Macedonia's was $15,728,000,000; Together, a total of: $140,376,000,000, which is less than 25% of what DNI was appropriated between 2007-2015 to prevent terrorism, war crimes, and torture from occurring in which DNI absolutely, 100% allowed, domestic terrorism, war crimes, and terrorism to occur at the behest of ANDREW MCCABE and HILLARY CLINTON. If you took the total population of those aforementioned countries, 24,414,757, which would make it the 3rd largest state just above Florida at 22,244,823 people. This is about the same GDP per capita as the State of Virginia (13th most in the United States) at 649,393,000,000 in 2022.

I do remember seeing Chief Justice John Roberts in Tokyo in July 2015 as he was there on the 9th of July 2015 giving his speech about the administration of the Courts; thankfully I wasn't drugged that day because PLAINTIFF remembers his speech. PLAINTIFF being Naïve, autistic, and full of hope, PLAINTIFF was thrilled that this was going to be the first time he saw a Supreme Court Justice as a future lawyer in real life. Things, PLAINTIFF thought at the time, things were finally going right for PLAINTIFF where PLAINTIFF understood that he wasn't on the wrong side of the law in a foreign country with a 99% conviction rate, the CHIEF JUSTICES of both JAPAN and USA having talked to one another prior to PLAINTIFF'S arrival in JAPAN (and of course not conspiring with one another. Sarcastic Lol), and PLAINTIFF having no money, means, knowledge of JAPANESE law, no one to help PLAINTIFF in JAPAN that PLAINTIFF specifically said in an email that Section 508 of the USA PATRIOT ACT allows DEFENDANTS to get without a warrant, & no JAPANESE language ability to defend myself in JAPANESE court. Boy, Oh Boy, were the odds ever in my favor. LOL.

PLAINTIFF listened to CHIEF JUSTICE JOHN ROBERTS' speech on the Administration of the Courts. PLAINTIFF specifically wore a solid red tie, blue/white dress shirt, & a dark blue navy jacket as an AMERICAN ABROAD to show my patriotism & love for AMERICA, the COURT, & what this country stands for to the world in order to make CHIEF JUSTICE feel at home while being away from home because PLAINTIFF completely respected him at the time & had absolutely no reason to think otherwise at the time. CHIEF JUSTICE JOHN ROBERTS obviously saw PLAINTIFF as he had looked at PLAINTIFF'S directions a few times during the speech because it was completely impossible for CHIEF JUSTICE JOHN ROBERTS not to see a 280lb American in a room full of small JAPANESE people. Speaking of people seeing me, there was no way the CIA, FBI, & the Secret Service, etc. did not know PLAINTIFF was in the same room as CHIEF JUSTICE JOHN ROBERTS. CHIEF JUSTICE JOHN ROBERTS was so close to PLAINTIFF that he could have reached out to PLAINTIFF. So close that PLAINTIFF saw CHIEF JUSTICE JOHN ROBERTS' eyes were a chamber full of stars. There was not a Q&A session where PLAINTIFF could have inquired about certain caselaw. Oh NAY NAY! As soon as CHIEF JUSTICE JOHN ROBERTS ended his speech, he courageously and quickly fled out of the Auditorium. CHIEF JUSTICE JOHN ROBERTS never looked back. And now, PLAINTIFF'S mind can't stop looking back to see where it went all so wrong. The difference between CHIEF JUSTICE JOHN ROBERTS and PLAINTIFF in auditoriums is the following. If there were times PLAINTIFF experienced autistic overload that was completely outside of PLAINTIFF'S control, PLAINTIFF ran to an auditorium because that is where PLAINTIFF felt safe. Nearly every DEFENDANT had access to Ms. JOYCE DONEV'S observations via Section 508 of the USA PATRIOT ACT; But CHIEF JUSTICE JOHN ROBERTS made it a death sentence and knew all of the bullshit the Court pulled in their decision in City and County of San Francisco v. Sheenan, 575 U.S. 600 (2015) and couldn't apologize to PLAINTIFF. BUT WAIT, it gets even more messed up. PLAINTIFF had this exact conversation on META/FACEBOOK concerning CHIEF JUSTICE JOHN ROBERTS:

Miki Kotevski Tuesday, July 7, 2015 at 1:13am CDT: "WHO WANTS TO GO SEE THE CHIEF JUSTICE ROBERTS ON THURSDAY HERE IN TOKYO???! yes all caps--dont care."

Price Murry Tuesday, July 7, 2015 at 1:49am CDT: "only if we can ask him we he isn't doing his job and advocating for the minority."

Miki Kotevski Tuesday, July 7, 2015 at 1:53am CDT: "Advocating for the minority? Probably because he thinks the police think they have the authority to kill a minority. ㄟ(ㄣ)_ best rap song by NWA."

TJ Wiethorn Tuesday, July 7, 2015 at 1:53am CDT: "Haha, ill go, itll be funny to see him again this summer."

Price Murry Tuesday, July 7, 2015 at 1:55am CDT i didn:t mean racial minorities

Miki Kotevski Tuesday, July 7, 2015 at 2:15am CDT: "There are a lot of times where I'll disagree with Roberts such as him not addressing elonis' first amendment issue and allowing cops who are mistaken in law to have reasonable suspicion, but there were other legal issues that people tend to ignore so I don't think it was just that in part (how everyone else was coming around and the majority went with it)."

What did PLAINTIFF talk about? Reasonable suspicion, threats and free speech, police killing a minority (PLAINTIFF is autistic, which makes him a minority), cops being mistaken in law. All relevant to the issues presented in this lawsuit.

Does PLAINTIFF expect PETER STRZOK to own up to his mistakes? Nope. The following from PETER STRZOK in 2016.

You are a part of this and that's not going to change. But I think you have every right to be angry and frustrated about being left out of the loop on your investigation, especially when you're going to be left holding the bag. And I think you're entitled to say something to Baker about that, though on this one I would probably discuss with Bill first.

Furthermore, what is really messed up is that there is evidence of ANDREW MCCABE and CHIEF JUSTICE JOHN ROBERTS prior relationship where ANDREW MCCABE was directing the CHIEF JUSTICE of the SUPREME COURT to do ANDREW MCCABE'S bidding. See Tweet from ANDREW MCCABE below.).

The Fifth Circuit has ruled, twice, that a defense of governmental misconduct, which is separate and distinct from 'Entrapment,' may bar a criminal prosecution on due process grounds in United States v. Marcello, 508 F. Supp. 586 (E.D. La. 1981) (holding: governmental overreaching presents a cognizable and legitimate defense) and United States v. Graves, 556 F.2d 1319 (5th Cir. 1977), the court ruling that "[t]here is still available in appropriate cases a governmental misconduct defense grounded on the dual principles of due process and the supervisory powers of the court, but such a defense does not fall within the narrow confines of 'entrapment' as that term has been explicated in Russell and Hampton."

Interim Break:

PLAINTIFF wants to tell this story because it conveys the outrageousness of the whole series of events. In the Summer of 2016, PLAINTIFF was fighting for his life. PLAINTIFF, one night, decided to go throw out some trash in the trash room of the apartment complex he was staying in on Burbank/Nicholson Ave in Baton Rouge, LA. PLAINTIFF opened the door to the trash room and saw cockroaches flee everywhere. PLAINTIFF stepped on one of the large red cockroaches; PLAINTIFF had injured the cockroach; but PLAINTIFF had not killed that cockroach. A different big red cockroach, seeing or knowing his brethren was injured, came to the immediate aid and rescue of the injured cockroach--knowing full well the danger that was present in rescuing the injured cockroach. The cockroach pushed the injured cockroach--with all of his might and as fast as he could--to a hole in the wall in which both cockroaches disappeared out of sight. The cockroach that saved the injured cockroach--with its tiny, miniscule brain compared to a human and having far less superior reasoning and analytical powers and abilities and capability of compassion of a human--had synapses fire in its brain compared to what did not fire in the brains of the Chief Justice of the UNITED STATES, every single director at every single DEFENDANT Intelligence Agency, the leaders of America in the White House, any CIA or FBI agents, analysts, or officers having PLAINTIFF under surveillance, or any other DEFENDANTS had or were capable of possessing in their brain in the Summer of 2015.

That's what this lawsuit is about.

"Once in the custody of Brazilians, Toscanino was brought to Porto Alegre where he was held incommunicado for eleven hours. His requests to consult with counsel, the Italian Consulate, and his family were all denied. During this time he was denied all food and water. "Later that same day Toscanino was brought to Brasilia. . . . For seventeen days Toscanino was incessantly tortured and interrogated. Throughout this entire period the United States government and the United States Attorney for the Eastern District of New York prosecuting this case was aware of the interrogation and did in fact receive reports as to its progress. Furthermore, during this period of torture and interrogation a member of the United States Department of Justice, Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs was present at one or more intervals and actually participated in portions of the interrogation. . . . [Toscanino's] captors denied him sleep and all forms of nourishment for days at a time. Nourishment was provided intravenously in a manner precisely equal to an amount necessary to keep him alive. Reminiscent of the horror stories told by our military men who returned from Korea and China, Toscanino was forced to walk up and down a hallway for seven or eight hours at a time. When he could no longer stand he was kicked and beaten but all in a manner contrived to punish without scarring. When he would not answer, his fingers were pinched with metal pliers. Alcohol was flushed into his eyes and nose and other fluids . . . were forced up his anal passage. Incredibly, these agents of the United States government attached electrodes to Toscanino's earlobes, toes, and genitals. Jarring jolts of electricity were shot throughout his body, rendering him unconscious for indeterminate periods of time but again leaving no physical scars. "Finally on or about January 25, 1973 Toscanino was brought to Rio de Janeiro where he was drugged by Brazilian-American agents and placed on Pan American Airways Flight # 202 destined for the waiting arms of the United States government. On or about January 26, 1973 he woke in the United States, was arrested on the aircraft, and was brought immediately to Thomas Puccio, Assistant United States Attorney. "'At no time during the government's seizure of Toscanino did it ever attempt to accomplish its goal through any lawful channels whatever. From start to finish the government unlawfully, willingly and deliberately embarked upon a brazenly criminal scheme violating the laws of three separate countries." "' United States v. Toscanino, 500 F.2d 267, 270 (2d Cir. 1974). Toscanino alleged further that, prior to his forcible abduction from Montevideo, American officials bribed an employee of the public telephone company to conduct electronic surveillance of him and that the results of the surveillance were given to American agents and forwarded to government prosecutors in New York. According to Toscanino, the telephone company employee was eventually arrested in Uruguay for illegal eavesdropping and was indicted and imprisoned. In connection with these latter allegations Toscanino moved, pursuant to 18 U.S.C. § 3504, to compel the government to affirm or deny whether in fact there had been any electronic surveillance of him in Uruguay. Society is the ultimate loser when, in order to convict the guilty, it uses methods that lead to decreased respect for the law. See United States v. Archer, supra at 677. Thus the Court's decisions in Rochin and Mapp unmistakably contradict its pronouncement in Frisbie that "due process of law is satisfied when one present in court is convicted of crime after being fairly apprized of the charges against him and after a fair trial in accordance with constitutional procedural safeguards." The requirement of due process in obtaining a conviction is greater. It extends to the pretrial conduct of law enforcement authorities. The force of Rochin continues to be recognized. In United States v. Russell, 411 U.S. 423, 93 S.Ct. 1637, 36 L.Ed.2d 366 (1973), for instance, the Court, although holding that the government's alleged entrapment activities did not violate the Constitution or federal law, warned that "While we may some day be presented with a situation in which the conduct of law enforcement agents is so outrageous that due process principles would absolutely bar the government from invoking judicial processes to obtain a conviction, cf. Rochin v. California, 342 U.S. 165 [72 S.Ct. 205, 96 L.Ed. 183] (1952), the instant case is distinctly not of that breed." 411 U.S. at 431-432." United States v. Toscanino, 500 F.2d 267 (2d Cir. 1974)

"In United States v. Archer, supra, while basing our decision on other grounds, we referred to Olmstead and Rochin for the proposition that due process principles might be invoked to bar prosecution altogether where it resulted from flagrantly illegal law enforcement practices. In contrast, we have expressed doubt as to the validity of the Frisbie doctrine. In United States v. Edmons, 432 F.2d 577 (2d Cir. 1970), for instance, in rejecting the government's attempt to invoke Frisbie by analogy as the basis for upholding a conviction obtained through the device of using arrests that were in fact pretexts for investigative activities, Judge Friendly stated: "We do not find Frisbie . . . and its predecessors . . . to be a truly persuasive analogy. Those cases were decided before the Fourth Amendment as such was held applicable to the states, . . . and thus rested only on general considerations of due process or, as in Frisbie, also on a claimed violation of the Federal Kidnapping Act. Whether the Court would now adhere to them must be regarded as questionable." United States v. Edmons, supra at 583 [footnotes and citations omitted]. Similar doubt was indicated by the Third Circuit in Government of Virgin Islands v. Ortiz, 427 F.2d 1043, 1045 n.2 (3d Cir. 1970), where it stated "We recognize that the validity of the Frisbie doctrine has been seriously questioned because it condones illegal police conduct." United States v. Toscanino, 500 F.2d 267 (2d Cir. 1974)

"In light of these developments we are satisfied that the "Ker-Frisbie" rule cannot be reconciled with the Supreme Court's expansion of the concept of due process, which now protects the accused against pretrial illegality by denying to the government the fruits of its exploitation of any deliberate and unnecessary lawlessness on its part. Although the issue in most of the cases forming part of this evolutionary process was whether evidence should have been excluded (e. g., Mapp, Miranda, Wong Sun, Silverman), it was unnecessary in those cases to invoke any other sanction to insure that an ultimate conviction would not rest on governmental illegality. Where suppression of evidence will not suffice, however, we must be guided by the underlying principle that the government should be denied the right to exploit its own illegal conduct, Wong Sun v.

United States, 371 U.S. 471, 488, 83 S.Ct. 407, 9 L.Ed.2d 441 (1963), and when an accused is kidnapped and forcibly brought within the jurisdiction, the court's acquisition of power over his person represents the fruits of the government's exploitation of its own misconduct. Having unlawfully seized the defendant in violation of the Fourth Amendment, which guarantees "the right of the people to be secure in their persons . . . against unreasonable . . . seizures," the government should as a matter of fundamental fairness be obligated to return him to his status quo ante." United States v. Toscanino, 500 F.2d 267 (2d Cir. 1974)

"If the charges of government misconduct in kidnapping Toscanino and forcibly bringing him to the United States should be sustained, the foregoing principles would, as a matter of due process, entitle him to some relief. The allegations include corruption and bribery of a foreign official as well as kidnapping, accompanied by violence and brutality to the person* Deliberate misconduct on the part of United States agents, in violation not only of constitutional prohibitions but also of the federal Kidnapping Act, supra, and of two international treaties obligating the United States Government to respect the territorial sovereignty of Uruguay, is charged. See U.N. Charter, art. 2; O.A.S. Charter, art. 17. The conduct alleged here satisfies those tests articulated by the Supreme Court in its most recent "entrapment" decision, United States v. Russell, 411 U.S. 423, 93 S.Ct. 1637, 36 L.Ed.2d 366 (1973), where, in holding that due process did not bar prosecution for the manufacture and sale of an illegal drug, even though a government undercover agent had supplied a scarce chemical required for its synthesis, it noted that the government agent had violated no constitutional prohibition or federal law and had committed no crime in infiltrating the defendant's drug enterprise. It furthermore appeared that the type of undercover activity engaged in there by the agent was necessary in order to gather essential evidence. Here, in contrast, not only were several laws allegedly broken and crimes committed at the behest of government agents but the conduct was apparently unnecessary, as the extradition treaty between the United States and Uruguay, see 35 Stat. 2028, does not specifically exclude narcotics violations so that a representative of our government might have been able to conclude with Uruguay a special arrangement for Toscanino's extradition. That the Bill of Rights has extraterritorial application to the conduct abroad of federal agents directed against United States citizens is well settled. Reid v. Covert, 354 U.S. 1, 77 S.Ct. 1222, 1 L.Ed.2d 1148 (1957) (Fifth and Sixth Amendments); Balzac v. Puerto Rico, 258 U.S. 298, 312-313, 42 S.Ct. 343, 66 L.Ed. 627 (1922) (due process); Best v. United States, 184 F.2d 131, 138 (1st Cir.), cert. denied, 340 U.S. 939, 71 S.Ct. 480, 95 L.Ed. 677 (1950) (Fourth Amendment.)." United States v. Toscanino, 500 F.2d 267 (2d Cir. 1974)

"It is no answer to argue that the foreign country which is the situs of the search does not afford a procedure for issuance of a warrant. As the court pointed out in Best v. United States, supra at 138: "Obviously, Congress may not nullify the guarantees of the Fourth Amendment by the simple expedient of not empowering any judicial officer to act on an application for a warrant. If the search is one which would otherwise be unreasonable, and hence in violation of the Fourth Amendment, without the sanction of a search warrant, then in such a case, for lack of a warrant, no search could lawfully be made." 184 F.2d at 138. Even if a more relaxed interpretation were given to the term "unreasonable" as applied to an unauthorized search conducted by our government in Uruguay, appellant alleges that the search here was found to have violated the laws of that country, resulting in the arrest and conviction of the Uruguayan telephone employee hired by the United States Government for unlawful eavesdropping. Since appellant here alleges that he was the victim of unlawful wiretapping conducted at the direction of United States employees in violation of his constitutional rights, he was entitled to invoke 18 U.S.C. § 3504. The district court was obligated to direct the prosecutor to put his oral denial of the allegation in affidavit form, indicating which federal agencies had been checked and extending the denial not only to conversations of Toscanino but also to conversations of anyone else occurring on premises owned, leased or licensed by Toscanino. See Beverly v. United States, 468 F.2d 732 (5th Cir. 1972); In re Horn, 458 F.2d 468 (3d Cir. 1972); In re Grumbles, 453 F.2d 119 (3d Cir.), cert. denied, 406 U.S. 932, 92 S.Ct. 1806, 32 L.Ed.2d 134 (1971); In re Marx, 451 F.2d 466 (1st Cir. 1971). In the absence of such sworn written representations we are unable to affirm the denial of a hearing on Toscanino's wiretap allegations. Cf. In re Evans, 146 U.S.App. D.C. 310, 452 F.2d 1239 (1971), cert. denied, 408 U.S. 930, 92 S.Ct. 2479, 33 L.Ed.2d 342 (1972) (18 U.S.C. § 3504 is triggered by mere assertion that unlawful wiretapping has been used against a party)." United States v. Toscanino, 500 F.2d 267 (2d Cir. 1974)

The Fifth Circuit has ruled, twice, that a defense of governmental misconduct, which is separate and distinct from 'Entrapment,' may bar a criminal prosecution on due process grounds in United States v. Marcello, 508 F. Supp. 586 (E.D. La. 1981) (holding: governmental overreaching presents a cognizable and legitimate defense) and United States v. Graves, 556 F.2d 1319 (5th Cir. 1977), the court ruling that "[t]here is still available in appropriate cases a governmental misconduct defense grounded on the dual principles of due process and the supervisory powers of the court, but such a defense does not fall within the narrow confines of 'entrapment' as that term has been explicated in Russell and Hampton."

HILLARY CLINTON and SHINZO ABE MET ON September 19th, 2016.⁶⁷¹ PLAINTIFF alleges this was aiding and abetting after the fact and were accessories after the fact under 18 U.S.C. 1962(d), 18 U.S.C. 241, and 18 U.S.C. and were covering up what they did. As the Japanese PR stated about the incident: "Mr. Shinzo Abe, Prime Minister of Japan, who was visiting the United States of America, received a courtesy call from Ms. Hillary Rodham Clinton, former Secretary of State of the United States." So HILLARY CLINTON initiated it because she needed to ensure JAPAN would prosecute PLAINTIFF for JAPLAN. "The overview of the meeting is as follows: "At the beginning, Prime Minister Abe offered his condolences for the recent series of terrorist incidents, expressed his pleasure in meeting her again, conveyed his gratitude for being the first to support his initiative to realize a society in which all women shine and shared the thought that unleashing women's latent potential is essential for economic growth. Noting the severe security environment in the Asia-Pacific, Prime Minister Abe stated that he would like to further strengthen the Japan-U.S. Alliance in order to contribute both to the region and the world as an "Alliance of Hope."

1. In response, former Secretary of State Clinton voiced her happiness in meeting Prime Minister Abe to discuss important issues, and expressed her view that the Japan-U.S. relationship is important for regional and global peace and prosperity. She also stated that she would like to discuss a broad range of topics, including North Korea and maritime security, that she praises Prime Minister Abe's policies at empowering women and promoting women's active participation, and that she would like to hear about Abenomics as well. She thanked Prime Minister Abe for his words on the recent terrorist incidents, and stated that efforts to counter terrorism must be doubled.
2. The two sides exchanged views on a variety of topics, including ways to strengthen the Japan-U.S. Alliance as well as regional affairs such as North Korea, China and maritime issues. In addition, Prime Minister Abe raised the matter of the Trans-Pacific Partnership, and both reiterated their well-known respective positions on the issue.

PLAINTIFF hasn't been himself since Spring 2015. PLAINTIFF has contemplated suicide so many times because PLAINTIFF can't stand the way PLAINTIFF been treated by DEFENDANTS. PLAINTIFF won't kill himself, but PLAINTIFF wanted God to kill himself so many times. PLAINTIFF has had a part of himself permanently destroyed because of the US Federal Government. PLAINTIFF has suffered real and actual harm by DEFENDANTS for their sheer and gross and utter incompetence & deliberate and intentional harms done to me. When PLAINTIFF was a kid, PLAINTIFF would play with his HO Scale model train set to avoid the abuse experienced by his parents and brother or avoid upsetting and new situations because it was safe for PLAINTIFF because PLAINTIFF didn't understand social situations and rules and PLAINTIFF didn't have to interact with anyone. For nearly most days since Spring 2015, all PLAINTIFF has ever really wanted to do in his life is play with HO Scale trains.

Do you know what scares PLAINTIFF? The lengths certain DEFENDANTS will go to in order to harm their own citizens or allow the harm like this to take place. Furthermore, the conditioned fear PLAINTIFF has now in speaking anything at all. PLAINTIFF doesn't want to speak anymore type fear after having earned the ability to speak and throwing away all of that work that spanned three decades and effort just because of what happened. Nearly everything PLAINTIFF talked about with WARWICK ALLEN in our political musings became true; and it seems like every conversation PLAINTIFF ever had has been recorded from 2007 onwards in which all exculpatory evidence that would help me has been omitted and deleted in which PLAINTIFF is perpetually fucked. PLAINTIFF feels so bad that certain musings came true that PLAINTIFF don't want to even joke around anymore because somehow that joke will become true and that is what terrifies me. Yes, there are consequences for your speech, but not to the extent PLAINTIFF experienced it.

PLAINTIFF was treated sub-human and worse than a slave. Slaves got food and lodging for the work they did, slaves commonly understood the legal system in place and had an expectation of how the law was going to be enforced, and PLAINTIFF got blackmailed by the US Government because people got rich off of me and my story and ideas and have no realistic expectation that the law as written will be enforced the way it should. PLAINTIFF is somewhere between a plant and an animal on terms of rights and privileges that PLAINTIFF legally has and can enforce.

As a major refresher from earlier: But why continued. What are PLAINTIFF’S thoughts on this where he became a victim to three different terrorist activities committed by the United States Government. PLAINTIFF doesn’t know when, but there was a switch that was flipped in DC in which it was DC against the rest of America; that fellow Americans who posed no actual legitimate threat were the enemies. This mentality can be seen in PETER STRZOK since PETER STRZOK really hated PLAINTIFF and thought possibly PRESIDENT TRUMP would be on PETER STRZOK’S side when PETER STRZOK said: “This is unfortunate, because within that gap lies a story of personal and national bravery against a common enemy, taking place within a unique and storied⁶⁷² setting.”⁶⁷³ Unfortunately, it was PETER STRZOK’S mentality, probably in part derived from his time in the military, where he easily dehumanized people and never saw PLAINTIFF as a human being—PLAINTIFF was just a set of initials called MYE because of PLAINTIFF’S disability, never saw me as an individual with autism; just saw me as a crippled common enemy no better than a cockroach. Well, an American cockroach showed PLAINTIFF that it was far better deserving of respect and admiration than PETER STRZOK ever should be

It wasn’t truly until May 2016 that PLAINTIFF realized something was wrong with the ANGIE ORTIZ situation. PLAINTIFF will explain the situation in the next section of this addendum, but either the CIA, State, DOJ, or FBI gave Tracy Blanchard info about ANGIE ORTIZ.

JOHN O. BRENNAN wrote: “I had heard heart-wrenching stories of Agency officers who tearfully described how their professional opportunities and contributions within the CIA were constrained as a result of discrimination, harassment, or simple intolerance of their faith, race, ethnicity, physical disability, or sexual orientation. All of these people in D.C. are connected and are friends with one another. THESE RICO DEFENDANTS do not give a fuck about you--you need to learn and understand this. There’s really no changing the DC bubble because it has become too far entrenched with far too much power. What do you think JOHN O. BRENNAN thinks of PLAINTIFF’S story? Is it heart wrenching or heart-destroying? Does JOHN O. BRENNAN gleefully preside over what happened to PLAINTIFF or do you think he even cared when he authorized it (if he did)?

American Intel knew that PLAINTIFF was being blackmailed electronically and knew the self-harm PLAINTIFF would exhibit. That’s where it started from. They knew the torture they would inflict upon PLAINTIFF and how victims of torture act out afterwards because there is not a single person who went through what PLAINTIFF did not to be punished. They PLAINTIFF suffered and still has major trauma involving sex: Autistic self-harm. PLAINTIFF was tortured severely in 2015 by American Intel, British Intel, Indian Intel, and more. American Intel, British Intel, Indian Intel intentionally started to associate the concept of humiliation and computer screens. It burned itself in PLAINTIFF’S mind, eye, and soul. Then PLAINTIFF in an absolute state of obsession and compulsion in the thoughts of being tortured jacked off multiple times in 2016 in which every single intelligence agency had access to the camera and microphone and had installed cameras in PLAINTIFF’S room in which they kept torturing PLAINTIFF. It just reinforced their torture. They did that in 2015 involving degrading sex as a form of humiliation, they did it again in 2016 as a form of humiliation against PLAINTIFF; PLAINTIFF would argue that was forced and learned behavior caused by DEFENDANTS in which if PLAINTIFF was humiliated, he had to humiliate himself in front of an audience on a computer or in public; then DEFENDANTS put PLAINTIFF in an abusive home in which he had no privacy in which they kept watching and recording PLAINTIFF at all times of the day. The total degradation of PLAINTIFF never ceased from 2008, escalated in 2010, reached one of its zeniths in 2015 and 2016, and then PLAINTIFF would be placed in an extremely abusive home in which there was no time for PLAINTIFF to ever stop thinking he was not being tortured. American Intel, British Intel, Indian Intel, Qatari Intel, violated the Convention against Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment Article 1,2,3,10,13,14.

You know fucking what, this wouldn’t have happened unless DEFENDANTS didnt share all the information about PLAINTIFF amongst each other as a form of retaliation against PLAINTIFF.

Do you think I'm done talking about DOUBLE STANDARDS OF JUSTICE AND TREATMENT? HECK NO! All of the following instances are what PETER STRZOK testified to under oath to Congress.

#1 Eric Swalwell and Peter Strzok. The most outrageous. When asked why he didn't consider taking the 5th, PETER STRZOK testified: "I've done nothing wrong. Let me rephrase that, [laughs out loud...] when it comes to conduct or any action which would violate the law or a crime, absolutely, I've never done that". PETER STRZOK has no remorse for what he did or allowed to happen. Didn't think he was ever part of a RICO criminal enterprise. The quote below demonstrates who PETER STRZOK is as a man (and this man was shockingly given the full powers of the United States Government as the head of the Counterterrorism division at the FBI):

Mr. Swalwell. View on Scribd.com Eric Swalwell. I serve on House Intelligence and Judiciary Committees.

Mr. Strzok, do you regret the text messages that you sent to Ms. Page with respect to Mr. Trump?

Mr. Strzok. Very much I regret them.

Mr. Swalwell. Okay. Are you sorry that you had sent them?

Mr. Strzok. I'm sorry because of the -- I'm sorry because of the deep pain and suffering that they have caused my family. That's something I'll always regret. I regret the way that they've been used by some to turn into some sort of political weapon that they are not and the damage that has been done with that.

PETER STRZOK REGRETS THE WAY HIS OWN WORDS WERE TURNED INTO A POLITICAL WEAPON WHEN HE INTENDED HIS WORDS NOT TO BE AND THE DAMAGE THAT CAUSED; PETER STRZOK is a bitch-ass motherfucking hypocrite with no discernible appreciation of how his actions come off when PETER STRZOK allowed whatever to happen to me. HOW THE FUCK DO YOU THINK PLAINTIFF THINKS and FEELS WHEN DEFENDANTS INTENTIONALLY ALLOWED EVERYTHING ABOVE TO HAPPEN. SO WHEN IT HAPPENS TO THE FBI, IT BECOMES THE BIGGEST FUCKING TRAVESTY IN THE WORLD TO THEM; BUT WHEN THE FBI ALLOWS WAR CRIMES TO TAKE PLACE FOR CLINTON'S POLITICAL RETALITATORY PURPOSES, FUCK THAT SPECIAL NEEDS MAN PLAINTIFF. The cognitive dissonance between what was allowed to happen to me needs to be put in psychology books all across the country.....

Mr. Lieu. The text messages you wrote were to Lisa Page, correct?

Mr. Strzok. Yes, sir.

Mr. Lieu. They were not intended for public consumption, correct?

Mr. Strzok. That's correct.

Mr. Lieu. And so when my Republican colleague asked, well, could a reasonable person interpret this text message in so-and-so way, that is completely irrelevant, because the only person we're worried about is what did Lisa Page think and what did you think. Isn't that right?

Mr. Strzok. Yes, sir.

⁶⁷⁸ stipulations PLAINTIFF included about MKT Airlines & DEFENDANTS included there.

The more things change, the more they stay the same.

I must say because of my upbringing, I had once frowned down upon accommodations for disability issues in school. I made that known my first 1L year; yes PLAINTIFF was ignorant of disability issues for a long time and you'll find examples of such in my history. However, PLAINTIFF changed his mind because PLAINTIFF was in denial for so long about the importance of such. This came up my 1L/2L year.

Ashley Maiden. Ashley and PLAINTIFF met during PLAINTIFF'S second 1L year as a classmate. We started to become intimate in the Spring Semester of 2015. In this time, Ashley, Cherry Roberts Matherne, and PLAINTIFF were all in the same law school section. Ashley and PLAINTIFF had been sexually intimate--every single time Ashley and PLAINTIFF had sex it was consensual. Then around March or April 2015 Ashley was having some psychological problems/issues in which it seemed to be Bi-Polar depression. Through talking to Ashley, PLAINTIFF became immediately aware of risky sexual behavior and red flags for self-destructive behavior that included sex. PLAINTIFF stopped having sex with her in order for her to become healthy again (which can be seen in text messages that DEFENDANTS have) in which PLAINTIFF tried to become the best friend PLAINTIFF could be for her and support her anyway PLAINTIFF could to help her get through whatever episode she was going through during March and April 2015. There was a time where she went to the hospital and PLAINTIFF offered to bring her clothing and whatever she needed and she turned it down. PLAINTIFF was never physically abusive with Ashley. BUT DEFENDANTS and ASHLEY MAIDEN conspired against PLAINTIFF and furthered their RICO Enterprise against PLAINTIFF. DEFENDANTS had directed ASHLEY MAIDEN to spend the night by PLAINTIFF's house one night and wear an exact type of gown (silk) and color of gown (yellowish/beige) that PLAINTIFF'S grandmother wore in Financial Terrorism on that fateful night in November 2009. On that Spring 2015 night when ASHLEY MAIDEN spent the night by PLAINTIFF in which ASHLEY MAIDEN was wearing the gown, PLAINTIFF had a traumatic PTSD episode and put ASHLEY MAIDEN in the bathroom because he couldn't stand to see the sight of the gown.

DEFENDANTS paid ASHLEY MAIDEN to bring out and elicit in PLAINTIFF whatever behaviors they wanted repeated to establish so called PLAINTIFF'S pattern of repeat behavior. For example, PLAINTIFF came back from Japan in August 2015. Ashley specifically texted PLAINTIFF to come have sex with her via Snapchat. PLAINTIFF went to ASHLEY MAIDEN'S apartment and we had consensual sex. ASHLEY MAIDEN gained a lot of weight at this time. After we had sex, Ashley noted PLAINTIFF did better this time and PLAINTIFF had told her that he lost weight during his time in Japan. ASHLEY MAIDEN and PLAINTIFF were not considered boyfriend and girlfriend at the time and had established a friends-with-benefits situation. Then the following morning, PLAINTIFF went from her apartment and to PLAINTIFF'S car. In hindsight and in my opinion, US Intel knew they couldn't admit what happened into Japan as evidence since it was so maliciously obtained and tainted in Court based on the facts so I firmly believe in my soul and heart someone from the DC bubble and US Intel had talked to Ashley Maiden and prompted her on what to say to me for them to obtain evidence to utilize against me (in order to establish a pattern of behavior to falsely label me as a predator). Ashley Maiden never gave an answer to that question that I posed to her in the text message. I would not be surprised if Ashley Maiden received money to say things against me so that Justice and FBI could fabricate evidence to use against me at the behest of Hillary Clinton to prove what "happened" in Japan.

After that, ASHLEY MAIDEN and PLAINTIFF stop talking for a little bit and then we had a fight around October 2015 concerning disability issues. Tracy,

I got a problem and I don't know what to do. There aren't many times that things offend me, but this does. So there is a 2L at school that may file a request for extended time this semester. I have four levels of anger, annoyed, irritated, upset, and pissed off level, and right now, we are at the pissed off level, which for me is a damn rarity. The reason why I'm pissed is that she Cali'd a class during the summer (cali'd means that she had one of the top two scores on the final in the class) under normal testing conditions and now, she is on the verge of requesting extended time this semester. I specifically told her (I have proof of all the following) that extended time is there to level the playing field for everyone whereas she specifically stated her reason for requesting additional time was to get on the "same playing field of two particularly smart students (names withheld)" at the school. I specifically elaborated the difference in that attaining the same level playing field is there because of a specific medical condition and not because she wanted to be on the same intellectual level of those students and would exploit her 'disability' in order to do so. I told her I wasn't going to report her (to the law school), but did tell her that if she goes through and gets the request that I'd never talk to her again. I also told her how detrimental her actions are against those who truly have disabilities and how she'd be making a mockery out of the system for her own personal exploits. Her first name is Ashley, I don't know her last name, I think it is maiden.

Like I said, I don't know what to do, I don't want to report her because I said I wouldn't, but is there anything we can do to prevent that abuse of the system?

She has to show proof of a disability to gain extended time. Did she knowingly tell you she was trying to get extended time by pretending to have a disability?

she has a disability, but that isn't the point. the point is that she doesn't need extended time. she was taking medicine for her disability and under normal test time conditions, she can earn a grade that puts her in the top two of the class. the problem is the reason why she is doing it. she isn't doing it because it is medically necessary (like for me, my writing disability was one of the major reasons why I did so poorly my first year and I needed the time to get on the same level as everyone else) whereas she can do fine without extended time and is only doing it so she can be on the same intellectual level of two very smart students. she is gaining the system in order to get better grades when she doesn't need extended time (based on the fact she had an exam under normal conditions).

Side note: one of my videos from Tokyo has gone viral within the last ten days and it got over 360,000 views over the last ten days. I added subtitles and everything. <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=E6CcUj2mDbI>

It's not the issue of her lying about the disability; it's an unfair advantage she is gaining at the expense of those who truly have a medical disability that require extended time. I don't understand how a person who was taking medicine for her disability during the summer, earned a grade that put her in the top two of the class under normal testing conditions, and then claim she needs extended time because she feels mentally inferior to two other students and wants "to level the playing field amongst those two students" and not everyone at the school. Do you understand what I'm trying to describe?

Yes, but again I don't have any background on this student or what her issues may or may not be. I would really like to know if she is telling people that she is going to pursue accommodations based on something feigned. I understand your overall anger and we face this every day. It undermines all that we do. It is very disheartening but you cannot let it diminish what you have accomplished.

Thanks. Miki, you are a great student and I know you can do very well. Focus on you!!!! I don't like the other things happening either, but you are more important than that.

The point being, the FBI couldn't retaliate against me at this time (Fall of 2015) because it would have constituted retaliation for reporting an abuse of the disability system. It is my opinion and based on hindsight, that someone in the FBI told Ashley Maiden how to text me the following morning in August 2015 to have them label me as a predator that engaged in the same pattern of activity.

What Saved My Life.

In May 2016 I just couldn't hold my pain in anymore. I mean I'm not lying to you when I say I absolutely could not hold my pain in anymore because it literally started bubbling out on the exterior of my face (see pics below from early May 2016). I had never developed acne like that until May 2016. Furthermore to describe the emotional condition I was in early May and Middle May 2016, I sent Professor Brooks on August 2nd, 2016: "I really did think when I took my last final last semester, my career at school was done. Go ask Tracy Blanchard at disability services the complete emotional fucking disaster I was the last few times I saw her and how I really really did feel and believe I was finished at LSU Law. Also, I talked to two different students about it. I found some ways to deal with the trauma I experienced and I was doing okay until the first day DA Moore did what he did and that automatically made me relive what I went through in both April and May.”

This is how the incident began. In January 2016, LSU came out with code of conduct rule 5L. In late January 2016, I talked to the student government to express my concerns about the unconstitutionality of 5L. Then I’ll let this excerpt from an email I sent provide the factual history:

Let me set the factual record straight. I’ll never condone the usage of some words in some contexts where I wholeheartedly agree the person that said a certain word in a certain context absolutely deserves to “get knocked out.” THE WHOLE AND INITIAL REASON WHY THIS CAME ABOUT WAS BECAUSE OF 5L’S TEXT. This is to the best of my recollection as of March 28th about the events that took place between Jan 19th and Feb 6th. First, 5L was implemented. Then I sent a very calm and civil e-mail to Dean Corbett and Dean Carroll on Jan 19th voicing my concerns. I never received any response back from them on that. Then I posted the civil ‘starburst’ flyers only on their doors (maybe dean diamond as well). I never heard anything back from them. Then I sent another civil e-mail on Jan 25th with Professor Sautter and Church that included only one provocative point that I will never apologize for—when someone equates microaggressions to be on the same heinous level of violence AS RAPE (even I agree that person should be allowed to say that and not be punished for doing so, and with that, all of the scorn conceivable for equating microaggressions to rape). I heard nothing back from them. In that time, I also sent a snarky e-mail to show how susceptible to abuse 5L can be when a chancellor candidate said an innocuous statement in an open forum. Mind you, I was the one that suggested in a town hall meeting to allow for the open forums for students and faculty alike to assess the chancellor candidates.⁶⁷⁹ Then I posted the 9to5 Theses because I was left with no other option from an administration that wouldn’t take the time to send a single response back. Even after I posted the 9to5 Theses, I actually calmly, respectfully, and reasonably talked even into more detail of the issues I had with 5L (that I purposely included Dean Corbett and Dean Carroll in the email conversation) with Professor Richards, and I still did not hear anything back. Ask Professor Richards yourself if you don’t believe me, I was even willing to settle for an unconstitutional compromise for the school with 5L-- I heard nothing back. I was

CIVIL from the beginning. Let me ask, if you had a client that paid over $100,000 to your firm over the course of three years and a client sent at least SEVEN opportunities to hear something back from you over the course of at least two weeks, you would professionally and civilly expect a minimum of ONE sentence to be sent back, right?

I was/am always willing to work with the administration, but then I had to very slowly start to raise the pressure. Not because I had any remote desire in doing so, but because I didn't get any reasonable form of respect from the administration. I'd totally understand and absolutely agree if I started off 9to5 Theses from the very beginning that wouldn't be acceptable, but the FACTS are the complete opposite of what I did. BASED ON THE FACTS, why should I ever believe the Code of Civility would be something that is conducive and beneficial where I acted with the same standards set forth without ever having to resort to the 9to5 Theses when I couldn't get a single ounce of decency or civility deserved after paying more than $100,000 to go to school and by having the administration say: got your e-mail, saw your flyer, I will address this later, or anything like that. I got so frustrated offering opportunity after opportunity after opportunity for Dean Corbett and Dean Carroll to respond to my concerns with at least SEVEN opportunities within two weeks, I sought to file a declaratory judgment in court (but changed my mind not to while I'm still enrolled in school) is when I heard something back from Dean Corbett. Why is it that I had to go through being civil, to uncivil, and then to seeking a declaratory judgment JUST to get a response back? If civility mattered at all before, why did it take so long and under such extreme circumstances to hear anything back? I absolutely would have never resorted to such drastic measures if the code of civility was the standard the administration adheres to when it comes to responding back to people who have legitimate concerns seeing how I pay them to represent MY CONSTITUTIONAL INTERESTS AS WELL. Is paying over $100,000 not enough to warrant a response? Even if and when I have the epitome of a scumbag client and if they try to get in contact with me at least SEVEN times over a 2 week span, anyone still deserves a response--even if it is just "I'll get back to you." Let alone my standard of talking to them and addressing their concerns in a civil, but distant, manner because they are human too.

In the course of the Free Speech battle against LSU Law, LSU Law finds me guilty of sexual harassment in the first two weeks of February 2016. They do not specify who I committed a Title IX violation against; they don't specify the incident they found me guilty of. For all intents and purposes, it is just a finding of guilty of some violation that will be used against me.

Justice and FBI could fabricate evidence to use against me at the behest of Hillary Clinton to prove what “happened” in Japan, so they could use the evidence that my school found me guilty of sexual harassment to use against me to falsely label me as a predator.

Part of my frustration that came from Spring 2016 was the fact that I literally gave law school professors case law and text from cases that verbatim legally proved why 5L was illegal and unconstitutional. I want to repeat that again. I literally and legally demonstrated to law school professors and the law school administration that what they did was illegal and unconstitutional. It's their actions that made my frustration worse. Throughout my two 1L years and 2L year, what I knew is that you have to have the proper respect for the law. That in the course of teaching the law, the most basic and simple lesson that should be learned is that no one is above the law, especially law school bureaucrats and administrators. I learned that lesson, understood that lesson, but the very same people that spent so much time teaching that didn't really believe it. It was the fact that law school professors and especially the law school administration through their actions thought they were above the Constitution. What kind of lesson was that teaching my fellow law school students and I? That bureaucracies and unconstitutional actions by state actors should be tolerated because that bureaucracy arbitrarily and capriciously believes they're above the Constitution? Fuck that. That's not a lesson any law school student should ever learn and I didn't go to law school to learn that. And neither did you.

On February 11th, 2016 I wrote to Professor Richards in regards to the April 4th, 2011 DCL:

I don't expect you to answer to the following (i'll let you know when I do), but these are merely my impressions that I would need more facts to substantiate, maybe they're correct, wrong, or some combo of the two, but I'm not going to let it concern me or the administration anymore because I actually need to fucking graduate. This would be exactly like if we had a conversation we had at a bar (which we couldn't do because of conflicts in our schedule), just shootin' shit and I have the expectation for the both of us that absolutely nothing said here leaves this conversation between you and I, and we continue to be merry, continue our academic careers, let the DoE and administration to continue to do it's thing, and know what I'm about to say may not be reflective of the school in any manner. Based on that letter and the circumstances revolving around the school, this is the impression, not factual assertion, just impression and shouldn't be regarded as anything else but as an impression that i'm more than willing to find out more about if the right circumstances arise (but I don't think that will be so).

There is a major uncertainty revolving around the financial situation of our school because somebody bet the price of oil was going to remain above $75 per barrel, the rapid descent of quality of applicants and lowered ranking because of the money issue and law school not being a feasible choice to applicants, the school held out too long for standing up for the law and caved in that egregious pressure by the OCR completely disregarding the law and entrenching themselves in bureaucratic bullshit on some sort of power trip of either just power tripping and/or social justice warrioriness because that is currently "what's hot and progressive" in the social world,⁶⁸⁰ the school not having any resources to fight off an attack from the Department of Education and a very realistic probability of losing more money from the Department of Education if they continued to be a hold out, the Ken-Barnes and/or other related incidents, Former Chancellor Weiss probably prohibiting any implementation of 5L because he understood the First Amendment abridgment of it with it's currently phraseology, kicked his ass to the curb because many in the faculty believed the value of standing up for constitutional rights was nowhere near the value of fighting and standing up against the Department of Education, OCR, and other stupid fucking fads and social pressure that are unbelievably more racist and cause more problems but have to be done to seem progressive to allure students to the school, Cheney Joe the last hold out died and maybe i'm reading too much into it and this is the part of me that is still dealing with his loss, but even he knew from before because i'm assuming that when he was here (may god bless his soul) before my time at the school and ken barnes' time at the school the overt oral racism was far worse than it was today at the school and there is the idealistic part of me that hopes that maybe cheny joe knew you cant stop hate by implementing unconstitutional rules in the code of student conduct at the law center, and it was only after showing Weiss to the door for being too stubborn and not caving into the OCR, social, and financial pressure of addressing incidents like Ken Barnes, and Cheney Joe passing away is when 5L got implemented.

It won't be changed for a while because it's easier to kick out a student for being posting-- falsely labeling mind you-- "offensive and harassing material" even though all the fucking shit he posted was constitutionally protected speech and that student is absolutely fucking livid--and ashamed of the standards the administration is putting out even though he knows the administrators are much more capable of what their draftsmanship reflects--, livid about the vague intent requirement (due process violation), the applicability of the rule to outside situations and was only written that way because of the shit that was happening in page 3 (#4 and #5), the vagueness and plurality of person(s) and student(s) to cover the school's ass even though that fucking violates cohen v. california, and the wisconsin case that effectively dictates stare decisis applies because they are the same damn facts and language and it doesn't matter if it is a district court decision, and all of protesting and the correct legal analysis of the fighting words doctrine and 1st amendment cases doesn't fucking matter because OCR is fucking tripping and with the failure of the school to provide any meaningful context or actually releasing any information pertinent to the implementation of 5L, doing so would effectively provide fuel if the OCR and DoE who probably are extremely comparable to a pyromaniac version of: <https://i.ytimg.com/vi/2q3pS9TJqhU/maxresdefault.jpg> (from who framed roger rabbit) sets fire to our school, and that student's pressure is putting the school between a rock and even a harder place even though that student has standing to sue because of not only is there a reasonable fear of facing punishment for protesting (chilling effect) the rule, but has effectively ⁶⁸⁰ I'm making this footnote for me and some people that may be reading this later that demonstrates my 2e skill of extraordinary perceptions and/or abilities in one or more areas: "egregious pressure by the OCR completely disregarding the law and entrenching themselves in bureaucratic bullshit on some sort of power trip of either just power tripping and/or social justice warrioriness because that is currently "what's hot and progressive" in the social world." OSI.

been told not to post any offensive material⁶⁸¹ (censorship), and the school has no idea how to react because that student's creative ability to push the fucking line, connect concepts like Dolly Parton to Martin Luther, and raise hell to such an unfathomable degree over the constitutional abridgment of guaranteed rights is remarkable and the administration is praying to God his furor over the unjust implementation of 5L stops because even though he is accurate on his legal analysis THE VALUE of fighting for rights doesnt matter when the school is in financial free fall facing threats from the super capricious DoE. That seems to sum it up for me. That student will stop because it is what is best for the school only since they gave that student a chance to come back for the second time and actually having a professor talk to that student about his concerns and not because that student would ideally want the school to grow some fucking balls and stand up for what is right because rights dont mean shit if you arent willing to sacrifice your best interests for them.⁶⁸²

What can we do to ensure constitutional rights are not abridged within administrative world.

You need to add the second assumption – without destroying the agency’s ability to protect the public’s interest. Otherwise you just use the libertarian approach and say that we should not have government. My answer is the same as this morning – either trust us to be good actors or so constrain us that we do nothing.

The state’s financial problems are only a little bit about oil and a lot about cutting taxes below sustainable levels. It started with Blanco, but really got underway with Jindal after Katrina. He pointed to the huge budget surplus and get taxes cut to eliminate it. Of course it was the federal pass through for Katrina rebuilding and when it went away, we had a $1billion or better hole in the budget.

The school’s problems are largely financial. 8 years ago we were the low cost player in the market because we had about 2.5x state money. That meant we had lower tuition in the market

⁶⁸¹ Not to post any offensive material such as Dolly Parton’s 9to5Theses—“Examples of hostile environment harassment include derogatory posters” that is a cue in the environment in which “any opinions so formed were conclusion as to facts, and not merely an underlying philosophy or a crystallized point of view on questions of law or policy that has an individual decision maker who made public statements that demonstrated that she had prejudged the facts” and that let us recruit good students from both in and out of state. As the state money disappeared and the legislature raised our tuition, we became the highest cost public law school in the market, while the private schools started matching our offers to out of state students. They could do this because our out of state tuition was close enough to their level that they could match it and our scholarship offers and still make money.

Out of state students just did the math – they could go to better ranked schools for the same money as LSU. We did not want to drop our admission standards too much because we do not want to go back to flunking out a bunch of students, which was our secret sauce for high bar pass rates before we had admission standards.

Get yourself graduated and quit worrying about this. For the near future, all of us will be focused on keeping the doors open and not 5L.

I'm going to tell you a story, it happened in 2012 (with relevant context info provided), it has a very important point, just hold on.

I drove a VW Jetta with Illinois license plates in Macedonia (grandparents live over there and it was their car). One out of every maybe 4 or 5 times I drove, I got pulled over for Driving While American. What would typically happen is that a cop car would be sitting on the side of the road, a police officer standing outside his car (no lights or anything, just a parked) with a walkie talkie in hand specifically looking for foreign cars with foreign license plates because that is their primary source of revenue. What would be a jackpot to those officers is seeing a car with american license plates, which is completely 100% legal to have over there. There is a very common stereotype that most Balkaners have of Americans--that all americans have the same intelligence of an average walmart shopper and quite literally are stupid rich. So about 50 meters or so ahead, another cop car would be parked with a police officer having a little sign waving you to pull over.

One time, probably one the most memorable, saw a cop with a walkie talkie, his face glowed with glee when he saw me and my car and I immediately knew i was going to get pulled over. Sure enough, 50 meters ahead, another cop waving me in. The officer knocks on my window, and in purposely broken Macedonian, say to the effect of "sorry, english only" and then I get out of car. That officer's face also glowed with glee. That officer got his walkie talkie out and said in macedonian "we got a good one, come here. he only knows english." Sure enough, that first cop car pulls up and he gets out. The officer informed me that the reason why "he stop me because your car has no macedonian license plate, not okay to have american license plate in Macedonia, only okay to have macedonian plate only. It is very big problem where we take car and you (points at me) to jail." I faked looking shocked, waited about five seconds, and then saw a car with german license plates passing by, jumped up in the air, shouted at the top of my lungs

"Gerrrrmmannnyyyyyyyyy" (in Macedonian), then pointed at another and did the same and shouted "Serbbiiaaaa", and I did not stop this for the next minute pointing and shouting the corresponding countries name to that car's license plate. The officers were shocked and silent, more dumbfounded than anything. I said some angry things that called them out on trying to rip off americans, and got in the car and left.

How does that involve me you're asking. good question. People are the same everywhere. the thing about that story is that it involved governmental actors in some capacity or another, sure their "purpose was for the public good" and the public order, the thing is they were not really accountable for their actions. They knew they could consolidate and enlarge their power based on the ignorance or apathy of the people and are rewarded only for fulfilling the needs and interests of their organization and not the people's interest. Based primarily on those experiences, I dont give a shit about intention, I only care about capability and actions. My automatic bullshit detector red warning alert goes up when it comes to the actions of people that have no sources of accountability that implement rules that are vague, written by incorporating the text of DEFUNCT LEGAL CONCEPTS⁶⁸³ (can you imagine putting the 18th amendment back in the code of student conduct in LSU, same principle involved). People are prone to abuse and I dont have the faith that even based on the current craziness the DoE is implementing, that particular craziness won't spill over and will require the school to punish someone under 5L with that rule being available. Its exactly like cops who say they need MRAPS and Military Gear because of "terrorists", and assure people to trust them and wont use it.but actually once they get it they'll use military gear against citizens in situations where the use of those would never be warranted because those cops have the attitude of "fuck you, we have that shit available to us, thats why we'll use it whenever we see fit." we just had a good faith belief it was there to protect the people's interest.

See I overcame three language disabilities. I DIDNT HAVE THE ABILITY TO EXPRESS, I HAD TO EARN THE ABILITY. Do you know what it is like not have something so important as having the ability to express yourself. I want you to experience this. For two days during this upcoming weekend, let alone being a child who couldnt, do not communicate at all--neither in verbal or written form, just physical gestures (no sign language). Just try it, see what it is like. See what no one can really fathom and where I'm coming from is that where it took you say five minutes to learn a word, it took me fifteen minutes to do the same. I specifically had to pay attention to every single word, take more time to process what that word meant, and then consider the context, and then make sure a sentence actually contains the proper structure and organization that would make it a sentence.

Why I am still so fucking frustrated with you and the administration and a huge source of my furor is the word person(s) in 5L. Do you know that I find it demeaning as shit (ironic I know) not only to me, but to everyone in the administration that I have to provide a dictionary definition for the word person <http://dictionary.reference.com/browse/person?s=t>, it is figuratively driving me insane of how any law faculty can say with a straight face that "persons" doesn't mean everyone. if person means human being, how persons wouldnt be human beings and how the hell ⁶⁸³ You know defunct legal concepts like whoever uses or utters any obscene or licentious language or words in the presence or hearing of any female is guilty of public indecency because the crime is complete when certain language that is obscene or licentious per se is uttered in the presence or hearing of a female.

the reading of 5L wouldn't be: knowingly communicate to any specifically identifiable human beings. Do you know I found it insulting as shit for you to even suggest that human beings can be argued to be the same as the singular version of saying student, faculty, or staff member at the law center. It's so fucking insulting because there are over 7,000,000,000+ human beings in the world and less than 350 or so student faculty or staff member at the law center, a difference of at least 6,999,999,650 people and even though I was ready to compromise and say that somehow 350 or so people at the law center is the same as the singular of ONE person, (directed at the hearer as per Cohen v. California), not a bloody seven billion people in the world. That's when I ask, am I being unreasonable. Am I being unreasonable in seeking a compromise that still violates stare decisis and would leave the administration alone. Actually I am, the most reasonable thing is to have the administration follow stare decisis because no one is above the law.

Let me ask you, be honest. how good would a lawyer be if they were told to have faith in something when that something: mislabeled speech and thoroughly failed to actually address constitutional concerns of someone that clearly gives a damn and was censored, says the capricious distinction of not actually prosecuting anyone yet is important even though its new (same type of logic was argued by the state of CT in griswold v CT, not acceptable that because it may not be used but merely having it makes it unacceptable), insults the intelligence that any reasonable person has in reading the word "persons," having ulterior motives for implementing 5L because it is wildly clear 5L wasn't meant to safeguard the rights of others because if they were told that trying to repeal a rule that is unequivocally unconstitutional that the lawyer's "rights of expression are not protected under the First Amendment without regard to the rights of others" and never once explicitly mentioning the truth that everyone has 1st amendment rights without regard to what a few racist or offensive assholes have said because of their ignorant racism or hatred. I mean Jesus Christ, puppy crushing videos are a-okay on scotus precedent, but we're going to draw the line of puppy crushing videos, nazis marching through a predominantly Jewish town, protesting a soldier's funeral as being more deserving of first amendment protection than demeaning any specifically identifiable human being that a student whom overheard it could construe as demeaning that could lead towards fisticuffs for that specifically identifiable human being in the world? come on.

I don't care about an open door policy, the only damn thing I care about is how the administration can continue to justify its decision with the reckless disregard of stare decisis and phrasing the issue of hindering the ability to protect a public's interest without actually acknowledging how their actions don't take into account stare decisis and the law and how the law and SCOTUS precedent ARE THE VERY DAMN THINGS THAT TAKE into account of how one should deal with protecting the people's interest with their fundamental constitutional civil rights. I hold no person(s) entity to be above the law. I am a libertarian (surprise). Apparently I'm crazy for thinking law school administrators need to be held accountable under the same laws they teach students in their classes. I'm just so fucking done with this. literally going to drive me crazy if I keep talking about it.

You think about law like is physics or engineering. I understand that, I came from that world before I got into law. It took me a long time, long past law school, to accept that when we say the law is not about truth, we mean it. It is a political, cultural process. You cannot create good behavior with rigid rules – what is the old saying, due process will be rigidly observed in Hell? Your story illustrates the point – if the culture supports improper behavior, behavior that is against the rules, the rules do not matter. Rules can work at the extremes, but the extreme in this case is that we do nothing. That letter I forwarded you gives a sense that the law schools are resistant to the DOE craziness. It is not in our culture to do this particular wrong thing and that is the best you get in the real world.

You have to get past thinking that law is like physics and the law and principles drive the system. You will not do a good job for your clients and when you want to fight for something, you will be less effective. It was very frustrating to me when I was in practice and was one of the reasons why I left practice for teaching.

Read Clarence Darrow's autobiography. He was brilliant lawyer who fought for rights of anarchists and murders and some good people as well, but he was a complex and interesting man. He understood how to make the system work for his clients, while having deep principles:

I will say that there are certain scenarios in which the police using military gear is appropriate, but they are so rare. It is obviously a great and necessary thing for cops and police to maintain public order and to prevent acts of terrorism. From this set of emails and another one I sent to Tracy, I wanted to stop the escalation in late February 2016 and two people most definitely knew I wanted to stop the escalation, but I was brought right back into it in March. Like I said in the previous string of emails, one of the things that bothered me the most was that whatever is being thought on college campuses eventually makes it's way into the "real world." So that lesson of learning to be compliant and tolerant of bureaucracies and unconstitutional actions by state actors because they (and the bureaucracy) arbitrarily and capriciously believe they're above the Constitution eventually makes it's way into the real world.

Tracy,

I hope you are doing well. I'm doing so-so right now. Just as a heads up, I may have to get an operation in April, and if I do, I'm going to be on the verge of that limit of allowable absences at school. That is not the primary reason why I'm writing to you. This is going to take a while to explain, so bear with me because it has been really troubling to me.

In Jan of this year, the law center passed a rule that was added to the code of student conduct, Rule 5L. I've been protesting the hell out of the rule because it really is unconstitutional: violates free speech (which is what I was arguing for a long time) and then I was doing research because someone at school said it was made to supplement the sexual harassment policy and I wanted to see how 5L and the sexual harassment policy at the law center/lsu interacted. Side note: yes I won't let this distract me from my studies J

When it comes to these type of things (sexual harassment), it is a title vii or ix violation. And since it would be a title violation, the Department of Education's office of civil rights (OCR) is involved. Basically the school has to implement what the OCR says.

Former LSU Professor Buchanan is suing the school for violating her free speech rights because of the sexual harassment policy at LSU. Her lawyers said this: LSU's policy defines sexual harassment as "unwelcome verbal, visual, or physical behavior of a sexual nature," mirroring the language of the sexual harassment definition propagated by the U.S. Departments of Education and Justice in 2013 as "a blueprint for colleges and universities throughout the country." Here is the link for the blueprint. <http://www.justice.gov/sites/default/files/opa/legacy/2013/05/09/um-ltr-findings.pdf>

But how does this affect Disabled people? Perfect question! OCR also sent this letter to every school <http://biotech.law.lsu.edu/blog/colleague-201104.pdf>, in 2011, and since LSU is a college, they received it. The Department of Education Office of Civil Rights is telling LSU based on that letter (which is still valid) how LSU should treat disabled people when it comes to any title violations. If you read on the first page, it says this sentence: "An individual also may be unable to give consent due to an intellectual or other disability."

It makes perfect sense to read that sentence in two ways because of the inclusion of "or." First way: an individual also may be unable to give consent due to an intellectual disability (they changed mentally retarded to intellectual disabled right?), obviously, mentally retarded people are unable to do that so I wholeheartedly agree. Now here is the issue. The second way is: "an individual also may be unable to give consent due to an other disability."

Tracy, forgive my lack of filter here, but gender doesn't matter here. If I heard someone whom I was about to have sex with say "I may be unable to give consent," I would run butt naked out of that door so quick.

The thing is Tracy: nowhere within that letter or any consequent letters is "other disability" explicitly defined. The only thing that came close to defining it was when the letter from 2011 cited a study <http://www.bjs.gov/content/pub/pdf/capd08.pdf> on page 6, Table 11, that came close to defining what exactly other disability meant. Since this obviously involves federal rights, maybe a good way to define “other disability” is any other disability that isn’t intellectual disability that is recognized by the Americans with Disabilities Act.

The thing that upset me the most is the implications for my friends and those I love down here. Anytime a man smacked me in the butt while playing sports, I may not have been able to give consent and that’s sexual assault. Anytime I got really excited and give a woman a hug (that good bear hug where both bodies press together) and because I may have been unable to consent, department of education ocr says that friend sexually assaulted me because I felt her breasts against my body when I didn’t consent. Tracy this is madness. I cant think of any other way to start modern eugenics than this way. This is so damn discriminatory its not even funny. How many people are qualified under the ADA at LSU that had sex with fellow students? Even though both parties were sober and verbally consented, Department of Education OCR says that is rape because there is no damn way to know if someone “may have been unable” to give consent because of an other disability. Who in their right mind would ever risk being permanently expelled if they knew having sex with someone who is disabled would constitute rape?!

I have been unable to stop shaking thinking of the implications of that and how it would ruin anyone who saw a person for who they truly are beyond their disability.

But don’t take my word for it: when LSU’s sexual harassment policy defines these actions as being ones that warrant a hostile place, there is a major cause for concern: as unwelcome touching, discussion of any feminist art (display of sexually oriented materials) that protested women being depicted only as objects in photos, as constituting sexual harassment, and just add on top of that consensual sex with a disabled person who may have been unable to give consent, holy shit, I’m fucking freaking out because there is absolutely no way that is acceptable.

I just want you to know I expect this to stay between us.

It is really serious. My cholesterol levels are really high, I'm on the verge of developing cirrhosis of the liver because of how fat I am, and close to becoming diabetic. I may have to get either my stomach stapled or have 80% of it removed. I've been trying desperately to lose weight because I really really dont want to resort to either getting it stapled or removed. My insurance ends on April 28th of this year, gotta love that age 26 limit, so i have about two months left of insurance. Here is the thing, Tracy, I'm being dead serious (pun kinda intended?), I'd rather crawl ghost face white into class because I absolutely do not want to give the law center an excuse to kick me out. Let me explain.

I gotta let you know surrounding details to make sense of everything.

You know how I had to work hard to change so much to get where I am today right? Sidenote: you ever see this: <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=QnengDT0vVA> , it is a video i made for two reasons because I know potential employers are going to google my name. First, Primary Reason: no matter what I will do to try to hide it, I am disabled, a deep internet search can reveal posts of me helping people by letting them my story and how I am disabled. So this means since it is out there on the internet, its up forever-- so I'm just going to show what I did can be a really good positive thing for an employer.

But back to it.

So I had to work hard and do things to make change happen around me right. Figuratively, personally, and literally, the last year and a half has been killing me because I havent been doing any type of change (good kind). I gained a lot of weight, and just not happy. Then I watched the Japanese movie called Ikiru. The protagonist, a bureaucrat, develops stomach cancer and is given 6 months to live. I'm not going to spoil the rest of the movie, i highly recommend you watch it <http://www.rottentomatoes.com/m/ikiru/>. The protagonist came to realize that for the last 20 years, he was busy for the sake of being busy. Thats exactly what I felt for the last year and a half. Based on where I was going health wise, can you imagine how much worse it would have gotten? Before I say anything else, I am okay, I promise you, if it ever got to that point, I'd check myself in and start going to psych services--kind of close, not really.

So i've been thinking a lot of where I am and what I am doing--prioritizing whats the most important for me health wise. I look at it this way: since I dont have a time machine, there is no reason for me to regret things because if I regret things always, it's as though I think i can still change something that happened in the past. If i'm not happy doing what I think is best at this moment, then why am I living life then? So I've been pushing hard, really conducted myself in a questionable manner by posting flyers, protesting the implementation of the new rule the law center put in. I just will distribute one more flyer because we're almost in March, it's going to distract me from studying and prioritizing school. Whatever work I'm behind in now, I will catch up on during the weekend when I fly out to chicago on thursday (to go see doctors).

I'm okay I promise.

I wanted to ask your opinion on something, let me know what you think of it.

--Miki

There will be crude jokes, i was originally writing this and thinking about distributing to the students, but it wouldnt work because the harassment policy compared to the undergrad campus and the law center's are different. Umm I know this is only applicable to the undergrads, but I'm more curious to see if I started to fully understand everything and if I understand the real life consequences of what I learn in class. Actually it is really hard for me to understand something if I cant see it in practice you know.. you saw some parts from before. this stays between us, but mainly, I just want to see if i understood the administrative law aspect side of it.

TITLE IX, The Disabled, and Sexual Harassment.

Things I need to mention: I have to acknowledge this really puts me in a precarious position of trying to protect the disabled, but also protecting friends and family. It'll get really paradoxical. The problem with really super vague but well intentioned rules are the susceptibility to how likely they'll be abused for ulterior motives. Most importantly, my criticisms are only attacking: the ambiguity of the text concerning the disabled and consent when OCR issued directives to schools without any clarifications, OCR only using "a more likely than not standard" which even feminist law professors have critiqued, and OCR disregarding Supreme Court Precedent in Davis v. Monroe County School Board concerning Title VII Harassment and the implications of doing so.

The Department of Education's Office of Civil Rights wrote a Dear Colleague Letter on April 4th, 2011 (hereon: the letter). These letters are not actual "law." Schools are essentially forced to follow the DCLs text verbatim so as not to warrant an investigation and lose federal money because they have to meet those "obligations." It is reasonable to assume LSU and/or the Law Center received the letter since the letter was created "In order to assist recipients, which include school districts, colleges, and universities in meeting these obligations..." Just as an FYI: A dear colleague letter (DCL) is an administrative decision not held to be on the same level as a 'law' because it is a directive. So notice and a hearing wouldn't apply under 553a. However, a substantive rule/directive that affects individual rights and obligations under Chrysler Corp v. Brown, would require a notice and comment hearing. Since the letter was only a directive, not a rule, the so called last line of defense, OIRA, would have not been able to provide any guidance. The letter's topic: Title IX and Sexual Harassment policy.

There is a sentence on the first page of the letter that struck a very personal chord with me because I am disabled and was in Special Ed. The sentence says: "An individual also may be unable to give consent due to an intellectual or other disability." First, I want to acknowledge that first counterargument that immediately comes to everyone mind: "Oh you have to look at it in it's context, it means anyone who is mentally retarded or something like that, lacks the mental capacity to consent because of their disability, etc," Let us first grant this counter-argument so I can dismiss it by utterly destroying it throughout. Do you see the difference between: "lacks the mental capacity to consent because of their disability" as compared to "may be unable to give consent due to an intellectual or other disability." What you did when you initially read my counter-argument is that you agreed with my explicitly written statement when I explicitly wrote: “lacks the mental capacity to consent because of their disability.” You didn’t actually agree with OCR’s text, you agreed with an interpretation of OCR’s text without acknowledging what OCR’s actual text is. As I’ll also show, it is a really really bad idea to trust the OCR to allow them to intrep things the way they see fit for everyone at LSU. Although, my explicit statement and OCR’s the sentence may initially appear to be similar, the major implications that arise from the textual differences is really a big fucking deal.

The sentence has to be read in one of two ways because of the inclusion of “or.” The first way: an individual also may be unable to give consent due to an intellectual disability. From what I understand, mental retardation was switched from mental retardation to intellectual disability within the administrative world. As I’ll show later, even this assumption is suspect. Obviously very reasonable to say a mentally retarded person may not be able to give consent. Now, this is where things turn for the worse.

The second way the sentence has to be read is: “an individual also may be unable to give consent due to an other disability.” (hereon: the sentence). There are two troubling parts: “also may be unable to give consent” and “other disability.” I hate the phrase “also may be unable to.” I just need one hypothetical for this explanation: If you were making out with a partner, both of you naked, what would you do when your partner leaned in, and whispered: “I also may be unable to give consent...” I sure as hell know I wouldn’t be the only one that jumped butt ass naked out of that window so quick and ran down the street shouting “helllll nnnoooo.” What we know in that scenario is the interaction between two people and how that partner did not give clear consent because the content of what that partner said contained substantial possibilities as to prove doubt in giving consent. So, you all would agree: possibilities that reasonably bring doubt into a person’s mind if consent was given really really really matters, right? More on this later. Then in my mind, I said to myself: “calm down, you’re just over reacting to the text of the sentence. I’m sure there has to be clarification behind it because the text came from the Department of Education Office of Civil Rights and I would believe they would know how to clarify how and when this applies because it implicates a lot of different rights.” Wrong.

First, I looked for an explicit clarification as to what type of disabilities would be included in the sentence when it said “other disability.” There was absolutely nothing that explicitly stated in the letter that clarified what “other disability” meant, let alone actually defining disability in the letter. Furthermore, not even in OCR’s Dear Colleague Letter written on July 25th, 2000 that directly addresses disability harassment does it actually define disability. But at the same time, no one within any other administrative agency could have stopped the letter had no notice-hearing, appears to have been drafted all internally, OIRCA didn’t overview it, so lite. “If the OCR was not going to define “other disability” explicitly,” I thought, “how can I reasonably ascertain what “other disability” meant?”

Then I looked at the letter itself. In a chronological order, these were the only sentences that referred to disabilities: “An individual also may be unable to give consent due to an intellectual or other disability... “Additionally, the likelihood that a woman with intellectual disabilities will be sexually assaulted is estimated to be significantly higher than the general population.” The likelihood statement was cited from a US Dept of Justice study-- Bureau of Justice Statistics December 2010, National Crime Victimization Survey, 2008 Crime Against People with Disabilities, 2008-- concerning violence against the disabled. I excluded the following sentence from an analysis because it discussed if an: alleged perpetrator is an elementary or secondary student with a disability,” and wouldn’t apply here because that involves minors (we’re only talking about adults here) and it didn’t define disability.

Before I talk about the US Dept of Justice study, I want to point out the first of two things that really piss me off how the OCR conducted themselves by issuing this directive. This is the first part. In the letter itself, the first part that was brought to our attention that concerned the disabled was a disabled person’s possible inability to consent because of their status of being disabled. But to later justify their reason for doing so based on gender as to exclude half of disabled people as a whole citing a study where that very same study would have unequivocally gave the OCR a justifiable reason to include just two motherfucking words and have the sentence read this way: “Additionally, the likelihood women and men with intellectual disabilities will be sexually assaulted is estimated to be significantly higher than the general population” is utterly unacceptable from a department that is supposed to protect the rights of disabled people like myself.

Now the DOJ study. If OCR cited the DOJ study, then maybe there can be some clarification. I went to see how the DOJ defined disability. The DOJ defined disability as: “In this report, disability is defined as a sensory, physical, mental, or emotional condition lasting 6 months or longer that makes it difficult for a person to perform activities of daily living. There were six types of disabilities identified: Hearing (deafness or serious difficulty hearing); Vision (blindness or serious difficulty seeing); Cognitive (includes serious difficulty in concentrating, remembering, or making decisions because of a physical, mental, or emotional condition.); Ambulatory (difficulty walking or climbing stairs.); Self-care.” Finally, we’re getting somewhere! So together, if the sentence was read when “other disabilities” is substituted with the DOJ definition, it would be the following. “An individual also may be unable to give consent due to an intellectual or [Insert DOJ’s definition here] disability. Furthermore, it is be pretty factually similar if instead of the DOJ definition, you substituted the DOJ definition of disability with the definition of disability under the American with Disabilities Act, the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act, or Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act.

That can’t be the only clarification, you’re right. Under the revised guidance OCR Sexual Harassment Guidance 1997, it deals with: cases involving older secondary students, the OCR would consider a number of factors in assessing sexual harassment and if it was welcoming, and one of those factors included disability!

Whether the student was legally or practically unable to consent to the sexual conduct in question...example, a student’s age could affect his or her ability to do so. Similarly, certain types of disabilities could affect a student’s ability to do so.

Ahhhhh damn it. COULD AFFECT!!?! Come on!!! We only have two sentences that provides some clarification: “An individual also may be unable to give consent due to an intellectual or other disability” and “certain types of disabilities could affect a student’s ability to do so.” For instance, legally speaking, we know a student's age can affect consent because there are Romeo and Juliet Laws and laws that explicitly state the age of consent for the state— they are defined situations.

Dear OCR: when you say someone may be practically unable to do something, you know that is the very definition of being disabled, right? I don't understand why i have to point out something so obvious and why the hell you have that type of redundancy. Here is the Second thing the OCR did to piss me off. What a lot of people assume, and OCR assumed to as well, is that having a certain disability only affects a person in that certain way. That is so far from the truth. Disabilities reach so far into realms and areas otherwise not associated with a particular type of disability. Simply, A disability affects everything. For instance, a blind person will never be able to taste a good-looking dish. Think about it. When you're at a restaurant today, what do a lot of people our age do: take pictures of their good-looking food and post it on instagram/send a snapchat.

Sidenote: No I don't want snapchats of your damn food. Every time you send me a snapchat of food, I'll respond back with the most mundane things ever, like a wheel of an office chair, a twig, or a blank sheet of notebook paper. Those will only be interesting when you build a castle fort made of books in the library whose interior wallpaper is blank notebook paper, the wheel of the office-chair is the door handle, and the twig is a toy for our castle's mascot, Ruffles the Pug—Snapchat me then.

Now back to it. In a scientifically peer reviewed journal article, called, The plating manifesto(I): from decoration to creation, the authors argue food that is presented in a visually beautiful way tastes better. Thus it begs the question: can a blind person actually taste visually appealing food. When there is an absolute lack of clarification that fails to take into account the true nature of what it is actually like being disabled in any of the directives or guides the OCR sets forth, the effect of doing that is really detrimental to the people they want to "protect."

Here is the super fucked up result of this and how this really starts to become really paradoxical. I started to incorporate disabilities that are recognized under the DOJ study, ADA, IDEA, or Section 504 into the sentence. Simply, "other disability" in the sentence has to mean any disability recognized by ADA, IDEA, etc because I really have no reason to believe the OCR would ever argue their directives wouldn't cover any disability that is covered under ADA, and especially IDEA and Section 504. So the results of that: an individual also may be unable to give consent due to being blind; an individual may also be unable to give consent due to being deaf; an individual may also be unable to give consent due to ADD/ADHD (make a note of this one).

Some of this can actually make really good legal sense, but not in the way it was intended. How many of you can imagine an hypothetical on an exam where the question concerned did a blind person actually consent when a person didn't adequately describe what their facial features were like? For a real life example, I wanted to use Dennis Rocky and his blind girlfriend Diana Adams in Mask. *Don't you dare ruin the Mask, Miki, don't you do it (I'll admit I loved the Mask. I won't ruin it...that badly)* but after more than 30 minutes on Google, no articles discussing the real life Diana Adams, I was left with: maybe the only way to convey love is blind and true inner beauty is the only thing that matters was by having a blind girlfriend because it seems Ms. Adams is not a real person (irony acknowledged from my first discussion on literary characters).

This is how everything starts to intertwine. What the OCR concerns itself is if a person may be unable to give consent due to an other disability or if the disability COULD AFFECT giving consent—not if they actually gave consent or not. The OCR took out the objectively offensive standard from Davis and any claim is based on the preponderance of the evidence for both Title VII and IX violations on campus. You think the OCR cares about law enforcement? “Police investigations may be useful for fact-gathering; but because the standards for criminal investigations are different, police investigations or reports are not determinative of whether sexual harassment or violence violates Title IX. Conduct may constitute unlawful sexual harassment under Title IX even if the police do not have sufficient evidence of a criminal violation.” So, it appears any criminal law aspects of whether or not a person gave consent under Title IX violations doesn’t matter!

How is sexual harassment is based on the OCR/DOJ harassment policy, that LSU implemented: “an unwelcome verbal, visual, or physical behavior of a sexual nature.” So what are the standards in assessing Title IX claims when it comes to hostile environment? “Specific references to Title VII caselaw, that Title VII remains relevant in determining what constitutes hostile environment sexual harassment under Title IX.” So what constitutes a hostile environment under Title VII? In the Title VII context, “a single act can create a hostile environment if it is severe enough, and instances of uninvited physical contact with intimate parts of the body are among the most severe types of sexual harassment”); Turner v. Saloon, Ltd., 595 F.3d 679, 686 (7th Cir. 2010) (noting that “[o]ne instance of conduct that is sufficiently severe may be enough,” which is “especially true when the touching is of an intimate body part” (quoting Jackson v. Cnty. of Racine, 474 F.3d 493, 499 (7th Cir. 2007))); McKinnis v. Crescent Guardian, Inc., 189 F. App’x 307, 310 (5th Cir. 2006).

So what is uninvited mean in the realms of Sexual Harassment Policy? What are the examples that constitute such? As per LSU’s sexual harassment policy: “Hostile environment sexual harassment may exist with the following: “unwelcome touching or suggestive comments, offensive language or display of sexually oriented materials, obscene gestures, and similar sexually oriented behavior of an intimidating or demeaning nature.”

This how everything together ties in:

How much more severe doubt can you have in your mind about a disabled partner or friend giving consent to: hugging, incidental brushings, listening to any sexual material in class, having sex, overhearing any sexual innuendos, being able to have one of those days where you see if you have a couple of absences left and say fuck school for today because i’m going to lay in bed with my significant other all day when: LSU has an obligation to consider effects of off-campus behavior with no limits as to where that limit ends and that third party permanently ruining your record and your life for sexually harassing the disabled. Think about that shit for a moment. Does whether or not a disabled person actually giving consent even matter even in the situation where consent given was completely unambiguous when that third party only concerns itself IF IT COULD AFFECT or MAY BE UNABLE TO ? Remember, disabilities affect everything. I don't like I have to use these examples, but I have to in order to prove this point further: A naked Anna Kendrick is in a deaf man's bedroom when she walks up to him and mouths "Sex?" and even does: points at him with her pointer finger—> pointer finger into —> opposing hand okay sign—> two thumbs up—the man vigorously, err, shakes his head in approval numerous times. But to the OCR, being deaf COULD AFFECT GIVING CONSENT because he couldn't hear "Sex." Furthermore, If I was in the Garden of Eden with Eve, even Satan would say: Look Eve, I know I'm supposed to be the harbinger of inducing you to commit original sin (while gesturing towards me), but even I know that's not worth 25 to Life or being kicked out of school over because he has three language disabilities and if there is anything that could ever affect consent, they are issues in language.

Do you think I'm over reacting? Hell no. This isn't absurd by any means. Oh let's grant the assumption the OCR and the undergrad administration actually cares about consent. So I'm going to provide illustrative examples to prove why this doesn't even matter.

For these examples, I'm not even going to have to resort to talking about intercourse, Sex, not dialogue you fools!!!. Actually, it could really good sense just to even limit it to dialogue seeing how former LSU Professor Buchanan (all alleged) got fired for violating the Title IX policy for the following: saying "pussy" three times during a meeting and how an anonymous "student" (author's added air quotes showing major skepticism) complained that Professor Buchanan used sexual terms in the classroom, profanity, and belittling and embarrassing students. Dear professors, academic freedom is absolutely not valued by an LSU administration seeing how if an anonymous "student" complained about using sexual terms in the classroom and saying 'pussy' led to a tenured professor being fired. May I suggest using food terms when discussing anything sexual so it can arguably at least sound like a Gordon Ramsey lecture. But what happens if something sounds really dirty but is legally innocuous? "Defendant's prized cock trespassed in to plaintiff's guarded private area." Rooster, not Penis you fools. Simply, you're shit out of luck professors, academic freedom doesn't matter.

So if "inappropriate" speech that included saying 'pussy' is the threshold for violating the sexual harassment policy and getting a tenured professor fired, but really, how does that even compare to the innocuous situation where a person's private parts (mind you fully clothed), touches a person that may not be able to consent due to an other disability. As a former Special Ed kid, I know you know I love hugs, so I'm going to talk about hugging. Doesn't matter if it is a woman or man here.

A woman and I hug—either one of those great big bear hugs or that really sincere loving embracing type and not that incredibly stupid side to side "hug" and not that type of hug what I call a house hug: both people's legs perpendicular to the floor, body leaning in at 45 degrees to one another in order to hug-- utterly void of any human compassion. Let us see if it was more likely than not she violated the sexual harassment policy. Oh let us say we both consented: by saying, (I'm sure all hugs begins this way): May I hug you. You may proceed to hug me. That's all you need to know.

So let's consider if it was welcoming and the factors from the OCR Guide in 1997. Were there any witnesses? Maybe, if there were, they would have reported just two people hugging. At the same time, witnesses don't matter because "people may not have a desire not to get involved." How did I react when it happened? My initial reactions maybe of little concern since: "a student may initially show no signs of having been harassed, but several weeks after the harassment, there may be significant changes in the student's behavior, including difficulty concentrating on academic work, symptoms of depression, and a desire to avoid certain individuals and places at school." Last three factors: signs of depression, desire to avoid certain individuals, and places at the school—so Finals? So what if I don't report it immediately? Well that doesn't matter since "a fear that the complainant may not be believed rather than that the alleged harassment did not occur." Would you believe that innocuous hugging violates the sexual harassment policy? Evidence about the relative credibility of the allegedly harassed student and the alleged harasser. For example, the level of detail and consistency of each person's account should be compared in an attempt to determine who is telling the truth. Another way to assess credibility is to see if corroborative evidence is lacking where it should logically exist. I really wouldn't know if any other corroborative evidence that would be lacking when the situation was clear of two people that hugged. Did the person write about the conduct afterwards? sure, on snapchat. Did a private body part of hers or touch you? yes her breasts or his boobs.

Psychiatrists Announce A New Form of ADHD To Be Placed In The DSM-V.

Psychiatrists have announced a new undiscovered form of ADHD will be placed into the DSM-V. Unlike the conventional year round ADHD, this version of ADHD is akin to Seasonal Affective Disorder since this form of ADHD comes in the months of April and May and November and December (☞ ° ♪ °)☞. Psychiatrists are calling it Fluctuating In Need And Limited Situation (F.I.N.A.L.S) ADHD.

Psychiatrists began to see signs of F.I.N.A.L.S since the beginning of the 1990s. The trend started immediately after the infamous decisions by the National Council of Women and the National Fraternity of Bronesses that met in January of 1990 after an arbitration agreement reached with the DEA made them choose only one legally acceptable thing that could be brought from the 1980s. For those of you that do not recall the decisions, The National Council of Women decreed their legally acceptable thing from the 1980s would be Cyndi Lauper's Girls Just Want To Have Fun while the National Fraternity of Bronesses selected Scarface posters in order to stick it to The Man.

Psychiatrists further agreed F.I.N.A.L.S. is a form of ADD/ADHD, a disability recognized under the ADA, IDEA or 504 since it is categorized as a cognitive disability and needing a doctor to prescribe medication for it. Students at universities across the country were asked to weigh in on the issue. "Yea, students with F.I.N.A.L.S is a pretty prevalent thing." One student was quoted. When asked to reflect back when it dealt with two students dealing with stress in the same school, another student was quoted: "If I knew then what I know now, I should have really reconsidered it. I may not have been able to consent to that awkwardness of seeing the same person in the same classroom or in the hallways. So Akkkwaaarddd. Do you feel the Bern? I do” I don’t think its that type of Bern, go get that checked out.

A female student was really puzzled by the announcement and sought clarification on everything: Brosef, I have F.I.N.A.L.S and I am I really confused. So there are exceptions to every part of the OCR’s outline that seem can be easily made up and asserted without providing any evidentiary proof, easily be made an example of for saying things like pussy and wondering why the Prized Cock crossed the road—Rooster, not Penis you fools under a more likely than not standard, things I never would have thought conceivable can be construed as sexually harassing any disabled student because i’ll never know if consent was given so I’ll always be known as someone whom sexually harassed the disabled, no limitation as to when and where these rules can apply, financial incentives for the administration to continue to follow the directives from a governmental agency that recklessly disregards the law whose very same directives effect the legal obligations and rights of every student that had no oversight when they were directed, by the virtue of being a tenured professor or a professor automatically makes them have to qualify everything because there is an “anonymous” student that threw academic freedom in the garbage that’ll get them fired? Ohhhh look fluffy protesting panda playing the trumpet. Am I cognitively impaired since I have F.I.N.A.L.S., I couldn’t remember where I even parked my car every day this week, could that affect me? I don’t know. COULD IT?

—Miki Kotevski.

P.S.—If you want to be a bad-ass, come give me a hug. So Not Hugs Not Drugs, can we still at least have Pugs? No, pug kisses sexually harass the disabled. BUT NOT RUFFLES!!!!

-----End Richards Email Sent on February 25th, 2016. (Sent at 3:24am Central Time or 4:24am Eastern Time)

The following is part of what I sent my school on March 27th, 2016 of how my 2e traits of: questions status quo, sensitivity to patronizing or hypocritical behavior, may confront adults in authority on their own behavior, may challenge underlying logic/illogic of rules, even if punished for doing so, and may have trouble with authority; can be oppositional and argumentative could manifest itself as a practicing attorney:

The following plaintiffs (cases) exercised their 1st Amendment rights on the following dates: Hoston v. LA on March 29th 1960, Edwards v. South Carolina on March 2nd, 1961, Cox v. LA on December 14th, 1961, and Brown v. LA on March 7, 1964. Do you notice a trend in a particular state? If you don’t, I’ll bold a word that’ll give you a clue as to what the Supreme Court recognized in Brown v. LA: “This is the fourth time in little more than four years that this Court has reviewed convictions by the Louisiana courts for alleged violations, in a civil rights context...” All of those plaintiffs exercised their 1st Amendment Rights before The Civil Rights Act of 1964 was implemented on July 2nd, 1964. 1st Amendment guarantees put all of the social and legal issues in the national spot light during the late 1950s and 1960s that made the Civil Rights Act possible. Period.

What side of history are you on? Let me test you to see if you understand how racism was justified in courts during the civil rights era. Which of the following legal reasons are valid and which are invalid that concerned Free Speech Rights during the Civil Rights Era and a case decided within the last couple of years.

#1: There is the state interest in the regulation of professional conduct that rendered the statute consistent with the First Amendment. The court observed it is an answer to say that the purpose of these regulations is to insure high professional standards, thereby professional regulations would not to curtail free expression.

#2: Someone protesting an unconstitutional policy was told by an official in charge doing so was inflammatory. Two related officials affirmed what the initial figure said by stating you heard what that official said, now do what he said. The Court ruled authorities were correct in arresting the plaintiff because a person said the situation was getting out of hand and that peacefully expressing views contrary to the majority of the community necessitated punishment.

#3: Free Speech can be stifled by more subtle governmental interference. Groups engaged in advocacy may require an effective restraint on freedom of association. This Court has recognized no vital relationship between freedom of speech and in one's associations where a group espouses dissident beliefs.

#4: The defendant wanted to know what was going on. He was told that this was official business and that he should be on his way. Defendant refused and entered into a tirade against the official. Defendant failed to obey official's order and was in the wrong since circumstances showed the order was arbitrary and not calculated in any way to promote public order. His conviction was sustained since the defendant knew that his activity and participation in this activity "had precipitated violence" before. The defendant regrouped to return to prove his right-- although he knew it was likely to 'stir up the people.' The evidence shows he showed his disapproval to discriminatory laws and to "incite violence" in a series of incidents rather than as he claimed to prove his rights.

#5: The Court held the first step of the content neutrality analysis--the government's justification or purpose in enacting a regulation-- is irrelevant. The government regulation of speech is content based when it applies to particular speech because of the topic discussed or the idea or message expressed. The next step requires whether the regulation cannot be 'justified without reference to the content of the regulated speech,' or was adopted because of disagreement with the message the speech conveys.

Answers:

#1. Invalid. By creating the Code of Civility, y'all literally and legally resorted to using racist governmental tactics and justifications against the NAACP. The Code of Civility is in direct opposition of everything the NAACP fought for in NAACP v. Button, 371 U.S. 415 (1963): "the Court rightly rejected the State's claim that its interest in the "regulation of professional conduct" rendered the statute consistent with the First Amendment, observing that "it is no answer to say that the purpose of these regulations was merely to insure high professional standards and not to curtail free expression."" Justice Thomas' Majority opinion in Reed v.

Town of Gilbert, 135 S.Ct. 2218 (2015).

Furthermore, NAACP v. Button, 371 U.S. 415 (1963) said: “It is enough that a vague and broad statute lends itself to selective enforcement against unpopular causes. We cannot close our eyes to the fact that the militant Negro civil rights movement has engendered the intense resentment and opposition of the politically dominant white community of Virginia; litigation assisted by the NAACP has been bitterly fought. In such circumstances, a statute broadly curtailing group activity leading to litigation may easily become a weapon of oppression, however evenhanded its terms appear. Its mere existence could well freeze out of existence all such activity on behalf of the civil rights of Negro citizens...Broad prophylactic rules in the area of free expression are suspect.”

#2. Invalid. Cox v. State of Louisiana. 379 U.S. 536. #3: Invalid. Bates v. City of Little Rock. 361 U.S. 516 (1960) and the concurring opinion justified on the basis of United States v. Rumely, 345 U.S. 41. (1953). #4: Invalid. Thomas v. State 160 So.2d 657 (Miss. 1964) judgments reversed by: Boynton v. Com. of Virginia, 364 U.S. 454; Abernathy v. State of Alabama, 380 U.S. 447.

#5: Valid. Reed v. Town of Gilbert, 135 S.Ct. 2218 (2015). SCOTUS said: “Government regulation of speech is content based if a law applies to particular speech because of the topic discussed or the idea or message expressed.” Reed, 135 S. Ct. at 2227. Maybe Vill. of Arlington Heights v. Metro. Hous. Dev. Corp., 429 U.S. 252 (1977) discussed factors that show discriminatory intent: (1) evidence of a “consistent pattern” of actions by the decision making body disparately impacting members of a particular class of persons (students and not the faculty/administration); 2) the historical background of decisions under the official action, particularly if unequally applied in situations involving race; 3) the specific sequences of events leading up to the decision challenged in the case, including departures from normal procedures in making decisions and substantive departures, (i.e. the decision maker would have made a different choice had the applicant been white; race was the deciding factor); and 4) the legislative history where there are contemporary statements made by the governmental body who created the official action.

It is unequivocally clear you are going after my conduct after I posted the 9to5 Theses. I need to break down this over-convoluted Code of Civility to show the glaring inaccuracies that arise with the over-convoluted text while showing how discriminatory it was against me at the same time..

- “A mode of self-expression”—How did this all arise? After I posted the 9to5 Theses on doors right? Factor #2 and Factor #3.
- “Civility is expressed by polite, courteous, and considerate speech or behavior appropriate to civil interactions.”
 - I bet the faculty or administration didn’t think posting the 9to5 Theses was appropriate behavior because of the content—speech—of it was not considerate to the faculty or administration of how badly 5L was drafted because I expected much better out of you all. Factor #2.
 - Civility by definition here is a matter of capricious and arbitrary taste.
- “It is primarily concerned with the character of speech and expression.” ‘Primarily’ should be omitted because I couldn’t find anything else in the text of the Code of Civility that had any other concern other than speech. In conjunction with “civility is expressed by polite speech” What does that remind me of, oh yeah, Reed: “Content based if a law applies to particular speech because of the topic discussed or the idea or message expressed.” ONLY STRICT SCRUTINY APPLIES !!!!! If you think you can get out of strict scrutiny analysis and say this is intermediate scrutiny after writing the primary concern reflects SCOTUS’ definition of what constitutes content-based regulation of speech, best of luck. -- Factor #2 and #3.

- How wouldn’t the “character of speech and expression” reflect the speaker’s socio-economic status, national heritage, race, gender, disability, sexual orientation, or other beautiful traits? This sounds like white people telling diverse groups people all over again how they can conduct themselves in a manner they capriciously and arbitrarily deem appropriate.
- “A commitment to civility represents an appreciation of the ways in which the presentation of ideas can have an impact on how they are ultimately received, regardless of their merits.” So I guess there is no an appreciation for posting the 9to5 Theses that I sought redress for by the same people that were the source of my concerns, which was very symbolic of Martin Luther’s 95 Theses when he posted his 95 Theses expressing his concerns? I guess posting my concerns on the doors is not an appreciation of the monumental impact Martin Luther had on the world he posted his theses on the door. I went to a Catholic High School and I love my experience at Northridge Prep even though I’m not a Catholic since it is remarkable how similar Catholicism is to Orthodox Christianity. Factor #2,3, 4.
- “Civility does not seek to limit or chill the expression of dissent, strongly held convictions, or contrary positions” Putting this twice makes it look like you’re overcompensating --you know-- right after I dissented. But any and all speech that isn’t capriciously and arbitrarily “civil” would fall outside the code of civility and you know: a) that chills speech and b) actually limits the speaker’s word choice and manner they express themselves based on a capricious and arbitrary manner of ‘civility’.
- “It does not strive for a culture of token respectability that requires policing”-- When you PLEDGE (an act) TO ACT in a certain way, how ISN’T THAT POLICING BEHAVIOR.
- “...not only embrace the academic SUBSTANCE OF THE LAW” Standards For Me and Not For Thee. Factor #1
- To respect diverse backgrounds, points of view, and positions--See why this is problematic with the attached flyer on 5L.
- To refrain from any conduct that diminishes the dignity or decorum of the Law Center’s communal spaces and overall environment
 - “Overall environment”—LSU Law’s ‘Safe Space’ then?
 - “Diminishing decorum of the law center.” How about selective enforcement of your standards of preventing vandalism and beautification of the law center where I counted at least 15 violations that could have defaced or damaged property. I’ll provide a copy of the pictures taken on March 25th between 5:30pm and 5:45 pm that shows such tomorrow. It seems the administration and faculty did the vast majority of the violations. This was taken the day after the code of civility was proposed. Speech for Thee and Not For Me. Factor #1.

If there was one thing that was immediately inferable from my course of action in Spring 2016, it would be giving all the opportunity in the world to avoid a lawsuit and by specifically bringing case law as a way to teach this is what the law is, now that you know what the law is, what would be the respondents course of action. Here is what I entitled SuperFinal5LStudents that accompanied the previous quoted material I sent the school on March 27th, 2016. Please note how my 2e characteristics of being a divergent thinker, advanced creativity, strong metacognitive (thinking about their thinking) skills, unique insight into complex issues, has different, often unusual perspectives, advanced, wicked, often bizarre sense of humor, passionate about areas of interest (fully focused and invested), and unusual imagination all make themselves known:

WHY THE STUDENT BODY SHOULD HATE 5L TOO. By: Miki Kotevski

Author's Note: I specifically wrote in the style to challenge your initial presumptions--the more you lean on your initial presumptions, the harder your fall will be when I kick the chair from under those presumptions.

IS YOUR SEX LIFE IMPLICATED IN 5L? IT IS.

Have you criticized Donald Trump in or outside of school? You have violated 5L and would be expelled for doing so.

Read to find out how those two things are TRUE!

This will be one of the best things you read all year—I Promise.

5L needs to be repealed immediately.

I was in Special Education as a kid and I am disabled. One of my disabilities involved syntax skills and I actually have tested in the worst percentile amongst peers my age across the country when it came to those skills. Out of sheer necessity, I had to learn every aspect of speech through every conceivable context (and syntax through context). I really understand the horrors of not having speech.

When a legally protected status takes higher precedence over every single student's constitutional rights, I'm really not going to take that well when our constitutional rights of free speech and due process are hindered and denied. It is insulting to deny those rights under the guise of 'promoting diversity' when Free Speech and Due Process are the very cornerstones of constitutional rights that actually promote equality and diversity. I really want to trust the administration, but when there are factors that can be outside the school's control such as conditions attached to money, it gives me little reason to do so. Having an unconstitutional rule in place that denies free speech and due process rights that are quintessential in promoting equality makes it unacceptable. Period.

Part I: The Legal Reasons Why 5L is Unconstitutional.

Visual reference: "...communicate directly to one or more specifically identifiable person(s) an epithet i) that a reasonable person would regard as demeaning to the recipient student or students and ii) that has a direct tendency to cause acts of violence by the person or persons to whom the communication is addressed."

THE MOST IMPORTANT POINT ABOUT 5L: The plain language of 5L reaches far beyond the true threat or fighting words doctrine. 5L covers all student speech (content-based) with no explicitly expressed limits, uses subjective and plural language (i.e. demeaning, or more, persons, students, etc), which strict-scrutiny jurisprudence has conclusively shown very little constitutional tolerance towards.

#1: Cohen v. California, 403 U.S. 15 (1971) held in order to constitute fighting words, those fighting words must be directed at the person of hearer. This means fighting words doctrine's text or rules must be in the singular form because those words must be explicitly directed at a SINGLE recipient. "While the four-letter word displayed by Cohen in relation to the draft is not uncommonly employed in a personally provocative fashion, in this instance it was clearly not "directed to the person of the hearer." No individual actually or likely to be present could reasonably have regarded the words on appellant's jacket as a direct personal insult." The plural text of 5L "Or more persons, recipient students, and the persons " automatically makes it unconstitutional.

The part that was unfathomable was the switch from one or more specifically identifiable person(s) to recipient student(s) in the same sentence. "One or more specifically identifiable persons" means anyone that can be specifically identifiable based on an ordinary definition of the word persons and "or more." Anyone doesn't have to include the recipient student by default because of simple logic: all students are everyone—but not everyone are students! By having persons, all a student has to do is knowingly communicate directly to anyone that is specifically identifiable. On top of that, what really matters if the recipient students can find an epithet (epithet: a descriptive phrase about an aspect of the person mentioned) to demean any legally protected groups of people AND/OR not a legally protected group from that recipient's perspective ("a reasonable person would regard as demeaning to recipient"...) That standard is so susceptible to abuse—for example: is there anything that a reasonable person wouldn't be able to find as demeaning to a PETA member that wouldn't bring them to violence? PETA, the same people that 'reasonably' believe having your cat or dog is a "selfish desire to possess animals and receive love from them causes immeasurable suffering." I'm absolutely sure those doggy kisses or how happy your dog is to see you after you've been gone for five minutes is the exact symptom of immeasurable suffering.

#2: A demeaning epithet in 5L isn't limited to demeaning legally protected groups of people. 5L has an explicit reference to legally protected groups of people when it says "epithets shall include, but shall not be limited to, epithets that demean [legally protected groups here]." Since epithets SHALL not be limited to epithets that demean legally protected groups, it is reasonable to include religions and political groups in 5L since demeaning 'epithets' can be said about religious and political groups, right?

This is one of the results: For all of you 5L supporters that hate Donald Trump, you have to EXPEL any student that criticized that bigot since we know doing so brings his supporters to fisticuffs by “demeaning” them under 5L. A student criticized Trump to anyone that is specifically identifiable in school or outside of school with a text message, video, filing a complaint to the school, etc. as evidence. Any Trump supporters at school have a valid 5L violation when: they heard or read the filed complaint that criticism said to anyone that was specifically identifiable in or outside of school since a reasonable person would regard any criticism about Trump as a demeaning epithet to the recipient Trump supporter that would directly tend to an act of violence by a Trump supporter since other Trump supporters have battered those critical of Trump at his rallies before, have they not? Who’d argue criticism about Trump wouldn’t demean his supporters through his supporters’ perspective? No. One. Can.

#3: In UW Post v. Board of Regents, 774 F. Supp. 1163 (E.D. Wis. 1991) discussed the original part of the fighting words definition—words which demean a person’s race, sex, religion, etc. are likely to inflict injury and affect a person’s sensibilities—HAS BEEN DEEMED BY COURTS TO BE A LEGALLY DEFUNCT CONCEPT. I absolutely agree the law center should have a welcoming atmosphere, but how? The court in IOTA XI Chapter of Sigma Chi Fraternity v. George Mason Univ. and I absolutely agree that: “despite a university’s responsibility to maintain an education environment free of discrimination and racism, such goals should be accomplished in some other fashion other than silencing speech on the basis of it’s viewpoint.”

#4: 5L completely disregards how context matters since words and/or phrases have different meanings based on the context in which they’re said. Let me assume arguendo epithets in 5L would only cover legally protected classes of people. If I make the social justice warrior type argument society as a whole discriminates against disabled through their “ableist” ways every time a commercial airplane lands since pilots have to retard the throttle and an audio warning in the cockpit will typically shout out how far the plane is off the ground with the word Retard during landing. This is the audio transcript of the Youtube video, Landing SFO San Francisco Airport OnBoard Airbus A380-800, when the plane is 50ft off the ground: “50. 40. 30. 20. Retard. Retard. Retard. Retard.”

A reasonable person could agree that merely the use of the word ‘Retard’ demeans me no matter the CONTEXT since I’m disabled (the same logic utilized by 5L). Maybe being a part of a legally protected class of people isn’t indicative of how everyone in that class thinks about an issue. Maybe it is a pretty ignorant assumption to have that everyone in the same legally protected class of people will REACT to certain words all in the SAME way. Maybe you’re telling to any legally protected group they’re inferior (and will start believing it again) by making it a rule that punishes a student that says anything ‘demeaning’ about anyone said anywhere as though we don’t have the ability or strength to stand up for themselves; and any sense of self-pride and unity is lost because 5L is that type of bullshit that prevents us from unifying to reform institutions that truly discriminate like the war on drugs (Eric Garner, Freddie Gray, and Sandra Bland--all disabled too) or the crisis at every public defenders’ office.

As a disabled former special ed student, it isn’t demeaning to me when audio warnings shout out the word ‘Retard’ when a plane is landing when pilots would retard the throttle. Have a Samuel Jackson audio warning shout during landing “Retard Motherfucker” and I absolutely know no pilots and I would ever fault Boeing or Airbus for that. The main point: why people will disagree if words demeaned the recipient is because demeaning is a subjective adjective; and by having a subjective adjective, it creates a subjective standard based on what any student would consider demeaning to an individual’s protected legal class where context and content has no role in that analysis.

Most importantly, one of the best ways to promote diversity is through robust conversation in the classroom (Grutter). Discussing any case IN CLASS that has demeaning terms violates 5L. In Re Simon Shiao Tam concerned if the PTO could reject an Asian American band’s trademark application for their band name, The Slants, for being disparaging against their own culture. The front man for The Slants said: “We want to take on these stereotypes that people have about us, like the slanted eyes, and own them.” By saying Slants while talking about the case, I knowingly communicate to any student in class a demeaning epithet (Slants) that a reasonable person could regard as demeaning to an Asian-American if that recipient believed so—regardless of what the band members actually think about the term and the context Slant is used—that any of those students could directly tend to an act of violence. Not only does having an individual subjective standard effectively chill speech, the standard directly tends towards the figurative act of violence by slapping all strict-scrutiny jurisprudence in the face. (•_•) I would call that (•_•)>¬■-■ (¬■_■) a facial challenge. YEAAAAAAAAAAHHH.

Facial challenge--that was a good pun and speaking of dirty sounding things—before I start, I have reasonable fears as a disabled person that merely talking about anything sexual based, in part, on a letter of findings and another DCL where I or any disabled student may not have been able to give consent due to an other disability, makes me question if I can talk and seems a little discriminatory. Maybe what you say in the heat of the moment is some of the most demeaning things imaginable to your partner,

The reason why I’m bringing this up is: there is federal case precedent that shows school administrators will use rules like 5L in regards to a student’s sex life. If any of us been naughty and spanked, role-played, are furries (you say this outlandish--I say this is more inclusive of people with different sexual preferences other than my own) or insert some other sexual behavior—we violated 5L since I guarantee we all said something ‘demeaning’ to get our partner to directly tend to nibble, scratch, smack, pull, thrust, or penetrate, etc, etc. (all of those verbs could be violent acts, correct?). A dehumanizing epithet can be more severe than a demeaning one, right? Since the initial reason why 5L was implemented was an incident at a bar, what if I say this homophone at a bar: “Damn that bare chest looks good, can I touch it?” or “Damn that bear chest looks good, can I touch it?” I already know I can’t touch as per the rules of that classy establishment or the other puts me in a hairy situation at a gay bar. The bottom line is: what a reasonable person can consider as a dehumanizing (i.e. demeaning) term isn’t necessarily going to be reflective of that diverse community’s understanding of that word, like how DMX and a Furry will never see eye-to-eye on “X gonna give it to you--Ruff Ryders.” ← This is the beauty of words and 1st Amendment—you share new ideas that connect two very different things that not even your stoner friends could’ve thought of at Taco Bell at 1am.

It is very reasonable for you to get in trouble for your private sex life when the law center has the obligation to consider effects of off-campus behavior with no written limit. If you are like Rihanna and whips and chains excite you, read Doe v. The Rector and Visitors of George Mason University et. al. (E.D. Va. 2016) to know how far schools will investigate a consensual sexual relationship when the INITIAL reason for the school investigating a student didn't arise from that consensual sexual relationship. Doe was expelled since he "was found responsible for violating Code 2013.9.B, communication that may cause injury, distress, or emotional or physical discomfort," ←5L during sex and 2013.8.A, deliberate touching or penetration of another person without consent for engaging in BDSM. There was the issue of BDSM, consent, and the intersection between them, but I don't have the experience or expertise to comment. √(∪)∟. The only question left is: Is the administration going to do the right thing by repealing 5L or are they going to retaliate against me for standing up for your constitutional rights?

-----End SuperFinal5LStudents

So let me be clear on something. What did I cover in SuperFinal5LStudents and during the comment period? I discussed fraternities and sororities, group association, religion, political groups, the difference between singular and plural terms when referring to people, animals and criminal justice issues, location of conduct at issue, Free Speech and Due Process being the very cornerstones of constitutional rights that actually promote equality and diversity, context, jokes, sexual life, IP law and free speech, conditions attached to money by the federal government to schools, the difference between objective and subjective standards, disciplinary issues, war on drugs, disability issues and anecdotal references to my history involving disability issues, and more.

Then any competent lawyer would have recognized some certain issues contained in SuperFinal5LStudents and open comment period. First there was a specific references to case law: UW Post v. Board of Regents, 774 F. Supp. 1163 (E.D. Wis. 1991), Grutter, Doe v. The Rector and Visitors of George Mason University et. al. (E.D. Va. 2016), In Re Simon Shiao Tam, IOTA XI Chapter of Sigma Chi Fraternity v. George Mason Univ, and Cohen v. California, 403 U.S. 15 (1971). Then references to certain jurisprudence and legal issues like: strict-scrutiny jurisprudence, robust conversation in the classroom, conditions attached to money by the federal government, and probably most importantly: "before I start, I have reasonable fears as a disabled person that merely talking about anything sexual based, in part, on a letter of findings and another DCL where I or any disabled student may not have been able to give consent due to an other disability, makes me question if I can talk and seems a little discriminatory." That previous sentence contains chilling effect, allegations of discrimination on the basis of disability, and a specific reference to the University of Montana letter of findings and the April 4th, 2011 DCL by Department of Education's Office of Civil Rights.

What no one seems to appreciate nor truly consider in their assessments of me is the following fact: in March 2016, I spent 10 of my last 15 dollars I had in my bank account fighting in defense of my fellow students' and my civil rights at law school despite the social ostracization I experienced and despite having my whole entire legal career threatened not only once⁶⁸⁴, but twice.⁶⁸⁵ Now after they threatened my whole legal career in March 2016 what did they do after that? I made two videos that were absolutely “a student type profile” video about me—one published in 2015 and the best and most recent one in February 2016. Then two months after I made my own video in February 2016, LSU Law not only created a youtube channel for the institution, but also just happened to do the same exact thing I did by creating student profile videos with different students literally one month after threatening my whole entire legal career. So what would you take away from that? I spent the last of my remaining money when no one else would support me defending constitutional rights of students and faculty alike all across the country. Tell me something, how many attorneys at the Department of Justice would literally spend their very last dollars defending the Constitution despite being ostracized by their fellow attorneys inside DOJ and having their whole entire professional career threatened by their bosses on multiple occasions that then stole your original ideas. Seriously, how many would? So it was clear I was defending constitutional rights for everyone across the country. Now much like my life itself, my initial passion was free speech where it took me a longer time to accept the disabled side of me. I sent the following email to Professor Brooks on August 2nd, 2016 that pertained to my disability related issues in the spring semester of 2016 (the professor I’m referring to is Professor Corcos):

“But I will tell you what is the most meaningful thing to me right now. On March 29th of this year, I had a professor at our school threaten my whole legal career and any future prospects on the basis of my disability by insinuating I had plagiarized because of my disability and that this professor could have reported me. I will swear under oath I have not plagiarized. I really reasonably believed based on the circumstances at that this was this professor’s intended purpose. I can tell you the stories that in every single grade on every single day I’ve had to deal with issues with my disability. I’ve had a professor in college—Professor Peyser--accuse me of making up my disability and history when I explained to him the numerous amount of teachers that have always told me: “we can understand when you talk and explain things to us that show you understand the material, why cant you write down what you said. It’s like there is something blocking the connection between your mind and your wrist.”

But the difference between Professor Peyser and a particular professor at the law center is that Professor Peyser falsely accused me of making up my personal history about my disability whereas the law professor falsely accused me of making up the idea that whatever I wrote based on it’s structure alone (which I have a lsu psychologist certified diagnosis that I have a writing disability as it specifically pertains to structure) was my own personal ideas and work.

⁶⁸⁴ Professor Corcos did in her class in March 2016.

⁶⁸⁵ Professor Corbett (head of the school at the time) did in an email sent to every student in March 2016.

In the process of studying for finals in April (a few days after March 29th) and I really wish I was exaggerating, I cried myself to sleep every other night because I reasonably knew and felt in my heart, soul, and mind to be true. Since I did not plagiarize in the course of the semester before the final and that this professor accused me of doing something I did not do and could have reported me for it, knowing that I would never be able to adequately defend myself because I literally have the most extreme difficulty understanding written structure, I had no reason not to believe that whatever I turned in, that this professor would do the same thing again that this professor did on March 29th except for one small caveat—actually report me this time.

That this professor would do so understanding I would never be able to adequately defend myself against a false accusation of plagiarism on the basis of my disability because I have that particular disability (which is why I think this professor accused me in this particular manner because I have a factual basis that can confirm this professor knew about my disability). Why I cried myself to sleep was that seeing how I had in fact requested as a reasonable accommodation to have a structure sheet that I had created to take to the exam so that I could actually structure my thoughts be denied before as a reasonable accommodation (and if I asked for it again, it would have probably been rejected) and with that professors actions always on my mind, I felt completely fucked and helpless before, during and even after the finals because I believed that this professor would make up another false accusation and report me knowing full well I would never be able to adequately defend myself.

On the very same day that Professor Corcos threatened any professional future career on March 29th, 2016, this was the interaction I had with her.

Just to be clear. I didn't want our conversation we just had after class today recorded and I didn't push the privacy issue of our conversation further due to respect for you being a faculty member and when you said there would be no one around when I requested to close the door to your office to keep our conversation private. so I had an expectation our conversation would be private and I trusted your judgment that the conversation would remain between you and I and only stay between you and I that there was no ulterior motive for our conversation because I was trying to get help on organizing my paper due to my writing disability.

also, when you kept talking about issues about papers in class, you kept saying a student and structure to one specific example. I know that is my writing disability and it really seemed suggestive that when you gave that example and you said if that applies to you, come get help, I wanted to get help because of my disability.

Please confirm if you got these two e-mails.

thank you. it really is a personal and emotional issue for me because every time i find myself in a similar situation as in the one today getting help for my disabilities, it just brings back to the forefront of the years of turmoil trying to figure out how to write. You wouldnt be the first time a faculty member in the law center saw me in tears addressing my disabilities because of how painful they are to me (Ms. Forbes would be included, maybe another faculty member as well.)

-----End Emails between Professor Corcos and I.

Then I wrote to FIRE the following on April 5th, 2016:

“I dont know how I can keep updating the case file if need be, but I wanted to add something that happened within this week (so that there is a written record because i'm not allowed to record things in Professor Corcos' class). So do you recall the chilling effect and how I was coerced by the administration and professor corcos. Let me tell you what happened this week that gives a little more circumstantial evidence that may make that more likelier. So I stopped protesting/fighting even after the school had a forum to discuss the code of civility. I have Professor Corcos on Monday for Media Law and Tuesday for the Privacy seminar.

On monday, she gave a similar spiel about plagiarizing and citing, but it was nowhere in the same tone, severity, length, with nowhere near as many consequential/detrimental actions as the one on last tuesday. She discussed the issue as it pertaining to law students and lawyers as a whole and how "it is a problem that is on the rise." That compared to last tuesday of permanently ruining someone's record. Then in class today, she talked about how she enjoyed the class discussion we as a class has been having. Then she said a sentence that was quite odd. She said she would be happy to tell Dean Corbett about it, and it is not because of what happened the last week that initially struck it as odd, but it is the fact that Dean Corbett is the interim Dean of the School while Dean Carroll is the dean of academic affairs.

She managed to include Dean Carroll (cc'd) on every e-mail that put me in a bad light of not turning in work assignments on time. I've been struggling with health issues (so much so i've lost over 30 pounds since jan) that i have been traveling back and forth between chicago and baton rouge to address them, which has hurt my ability to turn in these assignments on time. But anything in a positive light that would be written how i actively engage in class discussion (because i love media and privacy law) that goes beyond mere oral flattery and not to the right person? Not to be written of course! It struck me as so abnormal the course of her behavior towards me that even though I struggled to turn in written assignments in on time last year, my other professor didnt care and never got the dean of academic affairs involved at that time whereas Professor Corcos has been relentless in including Dean Carroll in the e-mail exchanges we had about my performance.

On April 22nd, 2016 I sent the following email to Tracy Blanchard:

So here is my personal history in a coherent manner that doesnt involve tears and blobbering all over the place. I know this is long, but it is a very clear picture of what happened.

2007/08--Family starts to lose the office buildings. Lost them, Dad starts the downward spiral.
2009--around november, had to fly to serbia and beg my grandparents for over $40k⁶⁸⁶ so I could stay in school. I still feel so much shame and guilt because that was the last time I saw my grandma alive that I had to beg her for money.
2010--house burns down in May (the other home was in 1997 I want to say)

⁶⁸⁶ Exaggeration on price owed. See Sewanee Era Section.

I let the issue go for a time being. In that time, I started to investigate and know more about OCR. I was reading into the OCR because I had a suspicion “diversity” wasn’t the reason for implementing 5L. What happened was a black student was called the N-Word at a bar I believe two years ago, which is horrendous because of the context in which it was said. But then there was an odd meeting that the “diversity task force” had where only women were allowed to talk about Free Speech issues, but then it led me to believe they were talking about Sexual Harassment. So with sexual and racial harassment, what is the thing the only concerns itself with those two things—OCR, right? While reading DCL after DCL on OCR’s reading room, it blew my mind to read how the OCR discriminated against the disabled (that Ill describe later) and all of the free speech issues involved. Along with that, I started looking at ADA case law and the ADA to see what it said about the form of discrimination the DCL put in place (mind you at this time, I didn’t think the April 4th, 2011 was actual legal standard, I knew it was just a guidance letter) It took a lot of time to research and couldn’t have taken one day to find and write about

So I talked to Professor Richards, showed him my findings, and we talked about since the law center was in financial turmoil, and I give a damn about the school and know the implications of what happens to schools when they are investigated by the OCR (I really wouldn’t want to harm the school and give them time to get their shit together when it came to their financial situation), I let that go. There is e-mail proof of this. So things were going fine for a little bit, but then the Code of Civility was proposed on March 22nd. It is unequivocal and absolutely clear the Code of Civility targeted me.

So after a day (or two) after receiving the e-mail concerning the Code of Civility, I provided Dean Corbett and Dean Diamond a petition for redress under the ADA seeking for them to change one of the school’s policies concerning sexual harassment and Title IX. I took a photo showing the petition with the time I dropped off the petition under Dean Corbett’s door and Dean Corbett saw me walking down the hallway (we made eye-contact) with the petition in hand as he was leaving his office. He left before I could hand it to him. I purposely didn’t leave it with Dean Carroll (the interim Title IX coordinator) because I wanted to give the school a little breathing room. On top of that, I could have sent a copy to OCR, posted it online, but I only left two copies because I still love my school very much. On the same day, I passed out flyers to students that showed how 5L was unconstitutional, how 5L made criticizing Trump a thing that would warrant expulsion, and how 5L implicated the student’s sex life via Doe v. Univ of George Mason case.

And then under the open comment period for the Code of Civility, I told the truth of everything that happened before I posted the 9to5 Theses on the faculty doors around 4pm on Sunday, March 27th. That I tried being civil and seeking redress and that I was forced to write the way I did because I had no other available means of seeking redress because being civil didn’t work. I also talked about how the administration targeted me with the code of civility since if one of the reasons for the code of civility was not to ruin the law school’s decorum (by posting flyers on their doors), that the day after the code was proposed, I went around the school and took pictures

(during a span of 15 minutes) of at least 15 instances where flyers and things were posted on doors (the vast majority of which was on the faculty's doors). I said "By creating the Code of Civility, y'all literally and legally resorted to using racist governmental tactics and justifications against the NAACP. The Code of Civility is in direct opposition of everything the NAACP fought for in NAACP v. Button, 371 U.S. 415 (1963): "the Court rightly rejected the State's claim that its interest in the "regulation of professional conduct" rendered the statute consistent with the First Amendment, observing that "it is no answer to say that the purpose of these regulations was merely to insure high professional standards and not to curtail free expression." Justice Thomas' Majority opinion in Reed v. Town of Gilbert, 135 S.Ct. 2218 (2015).

We didn't have class on Monday⁶⁸⁷ because it was spring break for us and class started on Tuesday, March 29th. Then on Tuesday, March 29th, The following happened. I went to my privacy law seminar taught by a professor who teaches about gender (Professor Corcos). In the first ten or minutes, she discussed issues that students had while writing their seminar papers. She spent a minimum of 5 minutes just signaling out mine. She said at least three different times the word structure (which I have a recognized ADA disability that concerns itself with structure and organization of written expression), but here is the other thing. She said that structure and using someone else's structure was a thing that would warrant expulsion for plagiarizing. I didn't plagiarize. She made it clear it is the worst thing to befall upon people and that she decided not to report it. She something very similar to whomever ever wrote that was being HONEST and couldn't fault them for it. She also said if that situation applied to anyone in the class, they should talk to her later. Who wouldn't think that is blackmailing and for me to have my legal career permanently ruined for plagiarizing?

So I did—we talked about my structure issues and how I learn about structuring written thoughts is through visually putting on paper how someone organized their structure and for me to use it as a guide to organize my thoughts on that same structure because I mean fuck, I'm disabled that way so if I cant understand it, I need to find a way to make sure the results reflect what was published before. To me, there is a huge difference in saying stealing someone's thoughts and ideas as compared to how they organize/structure those thoughts on paper. It is unequivocally clear I don't steal people's ideas and content because I am very damn creative and I can create my own ideas and content, so I never had to resort to that type of shit.

But then what happened after matters the most too. So I sent Dean Corbett an e-mail at 10:23pm—I yielded to their blackmail/coercive tactics—that I was only going to focus on school because there is a month left before finals. Who wouldn't be scared as hell of having a false charge of plagiarizing and dishonesty on their permanent record forever? 2 HOURS AFTER I SENT that e-mail, the SBA sent an e-mail through Professor Sautter (from the diversity committee that I sent an e-mail to on Jan 25th) sent an e-mail to the student body concerning the code of civility at a little after midnight this morning. Those are their bold points and I highlighted the relevant portion.

*"As an initial matter, I should note that the Diversity & Professionalism Committee drafted the Code of Civility at the request of Dean Corbett and the Administration after Dean Corbett presented the idea to the faculty at a recent faculty meeting. The Code of Civility is part of Dean Corbett's vision for the Law Center and he, as well as the Committee, believes that the Code of Civility is within the Law Center's best interest. That being said, I am only speaking on behalf of the Committee in my capacity as the Chair.

The Committee believes that the role of the Law Center is to prepare students both academically and professionally for the practice of law. In practice, a lawyer's reputation is his or her best asset. Reputation derives from civil and professional behavior. We are proposing this Code to set a clear norm of appropriate civil and professional behavior and communication between members of the Law Center community. Civility codes are common in professional practice, and many, if not most, do not have sanctions for violations.

Although violations of codes of civility or professionalism are not usually sanctionable, they do define expected, normative behavior that place transgressors in the margins. This Code provides the framework as to how one's reputation in the Law Center community will be perceived and judged. The value is that it empowers the Law Center community to engage in better behavior and disempowers the uncivil and unprofessional miscreants and dissuades them of the false notion that their bad behavior does not have consequences to their reputation among their peers.

Although violations of code of civility are generally not sanctionable, the Dean (or the Associate Dean for Academic Affairs acting as the Dean's designee) must certify each student's character and fitness to sit for the Bar. There is no "right" to such a positive certification letter from the Dean. The Code of Civility expressly sets forth the community norms that the Dean has always taken into consideration when making such a certification. The Code of Civility is meant to put the student body on notice as to what these community norms and expectations are and the Dean will use the Code to certify a student's character and fitness to the Bar.

The Diversity and Professionalism Committee will meet Wednesday at 4pm to review all student comments and finalize the code. The details of the meeting and the process for public comment registration can be found on the Law Center's homepage.

This is the epitome of ironic, after I sent them on Sunday discussing NAACP v. Button used rules of professional conduct to silence dissenting speech, what did they do, silence speech by inhibiting students that dissented based on legal arguments from ever being able to practice the law.

So I stopped protesting/fighting even after the school had a forum to discuss the code of civility. I have Professor Corcos on Monday for Media Law and Tuesday for the Privacy seminar.

On monday, she gave a similar spiel about plagiarizing and citing, but it was nowhere in the same tone, severity, length, with nowhere near as many consequential/detrimental actions as the one on last tuesday. And then these are the e-mails sent from April 5th.

MK

Two things. I wanted to make sure you got the prior email. Finally, I know the request I made from you today concerning highlighting sentences that were either: clear and concise and the ones that were unacceptable is unusual, but this isn't the first time I asked for this type of accommodation. You can ask Professor Barry about the writing structure guide I made for myself; and how while talking to her I discussed how I had to color coordinate and provide visual references in order to help me write. I can provide a copy of the writing structure guide that I utilized last year if need be.

--Miki

Professor Corcos (PC)

I don't quite understand what you are asking for. Are you asking me to note whether your writing is clear or not? Or are you asking me to use different colored highlighters to mark sentences that are clearly constructed and those that need work?

MK

So using two different colored highlighters. Highlight sentences --with one color --that has clarity, conciseness, and maybe properly cited and with another color, ones that need major improvement. Just limit it to three sentences for both colors (a total of 6)

PC:

I'm sorry. I can't do that. I can write general comments on your draft regarding vagueness, for example, or whether what you write addresses the question.

MK:

I'm not asking you to assess the content, I'm just asking for syntax, understandability, and grammatical feedback.

PC:

Actually, I just finished reading your draft, and it's comprehensible. The problem with it is generally that it tends not to address the issues directly.

MK:

I want to make sure the impact that my disability has on my expressive syntax skills is minimized. Additionally, I want to ensure that my LEGAL EXPRESSIVE SYNTAX skills are on the same level as everyone who graduates. I am trying so hard to work out the kinks before I graduate. It is absolutely necessary for me to make sure any issues involving draftsmanship that may occur in the future are addressed right now—proper citation is necessarily one of those issues. I was concerned after Professor Corcos brought up the issues of citation in law school and in the real world in both privacy law and media law class. Since I had a draft due for Media law, I wanted to apply the lessons learned to both my media law paper and the privacy seminar paper. The first question I asked Professor Corcos after privacy on Tuesday was if she had looked over my rough draft and made edits. She said no, so then I asked Professor Corcos if she could highlight sentences that showed syntax. She said she would consider it, and then later, said no with no reason why.

The fundamental ways I have learned how to circumvent my disabilities have all been based visual references/cues/aspects, oral communication, and understanding every component of speech through context. Professor Corcos, I know you know how much clearer my ideas can be when I have someone to talk to about it. It would be an absolute waste of time to ask you to talk to me about every sentence in your office. That being said, I have always started off with asking small and reasonable things as not to waste your time, burden you, and deprive you of your resources.

I really do feel helpless because if I go to professors or teachers (whether it was in high school, college, and law school) it ended the same way at least 90% of the time. Asking for help actually won't help. That same pain and futility of doing the same thing over and over again with the hope that this time would be different comes up everytime. That same hope makes me want to show that disabled people are better than the labels people put on us. I do not understand why highlighting six sentences (in the process of you reading it regardless of whether it is a printed copy or a computer copy) that will help me understand legal syntax better is an unreasonable accommodation. Yet again, this is another rejection of a different proposed reasonable accommodation for my disability.

On top of all of that, have you seen how much weight I've lost this semester? Over 35lbs. I wanted to let both of you know that I was having additional disability related issues throughout the semester that have contributed to my decline in performance. Dean Carroll, I provide you documentation of that. Professor Corcos, you were made slightly aware of this when I sent an e-mail saying why I had to miss class at the beginning of the semester. I am trying my hardest to pass because I gave my word when I was readmitted I wouldn't fail out of school again. I'm just asking for some help to help me make sure that won't happen again.

PC:

Mr. Kotevski,

When you asked me after class yesterday if I had looked at your draft, I told you why I had not. I told you that I had sent you an email telling you that you had not put your name on the draft, and I asked you to put your name on the draft. Apparently you did not read that email. I have asked you before to put your name on documents that you submit, and given you additional time and opportunities to re-submit.

In addition, as I stated in my email to you today, I did not find the sentences in your rough draft difficult to understand. I was, however, concerned that you did not address the issues posed in the topic that you chose.

MK:

You are absolutely 100% right I didnt put my name on the paper. That is not what I'm concerned about because putting my name on top of the paper is nowhere even close to the effort that I will put in to pass your class. It is the content, argument, arrangement, clarity, and proper citation of the law in the papers that will.⁶⁸⁸ Especially when it comes to the Privacy seminar, I know I am behind (in terms of the total amount of points earned) and I have to make up for that by making sure everything on the final draft is polished and perfected to make up for the time I didnt spend because I had to go back to illinois for health issues. I think losing 35 lbs within 3 months shows everything is not okay. And even with that, it shows how much I want to pass that I had to push myself through when I didnt have the energy to get out of bed or not have the energy to focus or read. I am that persistent where if I collapsed in the school from fatigue, I'd start crawling to get to class--I don't quit. I am begging you, please, help me. Show me what works and doesnt in terms of citation and syntax please because writing syntax skills is one of my disabilities.

PC:

Mr. Kotevski,

Again, I think you are missing my point. However, I have already responded to the issues you raise concerning writing.

That said, I am quite concerned about your comments that you are so ill that you have trouble getting yourself to class, you have difficulty concentrating, and you have lost so much weight. Have you thought about talking with Dean Carroll about withdrawing from school this semester,⁶⁸⁹ or at least lightening your course load? I know that it is already early April, and you may be thinking that you have already made a substantial commitment in your courses this semester, but I would be willing to give you an incomplete in either or both the courses you are presently taking with me. I would urge you to consider to speak with Dean Carroll immediately. I really am worried about you.

⁶⁸⁸ Someone being more concerned about the content, argument, arrangement, clarity, and proper citation of the law and not putting a name on a paper. Just saying.

⁶⁸⁹ So it wasn't enough for Professor Corcos to have threatened any professional career I would have in the future, but wanted me to withdraw and don't you give me she was really worried about me because if she was she wouldn't have done what she did on March 29th.

Regards,

Christine Corcos

MK:

Look, I've been told to withdraw at almost every semester since i've been at the law center. I'm just so sick of hearing that. I know you wouldn't have known that Professor Corcos, but there has always been something that someone said whether it is health or financial matters. If I withdraw, i'll never be able to get funds again based on the fact I was readmitted and the issue revolving around my SAP and being able to receive funds. So once I'm out, I'm out.

And now let me explain what happens if I withdraw. I go back home. My father is what I'd describe as an opposite zombie. He is alive on the exterior, but completely dead on the inside since 2008 when we lost everything because of the financial crisis. He's been on SSI since then. My brother graduated from Pomona College in 2010, seriously one of the best colleges in the country, and what is he doing, living at home and hasnt done anything meaningful since then when he had the perfect opportunity to do something. And my mom is probably the only thing keeping my family together. That is just the surface. I'm so fucking retarded for having the hope that once I graduate from the law center, maybe I can see my dad alive again⁶⁹⁰ because i havent seen him be alive for almost the last decade, something will click in my brother, and my mom deserves it. Each time I go home, I die a little on the inside because it kills me to see my family the way they are right now.

If you want to know how committed I am, I accidentally cut my thumb yesterday where I had to go to the ER and get three stitches. I swear to God on my life, I brought my laptop with me and was working on my privacy draft while in the ER. My sole focus right now is passing this semester. I'd rather go out swinging then bow out gracefully with my heart felt notion I did the best I could to achieve my dream of becoming a first amendment attorney and trying to help my family the only way I can right now.

As to where I got Mississippi from in my 5430 rough draft. It seems that analyzing a situation where there would be a facilitation of crime implicates a state's criminal law--especially when it comes to a local water source.⁶⁹¹ So I got Mississippi from the first legal issue (in the list of the three) (it was either that or louisiana law). And within the 5430 rough draft, I was taking into consideration of the implications of the facts that were provided within the issue. I mean i dont know how a reasonable law student wouldnt even at least consider terrorism when the fact that Ms. Smith in the hypothetical carried botulism. Also there is the implication of the compelling governmental interest of national security. On top of that, there are distinguishing factors that exist between cases like paladin, tax cases, murder for hire, and national security.

Now if you would all excuse me, I got finals to study for and two papers to turn in soon.

⁶⁹⁰ So stupid of me to have had the hope that my father would actually explicitly say out loud that he was proud of me when I graduated from law school.

⁶⁹¹ This would precisely be a time where I showed Professor Corcos that I spent more time actually considering the facts that she put on a project than she did herself.

-----End Emails Between Professor Corcos and I

In May and August 2016, I had every reason to sue the hell out of my school. Now what did I do? In my pursuit for a “sense of justice” and in spite of LSU officials threatening my legal career twice (and their illegal retaliation against me), I ignored it and started protecting the same people that threatened my legal career. I did the things my law professors talked of doing. I had a client that I had every reason to hate and I could have been selfish and greedy and gone after them and been paid for what they did to me. But I pursued and sought to defend the underpinnings of the justice system itself where their Constitutional rights had to be defended regardless, where like most schools across the nation, they became chicken shit cowards against a federal bureaucracy and unconstitutional actions by certain federal actors that they acquiesced to because a certain federal bureaucracy arbitrarily and capriciously thought they were above the Constitution. How many FBI agents would defend their fellow agents’ Constitutional rights despite being ostracized by their fellow agents and having their whole entire professional career threatened by their bosses on multiple occasions and would then go defend and protect the very same people that threatened their careers on multiple occasions that then stole your original ideas? Seriously, how many would?

That last paragraph was what I honestly believe in August 2016 because I wrote the following in an email to Professor Brooks on August 2nd, 2016:

“So if you want to talk about something meaningful here is what has been completely fucking meaningful for me this summer. In Feb/March, I had a hunch that there was something extremely peculiar about certain aspects in a federal regulation. This would be the same federal regulation that I know was the cause in a significant part (financially speaking) of the reformulation of particular rules in the student code of conduct at LSU Law, which is the reason (money) why our law school administration acted the way they did. I really do and sincerely forgive the administration and I’ll forgive and forget. I’ll forgive what that professor did on March 29th, but I sure as fuck will never forget it. So based on that hunch and being physiologically and psychologically revolted every time I walked in the section I was assigned to and trying so damn hard to create a façade I was okay when I really wasn’t and trying everything to feel okay and forget the what I went through last semester, but I could not. So with that hunch, I kept digging around and kept digging around and doing a lot of research about a certain federal agency, whatever petition I’ve been working on with the purpose of submitting it, that has been the only way I’ve coped with happened last semester. I promise I’ll shield the school in the petition-- if you care about academic freedom, have faith and confidence in me that whatever I can prove beyond a reasonable doubt about what this agency did that broke two very important laws (which didn’t appear possible, but is actually very possible in reality) that I will affirm I stand on solid and concrete legal ground and I can do so without harming the school, just have faith I really did find a way to restore academic freedom by using the very sources that took it away.”

Some people may say it was about the money for me. This is so far from the truth. Again, let me use facts. There is ample evidence on record that I wanted to do patent/intellectual property law from at least the spring semester of 2015. The question that seems to have evaded people’s minds is why. Why did I, Miki Kotevski, want to do patent/IP law? One reason why I was drawn to doing IP work came from my childhood that is separate from my fondness and passion for protecting people’s ideas and wanting to hear more ideas (because it stimulates me as well as loving that person for having different and unique perspectives that are not my own). As I said before, ownership of work and property at my home was always an issue where I never really got the proper love, value, and respect for the work I did do. I really sympathize with people who were victims of prosecutorial abuse when it comes to civil asset forfeiture because I understood the pain of having worked upon something for hours upon hours, days upon days, months upon months, and years upon years, and then having the work pretty much devalued or stolen based solely on the whims of people. It was my understanding from at least the spring semester of 2015 that there was no money to be made when it came to practicing as a constitutional law attorney. I never wanted to be an ambulance chaser so I then asked myself: what areas of the law could I specialize in that would be the most beneficial to me in giving me the best possible opportunity for myself in the future that I could continue to practice what I was passionate about (constitutional law) and have my bills paid. In a way, I had the longing and psychological need to do IP law. I envisioned that there would be multiple cases in the future in which it would be beneficial for me to know things about computer science and the Internet that would serve me well in which I could do free speech and 4th/5th amendment cases. I’m sure there is a recording of me saying it somewhere in 2015 or spring of 2016, but I wanted to be a patent agent and take USPTO’s test. I believe if you ask John Hamilton who was in my patent law class, he could confirm that I wanted to do such. I went to Austin to specifically network with EFF-Austin and network with a law firm that had LSU connections. I routinely spent time on websites such as ArsTechnica and TechDirt throughout 2014 and 2015 and nearly stopped visiting those same websites I loved in 2016. The whole entire reason why I joined the ABA’s Software committee and ABA’s Patent Legislation committee was that I was trying to establish myself in those fields in pursuit of what I envisioned. There is a part of me that now believes that the committees I joined were not really ABA’s software and patent legislation committee. It would be a personal blight where I spent time and effort in those committees thinking I was trying to establish and prove myself only then to find out it was a complete waste of time and effort that I could have spent doing so many different things in order to establish and prove myself in a field.

If you would have asked me in 2015 or early 2016 what was going to be my moneymaker as a practicing attorney, I would have said it would be doing patent/IP law. Due to primarily my own fault and the IP law professor at LSU Law probably not liking me, but do you understand how upset I was with myself that I earned a 1.3 in the IP law class? How am I supposed to say with a straight face with any future potential IP law employer in the future: hey, I love IP law so much so that I failed the class. How am I supposed to explain the discrepancy between having the grade earned in my Patent Law class be in the top quarter of all the classes I took (tied 7th out of 32) compared to failing IP law. It doesn't matter what anyone says but the fact of the matter is I started to act in a way that was detrimental to my future career earning prospects based on the type of law I wanted to do. On May 14th, 2016, I sent Ms. Gwen Ferrell (a worker at LSU Law Employment Services) the following: "I signed up for the Loyola Patent Law Program and under step one it says: "Each student's law school then verifies the student's graduation date and status as a student in good standing. Once the verification is complete, all qualified students are given a Patent Symplicity account for bidding on interviews at the Patent Law Interview Program." I dont know if it is you all (career services) or someone else, but I tried logging on tonight and it said--despite the fact i registered and paid--that my email (all of them) were not registered. I dont know whom i should talk to about it seeing how the bidding ends shortly and it would be a complete waste of money that i signed up and paid and i couldn't do anything with it." Honestly, it seemed like from at least Spring 2016 there was an effort to sabotage my career where I was doing all the necessary things to make myself successful in my field but someone had different plans for me in the spring of 2016. So in Summer 2016, I slowly neglected the necessary steps that I need to take by networking and establishing myself with attorneys in the aforementioned committees by participating in webinars, teleconferences, etc. By fall 2016, I had disregarded trying to establish and prove myself in the software and patent legislation committees in my pursuit of defending constitutional rights/disability rights. The point being, the steps I took were ones that indicated my complete disinterest in financial gain.

You now have a very detailed and factual reflection of the most important things that happened to me in the Spring Semester of 2016 and what were (still are) the most important things to me.

Summary IC3

So let me provide a summary of everything that happened from the middle of January 2016 to the beginning of May 2016: I expressed how my automatic bs detector goes off when it comes to the actions of people that have no sources of accountability that implement defunct legal concepts as rules. I posted a supposedly offensive poster entitled Dolly Parton's 9to5Theses. Talked about making a satire in which the elements of it contained a reference to ADHD. I had discussed fraternities and sororities, group association, religion, political groups, the difference between singular and plural terms when referring to people, animals and criminal justice issues, location of conduct at issue, Free Speech and Due Process being the very cornerstones of constitutional rights that actually promote equality and diversity, context, jokes, sexual life, IP law and free speech, conditions attached to money by the federal government to schools, the difference between objective and subjective standards, disciplinary issues, war on drugs, disability issues and anecdotal references to my history involving disability issues, and more. I discussed how OCR crippladoodled by February 2016, talked about "egregious pressure by the OCR completely disregarding the law and entrenching themselves in bureaucratic bullshit on some sort of power trip of either just power tripping and/or social justice warrioriness," and a particular instance of discrimination against disabled men being unable to express their sexual opinion. I vouched for members of the military and had the background that my best friends that are current and former members of the military and we all had the common shared extremely problematic experiences of dealing with bureaucracies because our needs were not understood by certain bureaucrats and had our rights infringed upon by those bureaucrats during our times as undergrad and graduate students. I specifically articulated how it was contemptible and vile to me when people stole my original ideas and work. I got extremely protective of my school even after having certain professors threaten my whole entire legal career and taking my original ideas and passing it off as their own. I stood up for fellow students by protecting their constitutional rights literally at the expense of any possible future professional career of mine. I specifically wrote "rights don't mean shit if you aren't willing to sacrifice your best interests for them." Everything I just wrote is fact and what would you, my dear reader, say was on my mind and could infer from the facts of what my intent would actually be and was from at least the beginning of May 2016?

TRACY BLANCHARD INTERROGATION: MAY 2016

At the outset we must condemn the practice of imputing a sinister meaning to the exercise of a person's constitutional right under the Fifth Amendment. The right of an accused person to refuse to testify, which had been in England merely a rule of evidence, was so important to our forefathers that they raised it to the dignity of a constitutional enactment, and it has been recognized as "one of the most valuable prerogatives of the citizen." Brown v. Walker, 161 U. S. 591, 610. We have reaffirmed our faith in this principle recently in Quinn v. United States, 349 U. S. 155. In Ullmann v. United States, 350 U. S. 422, decided last month, we scored the assumption that those who claim this privilege are either criminals or perjurers. The privilege against self-incrimination would be reduced to a hollow mockery if its exercise could be taken as equivalent either to a confession of guilt or a conclusive presumption of perjury. As we pointed out in Ullmann, a witness may have a reasonable fear of prosecution and yet be innocent of any wrongdoing. The privilege serves to protect the innocent who otherwise might *558 be ensnared by ambiguous circumstances. See Griswold, The Fifth Amendment. Today It is one thing for the city authorities themselves to inquire into Slochower's fitness, but quite another for his discharge to be based entirely on events occurring before a federal committee whose inquiry was announced as not directed at "the property, affairs, or government of the city, or . . . official conduct of city employees." In this respect the present case differs materially from Garner, where the city was attempting to elicit information necessary to determine the qualifications of its employees. Here, the Board had possessed the pertinent information for 12 years, and the questions which Professor Slochower refused to answer were admittedly asked for a purpose wholly unrelated to his college functions. On such a record the Board cannot claim that its action was part of a bona fide attempt to gain needed and relevant information. . . . Without attacking Professor Slochower's qualification for his position in any manner, and apparently with full knowledge of the testimony he had given some 12 years *559 before at the state committee hearing, the Board seized upon his claim of privilege before the federal committee and converted it through the use of § 903 into a conclusive presumption of guilt. SLOCHOWER v. BOARD OF HIGHER EDUCATION OF NEW YORK CITY, 350 U.S. 551 (1956)

Yeah, but you know what bugs me? If you weren't in there, who is supposed to point out all the doubts and qualifications about the reporting, all the potential misinterpretations and exaggerations? that person needs to be in the room. I understand it could be you, but it could be me or somebody else at that level. They should have the benefit of that type of nuance and information, and clearly they don't, or at least they don't enough. They're certainly not getting it out of the so-called senior leaders who are sitting round that table beside Andy.

As of August 14th, 2023, PLAINTIFF does not have the fortitude to include everything that happened from May 2016 (such as TRACY BLANCHARD'S May 2016 unconstitutional interrogation), Summer 2016, Fall 2016, and more. PLAINTIFF necessarily incorporates what he submitted to the Texas Bar, which is sworn testimony, concerning 2016 and 2017 [here]. PLAINTIFF can explain HILLARY CLINTON'S and LORETTA LYNCH'S TARMAC MEETING as it deals with PLAINTIFF'S Facts.

INCIDENT VIII: Prejudicial Lobotomy.

On May 9th, 2017, ANDREW MCCABE became the Director of the FBI. The FBI had a Director that engaged in aiding and abetting terrorism and RICO enterprise. Then on August 1, 2017, ANDREW MCCABE went back to being the Deputy Director of the FBI and then resigned from the FBI on January 29, 2018. It depends when this happened, but there was a connection to this incident and ANDREW MCCABE being promoted as Director of the FBI or doing this as one of his first priorities as Director of the FBI.

PLAINTIFF learned that you can't help yourself unless you want to be helped. PLAINTIFF wanted and desperately needed the help. DEFENDANTS denied PLAINTIFF from getting the proper help in time.

In either April or May 2017, after an assassination attempt that the FBI never did a damn thing about, PLAINTIFF was in a world of hurt and needed the proper psychological help and treatment after everything that had transpired through the years. In light of Incident VII and based on PLAINTIFF'S knowledge of the time, there was a high foreseeability on part of the PLAINTIFF that litigation would soon be forthcoming and necessarily a key component of that litigation would involve PLAINTIFF'S Autism. So PLAINTIFF went to a diagnostic center to confirm PLAINTIFF'S Autism and get the proper psychological help and treatment available to him (and not at a cost to the Government at the time). Money was spent on this testing and the amount can be discovered through subpoenaing DISCOVER credit card's records by PLAINTIFF'S Mother since PLAINTIFF was completely broke at the time and couldn't afford treatment or diagnostic assessments.

However, PLAINTIFF did not realize DEFENDANTS had violated 18 U.S.C §1961 section 1029 (relating to fraud and related activity in connection with access devices) and hacked PLAINTIFF'S laptop. Through a system of having done that and having a different doctor direct PLAINTIFF to DEFENDANTS (in which DEFENDANTS conspired with that aforementioned Doctor), PLAINTIFF arrived at some fictitious psychological diagnostic testing center that DEFENDANTS had created so that DEFENDANTS could get a psychological profile on PLAINTIFF and be denied the help PLAINTIFF so desperately needed.

There were two DEFENDANTS at the psychological testing center. One was an assistant of polish ancestry and another was a doctor. There DEFENDANTS having prior knowledge of City and County of San Francisco V. Sheehan, 575 U.S. 600 (2015) and the brief, needed to coerce PLAINTIFF--through having committed torture and through necessarily fabricating evidence-- into conforming to the facts of City and County of San Francisco V. Sheehan, 575 U.S. 600 (2015) and the brief so that they could absolve themselves of all liability of their actions. There were some standard psychological tests given. But then DEFENDANTS gave and administered the Minnesota Multiphasic Personality Inventory (MMPI)(either Phase III or Phase IV), which is the most common psychometric test devised to assess psychopathology (i.e. psychopaths) and not autism. PLAINTIFF is not a psychopath nor a sociopath. PLAINTIFF was aware of what the MMPI tests. PLAINTIFF then proceeded to question DEFENDANTS on why they were administering the MMPI and not giving a diagnostic test and tools that assessed autism. DEFENDANTS recorded this interaction so there is proof of this. PLAINTIFF raised enough issues and provided enough information that any reasonable psychologist would have necessarily given pause to reflect upon the issues PLAINTIFF presented as it was not the most conducive in helping PLAINTIFF with his Autism. DEFENDANTS were absolutely 100% adamant to continue the RICO Enterprise and fabricate the results of the testing in order to conform to City and County of San Francisco V. Sheehan, 575 U.S. 600 (2015) and the brief. To the best of PLAINTIFF'S recollection, DEFENDANTS would not proceed unless PLAINTIFF took the test. So PLAINTIFF took the test and continued on because PLAINTIFF was desperate for help. This violated 42 U.S. Code §10841 and was tantamount to continuing to torture PLAINTIFF. PLAINTIFF went looking for specific help and provided the right, true, and correct information that would have helped PLAINTIFF but then DEFENDANTS completely ignored all of the information because it was a complete set up to conform to City and County of San Francisco V. Sheehan, 575 U.S. 600 (2015) and the brief to absolve DEFENDANTS of all liability. PLAINTIFF was diagnosed by DEFENDANTS as not being autistic; but as having schizoid personality disorder to conform to factual prerequisites of City and County of San Francisco V. Sheehan, 575 U.S. 600 (2015).

PLAINTIFF after being interrogated by DEFENDANTS over the course of two days, recorded 3 separate small clips of himself to give himself a present sense impression of what happened after the interrogation in 2017 because it was a complete set up, to corroborate how DEFENDANTS at every opportunity in PLAINTIFF'S life were intentionally ignorant of PLAINTIFF'S actual disabilities (and not their own desired prefabricated disabilities and issues) and refused to consider the legitimate disabilities at all, and recorded it because of how odd the whole situation was to PLAINTIFF. These are a summary and some of the statements PLAINTIFF made in said in the 3 clips below:

In IMG_0015.mov, "PLAINTIFF left Dr. "David Jezel's" office. After a referral, circumstances were extremely peculiar and odd. Only two people there: doctor and assistant. Doctor and PLAINTIFF only talked for a couple of moments. PLAINTIFF sought to clarify that his testing would have only covered autism or autism related disorders. PLAINTIFF was only given MMPI Edition IV if he was not mistaken. The vibe was extremely odd. It just didn't feel right and gut instinct didn't feel right about the whole entire issue. There was an interview. Polish assistant woman was asking for PLAINTIFF'S entire childhood history. PLAINTIFF stated never really addressed autism. That's the thing that makes it the most odd. This never addressed autism in any satisfactory way. The assistant posed a question that PLAINTIFF knew she could not have known in which there was no conceivable way [she could have known]. For instance, she asked PLAINTIFF "you moved around a lot as a kid" and PLAINTIFF never gave the assistant any answer that would have suggested that PLAINTIFF moved around a lot as a kid. What PLAINTIFF did say as every other summer PLAINTIFF went back and forth between Serbia and America and not that PLAINTIFF moved around a lot. There was another question she posed that she could have known that she would have done a background. When PLAINTIFF was readmitted to LSU, PLAINTIFF never talked about FRAGILE X with assistant, PLAINTIFF said he was tested for Fragile X in which PLAINTIFF tested positive and negative, which was PLAINTIFF'S understanding based on what his mother said in the petition for readmission; PLAINTIFF never told the assistant about that, but the assistant asked PLAINTIFF about that. PLAINTIFF said it seemed more like a drilling like they were trying to establish a psychological profile of who PLAINTIFF is and nothing for autism."

In IMG_0016.mov. "PLAINTIFF talked about some issues of DOJ and Dept of Education in the interview. One question the assistant posed was: do you trust your government. Answer PLAINTIFF gave was that "he trusted his government so long as they followed the law." Plaintiff then stated: "If anything comes from this, PLAINTIFF felt like he was set up. It was a complete set up. PLAINTIFF was legitimately trying to affirm whether or not PLAINTIFF had autism or if he was somewhere on the spectrum. AND THAT IF I GOT SET UP TRYING TO GET HELP I CAN'T IMAGINE ANYTHING LOWER THAN THAT WHEN PLAINTIFF WAS TRYING TO GET HELP. PLAINTIFF was trying to confirm something to help somebody out."

Then In IMG_0017.mov, PLAINTIFF was giving present sense impression to the interrogation by DEFENDANTS in which PLAINTIFF said: "this assistant/doctor said I had depression, and at the moment, I'm severely depressed over what I went through over the last year. However, however, she discounted my learning disability, even though, even though, there was paperwork in front of her. I can confirm my disability,...my writing disability, she discounted my disability, I don't know what psychologist would openly discount a patient's disability.

Shakes head in disgust WHO DOES THAT?"

DEFENDANTS violated: Ferguson v. Charleston, 532 U.S. 67 (2001) (holding: a state sanctioned agency or facility's use of a diagnostic test to obtain evidence of a patient's criminal conduct for law enforcement purposes is an unreasonable search if the patient has not consented to the procedure). A key factor was the fact that The invasion of privacy in the case here was extremely substantial in which there could be a complete misunderstanding about the purpose of the test or the potential use of the test results (especially if they are erroneous). Some factors in determining reasonableness was whether there were protections against the dissemination of the results to third parties and whether the immediate objective of the searches was to generate evidence for law enforcement purposes). DEFENDANTS actions were for politically retaliatory purposes, to falsely conform to get PLAINTIFF to conform to the materially misleading and obstructive acts justifying City and County of San Francisco v. Sheehan, 575 U.S. 600 (2015), and to prevent PLAINTIFF from being able to sue in which the credibility of someone who having been (falsely) diagnosed as "schizoid personality disorder" is zero. This provides proof of numerous violations of 42 U.S. Code §10841. See some of DEFENDANTS' crimes of: 18 USC §1961 section 1503 (relating to obstruction of justice), 18 USC §1961 section 1510 (relating to obstruction of criminal investigations), 18 USC §1961 section 1511 (relating to the obstruction of State or local law enforcement), 18 USC §1961 section 1512 (relating to tampering with a witness, victim, or an informant), 18 USC §1961 section 1513 (relating to retaliating against a witness, victim, or an informant). 18 U.S.C. §2422 & 18 U.S.C. §2423; 18 U.S.C §2331; 18 U.S.C §2332b; 18 U.S.C §1961 section 1029 (relating to fraud and related activity in connection with access devices); 18 U.S.C §1961 sections 1581–1592 (relating to peonage, slavery, and trafficking in persons). 18 U.S.C §1961 section 1951 (relating to interference with commerce, robbery, or extortion), 18 U.S.C. §2340 & 18 U.S.C § 2441; 18 USC 2331 1(B)(iii) and 5(B)(iii), 18 USC §1961; 18 USC 2331 1(B)(iii) and 5(B)(iii), 18 USC 2331 1(B)(iii) and 5(B)(iii), 18 U.S.C. § 1956 (Financing Terrorism). DEFENDANTS shared the information amongst each other in this episode. See: United States v. Miller, 116 F.3d 641, 674-75 (2d Cir. 1997) (act involving murder need not be actual murder as long as the act directly concerned murder, and facilitation of murder was a proper RICO predicate because accessory offenses described in the New York State statutory provisions involved murder within the meaning of RICO where defendant provided information he knew would enable inquirer to commit murder or other RICO violations). 18 U.S.C. §2422 & 18 U.S.C. §2423; 18 U.S.C §2332b; Section 504 of the REHABILITATION ACT of 1973; ADAAA. 18 U.S.C. § 956(a)(1) (relating to conspiracy to murder, kidnap, or maim persons abroad) because PLAINTIFF didn't get the proper help and would maim himself. RFRA violations; Constitutional Violations: 1st, 4th, 5th, 6th, 7th, 8th, 9th, 10th, 13th, and 14th Amendment. 18 U.S.C. §1961, 18 U.S.C. §1962 (a), 18 U.S.C. §1962(b), 18 U.S.C. §1962(c), and/or 18 U.S.C. §1962(d); 42 U.S. Code §10841.

When discussing the TARMAC incident of June 2016, ANDREW MCCABE provided PLAINTIFF a factual nexus connecting ANDREW MCCABE to the interrogation in April/May 2017 to the TARMAC incident in which terrorist activity was furthered continued to be directed at PLAINTIFF when PLAINTIFF went seeking psychological help. This need for psychological help was used against PLAINTIFF. ANDREW MCCABE said the following in his book: "Two small planes were parked on the tarmac in Phoenix, Arizona. A man got off one of those planes, walked over to the other, and climbed the steps into the cabin. He met for half an hour with the woman inside. The man was Bill Clinton, the woman Loretta Lynch. The two had never met before. The conversation may have been completely innocent. Lynch and Clinton would both recall that they mostly talked about their grandchildren. Even granting that, the tarmac meeting was a horrible lapse in judgment by Loretta Lynch. She should have recused herself from Midyear at that point. She did not—she made things worse...Lynch announced that she would accept the FBI's recommendations in the Midyear case. On the same day, Lynch's spokeswoman reasserted the attorney general's authority over the final decision. Half-in, half-out, and all confused. That was the last straw for Comey...In the end, the Hillary Clinton interview revealed nothing new. It did not change the way we saw the strengths and weakness of the case. The midyear team concluded formally that no charges should be pursued. Justice could not credibly announce that conclusion because its credibility had been compromised.”⁶⁹²

PLAINTIFF said nearly an identical quote like that discussing being halfway in and halfway out approach to the story thereby providing the most unique perspective and analysis (that PLAINTIFF was most constitutionally comfortable with) during the two-day interrogation by the FBI in April/May 2017 about the story.⁶⁹³ Thereby this is a factual nexus to speech. DEFENDANTS FBI have that video and proof of PLAINTIFF making that statement in which ANDREW MCCABE is referencing PLAINTIFF'S statement about the story said in the interrogation. At one of his lowest points, DEFENDANTS FBI here could have provided the help PLAINTIFF needed after being tortured by DEFENDANTS, having committed war crimes by DEFENDANTS, having been subject to DEFENDANTS' terrorist activities, particularly done by ANDREW MCCABE at the behest of HILLARY CLINTON, but DEFENDANTS did not.

Like PLAINTIFF has consistently argued and said, DEFENDANTS, especially FBI and ANDREW MCCABE, when literally waived with EXCULPATORY evidence and paperwork in front of their face documenting PLAINTIFF'S writing disability, intentionally and willfully ignored it because they would have no basis of MID-YEAR because it was a writing disability that caused the issue in MID-YEAR. DEFENDANTS were talking about PLAINTIFF'S writing disability issue for more than 8 years (Spring 2008 to Summer 2016). Let me repeat that again because PLAINTIFF doesn't think you fully understood or heard what PLAINTIFF just said. DEFENDANTS were talking about a writing disability issue for more than 8 years (Spring 2008 to Summer 2016). They intentionally ignored the exculpatory evidence of PLAINTIFF'S writing disability when PLAINTIFF underwent diagnostic testing in Fall 2014 and then continued their investigation even further on top of all of their RICO Predicate Activities and Enterprise. ANDREW MCCABE, in his book and writings, connected MID-YEAR to TARMAC to Interrogation to CLINTONS—all constituting psychological torture and financing thereof. Period.

Let me put it in another scenario for the Court to understand: DEFENDANTS, especially ANDREW MCCABE the former DIRECTOR and DEPUTY DIRECTOR OF THE FBI, were specifically investigating and talking about a writing disability issue for more than 8 years

(Spring 2008 to Summer 2016) through their own admissions. In this time, DEFENDANTS committed more than 3 acts of international and domestic terrorism against PLAINTIFF. Then after committing acts of terrorism, DEFENDANTS then denied PLAINTIFF psychological help and treatment 9 years after this all started. The length and duration of an investigation was necessarily talked about in Greene v. United States, 454 F.2d 783, 787 (9th Cir. 1972):

This provides proof of numerous violations of 42 U.S. Code §10841. See some of DEFENDANTS’ crimes of: 18 USC §1961 section 1503 (relating to obstruction of justice), 18 USC §1961 section 1510 (relating to obstruction of criminal investigations), 18 USC §1961 section 1511 (relating to the obstruction of State or local law enforcement), 18 USC §1961 section 1512 (relating to tampering with a witness, victim, or an informant), 18 USC §1961 section 1513 (relating to retaliating against a witness, victim, or an informant). 18 U.S.C. §2422 & 18 U.S.C. §2423; 18 U.S.C §2331; 18 U.S.C §2332b; 18 U.S.C §1961 section 1029 (relating to fraud and related activity in connection with access devices); 18 U.S.C §1961 sections 1581–1592 (relating to peonage, slavery, and trafficking in persons). 18 U.S.C §1961 section 1951 (relating to interference with commerce, robbery, or extortion), 18 U.S.C. §2340 & 18 U.S.C § 2441; 18 USC 2331 1(B)(iii) and 5(B)(iii), 18 USC §1961; 18 USC 2331 1(B)(iii) and 5(B)(iii), 18 USC 2331 1(B)(iii) and 5(B)(iii), 18 U.S.C. § 1956 (Financing Terrorism). DEFENDANTS shared the information amongst each other in this episode. See: United States v. Miller, 116 F.3d 641, 674-75 (2d Cir. 1997) (act involving murder need not be actual murder as long as the act directly concerned murder, and facilitation of murder was a proper RICO predicate because accessory offenses described in the New York State statutory provisions involved murder within the meaning of RICO where defendant provided information he knew would enable inquirer to commit murder or other RICO violations). 18 U.S.C. §2422 & 18 U.S.C. §2423; 18 U.S.C §2332b; Section 504 of the REHABILITATION ACT of 1973; ADAAA. 18 U.S.C. § 956(a)(1) (relating to conspiracy to murder, kidnap, or maim persons abroad) because PLAINTIFF didn’t get the proper help and would maim himself. RFRA violations; Constitutional Violations: 1st, 4th, 5th, 6th, 7th, 8th, 9th, 10th, 13th, and 14th Amendment. 18 U.S.C. §1961, 18 U.S.C. §1962 (a), 18 U.S.C. §1962(b), 18 U.S.C. §1962(c), and/or 18 U.S.C. §1962(d); 42 U.S. Code §10841; 42

U.S.C. §2000aa. “However, the line must be drawn where, as here, a government agent lures the unwary innocent and then implants a law-breaking disposition that was not theretofore present. In such cases, the government takes on the unwholesome appearance of the consummate manufacturer of crime. The continuing vitality and integrity of our "government of laws" would be imperiled if we sanctioned the manufacturing of crime by those responsible for upholding and enforcing the law.” United States v. Lard, 734 F.2d 1290 (8th Cir. 1984)

DEFENDANTS violated: Wilson v. Seiter, 501 U.S. 294 (1994) (holding for purposes of 8th Amendment and 14th Amendment violations: one claiming that the conditions of his confinement violate the Eighth Amendment must show a culpable state of mind on the part of officials; the "wantonness" of conduct depends not on its effect on the individual, but on the constraints facing the official; there must be “deliberate indifference” to one’s “serious” medical needs”).

Simply, ANDREW MCCABE/DEFENDANTS, never once between 2008-2018, asked himself the question below or had the following thought come in his brain to put a stop to it:

SHOTGUN CLAIMS:

for the sake of brevity, when PLAINTIFF incorporates one of the following definitions in this section of DEFINITIONS and Rules of Construction, it shall have the same legal purpose and effect as PLAINTIFF making an allegation against a specific individual.

For example, the definition of the CIA is below. Instead of typing in every chapter duplicitous information over and over again, by having PLAINTIFF incorporate the definition of CIA in a chapter (or subchapter), it applies in that chapter (or subchapter). For example, PLAINTIFF'S definition of CIA can be read as including the following scenario: LEON PANETTA in Miki's Tea Party materially omitted key context and facts in any reports, memoranda, documents, decisions, etc. that concerns PLAINTIFF. Another example: an unknown officer within the Directorate of Analysis at the CIA had conducted or was part of any actions, plans, operations, plots, etc. undertaken against PLAINTIFF in An Anchor and a Pitchfork.

CIA: MICHAEL HAYDEN, LEON PANETTA (especially him), GINA HASPEL, JOHN O. BRENNAN (especially him), WILLIAM BURNS, MICHAEL JOSEPH MORELL, and/or any current and former unknown officers, sub-contractors, any middlemen or actors between CENTRAL INTELLIGENCE AGENCY and any other applicable DEFENDANT, and employees of the CENTRAL INTELLIGENCE AGENCY that: 1) concerns anything in this complaint, 2) have come in contact with PLAINTIFF or any DEFENDANTS and discussed PLAINTIFF, 3) read any information about PLAINTIFF, 4) have knowledge of PLAINTIFF, 5) shared, submitted, or received any of the facts that concern anything in this complaint, 6) received, shared, or submitted materially false, fabricated evidence, or misleading information about PLAINTIFF amongst DEFENDANTS and to any Court and/or knowing that materially false, fabricated evidence, or misleading information about PLAINTIFF was submitted, shared, or received by DEFENDANTS and the Court and failed to address and fix the errors, 7) conducted or were part of any actions, plans, operations, plots, etc. undertaken against PLAINTIFF, 8) shared, submitted, or received any memoranda, documents, information, or reports about PLAINTIFF and amongst any DEFENDANTS or failed to provide any information when requested by PLAINTIFF or intentionally did not inform PLAINTIFF of information when PLAINTIFF should have been made aware of it, 9) materially omitted key context and facts in any reports, memoranda, documents, decisions, etc. that concerns PLAINTIFF and/or failed to properly fix it and/or shared, submitted, or received reports that omitted key context and facts in any reports, memoranda, documents, national security letters, and/or warrants, 10) omitted exculpatory evidence in reports, warrants, and to the court and/or failed to correct the omission of exculpatory evidence in reports, warrants, documents, and to the Court), 11) knew of imminent danger posed to PLAINTIFF by DEFENDANTS' plots and actions and failed to intervene properly and in time, 12) knew of any unconstitutional acts committed against PLAINTIFF and failed to report it, intervene, or adequately notify PLAINTIFF of such unconstitutional actions, 13) knowingly used perjured testimony against PLAINTIFF in which that perjured testimony was shared, submitted, and/or received amongst DEFENDANTS and the Court; and/or failing to notify or correct the record to the Court or Employers that perjured testimony was utilized against PLAINTIFF, 14) knowingly provided a court with fabricated evidence 15) failed to notify and properly inform PLAINTIFF of material facts, 16) shared information with local police departments, county sheriffs, state police departments or conspired or directed with local police departments, county sheriffs, state police departments to conduct any activity against PLAINTIFF, 17) had manipulated PLAINTIFF in order to sustain getting and obtaining future resources, 18) had marketed that their procedures and standards were fair, constitutionally balanced, and objective when they in fact were not, 19) had intentionally manipulated disabled individuals to further RICO Enterprise 1 and lied about it, 20) concealed evidence, destroyed exculpatory evidence, did not provide a Court with exculpatory evidence when required, destroyed documents, and/or abused the attorney-client privilege or legal process to prevent PLAINTIFF from knowing anything material to PLAINTIFF and to shield any DEFENDANT from adverse litigation results or prevent PLAINTIFF from holding DEFENDANTS accountable, 21) engaged in a conspiracy with any of the DEFENDANTS in violation of 18 U.S.C. 241 or 18 U.S.C. 242, 22) knowingly ruled against PLAINTIFF knowing that legal fraud through a RICO predicate act had been perpetuated on the Court or had reason to know a DEFENDANT committed legal fraud through a RICO predicate act had been perpetuated upon the Court and still ruled in a DEFENDANT'S favor, 23) intentionally denied PLAINTIFF access to Court, 24) were so prejudicial against PLAINTIFF solely on the basis of PLAINTIFF'S Speech or PLAINTIFF'S Disability that it denied PLAINTIFF'S Due Process, 25) intentionally exploited PLAINTIFF'S disabilities out of malice and knew of PLAINTIFF'S disabilities when the acts were perpetuated, OR 26) conducted any activity that involves, implicates, or violated PLAINTIFF'S specific constitutional, liberty, or legal interests or anything else in this complaint.

Section. Section could mean a specific section of a law that PLAINTIFF is citing or a Section could refer to a distinct period of time that is contained in this lawsuit that could consist of multiple chapters or itself being just one chapter; these are the Sections in the complaint: Upbringing, Narcoterrorism, Transition Era, Pravus Pravda.

Chapter(s). Chapter is a specific reference to particular set of facts and applicable and incorporated law and legal arguments in which RICO Enterprise 1 and RICO Enterprise 2 occurred in (but a chapter is not a separate, different, and distinct core set of facts unless explained otherwise) as certain chapter(s) in one section are necessarily connected to different chapters in different sections and are therefore not separate, different, and distinct core set of facts. There could even be a subchapter within a chapter. It is just an easier way to quickly refer to a particular set of facts and law and legal arguments incorporated therein.⁶⁹⁴ The following are chapters (and subchapters): Section: Upbringing, Tragedy, Whoopsie, GIVE ME BEER and GIVE ME LIBERTY, Peasants Revolt Against the King, Confidential papers, Big Brother Big Sister, EMT Terry and the Doll, MIDYEAR EXAM (MIDYEAR), Anarchy, Pop Goes the Weasel (subchapter: Trespass Incident #3), Peachy Miami, Victoria Flight, Law Enforcement Interventions (as well as subchapter: False Identification), Angel's, This Side of the Street, Meth, Tar, Financial Terrorism, Calm Down, Man, The Roof, The Roof Is On Fire, Miki's Tea Party, I'm a Sexy Nazi and I Know It, Rhetoric, Champagne, The Devil Reincarnate (subchapter: The Matter), Section: *Transition Era, Guess who's back? Full Transcript of HILLARY CLINTON'S Jackson-Jefferson Speech in Fairfax, Virginia on June 26th, 2015:

This speech was given at the EagleBank Arena at George Mason University.

Thank you all so much. I gotta tell you... [applause] Thank you. Hello, Virginia! [applause]

I love your governor and I love your first lady. And I am so thrilled to be here with you on such an historic day for our country, a day when we affirmed the principle first set down more than two centuries ago by a wise Virginian, that every one of us is created equal. [applause]

I'm delighted to be here with so many friends. I had chance to visit with your two great Democratic senators. Both Senator Warner and Senator Kaine are doing such an extraordinary job in the Senate, representing you.

And of course for me, it's a special treat to be here with the tremendous, unbelievable, beyond description—I'm running out of superlatives—governor who has been a friend and a colleague to me. You know, they say Virginia is for lovers. Well, I'm not sure anyone loves this Commonwealth and all of you more than Terry McAuliffe. He may have the biggest heart and the most open mind of anyone you'll ever meet—except, of course, for your first lady. There are not many people who can leave Terry speechless, but Dorothy does it every time she walks into the room. And I happen to know a thing or two about what it takes to be first lady of a state, and I have to say Dorothy is in a class by herself.

Now, we've always known Terry could talk the talk, but as governor he's proving every day he can also walk the walk. [applause] Tens of thousands of new jobs, billions in new capital investment, exports surging, a stronger more diversified Virginia economy—that's what your Democratic Governor Terry McAuliffe is delivering. And he's my kind of leader—a pragmatic progressive, he understands that success should be measured by how many families get ahead and stay ahead, not by how big the bonuses are for the wealthiest Americans. So he's making the investments Virginia needs in education and transportation, and he's taking care of our veterans. He is working to expand preschool for Virginia's children. He is defeating efforts to close women's health centers across the Commonwealth. And from his first day in office, he's been a champion for marriage equality. And through it all, Terry has exemplified the Virginia Way. He always prefers common ground to scorched earth. He knows—he knows that we Americans may differ, bicker, stumble and fall, but we are at our best when we pick each other up, when we have each other's back.

Today was one of those days when we're reminded that like any family, our American family is strongest when we cherish what unites us and fight back against those who would divide us. It was an emotional roller coaster of a day. This morning, love triumphed in the highest court in our land. [applause]

Equality triumphed, America triumphed. Just listen to the final lines of the Supreme Court's decision, because they have resonated with so many people across our country. And this is what that decision said:

No union is more profound than marriage, for it embodies the highest ideals of love, fidelity, devotion, sacrifice, and family. In forming a marital union, two people become something greater than once they were. Marriage embodies a love that may endure even past death. It would misunderstand these men and women to say they disrespect the idea of marriage. Their plea is that they do respect it, respect it so deeply that they seek to find its fulfillment for themselves. Their hope is not to be condemned to live in loneliness, excluded from one of civilization's oldest institutions. They ask for equal dignity in the eyes of the law. The Constitution grants them that right.

And to that I say, "Amen! Thank you!" [applause]

You know, like so many others, my personal views have been shaped over time by people I have known and loved. As a mother and now a grandmother, I remember the joy and pride I felt watching my daughter marry the love of her life. How could we deny that opportunity to any, anyone's son or daughters solely on the basis of who they are and who they love?

Today's decision confirms we've working toward equality as a nation, step by step, case by case, court by court, and that equality has been right there in the Constitution all along. There's something quite remarkable about that.

Like the case here in Virginia that struck down bans on interracial marriage 48 years ago [applause], today was not about discovering new rights. It was about getting closer to the ideals that have defined our nation from the very beginning.

I took comfort in that this afternoon in Charleston, South Carolina, as I joined President Obama and Mrs. Obama and many others in honoring the life and legacy of Reverend Pinkney and the other eight men and women murdered for the color of their skin.

Our ideals persevere through every storm if we honor and defend them. America is a gift, but it's a gift that must be earned by every generation.

And make no mistake—there are always forces pushing in the opposite direction to deny rights rather than defend or expand them. To constrict the circle of opportunity and equality rather than expand it. To lash out in hate and fear rather than embrace in love and hope.

Now [applause], I know it's tempting to dismiss a terrible tragedy like Charleston as an isolated incident, to believe that in today's America bigotry is largely behind us. But despite our best efforts and our highest hopes, America's long struggle with racism is far from finished.

And let's be honest, let's be honest. Despite today's ruling, our struggle to end LGBT discrimination is also far from finished. [applause] That's because fear and hatred are far from finished.

And so our march goes on. America's march toward that more perfect union, toward equality, toward dignity, toward justice, toward a brighter future for all Americans.

The Supreme Court has done its work. Now we have to do ours.

I'm gonna talk a little politics here, not just because we're at a political event and not just because I'm running for president, but because politics is about the choices we make—the choices we make. Not only about our leaders, but about how we govern ourselves.

Over the past weeks we've seen many moving displays of leadership that have really exemplified our country at our best. The president stirred us with his words both before and especially today as he spoke at the funeral.

Governors like Nikki Haley and Terry McAuliffe made us proud by removing the Confederate flag from statehouses and license plates.

Mayors and pastors and community leaders came together in unity, Democrats and Republicans alike.

But we also saw the opposite from too many, even including many of the Republican candidates for president who seemed determined to lead us right back into the past. This morning they all decried the Supreme Court's ruling upholding marriage equality. We even heard them call for a constitutional amendment to strip away the right to marry from our gay brothers and sisters, strip away equal dignity in the eyes of the law. Instead of trying to turn back the clock, they should be joining us in saying loudly and clearly, No. No to discrimination once and for all.

I am asking them—please, don't make the rights, the hopes of any American into a political football for this 2016 campaign. LGBT Americans should be free not just to marry but to live, learn and work just like everybody else.

Sadly, before the funerals of the nine murdered, church-going, faithful men and women were even finished, some Republicans in Congress voted to stop Centers for Disease Control from studying gun violence. How can you watch massacre after massacre and take that vote? That is wrong. It puts our people at risk. [applause] And I for one am never going to stop fighting for a better, safer, smarter approach to get that gun violence in this country under control. [applause]

I believe as the President said today in Charleston, a majority of Americans and a majority of gun owners support common-sense reforms. Let us join together.

There's so much for us to do. We have a long agenda in front of us and we need to show respect for one another. We need to call out derogatory language, insults, personal attacks wherever they occur. There is enough for us to debate without going there.

Recently a Republican candidate for president described immigrants as drug dealers, rapists and criminals. [boos] Maybe he's never met them. Maybe he's never stopped to ask the millions of people who love this country, work hard and want nothing more than a chance to build a better life for themselves and their children what their lives are like.

Now, these are not the only problems. We need to condemn divisive rhetoric, but we also need to make sure that people are looking at the real problems of our country.

A lot of Republicans make talk about having new ideas and fresh faces, but across the board they're the party of the past, not the future. And when you ask them, "What are your new ideas on the economy?" Well, you guessed it—more tax cuts for the very wealthy and fewer rules for Wall Street. Now if that sounds familiar, it's because those are exactly the same top-down economic policies that failed us before. Americans have come too far to see our progress ripped away. [applause]

Ask many of these candidates about climate change, one of the defining threats of our time, and they'll say, "I'm not a scientist." Well then, why don't they start listening to those who are scientists? [applause]

Ask them about women's reproductive health—they're likely to talk about defunding Planned Parenthood [boos] Or maybe they'll insist on forcing women to undergo some demeaning and invasive medical procedure as was attempted right here in Virginia. Well, one thing's for certain: we don't need any more leaders who shame and blame women rather than respect our right to make our own reproductive health decisions. [applause]

And then—then there's the Affordable Care Act. All the Republican candidates were furious that earlier this week the Supreme Court once again confirmed what we've all known and believed for years—it is settled law and it is here to stay. That means health insurance for 16 million Americans and more than 335,000 Virginians is here to stay. That means millions of young people are able to stay on their parents' plans. It means hundreds of billions of dollars in budget savings are here to stay. And yes, you heard that right—because contrary to all the fear-mongering, this law—the Affordable Care Act—does not grow the deficit, it shrinks the deficit. [applause] And you know what's gone for good? Insurance companies discriminating against people with pre-existing conditions [applause] or charging women more for the same coverage. [applause]

Now the Republicans have already forced more than 50 votes in Congress to repeal or dismantle this law—all without offering a viable alternative—yet even after two Supreme Court verdicts and a presidential election, they're still fighting to take us backwards. [boos]

I think we can sum up the message from the court and the American people in just two words: Move on!

We still have work to do. There's more to do to protect patients from high drug costs and insurance company abuses, to simplify and streamline to ease burdens on small businesses, to lower out-of-pocket costs for families.

And Governor McAuliffe is right—it is time, it is past time, to expand Medicaid right here in Virginia. That would provide coverage to hundreds of thousands of Virginians who need it. It would create or support tens of thousands of jobs. And, it would potentially save about a $100 million in the state budget.

So it's time to drop the excuses, drop the obstruction and get the job done for Virginia families, for hard working men and women. It's time to turn the page on failed Republican policies in Washington and Richmond and across our country, so that we can together focus on the future.

Look across this commonwealth. You see so much that's working, so much to build on. After the worst economic crisis since the Great Depression, Virginians across this Commonwealth are making a new beginning for themselves. And I know what you did. You worked extra shifts. You took second jobs. You postponed those home repairs. You figured out how to make it work.

We're standing again, but we all know we're not yet running the way America should. And you see the record profits of corporations and the record pay of some CEO's, but too many paychecks have barely budged.

The question is: when does all your hard work pay off? When does your family get ahead? Now! Now! You brought our country back and it is your time. [applause]

And you know what? America succeeds when you succeed.

I'm running for president to make our economy and our country work for you and for every American. I will go to bat for the successful, the striving and the struggling, for the innovators and the inventors, for the factory workers and food servers who stand on their feet all day, for the nurses who work the night shift, for the truckers who drive for hours, for the farmers who feed us, for the veterans who served our country, for the small business owners who took risks, for the gay couple who love each other, for the black child who still lives in the shadow of discrimination and the Hispanic child who still lives in the shadow of deportation. [applause]

Just as Terry said, I'm on the side for everyone who's ever been knocked down but refused to be knocked out. [applause]

I'm not running for some Americans, but for all Americans.

I will always stand my ground so you and our country can gain ground. [applause]

If you'll give me the chance, I will wage and win four fights for you and we'll do it together to build that economy for tomorrow not yesterday; to strengthen America's families, because when our families are strong America is strong; to harness all our power, our smarts and our values to maintain American leadership in the world; and to reform our government and revitalize our democracy so it works for everyday Americans.

Now, to win these fights, our next president will have to work with Congress and every other willing partner in our country. I will do just that. I did it before. I worked across the aisle.

It's not going to be easy. I know as well as anyone how hard this job really is. I have seen it up close and personal. [applause]

You know how all our presidents come into office looking so vigorous and then we watch their hair grow grayer and grayer? Well, you won't see my hair turn white in the White House. [laughing] [applause]

I may not be youngest candidate in this race, but with your help I will be youngest woman president in the history of the United States! [applause]

So, Virginia... [applause] Virginia, let's work together to make sure this beloved Commonwealth is blue, that we have Democrats in the state legislature to work with that governor, and that we do have a Democratic president in the White House in 2017! [applause]

Thank you all and God bless you! [applause]

Joint Statement by President Obama and Prime Minister Singh of India

Reaffirming their nations' shared values and increasing convergence of interests, Prime Minister Manmohan Singh and President Barack Obama resolved today in New Delhi to expand and strengthen the India-U.S. global strategic partnership.

The two leaders welcomed the deepening relationship between the world's two largest democracies. They commended the growing cooperation between their governments, citizens, businesses, universities and scientific institutions, which have thrived on a shared culture of pluralism, education, enterprise, and innovation, and have benefited the people of both countries.

Building on the transformation in India-U.S. relations over the past decade, the two leaders resolved to intensify cooperation between their nations to promote a secure and stable world; advance technology and innovation; expand mutual prosperity and global economic growth; support sustainable development; and exercise global leadership in support of economic development, open government, and democratic values.

The two leaders reaffirmed that India-U.S. strategic partnership is indispensable not only for their two countries but also for global stability and prosperity in the 21st century. To that end, President Obama welcomed India's emergence as a major regional and global power and affirmed his country's interest in India's rise, its economic prosperity, and its security.

A GLOBAL STRATEGIC PARTNERSHIP FOR THE 21st CENTURY

Prime Minister Singh and President Obama called for an efficient, effective, credible and legitimate United Nations to ensure a just and sustainable international order. Prime Minister Singh welcomed President Obama's affirmation that, in the years ahead, the United States looks forward to a reformed UN Security Council that includes India as a permanent member. The two leaders reaffirmed that all nations, especially those that seek to lead in the 21st century, bear responsibility to ensure that the United Nations fulfills its founding ideals of preserving peace and security, promoting global cooperation, and advancing human rights.

Prime Minister Singh and President Obama reiterated that India and the United States, as global leaders, will partner for global security, especially as India serves on the Security Council over the next two years. The leaders agreed that their delegations in New York will intensify their engagement and work together to ensure that the Council continues to effectively play the role envisioned for it in the United Nations Charter. Both leaders underscored that all states have an obligation to comply with and implement UN Security Council Resolutions, including UN sanctions regimes. They also agreed to hold regular consultations on UN matters, including on the long-term sustainability of UN peacekeeping operations. As the two largest democracies, both countries also reaffirmed their strong commitment to the UN Democracy Fund.

The two leaders have a shared vision for peace, stability and prosperity in Asia, the Indian Ocean region and the Pacific region and committed to work together, and with others in the region, for the evolution of an open, balanced and inclusive architecture in the region. In this context, the leaders reaffirmed their support for the East Asia Summit and committed to regular consultations in this regard. The United States welcomes, in particular, India's leadership in expanding prosperity and security across the region. The two leaders agreed to deepen existing regular strategic consultations on developments in East Asia, and decided to expand and intensify their strategic consultations to cover regional and global issues of mutual interest, including Central and West Asia.

The two sides committed to intensify consultation, cooperation and coordination to promote a stable, democratic, prosperous, and independent Afghanistan. President Obama appreciated India's enormous contribution to Afghanistan's development and welcomed enhanced Indian assistance that will help Afghanistan achieve self-sufficiency. In addition to their own independent assistance programs in Afghanistan, the two sides resolved to pursue joint development projects with the Afghan Government in capacity building, agriculture and women's empowerment.

They reiterated that success in Afghanistan and regional and global security require elimination of safe havens and infrastructure for terrorism and violent extremism in Afghanistan and Pakistan. Condemning terrorism in all its forms, the two sides agreed that all terrorist networks, including Lashkar e-Taiba, must be defeated and called for Pakistan to bring to justice the perpetrators of the November 2008 Mumbai attacks. Building upon the Counter Terrorism Initiative signed in July 2010, the two leaders announced a new Homeland Security Dialogue between the Ministry of Home Affairs and the Department of Homeland Security and agreed to further deepen operational cooperation, counter-terrorism technology transfers and capacity building. The two leaders also emphasized the importance of close cooperation in combating terrorist financing and in protecting the international financial system.

In an increasingly inter-dependent world, the stability of, and access to, the air, sea, space, and cyberspace domains is vital for the security and economic prosperity of nations. Acknowledging their commitment to openness and responsible international conduct, and on the basis of their shared values, India and the United States have launched a dialogue to explore ways to work together, as well as with other countries, to develop a shared vision for these critical domains to promote peace, security and development. The leaders reaffirmed the importance of maritime security, unimpeded commerce, and freedom of navigation, in accordance with relevant universally agreed principles of international law, including the United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea, and peaceful settlement of maritime disputes.

The transformation in India-U.S. defense cooperation in recent years has strengthened mutual understanding on regional peace and stability, enhanced both countries' respective capacities to meet humanitarian and other challenges such as terrorism and piracy, and contributed to the development of the strategic partnership between India and the United States. The two Governments resolved to further strengthen defense cooperation, including through security dialogue, exercises, and promoting trade and collaboration in defense equipment and technology. President Obama welcomed India's decision to purchase U.S. high-technology defense items, which reflects our strengthening bilateral defense relations and will contribute to creating jobs in the United States.

The two leaders affirmed that their countries' common ideals, complementary strengths and a shared commitment to a world without nuclear weapons give them a responsibility to forge a strong partnership to lead global efforts for non-proliferation and universal and non-discriminatory global nuclear disarmament in the 21st century. They affirmed the need for a meaningful dialogue among all states possessing nuclear weapons to build trust and confidence and for reducing the salience of nuclear weapons in international affairs and security doctrines. They support strengthening the six decade-old international norm of non-use of nuclear weapons.

They expressed a commitment to strengthen international cooperative activities that will reduce the risk of terrorists acquiring nuclear weapons or material without reducing the rights of nations that play by the rules to harness the power of nuclear energy to advance their energy security. The leaders reaffirmed their shared dedication to work together to realize the commitments outlined at the April 2010 Nuclear Security Summit to achieve the goal of securing vulnerable nuclear materials in the next four years. Both sides expressed deep concern regarding illicit nuclear trafficking and smuggling and resolved to strengthen international cooperative efforts to address these threats through the IAEA, Interpol and in the context of the Nuclear Security Summit Communiqué and Action Plan. The two sides welcomed the Memorandum of Understanding for cooperation in the Global Centre for Nuclear Energy Partnership being established by India.

Both sides expressed deep concern about the threat of biological terrorism and pledged to promote international efforts to ensure the safety and security of biological agents and toxins. They stressed the need to achieve full implementation of the Biological and Toxin Weapons Convention and expressed the hope for a successful BWC Review Conference in 2011. The United States welcomed India's destruction of its chemical weapons stockpile in accordance with the provisions of the Chemical Weapons Convention. Both countries affirmed their shared commitment to promoting the full and effective implementation of the CWC.

The two leaders expressed regret at the delay in starting negotiations in the Conference on Disarmament for a multilateral, non-discriminatory and internationally and effectively verifiable treaty banning the future production of fissile material for nuclear weapons or other nuclear explosive devices.

India reaffirmed its unilateral and voluntary moratorium on nuclear explosive testing. The United States reaffirmed its testing moratorium and its commitment to ratify the Comprehensive Test Ban Treaty and bring it into force at an early date.

The leaders reaffirmed their commitment to diplomacy to resolve the Iranian nuclear issue, and discussed the need for Iran to take constructive and immediate steps to meet its obligations to the IAEA and the UN Security Council.

TECHNOLOGY, INNOVATION, AND ENERGY

Recognizing that India and the United States should play a leadership role in promoting global nonproliferation objectives and their desire to expand high technology cooperation and trade, Prime Minister Singh and President Obama committed to work together to strengthen the global export control framework and further transform bilateral export control regulations and policies to realize the full potential of the strategic partnership between the two countries.

Accordingly, the two leaders decided to take mutual steps to expand U.S. - India cooperation in civil space, defense, and other high-technology sectors. Commensurate with India's nonproliferation record and commitment to abide by multilateral export control standards, these steps include the United States removing Indian entities from the U.S. Department of Commerce's "Entity List" and realignment of India in U.S. export control regulations.

In addition, the United States intends to support India's full membership in the four multilateral export control regimes (Nuclear Suppliers Group, Missile Technology Control Regime, Australia Group, and Wassenaar Arrangement) in a phased manner, and to consult with regime members to encourage the evolution of regime membership criteria, consistent with maintaining the core principles of these regimes, as the Government of India takes steps towards the full adoption of the regimes' export control requirements to reflect its prospective membership, with both processes moving forward together. In the view of the United States, India should qualify for membership in the Australia Group and the Wassenaar Arrangement according to existing requirements once it imposes export controls over all items on these regimes' control lists.

Both leaders reaffirmed the assurances provided in the letters exchanged in September 2004 and the End-Use Visit Arrangement, and determined that the two governments had reached an understanding to implement these initiatives consistent with their respective national export control laws and policies. The Prime Minister and President committed to a strengthened and expanded dialogue on export control issues, through fora such as the U.S. - India High Technology Cooperation Group, on aspects of capacity building, sharing of best practices, and outreach with industry.

The possibility of cooperation between the two nations in space, to advance scientific knowledge and human welfare, are without boundaries and limits. They commended their space scientists for launching new initiatives in climate and weather forecasting for agriculture, navigation, resource mapping, research and development, and capacity building. They agreed to continuing discussions on and seek ways to collaborate on future lunar missions, international space station, human space flight and data sharing, and to reconvene the Civil Space Joint Working Group in early 2011. They highlighted the just concluded Implementing Arrangement for enhanced monsoon forecasting that will begin to transmit detailed forecasts to farmers beginning with the 2011 monsoon rainy season as an important example of bilateral scientific cooperation advancing economic development, agriculture and food security.

The two leaders welcomed the completion of steps by the two governments for implementation of the India - U.S. civil nuclear agreement. They reiterated their commitment to build strong India - U.S. civil nuclear energy cooperation through the participation of the U.S. nuclear energy firms in India on the basis of mutually acceptable technical and commercial terms and conditions that enable a viable tariff regime for electricity generated. They noted that both countries had enacted domestic legislations and were also signatories to the Convention on Supplementary Compensation. They further noted that India intends to ratify the Convention on Supplementary Compensation within the coming year and is committed to ensuring a level playing field for U.S. companies seeking to enter the Indian nuclear energy sector, consistent with India's national and international legal obligations.

India will continue to work with the companies. In this context, they welcomed the commencement of negotiations and dialogue between the Indian operator and U.S. nuclear energy companies, and expressed hope for early commencement of commercial cooperation in the civil nuclear energy sector in India, which will stimulate economic growth and sustainable development and generate employment in both countries.

Just as they have helped develop the knowledge economy, India and the United States resolved to strengthen their partnership in creating the green economy of the future. To this end, both countries have undertaken joint research and deployment of clean energy resources, such as solar, advanced biofuels, shale gas, and smart grids. The two leaders also welcomed the promotion of clean and energy efficient technologies through the bilateral Partnership to Advance Clean Energy (PACE) and expanded cooperation with the private sector. They welcomed the conclusion of a new MOU on assessment and exploration of shale gas and an agreement to establish a Joint Clean Energy Research Center in India as important milestones in their rapidly growing clean energy cooperation.

The leaders discussed the importance of working bilaterally, through the Major Economies Forum (MEF), and in the context of the international climate change negotiations within the framework of the UNFCCC to meet the challenge of climate change. Prime Minister Singh and President Obama reiterated the importance of a positive result for the current climate change negotiations at the forthcoming conference of the United Nations Framework Convention on Climate Change (UNFCCC) in Mexico and affirmed their support for the Copenhagen Accord, which should contribute positively to a successful outcome in Cancun. To that end, the leaders welcomed enhanced cooperation in the area of climate adaptation and sustainable land use, and welcomed the new partnership between the United States and India on forestry programs and in weather forecasting.

INCLUSIVE GROWTH, MUTUAL PROSPERITY, AND ECONOMIC COOPERATION

The two leaders stressed that India and the United States, anchored in democracy and diversity, blessed with enormous enterprise and skill, and endowed with synergies drawn from India's rapid growth and U.S. global economic leadership, have a natural partnership for enhancing mutual prosperity and stimulating global economic recovery and growth. They emphasize innovation not only as a tool for economic growth and global competitiveness, but also for social transformation and empowerment of people.

Prime Minister Singh and President Obama celebrated the recent growth in bilateral trade and investment, characterized by balanced and rapidly growing trade in goods and services. They noted positively that the United States is India's largest trading partner in goods and services, and India is now among the fastest growing sources of foreign direct investment entering the United States. The two leaders agreed on steps to reduce trade barriers and protectionist measures and encourage research and innovation to create jobs and improve livelihoods in their countries.

They also welcomed expanding investment flow in both directions. They noted growing ties between U.S. and Indian firms and called for enhanced investment flows, including in India's infrastructure sector, clean energy, energy efficiency, aviation and transportation, healthcare, food processing sector and education. They welcomed the work of the U.S. - India CEO Forum to expand cooperation between the two countries, including in the areas of clean energy and infrastructure development. They also encouraged enhanced engagement by Indian and American small and medium-sized enterprises as a critical driver of our economic relationship. They looked forward to building on these developments to realize fully the enormous potential for trade and investment between the two countries.

Recognizing the people-to-people dynamic behind trade and investment growth, they called for intensified consultations on social security issues at an appropriate time. The two leaders agreed to facilitate greater movement of professionals, investors and business travelers, students, and exchange visitors between their countries to enhance their economic and technological partnership.

To enhance growth globally, the Prime Minister and President highlighted both nations' interests in an ambitious and balanced conclusion to the WTO's Doha Development Agenda negotiations, and in having their negotiators accelerate and expand the scope of their substantive negotiations bilaterally and with other WTO members to accomplish this as soon as possible. They agreed to work together in the G-20 to make progress on the broad range of issues on its agenda, including by encouraging actions consistent with achieving strong, balanced, and sustainable growth, strengthening financial system regulation, reforming the international financial institutions, enhancing energy security, resisting protectionism in all its forms, reducing barriers to trade and investment, and implementing the development action plans.

Building on the historic legacy of cooperation between the India and the United States during the Green Revolution, the leaders also decided to work together to develop, test, and replicate transformative technologies to extend food security as part of an Evergreen Revolution. Efforts will focus on providing farmers the means to improve agricultural productivity. Collaboration also will enhance agricultural value chain and strengthen market institutions to reduce post-harvest crop losses.

Affirming the importance of India-U.S. health cooperation, Prime Minister and the President celebrated the signing of an MOU creating a new Global Disease Detection Regional Center in New Delhi, which will facilitate preparedness against threats to health such as pandemic influenza and other dangerous diseases.

Embracing the principles of democracy and opportunity, the leaders recognized that the full future potential of the partnership lies in the hands of the next generation in both countries. To help ensure that all members of that generation enjoy the benefits of higher education, the Prime Minister and the President agreed to convene an India - U.S. Higher Education Summit, chaired by senior officials from both countries in 2011, as part of a continued effort to strengthen educational opportunities. They welcomed the progress made in implementing the Singh-Obama 21st Century Knowledge Initiative that is expanding links between faculties and institutions of the two countries and the expansion in the Nehru-Fulbright Programme for Scholars.

Noting that the ties of kinship and culture are an increasingly important dimension of India-U.S. relations, President Obama welcomed India's decision to hold a Festival of India in Washington DC in 2011. Recognizing the importance of preserving cultural heritage, both governments resolved to initiate discussions on how India and the United States could partner to prevent the illicit trafficking of both countries' rich and unique cultural heritage.

A SHARED INTERNATIONAL PARTNERSHIP FOR DEMOCRACY AND DEVELOPMENT

Consistent with their commitments to open and responsive government, and harnessing the expertise and experience that the two countries have developed, the leaders launched a U.S.-India Open Government Dialogue that will, through public-private partnerships and use of new technologies and innovations, promote their shared goal of democratizing access to information and energizing civic engagement, support global initiatives in this area and share their expertise with other interested countries. This will build on India's impressive achievements in this area in recent years and the commitments that the President made to advance an open government agenda at the United Nations General Assembly. The President and Prime Minister also pledged to explore cooperation in support of efforts to strengthen elections organization and management in other interested countries, including through sharing their expertise in this area.

Taking advantage of the global nature of their relationship, and recognizing India's vast development experience and historical research strengths, the two leaders pledged to work together, in addition to their independent programs, to adapt shared innovations and technologies and use their expertise in capacity building to extend food security to interested countries, including in Africa, in consultation with host governments.

Prime Minister Singh and President Obama concluded that their meeting is a historic milestone as they seek to elevate the India-U.S. strategic partnership to a new level for the benefit of their nations and the entire mankind. President Obama thanked President Patil, Prime Minister Singh, and the people of India for their extraordinary warmth and hospitality during his visit. The two leaders looked forward to the next session of the U.S.-India Strategic Dialogue in 2011.

Remarks
Secretary of State
Anna Centenary Library

Chennai, India

July 20, 2011

Well, good afternoon and Vanakkam. I am delighted to be here today. (Applause.) I want to thank Chief Librarian Naresh for welcoming me to this absolutely extraordinarily impressive facility, and for telling us all to the largest public library in India. And I am delighted to finally be here in Chennai. I've been coming to India since the 1990s as my country's first lady, as a senator from New York, and as a Secretary of State in the Obama Administration. But this is the first opportunity to come to this extraordinary coastal city here in the South, and one that means so much to so many in my own country and elsewhere, and to be in Tamil Nadu, who is a state that is one of the most industrialized, globalized, and educated in all of India. So it is – (applause) – it is somehow not surprising that this state would boast this very large library for the use of its citizens. And I know that the librarian has spent some time in my country, and we so pleased to have that among many of the links between us and you.

President Obama made a state visit to India last year. I have been here twice in the last two years. And why, one might ask? Why are we coming to India so often and welcoming Indian officials to Washington as well? It's because we understand that much of the history of the 21st century will be written in Asia, and that much of the future of Asia will be shaped by decisions not only of the Indian Government in New Delhi, but of governments across India, and perhaps, most importantly, by the 1.3 billion people who live in this country.

And we have a great commitment to our government-to-government relations, but we have an even greater commitment to our people-to-people ones. And we view them as absolutely central to the partnership and friendship between our countries. As President Obama told the Indian parliament last year, the relationship between India and the United States will be one of the defining partnerships of the 21st century. How will we define it? How will we work together to inject content into it? What will we do to build trust and confidence and do more that will bring us together?

Well, speaking for the United States, I can tell you that we are, in fact, betting on India's future. We are betting that the opening of India's markets to the world will produce a more prosperous India and a more prosperous South Asia. It will also spill over into Central Asia and beyond into the Asia Pacific region. We are betting that advances in science and technology of all kinds will both enrich Indian lives and advance human knowledge everywhere. And we are betting that India's vibrant, pluralistic democracy will produce measurable results and improvements for your citizens and will inspire others to follow a similar path of openness and tolerance.

Now, we are making this bet not out of some blind faith, but because we have watched the progress of India with great admiration. You have maintained that democratic foundation while focusing on improving lives, particularly on the poorest among you in a way that the United States both recognizes and admires. Yet I know very well it will take time to realize this potential. And I also know, because I hear it from friends and colleagues and I see it from time to time in the Indian press, which is so exciting to read – I never know what I’m going to find when I turn the page of one of your newspapers, and I’m always both delighted and surprised. But I find that there are those who raise questions about the direction of the relationship between us, and I understand that. It is true that we are different countries with different histories and backgrounds. And we will, from time to time, disagree as any two nations or, frankly, any two friends inevitably will do. But we believe that our differences are far outweighed by our deep and abiding bonds. Our nations are built on the same bedrock beliefs about democracy, pluralism, opportunity, and innovation. We share common interests like stopping terrorism and spurring balanced and broad-based economic growth that goes deeply into our societies. And that is why our two governments have established a Strategic Dialogue which we announced when I first came as Secretary of State back in 2009 and when Prime Minister Singh visited later that year, and which, of course, we now have held two important sessions of, one in Washington and then this week in New Delhi. I met with a broad array of Indian officials, and I am very pleased to report to you that our work together is producing real results. We have already established a new clean energy research and development center that will be putting out the requests for proposals so we know what it is we can work on together to advance our common goal of clean energy and combat climate change.

We have worked together for the important task of preventing cyber attacks on our respective infrastructures. We are talking about a new bilateral investment treaty that will build on the 20 percent increase in trade we’ve seen just this last year. And we have watched as trade is increasingly flowing in both directions. We have new initiatives linking students and businesses and communities, and one of my personal favorites is the Passport to India, a program designed to bring more American students to study in India to match the great numbers of Indian students that come to America to study, because we want to create those bonds between our young people and our future leaders. We also consulted on the work we will be doing in the months ahead, strengthening our joint fight against terrorism, boosting our economic ties, completing our civilian-nuclear partnership, and deepening our defense cooperation. We think this work is very much in the interests of both of our countries and both of our peoples.

But I came to Chennai today to discuss in more depth, publicly, two issues that we discussed in our official meetings in New Delhi. And it really – they both are about India’s growing leadership role in the world, because today, India is taking its rightful place in the meeting rooms and conference halls where the world’s most consequential questions are debated and decided. And President Obama recognized this when he said that the United States looks forward to a reformed United Nations Security Council that includes India as a permanent member.

(Applause.)

So what does – for India and for the United States and for the world, what does this global leadership mean in practical terms? And what does it mean for the relationship between the two of us? Well, for starters, it means that we can work more productively together on today’s most complex global challenges. For example, to advance democratic values, the world’s oldest democracy and its largest can both support the democratic transitions taking place in the Middle East and North Africa.

India’s election commission, widely viewed as the global gold standard for running elections – (applause) – is already sharing best practices with counterparts in other countries, including Egypt and Iraq. To help rebalance the global economy after the recession of 2008 and to spur growth, India and the United States are working together through the G-20 which has become the premier forum for international economic cooperation. To promote clean energy and to seek climate change solutions, this partnership that we have launched will accelerate research and deployment of effective technology, but it will also enable us to work together to make the UN Conference on Climate Change coming up in Durban a success.

India was a very constructive partner to the United States and others at both the conferences in Copenhagen and Cancun, where we're not making enough progress, but we could put some milestones of progress and ongoing processes together to continue our efforts. To curb nuclear proliferation, we are working together with the international community to address shared concerns about provocative actions by countries like Iran. We have called for Iran to meet its international obligations at the IAEA. India has taken steps to ensure that products from your high-tech industry cannot be diverted to that nuclear weapons program. And we work with India, who is currently a nonpermanent member of the Security Council, to persuade Iran's leaders to change course. And to promote sustainable development, the United States is encouraging India to share broadly its expertise in dry field, drought-tolerant agriculture, and to apply other lessons about how to lift millions of people out of extreme poverty.

So in these and many other areas, from democracy to economics, climate change, nonproliferation, development, our interests align and our values converge. A great deal has already been written about our efforts to collaborate on these cross-cutting global challenges, but today, I want to focus on two aspects of our cooperation, where the choices we make in the immediate term will have profound impacts on our security and prosperity in the years ahead. First, our work together in the Asia Pacific, and second, our shared interests in South and Central Asia, because this is a moment when these regional concerns have profound global resonance. And as I discussed them in depth with officials in Delhi yesterday, I'd like to explore them further with you today.

And let me start with the Asia Pacific. There is no better place to discuss India's leadership in the region to its east than here in Chennai. In this port city, looking out at the Bay of Bengal and beyond to the nations of East and Southeast Asia, we are easily reminded of India's historic role in the wider region. For thousands of years, Indian traders have sailed those waters of Southeast Asia and beyond. Indian culture has left its mark. The temples of Angkor Wat bear the influence of Tamil architecture. The Hindu god Ganesh still stands guard against homes in Indonesia. And today, the stretch of sea from the Indian Ocean through to the Pacific contain the world's most vibrant trade and energy routes linking economies and driving growth.

The United States has always been a Pacific power because of our very great blessing of geography. And India straddling the waters from the Indian to the Pacific Ocean is, with us, a steward of these waterways. We are both deeply invested in shaping the future of the region that they connect. And there are big questions for us to consider. Will this region adopt basic rules of the road or rules of the sea to mobilize strategic and economic cooperation and manage disagreements? Will it build the regional architecture of institutions and arrangements to enforce international norms on security, trade, rule of law, human rights, and accountable governance? Through its Look East policy, India is poised to help lead toward the answers to these questions. The United States believes that is a very good thing because we believe our vision for the future is very much similar. We both wish to expand economic ties. The United States is pushing forward on comprehensive trade deals like the Trans-Pacific Partnership and our free trade agreement with South Korea. We are also stepping up our commercial diplomacy and pursuing a robust economic agenda at APEC. India, for its part, has concluded or will soon conclude new bilateral economic partnerships with Singapore, Malaysia, Japan, South Korea, and others. The more our countries trade and invest with each other and with other partners, the more central the Asia Pacific region becomes to global commerce and prosperity, and the more interest we both have in maintaining stability and security. As the stakes grow higher, we should use our shared commitment to make sure that we have maritime security and freedom of navigation. We need to combat piracy together. We have immediate tasks that we must get about determining.

These shared interests give India and the United States is a very strong incentive to make sure that the regional architecture for the Asia Pacific is up to answering the questions and delivering results. President Obama looks forward to joining Prime Minister Singh at the East Asia Summit later in the year this fall in Indonesia. We want to work with India and all of our friends and allies to build the East Asia Summit into the Asia Pacific's premier forum for dealing with political and security issues. We want to use it to help set our priorities and lay out a vision for other regional institutions. At this year's upcoming summit, the United States intends to collaborate with India and others to help advance an East Asia Summit agenda that draws on our two countries' unique capacities. And high on this list should be maritime security, including developing multilateral mechanisms of cooperation. The East Asia Summit should also focus on disaster readiness, response, and relief, and nonproliferation, including working toward a denuclearized Korean Peninsula.

Now, later this week, Foreign Minister Krishna and I will attend the ASEAN Regional Forum, and we will there be working in conjunction with ASEAN partners and others, and we will soon inaugurate a trilateral U.S.-India-Japan dialogue. America's treaty alliances with Japan has long been a cornerstone of security in East Asia, and as a fellow democracy with us and India, we believe enhanced cooperation will be beneficial. We are also committed to a strong, constructive relationship among India, the United States, and China. Now, we know this will not always be easy. There are important matters on which we all disagree, one with the other. But we do have significant areas of common interest. We could begin by focusing on violent extremism, which threatens people on all – in all of our countries. Ultimately, if we want to address, manage, or solve some of the most pressing issues of the 21st century, India, China, and the United States will have to coordinate our efforts.

As India takes on a larger role throughout the Asia Pacific, it does have increasing responsibilities, including the duty to speak out against violations of universal human rights. For example, we recognize that India has important strategic interests in maintaining a peaceful border and strong economic ties with Burma. But the Burmese Government's treatment of its own people continues to be deplorable. So it was a signal moment when Foreign Secretary Rao met with Aung San Suu Kyi last month. And I hope New Delhi will continue to encourage the Burmese Government to engage in dialogue with Aung San Suu Kyi and also to release other political prisoners.

In all of these areas, India's leadership will help to shape positively the future of the Asia Pacific. That's why the United States supports India's Look East policy, and we encourage India not just to look east, but to engage East and act East as well, because after all, India, like the United States, where we look to the Atlantic and to the Pacific, India also looks both east and west. And its leadership in South and Central Asia is critically important. For example, India's diverse democratic system in which people of all faiths and backgrounds participate equally can serve as a model for Sri Lanka as it pursues political reconciliation. Here in Chennai, we can see how much a society can achieve when all citizens fully are participating in the political and economic life of their country. Every citizen of Sri Lanka deserves the same hope and opportunity for a better future. (Applause.)

India also has a great commitment to improving relations with Bangladesh, and that is important because regional solutions will be necessary on energy shortages, water-sharing, and the fight against terrorists. And in Nepal, as the latest deadline for concluding the peace process and promulgating a new constitution approaches, Indian support for that process is critical. And in the Maldives, India is providing important economic assistance and partnerships to improve ports and other infrastructure. Looking north, in Central Asian states like Kazakhstan and Uzbekistan, India has forged new partnerships on energy, agriculture, cyber security, and other areas, because India and the United States share an interest in helping the people of this entire region build strong democratic societies and market economies, and to resolve long-festering conflicts. And of course, the conflict in Afghanistan continues to be a major challenge for us both.

I want to be very clear. The United States is committed to Afghanistan and to the region. We will be there. Yes, we are beginning to withdraw combat troops and transfer responsibility for security to the Afghan people, a process that will be completed in 2014, but drawing down our troops is not the same as leaving or disengaging. We and the Afghans are making progress on a new strategic partnership declaration that will define our relationship after 2014. And through that partnership, we will continue to assist the Afghan army and police and the Afghan Government. And we will do everything we can to help the Afghan people rebuild after decades of war.

At the same time, we are pursuing an active diplomatic effort with all the countries in the region toward two goals: First, a responsible political solution in Afghanistan, and second, stronger economic ties through South and Central Asia so that goods, capital, and people can flow more easily across borders. Representatives from Afghanistan and all their neighbors will have the chance to discuss this vision at a summit hosted by Turkey this November, and they will discuss it again with the rest of the international community at the Bonn conference in December.

How do we get from where we are to where we and especially the Afghan people need to end up? In February, I gave a speech at the Asia Society in New York explaining our support for Afghan-led efforts to reach a political solution to end the insurgency and to chart a more secure, prosperous, and peaceful future. As we have said many times, there are unambiguous redlines for reconciliation with insurgents. India has pioneered some of this work over years of effort in bringing people into the political system and taking them out of the forest or out of insurgencies. Number one, people must renounce violence. Number two, the Taliban must abandon their alliance with al-Qaida. And number three, anyone wishing to reconcile must agree to abide by the laws and constitution of Afghanistan. Now, these are necessary outcomes of any negotiation. And let me say a special word about the last point. Any potential for peace will be subverted if women and ethnic minorities are marginalized or silenced. What we have learned in the 20th century that we must apply in the 21st century is that you cannot deny women and minorities, whether they be religious minorities or ethnic minorities or tribal or any other minority – you cannot deny your own people the chance to be full citizens in their own country. And so when we look at what will happen in Afghanistan, the United States will not abandon our values or support a political process that undoes the progress that has been made in the past decade. Reconciliation, achieving it, and maintaining it, will depend on the participation of all of Afghanistan's neighbors, including both Pakistan and India. We all need to be working together. Whether we live in Kabul or Islamabad, New Delhi, or Washington, we have to be committed to a common vision of a stable, independent, Afghanistan rid of the insurgency and a region free from al-Qaida.

In Kabul earlier this year, Prime Minister Singh reaffirmed India's commitment to the Afghan-led reconciliation. And the Indian Government reinforced that commitment last month by supporting a United Nations Security Council resolution that cleared the way for lifting sanctions on insurgents who do reconcile. At the same time, India has rightly expressed concerns about outside interference in the reconciliation process, and we agree with those concerns and are consulting closely with India about that.

We will continue to encourage New Delhi's constructive role. For example, in advocating based on India's own experience that reconciliation, beginning at the very start of the process, must include representatives from a range of political parties and ethnic groups. We also believe Pakistan has an essential role and legitimate interest in this process, and those interests must be respected and addressed. We welcomed Pakistan's decision to participate in a joint peace commission with Afghanistan and in what we call the core group of Afghanistan, Pakistan, and the United States to manage the withdrawal. Achieving lasting peace and security in the region will require a stable, democratic, prosperous Pakistan free from violent extremism. That's in everyone's interest, because Americans, Indians, Pakistanis, and Afghans have all suffered at the hands of violent extremists, and none of us should tolerate a safe haven for terrorists anywhere. So we look to the Pakistani Government to press insurgents to join the reconciliation process, to prevent Pakistani territory from being used for attacks that destabilize Afghanistan or India and to deny al-Qaida the space to regroup and plan new violence. And beyond India and Pakistan, all of Afghanistan's other neighbors – Russia, Iran, China, the Central Asian states should recommit themselves to the goal of a stable and independent Afghanistan. That means they too must support reconciliation and respect Afghanistan's sovereignty and territorial integrity. That is a pledge that all the countries of the region made nearly a decade ago when they signed the Declaration on Good Neighbourly Relations. The time has come to operationalize that agreement and to create mechanisms that ensure nations will live up to their commitments, and the United States will invest the considerable diplomatic effort needed to help build such support for those outcomes.

This diplomatic and political effort is the first element of our approach, but it will only succeed if it is paired with a strategy to increase economic ties that connect all the countries of the region. Because while many countries, including India, have given generous assistance to Afghanistan, no country, including my own, can afford to provide aid forever. We have to get an economy going. We have to have trade and investment coming. And the Afghan people themselves do not want receive aid forever. An Afghanistan firmly embedded in the economic life of a thriving South and Central Asia would be able to attract new sources of foreign investment and connect to markets abroad, including hundreds of millions of potential new customers in India. And increasing trade across the region would open up new sources of raw material, energy, and agricultural products, creating more jobs in India, Pakistan, and Afghanistan.

But we have a long way to go before we could ever realize that in today's world, because today, an Indian entrepreneur in Chennai who wishes to ship her products to a customer in Kazakhstan has to send them either through China or Iran, thousands of miles out of the way. An Indian business must import cement from Southeast Asia instead of from the flourishing cement industry next door in Pakistan. A traveler going between India and Pakistan not only has a difficult time getting a visa; he also often has to be routed through airports a thousand miles away just to get across the border. Now, we have no illusion about how difficult it will be to overcome the longstanding distrust that holds back economic cooperation, but we also are absolutely convinced this is very much in India's interest, Pakistan's interest, Afghanistan's, and other nations as well.

Historically, the nations of South and Central Asia were connected to each other and the rest of the continent by a sprawling trading network called the Silk Road. Indian merchants used to trade spices, gems, and textiles, along with ideas and culture, everywhere from the Great Wall of China to the banks of the Bosphorus. Let's work together to create a new Silk Road. Not a single thoroughfare like its namesake, but an international web and network of economic and transit connections. That means building more rail lines, highways, energy infrastructure, like the proposed pipeline to run from Turkmenistan, through Afghanistan, through Pakistan into India. It means upgrading the facilities at border crossings, such as India and Pakistan are now doing at Waga. And it certainly means removing the bureaucratic barriers and other impediments to the free flow of goods and people. It means casting aside the outdated trade policies that we all still are living with and adopting new rules for the 21st century.

I was very encouraged by the reports of the resumption of discussions between India and Pakistan, the meeting between Prime Ministers Singh and Gillani at Mohali, and the forward-looking roadmap produced by the Indian and Pakistani commerce secretaries in April are very important steps. The upcoming meeting of Indian and Pakistani foreign ministers is another chance to make tangible progress. And I was pleased to see Afghanistan and Pakistan commit to implement fully their transit trade agreement. This is an agreement that Afghanistan and Pakistan started negotiating together in 1961. All these years later, they have finally signed it. And we want to see trade begin to move across that border, and then we want to see that trade expanded into Central Asia and India – two-way trade, multiple paths for trade.

Because someday, that entrepreneur here in Chennai should be able to put her products on a track – on a truck or a train that travels unimpeded, quickly, and cheaply through Pakistan, through Afghanistan, to the doorstep of her customer in Kazakhstan. A Pakistani businessman should be able to open a branch in Bangalore. An Afghan farmer should be able to sell pomegranates in Islamabad before he drives on to New Delhi. Or as Prime Minister Singh put it so beautifully, "I dream of a day, while retaining our respective identities, one can have breakfast in Amritsar, lunch in Lahore, and dinner in Kabul. That is how my forefathers lived. That is how I want our grandchildren to live." (Applause.)

I couldn't agree more, and neither could you. Now it is just as important as applauding to support the work that must be done to realize that dream. When I look at the potential of the people in this region, I am absolutely convinced you can out-compete, outgrow, out-prosper anybody in the world. But that's why the barriers must come down. When Indian Americans used to come to the United States, their hard work and their success was such a symbol of what was possible. Today, there's migration back from the United States to India, because the opportunity society has arrived here. Pakistani Americans, Afghan Americans, they still come to the United States seeking opportunity. They too deserve an opportunity society. And in order to that, we have to move beyond the past into a present filled with possibility and then to make a future that delivers.

In what I've discussed today, India's growing role in the Asia Pacific and in South and Central Asia, I do so because I think this is the only way forward. Yes, it is ambitious agenda, but we can afford to be ambitious, because when we in the United States and particularly in the Obama Administration look at India, we see, as President Obama said, a nation that is not simply emerging, but has emerged, and a nation with whom we share so many bonds, and one that will be a leader globally in shaping the future we will all inherit.

Now of course, both of our nations being democracies are dealing with challenges that have to be met and require immediate attention. But great nations can do more than one thing at a time. In fact, we can do many things at once by enlisting the powerful participation of our own people – Indian and American businesses, Indian and American academics, Indian and American entrepreneurs, inventors, students. In a democracy, we are all helping to shape our future. That is what sets us apart from other systems and other nations. I mean, it does look a little messier from time to time, but it is the most sustainable way human beings have found to organize themselves, and that's what we must do.

For both America and India, the threats, the perils, the problems are discussed endlessly. Turn on the television, pick up the paper, go on the internet. But I see a much brighter picture because I think there isn't anything we cannot do, and I believe in India's future. This is not, therefore, a time when any of us can afford to look inward at the expense of looking outward. This is a time to seize the opportunities of the 21st century, and it is a time to lead. So I come to Chennai as an admirer of what India has accomplished, someone who, in just the course of the last 18 years, has seen the changes firsthand. There are great forces at work, but there is nothing preordained or inevitable about the future of your country or mine.

Generations before us fought to give us a democracy, fought to build our institutions, fought to overcome the inherent problems of pluralism and diversity, fought to make good the values that we know are essential to the systems that we have built. And now, it is our turn, and it is particularly the turn of the young people who are here today. For each of us to make our contribution, for each of us to work in every way we can not only for our own personal betterment – although that comes in an open society like yours and mine – but to work for the common good, to work for our nation, and to work for a world that is worthy of our dreams. So let us commit to do so. Thank you all very much. (Applause.)

Hi Dr Best,

I have looked up to you and valued your opinions..did not always agree but i trust my kids always with you.

I agree with what he has promised to do as you tell him and to take medication only prescribed by you. He does have insurance Blue Cross Blue shield which i am paying for but if i lose job he is not able to pay for right now I am also paying for his car insurance and gas so he is not allowed to miss any appointments. I trust you to treat and help my son .

Thank you

Vera

Dr. Steve Best to Vera Kotevski:

I think it makes more sense to proceed with the prescribed treatment plan before making a life-changing move such as apply for social security disability.

I request that a copy of the following documents be provided to me: any documents that has the name Milan Michael Kotevski or Miki Kotevski or refers to the individual known as Milan Michael Kotevski or Miki Kotevski in them. These documents should be limited to either the time of President Obama's Presidency and President Trump's presidency. I would particularly like the ones from President Obama's presidency.

In order to help to determine my status to assess fees, you should know that I am affiliated with an educational or noncommercial scientific institution (the American Natural Rights Foundation in Montana), and this request is made for a scholarly or scientific purpose and not for a commercial use.

I request a waiver of all fees for this request. Disclosure of the requested information to me is in the public interest because it is likely to contribute significantly to public understanding of the operations or activities of the government and is not primarily in my commercial interest.

MIKI KOTEVSKI response back to OMB: 11/06/2020.

Good morning to whomever is reading this!

I'm asking for your help. I don't want to argue with you because my problem is not with you, but I'm pretty sure the requested records would be in the custody or control of OMB. I'm pretty fucking sure this is petty politics at work and it has caused me to physiologically break down and rapidly deteriorate in both mental and physical well being. I'm not looking for a lawsuit, but there are just things I want an explanation for. How is it that my writings somehow ended up in Presidential Proclamations without my consent and knowledge? There was literally someone that had access to me and my writings, literally stole from a former special ed kid, and passed off my work as their work and I have nothing to show for it. How is it my intellectual property ended up in the hands of people in the white house without me ever giving my consent or having knowledge it was being used? Why is it the US Surveillance apparatus was used to enrich people at my expense that left me destitute and even more broken financially and as a person? Those are some of the answers I want questions to because god damn it i'm a human being and didn't deserve that treatment. So please direct me to people that know about my situation where I can get just some god damn decency. Why this is hard to fathom in the confines in DC sincerely alludes me.

I'm having trouble at work. They are doing the things that make me know that my job is in jeopardy. They say i need to increase the speed in which i receive work; increase the capacity to receive work; increase 'quality'; and show more initiative (this one is bullshit because i work overtime with no pay and if that isnt showing enough initiative i dont know what more i can do). So work is not going good at all.

I came out here wanting to build myself up. I thought piloting lessons would help me do that and I made a plan with my flight instructor that complimented my schedule and the amount i can pay. well that instructor got fired and the company wont do that agreement. its not worth the time of a lawsuit. so no more flight lessons. It seems everything I touch turns to shit and I just want things to turn around for me because i dont know what else i can do because i try tthe things that worked for me in the past and they just dont work now and i try new things and fail with that and its just frustrating.

I told my doctor here to change my adderall xr into a regular release because the xr isnt helping me increase my speed at which i do work and the capacity to receive work. I will take the test Dejo sent me after christmas so the box wont get lost due to the christmas package rush.

I continue to have technology issues at a level I dont fully comprehend but what I do understand is that there appears to be people that are fucking with me in some capacity whenever I'm online or am on the computer. I routinely take screenshots to demonstrate that i'm not making this shit up and this is with a new laptop.

One thing I cannot get over. I cant prove this to be true but my gut tells me it is. Someone out there has a record of all my emails and text messages I ever sent. They then sold that info to people that then profited off of it and what sucks is not that i didnt get any money off of it, but that i didnt get any credit for the original ideas and life I made for myself. Like you ascribe a quote to someone that made a quote out of respect or credit and i feel like so much from my life was stolen from me without that respect or credit and it makes me feel shitty. I'm blessed it was good enough to be used and that it could inspire people but i am resentful that i didnt get any respect or credit for my original ideas. It makes me not want to live life again because i fear that i'll continue to be taken advantage of for living life and creating new works and I dont want that trauma again.

Steve Best to Miki Kotevski: 12/20/2020

In College I learned about Synchronicity/morphic resonance. I want you to start to study those concepts. Rupert Sheldrake was particularly adept at explaining the concept, which may be part of the explanation for Prigogine's notion of a dissipative structure.

In regard to your work output, I encourage you to do whatever they need until you have an unrestricted Law License that can be transferred to another jurisdiction (wherever it is that you intend to settle).

I'd like you to consider the idea that one does not "tell the doctor what to do"..... (that approach does not foster a "good therapeutic relationship")

OK ?

Miki Kotevski to Steve Best:12/20/2020

i agree with you that it doesnt foster a good therapeutic relationship; but i'm scared i cant keep this job and then consequently will have to come back home and its me taking steps to make it through until i transfer to another jurisdiction.

I got the additional abilify in the mail today (yes on sunday) so thank you for that; i really appreciate it from the bottom of my heart.

Ill study those concepts....

Steve Best to Miki Kotevski. 12/20/2020
so what's the plan ?

Miki Kotevski to Steve Best. 12/20/2020:

Plan? The last time i really had a major plan was in 2016 where I thought i was going to be rewarded for my passion and have the love of my life back in my life and well that turned out not so good. So I dont really have a plan. Living day by day with the eventual goal restoring my brain/mental health, losing weight, passing the bar, all the while wondering what the fuck went wrong, how could I have been so stupid, am I going to FOIA the national archive to prove that things were stolen from me. Then I'm tired of being defensive and wondering if i'm part of someone's plan to get back at someone else where they'd get me in some type of lawsuit/criminal legal proceeding.

Dear Mr. Milan M Kotevski,

This is a final response to your Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) request to U.S. Customs and Border Protection (CBP).

We conducted a comprehensive search of files within the CBP databases for records that would be responsive to your request. Unfortunately, we were unable to locate or identify any responsive records, based upon the information you provided in your request.

Note: CBP does not have complete records of apprehensions made by Border Patrol before 2000.

Records of apprehensions made by Border Patrol before 2000 may be available in the A-File maintained by USCIS.

This completes the CBP response to your request. You may contact CBP's FOIA Public Liaison, Charlyse Hoskins, by sending an email via your FOIAonline account, mailing a letter to 90 K St, NE MS

1181, Washington DC, 20229 or by calling 202-325-0150. The FOIA Public Liaison is able to assist in advising on the requirements for submitting a request, assist with narrowing the scope of a request, assist in reducing delays by advising the requester on the type of records to request, suggesting agency offices that may have responsive records and receive questions or concerns about the agency's FOIA process. Please notate file number CBP-2021-021174 on any future correspondence to CBP related to this request.

For your information, Congress excluded three discrete categories of law enforcement and national security records from the requirements of the FOIA. See 5 U.S.C. 552(c). This response is limited to those records that are subject to the requirements of the FOIA. This is a standard notification that is given to all our requesters and should not be taken as an indication that excluded records do, or do not, exist.

If you are not satisfied with the response to this request, you have a right to appeal the final disposition.

Should you wish to do so, you must file your appeal within 90 days of the date of this letter following the procedures outlined in the DHS regulations at Title 6 C.F.R. §5.8. Please include as much information as possible to help us understand the grounds for your appeal. You should submit your appeal via FOIAonline by clicking on the "Create Appeal" button that appears when you view your initial request. If you do not have computer access, you may send your appeal and a copy of this letter to: FOIA Appeals,

Policy and Litigation Branch, U.S. Customs and Border Protection, 90 K Street, NE, 10th Floor, Washington, DC 20229-1177. Your envelope and letter should be marked "FOIA Appeal."

Copies of the

FOIA and DHS regulations are available at www.dhs.gov/foia. Additional information can be found at the following link https://www.cbp.gov/sites/default/files/assets/documents/2019-Dec/definitions-exemptionsfoia_0.pdf.

Additionally, you have a right to seek dispute resolution services from the Office of Government Information Services (OGIS) which mediates disputes between FOIA requesters and Federal agencies as a non-exclusive alternative to litigation. If you are requesting access to your own records (which is considered a Privacy Act request), you should know that OGIS does not have the authority to handle requests made under the Privacy Act of 1974. You may contact OGIS as follows: Office of Government

Information Services, National Archives and Records Administration, 8601 Adelphi Road-OGIS, College

Park, Maryland 20740-6001, e-mail at ogis@nara.gov; telephone at 202-741-5770; toll free at 1-877-684-does not stop the 90-day appeal clock and is not a substitute for filing an administrative appeal.

Sincerely,

U.S. Customs and Border Protection

RE: Freedom of Information Act Request NGC21-165

Dear Mr. Kotevski:

This is in response to your Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) request to the National Archives and Records Administration (NARA), dated December 23, 2020, which we received in our office on the same date via FOIAonline. We assigned your request the above internal tracking number in addition to your FOIAonline tracking number NARA-NGC-2021-000292. In your request, you stated:

I am seeking any records and photographs that contains the name Miki Kotevski.

Unlike other federal agencies, NARA holds two types of records. We have our own agency operational records (records created by NARA as part of our agency's work). We are also the repository for documents and materials created in the course of business conducted by agencies of the Executive branch of the United States Federal government. We estimate that less than 5% of these records are retained permanently for legal or historical purposes. Federal agencies usually transfer their permanent records to NARA no earlier than 15 years from the date of creation, but we receive many well after 30 years from the date of creation. Once these records are transferred to NARA, they are known as archival records. NARA is not a repository for state, county or municipal records. For example, your birth certificate is a state record.

Unfortunately, your request did not provide enough information for us to conduct a search of our own operational records, or of the federal agency archival records we hold. For agency archival records in our custody, there is no way to retrieve records simply by a person's name. Many of our archival records are paper records or photographs that have not been digitized, and thus cannot be searched by optical characters. To locate any responsive archival records, we need to know the type of record, the agency you believe created the record, the subject matter of the record, and an approximate date range for the records. You can search our online catalog at www.archives.gov/research.

It is an agency's operational records that may be identifiable and retrievable by personal information such as social security number, name or date of birth, or address. Such records are protected by the Privacy Act. Each federal agency provides a list on its main website of the Privacy Act systems of records it maintains, and publishes this list annually in the Federal Register. If you believe that a federal agency has records about you, you need to identify which Privacy Act systems of records at that agency might contain information about you, and follow the Privacy Act request procedures provided on the agency's website to request they search those named systems for records about you. NARA's Inventory of Privacy Act Systems of Records is found at <https://www.archives.gov/privacy/inventory>. At that website, you can find information about what you must submit to us to request a search of these systems for your name. If you have never been affiliated with the National Archives through employment, or if you have never contacted the National Archives as a donor or researcher, it is unlikely that we maintain any operational records referenced under your name (except your FOIA requests).

This completes the processing of your FOIA request to us.

If you are not satisfied with our action on this request, you have the right to file an administrative appeal within ninety (90) calendar days from the date of this letter via regular U.S. mail or email. By filing an appeal, you preserve your rights under FOIA and give the agency a chance to review and reconsider your request and the agency's decision. If you submit your appeal in writing, please address it to the Deputy Archivist of the United States (ND), National Archives and Records Administration, 8601 Adelphi Road, College Park, Maryland 20740. Both the letter and the envelope should be clearly marked "Freedom of Information Act Appeal." If you submit your appeal by e-mail please send it to FOIA@nara.gov, also addressed to the Deputy Archivist of the United States. Please be sure to explain why you believe this response does not meet the requirements of the FOIA. All correspondence should reference your case tracking number NGC21-165 and your FOIAonline tracking number.

If you would like to discuss our response before filing an appeal to attempt to resolve your dispute without going through the appeals process, you may contact our FOIA Public Liaison Gary M. Stern for assistance at:

Mr. Milan M. Kotevski

Butte, MT 59701

Dear Mr. Kotevski:

The Federal Labor Relations Authority (“FLRA”) is an independent administrative federal agency created by Title VII of the Civil Service Reform Act of 1978, also known as the Federal Service Labor-Management Relations Statute (the “Statute”), 5 U.S.C. §§ 7101-7135 (2018). The Statute allows certain non-postal federal employees to organize, to bargain collectively, and to participate through labor organizations of their choice in decisions affecting their working lives.

The Solicitor’s Office of the FLRA received your request under the Freedom of Information Act (“FOIA”) on December 30, 2020. You requested: “Any and all records that contain "Milan Michael Kotevski" or ‘Miki Kotevski.’” You also requested a fee waiver.

In accordance with § 2411.8 of the FLRA’s regulations (5 C.F.R. § 2411.8), your request has been denied because the FLRA does not possess any documents responsive to your request. Pursuant to the FOIA Improvement Act of 2016, 5 U.S.C. § 552 (a)(6)(A)(i)(III), the decision of the undersigned with regards to your request may be appealed to the Chairman of the FLRA, Ernest DuBester, within 90 days of the receipt of this response. Sought Advice. Was Denied.
Hello,

Thanks so much for sending this our way. I'm sorry to hear about your situation.

Unfortunately, we don't really have the investigative resources to get to the bottom of this. I'd suggest speaking to perhaps a civil rights attorney or a private investigator to see if they can look into this issue for you.

If you'd like an attorney, your local bar association should be able to refer you to an attorney. If you are able to get an attorney and they require speaking with someone to better understand the situation, we should be able to do that.

You may want to take a look at our Surveillance Self-Defense Resource, located at <https://ssd.eff.org/>. The resource provides the information and tools necessary to evaluate the threat of surveillance and will help you take appropriate steps to defend against it. I hope the resource will prove helpful.

You may also wish to seek out a digital forensics expert in your area, but, apologies, we do not offer referrals of this nature.

I'm sorry we were unable to directly assist you here, but we sincerely wish you the best of luck.

Best,

Haley

Re: FOIA/PA #22-167

Dear Mr. Kotevski:

This is an acknowledgement to your email dated March 16, 2021, for information pertaining to any documents, memos, arguments, briefs, submissions to any court(s) (including FISA) from the starting date of Jan 1st, 2015 about Milan Kotevski (or Miki Kotevski) or justifying the use of FISA or Torture upon American Citizens without Due Process of law. Our FOIA office received your Freedom of Information Act request on March 16, 2021.

The National Security Division (NSD) maintains operational files which document requests for and approvals of authority for the U.S. Intelligence Community to conduct certain foreign intelligence activities. We do not search these records in response to requests regarding the use or non-use of such techniques in cases where the confirmation or denial of the existence of responsive records would, in and of itself, reveal information properly classified under Executive Order 13526. To confirm or deny the existence of such materials in each case would tend to reveal properly classified information regarding whether particular surveillance techniques have or have not been used by the U.S. Intelligence Community. Accordingly, we can neither confirm nor deny the existence of records in these files responsive to your request pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552(b)(1). This citation is not to be construed as the only exemption which may be available under the FOIA.

If you are not satisfied with the National Security Division's determination in response to this request, you may administratively appeal by writing to the Director, Office of Information Policy (OIP), United States Department of Justice, 441 G Street, NW, 6th Floor, Washington, D.C. 20530, or you may submit an appeal through OIP's FOIA STAR portal by creating an account on the following website: <https://foiastar.doj.gov>. Your appeal must be postmarked or electronically transmitted within 90 days of the date of my response to your request. If you submit your appeal by mail, both the letter and the envelope should be clearly marked "Freedom of Information Act Appeal."

Additionally, you may contact the Office of Government Information Services (OGIS) at the National Archives and Records Administration to inquire about the FOIA mediation services they offer. The contact information for OGIS is as follows: Office of Government Information Services, National Archives and Records Administration, 8601 Adelphi Road-OGIS, College Park, Maryland 20740-6001, e-mail at ogis@nara.gov; telephone at 202-741-5770; toll free at 1-877-684-6448; or facsimile at 202-741-5769.

However, we are able to conduct a search for non-intelligence activities regarding Milan Kotevski. In order for us to fulfill this request we need you to certify your identity. Please complete the attached "Certification of Identity" form and return it to our office. Your request will be administratively closed until we receive the "Certification of Identity" form that is attached. However, this is not a denial of your request, upon receipt of the requested information; you will be advised as to the status of your request.

If this Office does not receive your response within 30 days of the date of this email, we will assume you are no longer interested, and your request will be administratively closed. This is not a denial of your request, and it will not preclude you from filing other requests in the future.

You may contact our Government Information Specialist, Arnetta Mallory, for any further assistance and to discuss any aspect of your request at:

I just want to be clear on something: this is the position the Dept of Justice is taking: denying effective counsel because i have the right to effective counsel in a FISA hearing and how can I have effective counsel if I don't know who my counsel was! That's a violation of my constitutional right. Second, I was denied a transcript or copy of any proceedings when requested. This violates my 4-6th Amendment Rights. What country can have a secret court in which a person had legal proceedings committed against their constitutional interests and violated and not be told about it. Third: Tennessee v Lane says disabled people are allowed to go to court. How can I go to court if I am not afforded the opportunity to defend myself or have counsel when I wasn't told I was subject to a fisa ruling and hearing. Fourth: numerous constitutional issues. You should really reconsider your position again

Case No. F-2015-06322

Segment: S/ES-0002

Mr. William F. Marshall
425 Third Street SW, Suite 800
Washington, DC 20024

Dear Mr. Marshall:

I refer to our letter dated August 31, 2015, regarding the release of certain Department of State material under the Freedom of Information Act (the "FOIA"), 5 U.S.C. §552.

The review of records retrieved from the Office of the Executive Secretariat is still ongoing. We have reviewed 25 additional responsive documents and have determined that 12 may be released in full and 13 may be released with excisions. All released material is enclosed.

An enclosure explains Freedom of Information Act exemptions and other grounds for withholding material. Where we have made excisions, the applicable exemptions are marked on each document. All non-exempt material that is reasonably segregable from the exempt material has been released.

We will keep you informed as your case progresses. If you have any questions, you may contact Trial Attorney, Caroline Anderson, at (202) 305-8645 or Caroline.J.Anderson@usdoj.gov. Please be sure to refer to the case number shown above in all correspondence about this case.

Sincerely,

John F. Hackett For

SPRING 2017:

Before Aina at the Navy and Andrew McCabe retaliated against PLAINTIFF.

Transcript:

After FORCED INTERROGATION IN WHICH I WAS ATTEMPTING TO SEEK PSYCHOLOGICAL HELP BY ANDREW MCCABE

4:06pm. I am quote on quote leaving dr. jesel's office...The circumstances of my visit to the office were extremely peculiar. There was no one at the office. There was no receptionist at the office. So no patients. No receptionists. The only two people that were there was the doctor and his assistant. The doctor and I, we only briefly talked for a couple of moments. Within that, I sought to clarify that my test would have only covered autism and autism spectrum related disorders; however, I was told that (mumbles) I was given a personality test along with it. The only personality test I was given was the MMPI the third edition in which they are on the 4th if im not mistaken. And um lets see what else. My vibe that I was getting was extremely odd. It just didn't feel right. My gut instinct really didn't feel right about this whole entire issue. There was only an interview and they specifically asked.. the assistant was a polish woman that was specifically asking for my whole entire childhood history as though I can completely remember everything that happened as a kid. It never really addressed autism and that is the thing that makes it the most odd. This never addressed autism in any satisfactory way. The lady posed a question that I know she could not have known. There was no conceivable way. For instance she asked me you moved around a lot as a kid and then I never gave her any answer (in the session) that would suggest that I moved around a lot as a kid. What I did say was that every other summer that I went back and forth between Serbia and America not that I moved around a lot...Then there was a question she posed that there was no way she could have known without doing a background check. She could not have known. When I was readmitted to LSU, I never talked about it, I said I was tested for Fragile X when I wrote my submission. I said in my readmission petition I tested positive and negative for Fragile X which is my current understanding. I never told this lady about that. Never did. but she asked me about that. I never confirmed the positive and negative test for Fragile X all I said I was tested for Fragile X and um..... So it seemed more like a drilling like they were trying to establish a psychological profile of who I am and not for anything that was autism. I felt like it was establishing a profile of who I am. What are my strengths. What are my weaknesses. What could they verify. Very Suspicious.

Another Odd question. I don't want to get into the details of my issues with the Department of Justice and Department of Education; however, I did reveal a little bit. And one question she posed was: do you trust your government? And the answer I gave was that I trust my government so long as the follow the law. If anything comes from this, I felt like I was set up. That it was a complete setup. I was legitimately trying to confirm whether or not I have autism or if I fall somewhere on the spectrum and that if I got set up trying to seek help I can't think of anything lower than that. I was trying to get help. I was trying to confirm something in order to help somebody out. Side note: ← This is complete mens rea of 2016 and 2017. I was helping out disabled students and that is why I was getting help. Confirm my autism, confirm I was helping autism students. It had nothing to do with the elections. THIS IS THE CLEAREST EVIDENCE ON THE RECORD. It wasn't to help trump out by any stretch of the imagination.

Back to the video: And another thing. This doctor. Ummmm. She said I had depression and it is true I was severely depressed after what I went through last year. However, however, ummm, she discounted my learning disability. Even though (emphasis) even though there was paperwork in front of her that confirmed my disability. My writing disability, she discounted my disability. I don't know what psychologist will openly discount a patient's disability. Who does that?

SO WHEN THE FBI and CIA INTERROGATED ME AGAINST MY CONSTITUTIONAL RIGHTS and LAW, THEY SET ME UP AND COMPLETELY IGNORED EXCULPATORY EVIDENCE. THIS IS
RACKETEERING. THEY HAD A COMPLETELY PREDETERMINED OUTCOME THEY WERE TRYING TO REACH IN WHICH THEY WOULD COMPLETELY IGNORE THE TRUTH IN FRONT OF THEIR FACES WHEN DIRECTLY GIVEN EVIDENCE OTHERWISE.

Miki Kotevski <miki.kotevski@gmail.com>

Thu, Feb 9,

Tell me if I got something right Andrew McCabe. I read your book--it sucks.

The following paragraph is quotes from Andrew McCabe's book and my opinion and conjecture. In March 2015, Andrew McCabe, of the FBI, wrote in his book when talking about his wife running for VA State Senate—"The next step, as Jill weighed her options—and the Democrats weighed whether they wanted her to run—would be for her to meet the governor. If Jill wanted to run for office, my support for her would be as solid as hers had always been for me...If Jill wanted to run for office, I would also respect absolutely all legal and ethical limits that her service might place on my own." Ummm, first off, it is not a matter of respecting legal limits, the actual standard Mr. FBI agent McCabe is complying with and adhering to legal and ethical standards. You can still do things that are the exact opposite of something even if you respect it. I respect eating healthily, but yet, when that 20oz T-Bone steak beckons me, respect disappears faster than that steak off my plate. Next, as it doesn't need proof as it is common knowledge, during March 2015 and afterwards, the Governor of VA at the time and the Clintons were wonderful friends with each other and the Clintons and the Clinton Foundation were fundraisers for the Democrat party. You may be thinking, I'm biased here. No, I am not. What else did Mr. McCabe say about his wife's political office run: "I removed myself from any involvement in cases that had anything to do with Virginia politicians. Mr. McCabe does know there are 49 different states, U.S. Territories, and more importantly, cases in Washington D.C. that involve politicians or politics that are not included in the term "viriginia politicians," right? That includes Illinois, Louisiana, Washington D.C., and Tennessee politicians and issues. So what is my ultimate point in this paragraph? Suppose Mr. McCabe is a good loving husband, and he wants to see his wife succeed as a Virginia State Senator, but he must ingratiate himself in the Democrat party somehow in order for her to succeed. No ingratiation, no Democrat approval in March 2015 for Andrew McCabe's wife to run as Virginia state senator. There's no such thing as a free lunch and funds are necessary to run as a politician. The Clintons are great fundraisers. What if the Clintons had a problem that the FBI and Andrew McCabe could dispose of so that Andrew McCabe can ingratiate himself with the Democrats and Hillary and Bill Clinton? Wouldn't it be easier for the Clintons to dispose of a problem they had if their 'hitman' got a promotion in September 2015 as the associate deputy director and then be eventually promoted yet again within 3 months of a promotion in January 2016 as the Deputy Director of the FBI (#2 in the FBI), who just so happened to be the overseer of the Clinton Investigation at this time? Hey Mr. McCabe, how would you describe the investigation into the Clintons—"It was head-quarters "Special" in which "The SET UP for Midyear was simple." Special as in special needs people and special ed people—that's respectful. Where did I see Midyear again? Sewanee Freshman year.

Let me give the benefit of the doubt to "non-corrupt" Andrew McCabe. This is what he said: "The laptop was a find, but finding the laptop was not self-evidently a six-alarm situation. During Midyear, each of the many, many times we got a new tranche of emails, a first order of business was having them "de-duplicated"—that is, compared with the ones we already had to see what might be new. [Sidenote: who is giving them all of these emails? CIA? Google being bribed? Second, using German intelligence against my constitutional interests to obtain emails?] This time, we would do the same thing. I tasked the job of looking into this to the counterintelligence division [what is the justification for this. What are the reasons and evidence that counterintelligence is warranted when there are none?], and I expected to receive reports as things developed...[now providing context: McCabe is still talking about Midyear when he says] I'd been home for two days when the Bureau applied for and received a FISA warrant to surveil a subject in connection with the Russia investigation [who is this subject? Is it me?]...[providing context: McCabe is continuing to talk about Midyear when he says] as noted, I had nothing to do with Jill's campaign. And Jill's campaign had nothing to do with the Clinton email investigation...I sought ethics advice and followed it, observed all of these prohibitions and more, avoiding even activities that might have been permitted...and even if [Virginia Governor] McAuliffe had wanted to curry favor with me on Hillary Clinton's behalf, he would have had to be a clairvoyant. Jill's campaign was over—and she lost—in November 2015, months before I had any knowledge of, or involvement in, the Clinton case." THE COMMON DENOMINATOR IS ANDREW MCCABE. The question isn't so much Jill's campaign having allegedly done nothing with the Clinton email investigation, but the question is what did Andrew McCabe do for his wife's campaign? Next, it's not McAuliffe currying favor with McCabe, it is the exact opposite—McCabe currying favor with McAuliffe to curry favor with the Clintons and then McCabe currying favor with the Clintons. Bullshit, Andrew McCabe lied in his book—his knowledge of the Clinton Case was through Midyear and me.

Love you Andrew.
Take Care,
Miki

My name is Milan Kotevski, (aka Miki Kotevski), Juris Doctorate. Based on probable cause, information and belief, I have a good faith basis in saying and alleging that the US Govt may have committed legal fraud and misrepresented things to you when they issued you any warrants, subpoenas, and/or national security letters that concern my accounts on facebook or instagram. Under RICO laws, Meta/Facebook and their respective employees may be held as a co-conspirator in facilitating such egregious conduct that can constitute RICO predicate acts against my legal and constitutional interests. I demand to see any and all documents and correspondences that concern me between Meta/Facebook and the US Government.

Cordially,
Milan Kotevski, Juris Doctorate.

I hope you're doing well. I dont like to do this, I really dont, but I need you to be completely honest with me. Did anyone in the US Government send you to talk to me. Was I the subject of any mission given to you by any US Federal Agency or Department (including Defense)?

If i understand your subtle suggestion correctly, a certain central agency told me that you were at fault and for me to go check you out. They were pointing the finger at you and now you are pointing the finger at them. I say no more finger pointing! Finger pointing does not do anyone justice.

It has been clear that pleading, reasoning, and articulating with tangible evidence that I would never harm the United States Government has been deliberately ignored. In the movie Airplane! there is a hysterical woman that cannot get a hold of herself. See Youtube clip here: <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=FNkpIDbtC2c> Get a hold of yourself because the US Government has consistently and erroneously lied that I ever had the intent to commit any terrorist activity, have anything to do with weapons of mass destruction, etc. When and if knowing legal rights becomes hostile activity to the United States Government, that is tyranny and a violation of your oath to protect and defend the Constitution of the United States. I'm sure someone in the United States government intentionally and deliberately lied about the events of November 2009 and said it was drug activity when in fact it was not drug activity at all. Furthermore, you know how I was framed in 2009 with drugs that you did nothing about which is aiding and abetting obstruction of justice--give me the papers on that one.

I beg to differ. Do you know what other hostile activities to the United States government are? When US government actors exploit an American on the basis of their disability for political purposes, corruption, perpetuating legal fraud upon the Court and FISA court, and facilitating war crimes to be committed against American citizens without due process of law. STOP YOUR HOSTILITY TO THE UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT AND THE CONSTITUTION. You know what Bill and Hillary Clinton did to me in Summer of 2015. What matters is what is in your possession and you have those papers in your possession. I'm giving you the chance to show your integrity and to make up for legal wrongs that you have committed against me. Trust in institutions means that institutions necessarily own up to their mistakes because trust is a two way street. own up to your mistakes now.

So I will continue to seek what I requested and now you know what else I require.

Cordially,

Northside Comm Bank Legal Compliance Issue for Milan Kotevski

to mhaber

Dear Mr. Haber,

I can't stress enough how much Northside Community Bank has been there for my family through the years. I wish for my family to continue to bank with you for years to come. I have earned a Juris Doctorate degree and the reason why I am writing to you is the following:

I have a good faith basis and knowledge in believing that legal fraud and obstruction of justice was perpetuated by certain US officers against me in search warrants in which they utilized perjured testimony, coerced confessions, and other heinous and unconstitutional acts. Since those officers, based on a good faith basis and knowledge, committed the obstructive acts and legal fraud then, then it must be the case they have issued you (Northside community bank) a subpoena, national security letter, Section 215 of the USA Patriot Act, or warrant in regards to any accounts that had me included in it that was induced fraudulently. You may have a gag order, but gag orders are inapplicable to when things were done fraudulently. IF it is the case that one of those invasive techniques was used to obtain records, please provide a copy of it to me so that I may properly assess it.

Cordially,
Miki Kotevski, Juris Doctorate.

Hello,

I'm Miki Kotevski and I am writing to you because--upon information and belief-- it is my understanding that at least the United States Government contacted you in regards to me in which they may have utilized known perjured testimony in any national security letter or warrant made out to your legal department. You have an affirmative legal duty to respond to me because legal fraud was committed and it is necessary for you to provide me a copy of any and all records any agency or division of the United States Government, British Government, Indian Government, Japanese Government, and Qatari government may have given you. I am going to pursue RICO litigation regardless and hope that your cooperation with me is voluntary so we may resolve the issues quickly.

Sometime between 2003 through 2006, a man named Joe Bello coerced me in the basement of his home into declaring allegiance to a terrorist organization that I never had the intention of being a member of said organization. He did so because I expressed an opinion on the war on terror in which he fundamentally disagreed upon--that there is not a domestic terrorist around every single corner. Then Robert Mueller and Michael Hayden used perjured and coerced testimony in which that started a string of events of complete bullshit and an atrocity by United States officials and abuses of such the likes of which the country has never seen. Then, by my tally right now, officials from six different countries and america committed at least 100 different violations of criminal law, international treaties, constitutional rights, and more. Then

Matt Olsen refused to talk to me when I gave him the chance to. All the while denying me complete access to the courts and then manipulating my internet traffic and preventing me from obtaining justice by finding proper cases that are available on the web. What is your problem? You seem to think that profiting at a figure of $10,823,400,000 is okay in which deliberate manipulations were made to create materially misleading and fabricated narratives against me. Then somehow BILL and HILLARY CLINTON, who politically executed a disabled man before 2015 was given information by YOU (FBI) or CIA or DHS in which she managed to gain full control of the american intelligence apparatus as a private individual and did the exact thing I said not to do on the basis of my disability to execute a disabled man because of at least $10,823,400,000 in which she and her husband conspired with countries like, japan, india, united kingdom, qatar, or china in the process. Oh, that SpiceJET deal in 2010, so on my basis as it was 'trade is in the offing.' You forced me to labor, made me an indentured servant, tortured me, committed war crimes against me, became a rico enterprise, and you ignore me knowing the harms youve done. Then you continue to falsely allege i'm a terrorist in which you are so fucking wrong beyond any reasonable doubt after what you all did to me in 2011 and 2015 in which you refuse to apply the definition to people that actually committed terrorist acts THAT YOU KNOW OF TO AN AMERICAN before you all pushed me to limits beyond all decency and dignity in 2016. Then you passively aggressively arrest everyone else in which Hillary and Bill Clinton enjoy their freedom after what they did to me. What happened to all of the exculpatory evidence? WHY IS IT SO HARD FOR YOU TO MEANINGFULLY RESPOND TO ME? I have no fucking idea if i'm married to Angie Ortiz or Sunny, but it sure fucking seems like it based on the torture and psyops program DoD and CIA are running. They have not meaningfully CONTACTED me and then any decisions or actions done by ICE, CBP, and DHS done from at least November 2009 are necessarily constitutionally compromised. So anything DHS has done is illegal. Anything Sunny or Angie did in my name is illegal.

Enough hiding. Own up to what you did.

Dear Congress and DOJ

Thu, Sep 28,

Dear Congress and DOJ,

I can specifically name Hillary Clinton (Bill Clinton) and Lynn De Rothschild as the two most likely culprits for Summer 2015 as either the Clintons or Rothschilds are equally liable or are co-conspirators in which CIA, FBI, DHS, Jeh Johnson, Andrew McCabe, Peter Strzok, Barack Obama, and John Brennan/Michael Morrell all necessarily heard me talk about the Rothschilds and Clintons in Spring 2015 in which one of them snitched and leaked to Hillary Clinton that is provable in fact. If they snitched to Hillary Clinton and seeing how Lynn De Rothschild had a fundraiser for Hillary Clinton in 2016, that leads to the RICO conclusion of both the Clintons and Rothschild approved it. Just from SpiceJET, 81 boeing 737 NG or Qatar airways and 55 airbus a320. There are equally valid and good arguments either way.

I have had nothing but good faith and I became frustrated through the years in which you had former friends like Thao Bui force me to sign a contract or snitch to you all in which you have proven nothing but bad faith and refuse to negotiate freely and in good faith. I want my restitution for at least two decades worth of maltreatment. I don't represent anyone's interest besides my own and I'm not doing this on behalf of any foreign power nor did I ever do anything for Kristina Khomova or Vera Pochtarev. I'm not acting to the detriment of the United States. I was never a spy and I never worked on behalf of any foreign government or foreign intelligence service. The only people that acted detrimentally to the United States were people like Hillary Clinton, Bill Clinton, Marcia Greenberger, John Brennan, Robert Mueller, Jeh Johnson, when they thought committing war crimes and torture against a special needs american was an appropriate course of action and/or thought the laws of america and the constitution did not apply to them. Then some of those same people decided to do shit with Angie Ortiz and directed all of her actions against me. Are you going to psychopathically argue that an inappropriate over-reaction with tyler--but still legal at the time-- in which he posed an ongoing threat to numerous students in which there 7 demonstrable instances within the span of 15 minutes that he posed a threat to students and himself somehow justifies all the egregious actions that us government officials have done? No, no way. Are you going to psychopathically argue that a man that has been treated worse than a slave for your sadistic entertainment and agenda for two decades in which I was subjected to some of the worst abuses in the modern age deserves no compensation or restitution? No, no way.

What you have constantly demonstrated is a complete exploitation on weaknesses of mine being an autistic man and weak moments that I have had. $10,000,000,000+ (whatever amount I said earlier) and more freedom is the absolute minimum. You need to cauterize the wound US Federal Government actors inflicted upon the People and upon me and give me the full restitution. All of this is helping america in the long run. What I have had inflicted upon me and what the People (and disabled americans as well) need in return are more just treatment, fairness, more freedom, opportunities, and economic prosperity and that is exactly what the restitution is doing. The only treason and war crimes were committed by certain US actors against me that imperiled the nation and not me. I, in no way, committed treason. I did not imperil the nation, but your US government actors did when they treated me the way they did. There are always going to be US government officials that are going to treat some citizens with psychopathic cruelty and sadistic unequal treatment and what they did constituted war crimes, terrorism, and treason for me to be subject to that type of treatment and sadistic cruelty. The restitution goes to ensuring the probability of that ever occurring again decreases.

You can either give me the full restitution, which is the most fucking appropriate and reasonable course of action (or negotiate with me in fairness, equity, and equality), arrest me and continue the maladjusted behavior you all continue to exhibit, or kill me. It seems that I have come to know problems that can arise with shortsightedness by listening to you all. Dont be shortsighted. Full restitution.

Since 2008, you all have constantly and consistently denied me access to the courts in which unconstitutional surveillance denied my opportunity and access to courts. Then you had American Intel or some Intel leak info to Joe Biden in which he directly denied me access to the courts through his executive order made august of this year. I have to send this because certain people in the DOJ are malicious. I have to have some proof on the record instead of certain actors in the DOJ lying to the court (again) like Neal Katyal and Don Virrelli did. no more abuse. This is not a terrorist act because im requesting restitution from acts of terrorism by some of the defendants listed below. I dont want to cause any battles nor any war. This is what I AM CONSIDERING AS RESTITUTION. It is not a demand. but honestly look at yourselves.

There is no meaning in the formatting in the requests below.

Andrew McCabe and John Brennan were in on the hit against me by Hillary and Bill Clinton in Japan in Summer 2015 in which the indians knew about it and assisted it and so did the japanese government (maybe china or russia too). furthermore, australia, germany, and united kingdom had a role in it as well. A demon taking the form of Stevie Wonder couldnt have been as more willfully and maliciously blind than what the FBI and CIA were when I was in Japan. This was done precisely because what what janet napolitano, leon panetta, and robert mueller and eric holder knew and did in 2011 with the help of qatar, qatar airways, and the united kingdom. American INTEL murdered my cat and blamed me in which you all materially used that fabricated evidence against me. Then you took sarcastic musings as truth and/or coerced confessions to subject me to worst constitutional treatment to an american on american soil. I have included a list of all the DEFENDANTS below. I am exactly the type to sue everyone to figure out who did me wrong. That is the main part of it:

This is part of my restitution that is negotiable and is not a final offer.

(1): It shall be law that in every presidential election cycle, whenever the People vote, part of the ballot will include the Constitutional Freedom Initiative where an American can vote on the current state of constitutional freedoms in America where an American can select the option of filling out & selecting which constitutional freedoms Congress must discuss on the very first days of the elected president's tenure that must pass a 10% threshold in which one whole day must be spent on talking about just one constitutional issue selected by the People in which Congress reviews SCOTUS decisions and caselaw or in light of historical events that occurred. Legislation must be proposed within 6 months of the discussion date of the issue in which the underlying presumption has the basis that freedom should not be restricted nor curtailed. Maybe the issue to increase voter satisfaction with DC is not just about candidates in a political party--it is showing that Congress has necessarily heard the People's voices on issues that impact them the most.

This should significantly reduce the chances of this situation happening again.

You want to bridge the gap in political polarity in this country, show that the vast majority of American's voices are heard in which you show a common understanding of priorities amongst the People.

Here is an example of a list that can be included:

- 1st Amendment:
 - Free Speech
 - Freedom of Religion
 - Freedom of Association
- 2nd Amendment:
 - Gun Rights.
- 4th Amendment:
 - Searches
 - Seizures
- 5th Amendment
 - Takings
 - Due Process
- 6th Amendment:
- 7th Amendment
- 8th Amendment
- 9th Amendment
- 10th Amendment
- 13th Amendment
- 14th Amendment.
- Government Accountability
- Qualified Immunity
- Healthcare
- Economy
- Issues in the workplace.
- Limits on powers.
- Law Enforcement

- Bureaucracy issues.
- Abortion
- LGBT Rights
- Civil Rights
- Disability Rights
- Government Funding
- Appropriation (especially this one).
 - Then create a ranked list based on funding priorities that the People want THEIR MONEY spent on the most that CONGRESS must acknowledge and directly address. If you actually want the People to believe that Congress cares about the People, this is the way to do it. Fuck lobbyists, that is why. They can still retain their power, but you gotta balance out the People's interests first and then hear the lobbyists.
- Taxes
- Climate Change
- State Rights
- National Security
- War
- Property Rights
- Antitrust
- Immigration
- Litigation
- Defense
- Transportation
- Science

- Educational Priorities.
- The role of state and federal governments in their lives.
- Research Priorities.
 - Then create a ranked list based on research priorities that the People want THEIR MONEY spent on the most that CONGRESS must acknowledge and directly address. If you actually want the People to believe that Congress cares about the People, this is the way to do it.
- Proposed New Constitutional Freedoms.
 - A fill in the blank option that any American can fill in which technological advances can categorize it Truly having the People's voices heard on election day shows that America is for the People, by the People.

Hunter and Jim Biden made me sign something. Stop obstructing and tell me what did they make me sign. Has the DOJ ever heard of Wong Sun or no? That when there's a political hit against me because my services were worth more than 10 billion dollars, where were you and the fbi on this or was Andrew McCabe too busy with conspiring with Hillary Clinton to understand what he was doing was wrong? Answer me. Oh by the way, I can talk as much shit as I god damn well please after what you all did to me and for it not to be serious but an an actual expression of the way I felt after what you all did before. You seem to think that one after being robbed of more than ten billion dollars and war crimes and torture committed against him seem to think that person is not going to ever express anything that just constitutes emotional hyperbole. I want my full restitution and bring me to court and you have to expose everything you did. I'm no spy.

This is not a legal request. It is to inform Boeing of the nature of some of the claims I may have and to negotiate fairly, equitably, and in good faith. Please send this to Brett Gerry as soon as possible. This is super confidential and top secret. Some parts of it may not make sense to you as it is part of an ongoing issue with certain federal officials. President Biden and Merrick Garland probably will have a copy of it soon enough. I don't care. I don't wish to harm anyone or adversely impact a company and current and ongoing customers and relationships. I just want to be included.

Miki Kotevski Request. (Confirm Receipt of Email)

to cesisk@sewanee.edu

This is all going to sound crazy, but truth is sometimes stranger than fiction. doing and saying this under the honor code. I am going to send you a copy via gmail and my other email account to make sure you get this email.

I know Sewanee has the Roberson project, which is great, and I am a victim of human trafficking and indentured servitude by the American Government as well as at least three different foreign governments. Furthermore, even acts of torture, war crimes, RICO predicates, and terrorism were committed against me. Remember, I just said that under the Honor Code. I am extremely wounded and hurt. Some of those occurred in 2010 and 2011 during my time at Sewanee. I have been able to truthfully assess and come to a conclusion that at least I suffered $10,823,400,000 in damages from just 2010 and 2011 alone. Treble damages under RICO of $32,470,200,000. I, for sure, got two more years for the statute of limitations on RICO to end around 06/26/2025, but seeing how I have been denied twice from submitting complaints to the United Nations about the abuses and crimes I experienced which I have screenshots of, I probably now have to at least October 10th, 2033 as that would be 100% obstruction of justice. This is not going to go away for a long time.

Now I dont know if you understand how RICO and War Crimes/Geneva Convention liability works, but I'll explain my current understanding of how the law works: DEFENDANTS are bound together (severally & jointly) by PINKERTON liability and/or previous case law from the Nuremberg trials finding REICHSBANK, WALTHER FUNK, and HJALMAR SCHACHT, at a minimum, guilty as co-conspirators & having aided and abetted the Nazi's war crimes and/or as RICO co-conspirators & members of the Enterprise or association under 18 U.S.C. 1962(d) and/or are vicariously liable for DEFENDANTS actions and/or are principals & accessories after the fact for any instance that took place when PLAINTIFF resided in Louisiana under Louisiana Revised Statutes RS 14 §24; RS 14 §25 and/or aided and abetted a conspiracy in violation of 18 U.S.C. §241 and 18 U.S.C. §1985(2) and 18 U.S.C. §1985 (3) and/or any other reason.

This is what I know: I know at least Andrew McCabe, Robert Mueller, Peter Strzok, Janet Napolitano, and other unknown officials in the FBI, CIA, DHS, and DOJ all have contacted you in regards to me. I know that probably Professor Schneider and certain FBI officials like Andrew McCabe and Peter Strzok (and/or other unknown DOJ and FBI officials, probably some from the Northern District of Georgia) did in which they conspired against me on the basis of my disability and title vi status and thus started one of the many chains of causation.

Now I know Sewanee and I haven't had the best relationship over the years. Here is your decision for you to make right now. Cooperate with me or be a defendant. Your silence means you have decided to become a defendant. There is no such thing as attorney-client privilege for war crimes, torture, and RICO. You have no privileges.

If you decide to work with me, you can tell me who in any government agency talked to you about me and provide all the documentation on that. Who was the internet service provider in Sewanee between 2007-2011, where did Sewanee host its IT servers, the contract between Google and Sewanee for hosting Sewanee's email accounts, everything you have on Officer Rollins (regardless of current employment status), everything you have on Mary Beth Williams Bankson, and more. I'm especially upset about the incident involving an officer that came into my dorm room in March or April 2008 doing a wellness check so every document about that. Which officers were part of the interrogation outside in Humphrey's parking lot dorm in my freshman year. All the names of officers employed between 2007-2011. More documents.

The United States Government refuses to meaningfully interact or help me so it seems like they are the culprits until they prove me wrong. So what is it going to be?

Hello,

My name is Miki Kotevski and I am contacting you in regards to the subject of: 18 USC 2339(a), RICO, and JP Morgan Chase Bank liability for financing terrorism. I need to immediately talk to whomever in the legal department handles issues with financing, terrorism, and RICO as well. You need to contact immediately and cooperate with me on this. There is a paper trail connecting JP Morgan Chase to an incident of domestic and international terrorism as well as RICO racketeering that occurred in 2010 and 2011 and the statute of limitations has not run on this issue because it is an ongoing pattern. I am a victim of the incident of domestic and international terrorism.

That is a shame. It seems that some US Intelligence Agency or Foreign Intelligence Agency is obstructing justice. shame on them

So i'm going to need you to confirm receipt of this email and the following request:

On either March 10th, 2011 or March 11th, 2011, United Airlines Flight #925 flew from London To Dulles in which I was a passenger on the flight. It is my understanding it was an operation by DHS, CIA, DoD, British Intel, and Indian Intel (and possibly qatari intel as well). Anyway, as it was a major operation and I was a passenger in the flight, you dont get to claim national security privileges nor any other privileges because I was forced to labor and you would be covering up RICO Acts as well as an act of terrorism committed against me. So I need every single thing, documents, video, radar stills, of the repairs the flight went under in London on March 10th, 2011 and March 11th, 2011 (i.e. why was it delayed), the exact flight path of the flight on those days, all information related to the flight from the exact moment it landed on dulles' runway, etc. Dulles airport is obstructing justice. Please do this for me as I really want to work with the FAA in the future. It is not you (the FAA) i am after. I just want to be my own pilot and have my own airline one day after what was done to me (at least from the FAA perspective).

Miki Kotevski.

Ms. Cummins,

I sincerely apologize for the format of the response; however, your response is not adequate nor acceptable. Put in another way, I want every single document, video, and/or record that concerns United Airlines Flight #925 on March 11th, 2011 or states United Airlines (or abbreviations thereof) Flight #925 on March 11th, 2011 on any document at all. This is extremely specific. I have included this diagram to assist in the process and what it should specifically focus on and the exact nature of my request. So I'll repeat it: any and all documents, records, and/or videos of UAL Flight #925 at both Dulles and London on March 10th, 2011 and March 11th, 2011. Period. DoD just cant rape and pillage DOT of their records; why if they did that, we would be living in a military dictatorship and in complete violation of their oath to the country.

You got your dates wrong by the way and I consider your previous email invalid because I cant respond to a demand that happened in 2022 in December 2023 after being notified about it today.

RICO is a good law with the best of intentions. RICO PRECEDENT AND CASELAW says failing to assist me in my endeavor in apprehending those who committed these acts against me as liable as a co-conspirator and principally aiding and abetting a RICO Enterprise.

Again, from my heart and soul, I look forward to working with DOT and FAA when I start my own airline that is owed as legal compensation for the harms committed.

Thank You,
--Miki

Hello, I tried clicking the link and it has not worked for me.

11:23 am

I submitted information to AT&T via privacy sometime ago and was intentionally ignored. Under the law and precedent, the content of my message was willfully ignored and this constitutes a criminal act in furtherance of a rico enterprise.

11:24 am

The FBI, NSA, and CIA issued to AT&T warrants that were in furtherance of a rico enterprise that were based on legal fraud, obstruction of justice, perjury, and more.

11:25 am

the failure to remedy this makes at&t liable for their actions. The rico enterprise's actions thus far consists of: war crimes, torture, attempted murder, human trafficking, forced slavery and indentured servitude, and the damages exceed $40,000,000,000

11:26 am

You need to get your lawyers to contact me immediately or you will be named a defendant in the lawsuit. If you fail to respond to me adequately within the next week, I will ask for full ownership of AT&T because you received funds from the rico enterprise and gained money from it. furthermore, nuremburg precedent says you are liable for the war crimes committed against me. Assist and comply now with me or be owned by me. your choice.

11:29 am

Confirm you have read the prior messages and that you understand it it is not my fault that andrew mccabe and peter strzok or jeh johnson were corrupt officials that leaked the details of an ongoing investigation to a psychotic hillary and bill clinton who had effective control of the fbi, dhs, cia, and nsa and they all stood by and did fucking nothing to appease hillary clinton. not my fault at all. it's their fault completely. you telling me fbi, dhs, cia, and nsa are incapable of amicably contacting me in person and resolving it peacefully? fuck outta here.

Jeff,

Also, the United States Attorney for the District of Northern Illinois knows. I'm guessing Christopher Wray of the FBI and Bill Burns of the CIA and every other head of DoD and American Intel knows. Probably I'll take a guess and say British intel knows and Indian intel does too. Guessing Joe Biden knows too. Report it all you want, they already know.

I sincerely from every single part of my soul and heart look forward to hearing back and working with Boeing in the future.

you may not get all of it. there are parts in this that obviously relate to boeing. the reason why you probably arent getting it is because some intelligence agency is literally obstructing justice and i am quite sick of the intelligence agencies ruining my life and i would like a fresh start.

basically, the law requires as restitution from boeing to me: 2 new apache helicopters (fully armed) and some new boeing 737s and 787s. I wish i was a billionaire or had the charisma and ruthlessness to be successful on wall street; but alas, i dont. i'm just requesting a negotiation in fairness based on the legal harm that was done to me. i dont wish to fuck over boeing; the exact opposite: i wish to be part of the boeing family.

Error! Filename not specified.

PLAINTIFF has to get this completely out of the way by factually distinguishing the applicability of certain facts in this chapter: actual defense trade between America and India was not corrupt and was completely untainted in regard to the issues in this Chapter which is even supported by certain facts that PLAINTIFF will explain (i.e. Indian betrayal of not purchasing certain military aircraft). SO ACTUAL DEFENSE TRADE BETWEEN AMERICA, INDIA, QATAR, and UNITED KINGDOM FALLS OUTSIDE THE SCOPE OF LITIGATION IN THIS COMPLAINT and is therefore inapplicable except for the instances in which PLAINTIFF proves at least at a clear and convincing evidence standard that certain things may be labeled as “defense trade,” but there is evidence that shows it wasn’t about legitimate defense trade. Furthermore, whether it was DoD or CIA is immaterial, there were events that took place on November 8th, 2018 that PLAINTIFF is still very much pissed off about that either CIA or DoD did as a pure form of intimidation and retaliation in which no other plausible explanation can be attributed for their actions. As a punitive measure, PLAINTIFF is requesting two boeing apache helicopters fully loaded and/or anti-aircraft defense systems because of what either CIA or DoD did to PLAINTIFF on November 8th, 2018 in XX; and to ensure that if DoD or CIA are going to disobey the court permanent injunction that PLAINTIFF requests, there will be punitive repercussions for their actions when PLAINTIFF will defend himself and his property from that type of occurrence again. But DoD would train PLAINTIFF on how to be proficient on an Apache Helicopter or how to use anti-air craft system on their own planes if they so choose to intimidate, tamper with, and retaliate against PLAINTIFF when there was no legitimate cause to do so in the first place.

“The danger that high federal officials will disregard constitutional rights in their zeal to protect the national security is sufficiently real to counsel against affording such officials an absolute immunity.” Mitchell v. Forsyth, 472 U.S. 511 (1985). “Because the Amendment now affords protection against the uninvited ear, oral statements, if illegally overheard, and their fruits are also subject to suppression. Silverman v. United States, 365 U. S. 505 (1961); Katz v. United States, 389 U. S. 347 (1967)” 18 U.S. Code § 2234 - Authority exceeded in executing warrant; 18 U.S. Code § 2235 - Search warrant procured maliciously; 18 U.S. Code § 2236 - Searches without warrant.

What PLAINTIFF is alleging is that certain civilian trade between America, India, Qatar, and United Kingdom is necessarily tainted and corrupted. Period. So PLAINTIFF is not holding DoD responsible or as a party to that corruption as that was more State and the White House. Let me be clear on something. It was the decision made to incorporate PLAINTIFF. What goes on in the sketchy parts of the world, PLAINTIFF understands and has absolutely no desire to have this case be a precedent in that respect, but it was DEFENDANTS' actual decision to do what they did against PLAINTIFF.

PLAINTIFF will fight to his every last appealable decision that based on what DEFENDANTS did to PLAINTIFF and how they killed his dream of becoming a lawyer in this Chapter as well as in An Anchor and a Pitchfork, PLAINTIFF wants his childhood dreams to come true when he is legally correct in saying they will come true.

In all relevant times in Miki's Tea Party, PLAINTIFF alleges that NSA and British Intel cooperated, conspired, plotted, and undertook numerous unconstitutional actions concerning PLAINTIFF in which they aided and abetted and facilitated an act of international and domestic terrorism and failed to properly inform PLAINTIFF of the "offing." They did this through having utilized NSA's operation at RAF Menwith Hill in North Yorkshire, United Kingdom and at GCHQ Bude in Morwenstow, United Kingdom. NSA and British Intel have had a long and long running relationship via: Echelon. Together, NSA and British Intel did one of the enumerated actions in the definition of NSA and British Intel during all times of Miki's Tea Party.

PLAINTIFF alleges DHS and NSA have a partnership in which DHS and NSA utilize NSA'S Threat Operations Center (NTOC), which is the primary NSA/CSS partner for Department of Homeland Security response to cyber incidents. In An Anchor and a Pitchfork, a blackmail email was sent to PLAINTIFF in which American Intel and British Intel and Aussies necessarily had PLAINTIFF under surveillance in which they all knew of the liability PLAINTIFF posed to the CLINTONS and SCOTUS. At all times, DHS and NSA via the NTOC forecasted the incident to occur from at least 06/27/2015 in An Anchor and a Pitchfork and 09/27/2010 in Miki's Tea Party. Alerts were sent to both DHS and NSA. They could have easily and readily attributed the malicious activity being undertaken against PLAINTIFF in An Anchor and a Pitchfork and Miki's Tea Party. DHS and NSA did nothing and aided and abetted RICO Enterprise 1 and RICO Enterprise 2 and furthered the objectives of RICO Enterprise 1. By having received, sent, and processed all of the information concerning PLAINTIFF in Miki's Tea Party and An Anchor and a Pitchfork at the NTOC in which information was obtained in Tennessee, England, Washington DC/Fort Meade, Illinois, Japan, and other locations, this is part of the requirement constituting furthering mail and wire fraud and other RICO predicate acts in furtherance of RICO Enterprise 1 and RICO Enterprise 2.

PLAINTIFF alleges that NSA and GCHQ work together at Menwith Hill in England and have done so through the entirety of this complaint. NSA paid GCHQ over £100 Million (over $125,000,000) between 2009 and 2012. Part of the funds went to a codenamed operation Karma Police in which NSA utilized, sent, received, and process the data from that operation; and NSA allowed GCHQ to use PRISM from at around the inception of Miki's Tea Party in 09/24/2010 that allowed GCHQ to have easy access to the systems of Google, Facebook, Microsoft, Apple, Yahoo, and Skype.

PLAINTIFF alleges that from 2007-2008 or most definitely from at least 2010-2011 through 2016 (if not longer), PLAINTIFF served as some sort of Indian “Hundi” between the Americans and Indians in which they would pass PLAINTIFF off back and forth in violation of PLAINTIFF’S 13th Amendment rights and in violation of RICO.

Executive Order 12333 states: "The Director of the Central Intelligence Agency shall coordinate the clandestine collection of foreign intelligence collected through human sources such as 'moles' or other human-enabled means and counterintelligence activities outside the United States" and National Security Council Intelligence Directive No. 5 (NSCID 5) provides that: "The Director of Central Intelligence shall conduct all organized Federal espionage operations outside the United States and its possessions for the collection of foreign intelligence information required to meet the needs of all Departments and Agencies concerned, in connection with the national security, except for certain agreed activities by other Departments and Agencies." Therefore, Leon Panetta is directly liable for the actions undertaken here and alleges such.

The United States, India, United Kingdom, Germany, Japan, Australia, and Qatar, all violated 18 U.S. Code § 2523 (b)(1)(B)(iii) which requires that under data sharing, it must adhere to applicable international human rights obligations and commitments or demonstrates respect for international universal human rights in which DEFENDANTS violated the The Convention On the Rights of Persons With Disabilities-- was all signed by United States, India, United Kingdom, Germany, Japan, Australia, and Qatar--that violated Article 13: Access to justice; Article 14: Liberty and security of person; Article 15: Freedom from torture or cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment; Article 16: Freedom from exploitation, violence and abuse; Article 17: Protecting the integrity of the person; Article 18: Liberty of movement; Article 21 Freedom of expression and opinion, and access to information; Article 22 Respect for privacy; Article 24 Education; Article 25 Health States Parties recognize that persons with disabilities have the right to the enjoyment of the highest attainable standard of health without discrimination on the basis of disability.

PLAINTIFF is alleging DEFENDANTS violated 18 U.S. Code § 2523 (b)(4)(A) in which one of the following occurred: 1)The United States directed British Intel, Qatari Intel, Indian Intel, Aussie Intel, Japanese Intel, or German Intel, to intentionally target PLAINTIFF or 2) Indian Intel, British Intel, Qatari Intel, Japanese Intel, German Intel, or Aussie Intel, intentionally targeted PLAINTIFF because of RICO Enterprise 1 and shared the information with the United States Government

- PLAINTIFF is alleging is a violation of: United States v. Curtiss-Wright Export Corp., 299 U. S. 304 (1936)
- 49 U.S.C. § 46502
- 18 USC 2331 1(B)(iii) and 5(B)(iii).

18 U.S. Code § 2331 defines international and domestic terrorism as having occurred when one does an act that is dangerous to human life in violation of the criminal laws of the United States or any state (or would be a criminal violation if committed within the jurisdiction of the United States or any state) 1): acts dangerous to human life that are a violation of the criminal laws of the United States or of any State, or that would be a criminal violation if committed within the jurisdiction of the United States or of any State and 2) appear to be intended to influence the policy of a government by intimidation and/or coercion OR appears to be intended to affect the government by kidnapping.

18 U.S. Code § 2332(b)(a)(1)(A) stipulates acts of terrorism that transcend boundaries occurs when one: kills, kidnaps, maims, commits an assault resulting in serious bodily injury, or assaults with a dangerous weapon any person within the United States; or 18 U.S. Code § 2332(b)(a)(1)(B) stipulates acts of terrorism that transcend boundaries occur when one: “creates a substantial risk of serious bodily injury to any other person by damaging any conveyance (i.e. plane) or other real or personal property within the United States or by attempting or conspiring to destroy or damage any conveyance (plane), or other real or personal property within the United States.” So this means that when 1) one that damages a plane in London that in itself creates a substantial risk of serious bodily injury or 2) one attempts to or conspire in damaging a plane from within the United States that occurs in London, either one of those two acts constitutes an act of terrorism that transcend boundaries. Sabotaging a plane is in itself an act that creates a serious risk to people. period.

18 U.S.C. 2339(a) prohibits providing material resources to terrorists.

In Summer 2010, PLAINTIFF met an INDIAN man named SURESH in Pennsylvania at CAMP WAYNE in Preston Park, PA. SURESH and PLAINTIFF became friends at Camp Wayne and SURESH had invited PLAINTIFF to come to the state of Gujarat in INDIA. The only two Indians whom PLAINTIFF ever interacted with for more than 10 minutes was Chetna (See: Big Brothers and Big Sisters) and Suresh. PLAINTIFF decides to take SURESH up on his offer. PLAINTIFF throughout the Fall Semester of 2010 and throughout the Spring Semester of 2011 maintains contact with Suresh in which PLAINTIFF has an unrelenting desire to go to India. PLAINTIFF, to the best of his recollection, may have flown into London in August 2010 because of his grandmother’s 6 month passing and had to go to Serbia. To the best of PLAINTIFF’S recollection, there was a time that PLAINTIFF had tried to go to INDIA in Fall 2010 and had to cancel; and conceivably that is where it starts. Section 215 would reveal if PLAINTIFF purchased tickets and had to cancel them in Fall 2010 or what he told Suresh on META in Fall 2010. PLAINTIFF in this time period gets into arguments with his mother about going to India, hence the reason for cancelation. PLAINTIFF relentlessly tries to go to India during his breaks Senior Year at Sewanee (Fall 2010/Senior 2011). So as PLAINTIFF makes plans to go to INDIA, DEFENDANTS in turn, make plans and conspire to use against PLAINTIFF. PLAINTIFF talks to British woman LAUREN DELLER (who he met at Camp Wayne) about coming to London in December 2010. The point being, DEFENDANTS made a plan involving PLAINTIFF in Fall 2010 in which there is ample evidence on the record PLAINTIFF was doing everything he could to come to or go from LONDON/INDIA since FALL 2010. SCOTUS knowing DEFENDANTS’ numerous plans against PLAINTIFF in FALL 2010, took an extremely long time in deciding Ashcroft v. al-Kidd, 563 U.S. 731 (2011) when they granted cert to the case on: October 18th, 2010 (after DEFENDANTS plans were formalized in which ERIC HOLDER knew about them), DEFENDANTS knew that from 02/27/2011

PLAINTIFF had intended on going to INDIA because he sent Suresh the following on 02/27/2011 at 02:29am: "My dear apologies Suresh for not talking to you as of late; this semester, to say the least, has been tumultuous as in matters regarding the self, matters of my existence, etc, and I have acquired some funds that would allow me to come visit you, that is, if you have the time to. I would arrive on the 9th and return back home on the 16th/17th. I have done some research and would love to see somethings....", Miki's Tea Party went down on March 11th, 2011, Ashcroft v. al-Kidd, 563 U.S. 731 (2011) is argued by DOJ Solicitor General NEAL KATYAL in March 2011 who has an office in the Supreme Court the entire time between October 2010-May 2011, and Ashcroft v. al-Kidd, 563 U.S. 731 (2011) was decided in May 31st, 2011 because they would absolve ERIC HOLDER and different Solicitor Generals and Attorney Generals concerning their past conduct regarding PLAINTIFF. But what is Miki's Tea Party exactly?

As PLAINTIFF said plans are constantly made in which he plans to go to INDIA and buys airfare at sometime his Senior Year at Sewanee (probably Chase Bank will confirm the purchase date via Qatar Airlines). As a youth and maybe up until the last 4 or 5 years and this can be proven with testimony from PLAINTIFF'S family, whenever PLAINTIFF traveled as a youth, PLAINTIFF did not fall asleep on airplanes and stayed awake the whole entire flight. DEFENDANTS having had listened in on PLAINTIFF's life from at least 2008, would have necessarily come across any conversations PLAINTIFF had with his family or friends that stipulated he was surprised that he had fallen asleep on the airplane (from at least 2018).

Side note: PLAINTIFF is not alleging a violation of United States v. Verdugo-Urquidez, 494 U.S. 259 (1990) as that involved non-citizens and constitutional rights; but what PLAINTIFF is alleging is a violation of: United States v. Curtiss-Wright Export Corp., 299 U. S. 304 (1936), that "[n]either the Constitution nor the laws passed in pursuance of it have any force in foreign territory unless in respect of our own citizens," PLAINTIFF is alleging there was a search of PLAINTIFF in Germany, United Kingdom, India, Australia, and Japan. More importantly with the phrase of "in respect of our own citizens" means that as it relates to or involves an American citizen. So any searches that relate to or involve PLAINTIFF in which DEFENDANTS all have agreements with one another; so any shared communications amongst DEFENDANTS that related to or involved PLAINTIFF in any way (regardless of who sent them—american or non-american alike) means by prior precedent are entitled to at least 4th Amendment Protections because the content of the message is in respect to PLAINTIFF; and as Stanford v. Texas and Ex Parte Jackson so elegantly demonstrated, generalized warrants against PLAINTIFF'S 4th Amendment interests are unconstitutional when the content of the message is seized on the basis of PLAINTIFF'S protected speech in the course of transmission of message without a warrant. Therefore, any shared communications about PLAINTIFF'S obtained by foreign DEFENDANTS are unconstitutional. DEFENDANTS taint from 2008 most definitely existed at this time and DEFENDANTS' taint became immortalized from the entirety of the circumstances in Miki's Tea Party in which DEFENDANTS could not have absolved themselves of any unconstitutional taint and been in good faith or constituted an independent source because DEFENDANTS were all tainted.

Before starting this, PLAINTIFF has an issue on the dates of when all of this happened and applied. PLAINTIFF below took pictures of his passport that he had on him in 2017 or afterwards. This passport was used in Financial Terrorism and Miki's Tea Party

some of the most important pages of where immigration stamps were placed into the passport:

The Red Boxes Confirm the Flight Dates on or about 11/11/2009 and 11/15/2009 in Financial Terrorism and Arrival back into Atlanta on November 15th, 2009. The greenbox confirms PLAINTIFF went to Serbia around August 12th, 2010 for the Serbian Orthodox Church requirement of going 6 months to a graveyard after a family passed (I.e. PLAINTIFF'S grandma in 2010 in which she died in February 2010) in which DHS interacted with PLAINTIFF on 08/19/2010. The turquoise box and another box are at issue. PLAINTIFF reported his passport had been fraudulently obtained by a scammer to the Department of State, FBI, and MI5 around the beginning part of 2012; but, PLAINTIFF was allowed to fly and used a compromised passport that DHS and Department of State necessarily knew about in which PLAINTIFF even then gave the same passport to DHS on August 7th, 2012, which strikes PLAINTIFF as quite peculiar and only affirms it was British Intel that compromised PLAINTIFF'S passport in 2012. This gives an inference that DHS and Department of State did not view the passport as compromised because DEFENDANTS allowed PLAINTIFF to use it and because how could have the passport been compromised if the compromise was committed by a friendly foreign intelligence service like Scotland Yard/MI5/MI6, etc? So here is another page:

The pink box is at issue in Miki's Tea Party. It says 03/10/2011. But 10/31/2010 is also extremely similar. So the event either took place on 03/10/2011 or 10/31/2010. PLAINTIFF is alleging it could have happened on 10/31/2010 just in case because that could have been a fabricated date. So when PLAINTIFF alleges the date of 03/10/2011, he is also alleging 10/31/2010 in the alternative just in case as not to lose the claim. What PLAINTIFF distinctly remembers about the days of the flight in Miki's Tea Party was that there was a '3' and '1' next to each other in which there were lots of 1's and 0's. 10/31/2010 and 03/11/2011 all fit that criteria. So to PLAINTIFF'S best recollection, it was either 10/31/2010, 03/10/2011, or 03/11/2011

As a precursor in which PLAINTIFF alleges the financial basis of Miki's Tea Party is the following:
“On the margins of the President's trip, trade transactions were announced or showcased, exceeding $14.9 billion in total value with $9.5 billion in U.S. export content.”^[1] The total $14,900,000,000 is at issue with Miki's Tea Party.

So in the Spring 2011, on or about 03/10/2011, PLAINTIFF takes stand-by on United Airlines from Chicago to London. PLAINTIFF does so because PLAINTIFF'S aunt works for United Airlines and their policy--at the time--allowed for stand-by travel for family and relatives. PLAINTIFF lands in London-Heathrow with United Airlines in which DEFENDANT BRITISH AIRWAYS aids in guiding PLAINTIFF'S plane to land, directs the plane to the gate, and in which they would be watching and monitoring the movement of the plane of United Airlines Flight #925 and know about the incident that would take place at their hub. So BRITISH AIRWAYS violated 42 U.S.C. §1985(3); 18 U.S.C. §241; 18 U.S.C. §226, 42 U.S.C. §1983, 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1510 (relating to obstruction of criminal investigations), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1343 (wire fraud), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1346 (to deprive another of the intangible right of honest services"), 18 U.S.C. §1961 Section 1503, 18 U.S.C. §1962(d).

PLAINTIFF is in LONDON-HEATHROW AIRPORT on or about 03/10/2011. PLAINTIFF deboards his plane from Chicago and has to go through a security checkpoint in which a British immigration officer verifies that it is a legitimate passport, but he doesn't inform PLAINTIFF about the peculiar circumstances of that day so then British Immigration officer stamps PLAINTIFF'S passport and allows PLAINTIFF to go to the Qatar Airways ticket counter. You know what, PLAINTIFF recalls that around a 75% probability this is true, there may have been a text message PLAINTIFF sent concerning an issue of dyslexia and the date that was stamped by the London Immigration officer. So even if it says 03/11/2011, it may not have been even the right day anyway.

At no time on his flight from CHICAGO to LONDON-HEATHROW did PLAINTIFF fall asleep on the plane. While at LONDON-HEATHROW, PLAINTIFF was then supposed to go from London and connect in Doha via Qatar Airlines, and then continue to INDIA with Qatar Airlines. Having landed in LONDON-HEATHROW and having stepped foot into LONDON, this gives 5 EYES, MI6, SCOTLAND YARD, and the rest of British Intelligence DEFENDANTS in-personam jurisdiction over PLAINTIFF and thereby makes them a party from this moment on; and this gives American DEFENDANTS a way to circumvent PLAINTIFF'S Constitutional Rights and a way to further their RICO Enterprise. Because now DEFENDANTS in America can get "allegedly" untainted evidence from BRITISH DEFENDANTS knowing that American DEFENDANTS' evidence is necessarily tainted and unconstitutionally compromised

Based on PLAINTIFF'S google search history he acquired (PLAINTIFF'S use of google and YouTube in Fall 2010 and Spring 2011 are included in the exhibits),^[2] PLAINTIFF searched on March 5th if he needed medical shots or immunizations to go to India. America always having one of the strongest passports in the world (especially in 2010/2011) and having traveled to numerous European countries before, all PLAINTIFF thought was required to go to INDIA at the time was a passport and PLAINTIFF based on his experiences in Europe did not think PLAINTIFF needed a visa application that PLAINTIFF was supposed to fill out prior to arriving in INDIA. PLAINTIFF searched on google "India visa" on March 17th, 2011 just to verify the truth of the INDIAN embassy because he was pissed about what was to come. PLAINTIFF would verify a material misrepresentation but ascertain the truth. INDIA is apparently super bureaucratic because INDIA allegedly required a visa application at that time.

So while in London-Heathrow, PLAINTIFF goes to the Qatar Airways ticket counter. PLAINTIFF remembers where it was because it struck PLAINTIFF as peculiar. It has come recently to PLAINTIFF'S attention that Qatar Airways had around 3-5 flights daily from London to Doha. The ticket counter in which PLAINTIFF went to was at some ticket counter all the way in the back and left side of the hall in which Qatar Airways had just like two or four stations, which struck PLAINTIFF as odd at the time because they flew big planes and for the little amount of stations for one plane, struck PLAINTIFF as odd. PLAINTIFF remembers it was in the back left corner because PLAINTIFF had at times looked to his left to see the wall and the windows outside that were upward. The question becomes: what PLAINTIFF would infer at the time. PLAINTIFF traveled primarily to Serbia and from O'Hare. International airlines could have as little as two to four stations, but also could have had a lot more as in the case of Lufthansa and ANA in Terminal 1 at O'Hare. It varied and it could depend. There was reason to believe this was in line with PLAINTIFF'S previous experience, but just a little bit odd. What PLAINTIFF most definitely did not know at the time was how big an impact Qatar had in London at the time. Sure there may have been a video where middle-easterners flew their cars from the middle east to London during the summer, but what that means is that the cars came on a cargo flight in which PLAINTIFF assumed rich people flew in on private jets with their cars nearby in flight and not on Qatar Airways. But for PLAINTIFF to have had a credible reason to be actually suspicious of the circumstances in which it would cause an ordinary person in PLAINTIFF'S shoes to believe fraud was being perpetuated against him by Qatar Airways and British Intel, Indian Intel, American Intel, no way back then in 2011. So, the gate location, was peculiar as something that would cause one to just shrug their shoulders and move on with their life, but not something that demanded an investigation into the highest levels of government concerning fraud against PLAINTIFF.

The Qatar Airways representative pulls up PLAINTIFF'S reservation on their computer. The Qatar Airways never issues PLAINTIFF a ticket and this is extremely important. Qatar Airways in their conditions of carriage says that stopovers may be permitted at agreed stopping places subject to government requirements and their regulations and article 5 says the following in regards to routing: if there is more than one routing at the same fare, you may specify the routing prior to the issue of the ticket. If no routing is specified, we will determine the routing. The Qatar Airways "representative" then informs PLAINTIFF that he is being denied access to the flight to India in London because, and only because, of "visa issues."

PLAINTIFF, not having been issued a ticket even after paying full price for roundtrip tickets from London to India with a stopover in Doha, specifically asked the fact and question to the Qatar Airways representative if PLAINTIFF could continue on to at least Doha and fix the visa issues in Doha because PLAINTIFF had traveled so far already; and because PLAINTIFF didn't want to turn back home when he was in London, he specifically asked if he could just only go to Doha to see Doha and fix the visa issues there in Doha because PLAINTIFF had never been in Doha; and if PLAINTIFF couldn't get a trip to India, he could get a trip to Doha and that was PLAINTIFF'S M.O and thinking at the time; and to PLAINTIFF at the time, PLAINTIFF would rather have seen anything and not be disappointed and turn back around in London. There was absolutely no problem with this request because Qatar Airways' conditions of carriage did not prohibit 'skiplagging' (even if you can call that skiplagging) and PLAINTIFF had negotiated with Qatar Airways representative as to the limitations of the ticket that he paid for in which he would utilize part of the ticket he paid for prior to Qatar Airways in issuing the ticket. The Qatar Airways representative denies PLAINTIFF the chance to go to just Doha. Furthermore, there is a decent probability that PLAINTIFF asked if he needed a visa to go to Doha prior to landing in Doha as an American in which immigration would check PLAINTIFF'S passport and allow PLAINTIFF into Qatar. Qatar Airways representative, to the best of PLAINTIFF'S recollection, said that is how it works. So PLAINTIFF negotiated with Qatar Airways in which PLAINTIFF'S requests were completely legal and in accordance with Qatar Airways policy and PLAINTIFF was still turned away. This request to go to Doha was denied by the Qatar Airways representative as the Qatar Airways representative gave some bullshit answer. Here are some underlying and unspoken problems with PLAINTIFF here: 1) PLAINTIFF is creative where he can create things in which an explanation could be plausible in which PLAINTIFF would create or think as to why it could be true; 2) because PLAINTIFF dealt with bullshit justifications involving his school administrators whether that was in Rhetoric, Midyear, Trespass Incident #3, TKL, and more, in which Sewanee representatives always gave PLAINTIFF bullshit answers. Sadly, this works to PLAINTIFF'S detriment to diminish his capacity where at that time, even if there was a reason to believe this was suspicious enough to justify further investigation, but for American Intel's interventions in creating bullshit in Sewanee in which PLAINTIFF received so many bullshit answers in the past from "customer service representatives" by Sewanee, PLAINTIFF very well would have thought it was just an ordinary day to PLAINTIFF in which stupid bullshit ruined the day. This is especially more so when autistic individuals look for repetitive behaviors and having it had repeated so much in PLAINTIFF'S life, PLAINTIFF thought it was normal.

Not once does the Qatar Airways representative inform PLAINTIFF that any government, whether it was the British, American, or Qatari Government prohibited PLAINTIFF from flying from London to Doha as PLAINTIFF understood his passport had no restrictions at the time. Therefore, Qatar Airways (as well as American Intel, British Intel, and Qatari Intel) violated violated 42 U.S.C. §1985(3); 18 U.S.C. §241; 18 U.S.C. §226, 42 U.S.C. §1983, 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1510 (relating to obstruction of criminal investigations), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1343 (wire fraud), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1346 (to deprive another of the intangible right of honest services"), 18 U.S.C. §1961 Section 1503, 18 U.S.C. §1962(d) when they had conspired and went in disguise at London Heathrow Airport for the purpose of depriving PLAINTIFF equal protection of the laws, equal privileges and immunities under the laws and willfully and maliciously conspired, planned, and agreed to block the passage of PLAINTIFF in going to Doha in which they stopped and detained PLAINTIFF to commit an international and domestic act of terrorism against PLAINTIFF. 1985(3) provides a cause of action for damages against the conspirators in Qatar Airways, Qatar Airways, QIA, Qatar, Leon Panetta, Robert Mueller, Hillary Clinton, etc. XX. Furthermore, this is the first act of kidnapping or false imprisonment in the incident in which Qatar Airways violated: Louisiana Revised Statutes §46 which defines False Imprisonment as "the intentional confinement or detention of another, without his consent and without proper legal authority." PLAINTIFF requested not to be confined or detained in London by going to Doha in which PLAINTIFF paid for that ability to do so and had negotiated in good faith with Qatar Airways. If you falsely imprison someone, you kidnap someone. Furthermore, Illinois defines Kidnapping under 720 ILCS 5/10-1 as when one “knowingly and secretly confines another against his or her will.” PLAINTIFF was confined to London-Heathrow and had informed his complete intent on exercising his option to go to Qatar and Qatar Airways denied PLAINTIFF’S opportunity in which Qatar Airways did not inform PLAINTIFF the reason why he was not allowed to go to Doha.

Furthermore, the Qatar Airways representative was one part of the mail and wire fraud undertaken against PLAINTIFF since under Louisiana Civil Code Article 1953, fraud “is a misrepresentation or a suppression of the truth made with the intention either to obtain an unjust advantage for one party or to cause a loss or inconvenience to the other. Fraud may also result from silence or inaction.” Louisiana Civil Code Article 1955 states that “Error induced by fraud need not concern the cause of the obligation to vitiate consent, but it must concern a circumstance that has substantially influenced that consent.” Louisiana Civil Code Article 1956 states that “Fraud committed by a third person vitiates the consent of a contracting party if the other party knew or should have known of the fraud.” PLAINTIFF does not have to prove the fraud directly and all PLAINTIFF has to do under Louisiana Civil Code Article 1957 states that “Fraud need only be proved by a preponderance of the evidence and may be established by circumstantial evidence.” Louisiana courts tend to scrutinize cases involving a merchant and a layman for facts upon which to raise an inference of fraud, the essence of which is said to be unjust advantage. Cotton States Chem. Co. v. Larrison Enters., Inc., 342 So. 2d 1212 (La. App. 2d Cir. 1977); Altex Ready-Mixed Concrete Corp. v. Employees Commercial Union Ins. Co., 308 So. 2d 889 (La. App. 1st Cir. 1975).

Now here is an inference. If an American would be allowed to go from London to Doha with just his passport without obtaining a visa prior to departure, it shows that Qatar Airways intentionally prevented PLAINTIFF from going to Doha in which PLAINTIFF paid for that ticket. DEFENDANTS kidnapped PLAINTIFF when he was free to leave and continue on to Doha in which they intentionally in disguise prevented the free movement of PLAINTIFF. The only reason for denying that request was if there was a completely different scheme afoot and PLAINTIFF could not have known at the time of the scheme against PLAINTIFF. So, the Qatar Airways “representative” then tells PLAINTIFF “if he goes to the INDIAN EMBASSY in LONDON, that PLAINTIFF could possibly board the next day’s flights.” As a side note: PLAINTIFF lost some of his hearing in his ears via numerous surgeries on his ears; PLAINTIFF can sometimes have a hard time modulating his voice. PLAINTIFF may have inadvertently been perceived as having raised PLAINTIFF’S voice in which in the discussion. PLAINTIFF never yelled or was belligerent to the Qatar Airways representative, maybe accidentally just raised his voice a little bit (to the point of being loud, but not yelling) once, but that’s it. State Department even in 2023 said about “Travelers with Disabilities: The law in Qatar prohibits discrimination against persons with physical, sensory, intellectual, or mental disabilities, the law is not enforced. Social acceptance of persons with disabilities in public is not as prevalent as in the in the United States. Expect accessibility to be limited in public transportation, lodging, communication/information, and general infrastructure.” So, given the advice by the Qatar Airlines “Representative,” PLAINTIFF went to the INDIAN embassy to try to get an immediate visa for the next day. This endeavor fails and PLAINTIFF then returns back to LONDON

HEATHROW AIRPORT. PLAINTIFF spends money taking transportation to the INDIAN embassy thereby this affects interstate and foreign commerce.

PLAINTIFF needs to make a brief argument about his financial situation at the time. PLAINTIFF did not have a full time or part time job outside of campus. He had a work-study in which he was a grounds keeper for Sewanee. PLAINTIFF, in his senior year at Sewanee, received reduced tuition in which his mother paid the portion of his tuition from some of the insurance settlement money when DEFENDANTS murdered his cat. DEFENDANTS knew that around this time in March 2011, PLAINTIFF in his own Bank Of America account could not have had more than $2,000. To the absolute best of PLAINTIFF'S recollection, it would shock him if he had more than $2,000 in his Bank of America bank account. PLAINTIFF'S Bank of America or Chase credit card were not paid down significantly. PLAINTIFF, to the best of his recollection, would not have been able to purchase a single one-way ticket to Chicago on either British Airways or American Airlines as those would be the only two airlines that would have gone directly to Chicago at that time at Heathrow in addition to United Airlines. DEFENDANTS necessarily knew the only option for PLAINTIFF based on his financial resources was that he was going to have to take United Airlines back to Chicago. For all intents and purposes, PLAINTIFF was a broke college student on March 10th, 2011 or March 11th, 2011. In Louisiana unconscionability cases, courts have necessarily included the factor of whether or not DEFENDANTS knew of PLAINTIFF'S financial issues and DEFENDANTS in this case beyond any reasonable doubt knew of PLAINTIFF'S financial issues on how he was a broke college student. See: First Progressive Bank v. Costanza, 427 So. 2d 594 (La. App. 5th Cir. 1983) (applying Civil Code article 1897 to seller's knowledge of buyer's financial problems) Carter v. Foreman, 219 So. 2d 21 (La. App. 4th Cir. 1969): when talking about unconscionability, the case talked about how "there was financial figure was not disclosed to PLAINTIFF by the home improvement contractor. The contract was not properly performed by the contractor" but more importantly, the contractor was aware of Carter's educational deficiencies and knew that Carter's income was only $200 per month, primarily derived from Social Security. This produced an inference of fraud and a vitiation of consent."

In the course of the saga, PLAINTIFF informs his aunt of the issues via a Facebook message or texts and asks what UNITED flights are available via stand-by from LONDON to get PLAINTIFF back home to CHICAGO (CHICAGO-O'HARE). PLAINTIFF'S aunt informs him that the only option available is the flight from LONDON-HEATHROW to DULLES and then on to CHICAGO. PLAINTIFF, left with no other way to get back home to CHICAGO-O'HARE with the cost going to be astronomical with a one-way ticket to a broke college student with any other airlines, agrees with his aunt and then PLAINTIFF'S aunt places PLAINTIFF on stand-by on UNITED AIRLINES FLIGHT 925; BOEING 777-200 with the Aircraft Registration of: XX. UNITED AIRLINES FLIGHT 925 on 03/11/2011 or 10/31/2010 is initially delayed once; then the same flight is DELAYED even further for a second time. PLAINTIFF asks and inquires multiple times what was the exact reason PLAINTIFF'S plane was being delayed and the United Airlines "representative" (or DEFENDANTS) said vague things and no definite answers were provided to PLAINTIFF as to why UNITED AIRLINES FLIGHT 925 on 03/11/2011 or 10/31/2010 was being delayed so many times. Article 19 of the Warsaw Convention applies to the delay of United Airlines Flight 925 on 03/10/2011. At no time when PLAINTIFF was at LONDON-HEATHROW did PLAINTIFF get any sleep. Having been up for at least a day straight, PLAINTIFF gave all he could in trying to determine what were the issues with the plane. When flights are delayed, that costs the airline and the economy money^[3] therefore it affects interstate and intrastate commerce. In terms of knowledge of what any reasonable person could ascertain at that given moment, all PLAINTIFF knew was that his plane had delayed multiple times. Neither PLAINTIFF nor any reasonable person in PLAINTIFF'S position at the time could infer malicious reasoning or purpose. It is not a reasonable and prudent course of logical thinking or belief to believe that the delay was caused by DEFENDANTS in furtherance of RICO Enterprise 1 in which DEFENDANTS tampered with the plane. PLAINTIFF now, within the last month of 08/19/2023, was able to ascertain and know beyond a preponderance of evidence level standard, that the true purpose of the delays was in furtherance of DEFENDANTS RICO Enterprise via air piracy, domestic terrorism, and international terrorism.

The timing connection period between landing in DULLES/Washington D.C. and getting on PLAINTIFF'S connecting flight to Chicago O'Hare decreases dramatically where PLAINTIFF--even before getting on the flight to DULLES--knows there is now a substantial chance PLAINTIFF might not going to make his connection in DULLES/Washington D.C and expresses such in communications that day to either PLAINTIFF'S aunt or PLAINTIFF'S mother or someone else to give a present sense impression in either text message or Facebook messages, which DEFENDANTS know and have. DEFENDANTS completely intended on delaying United Airlines aircraft N794UA (if it was 10/31/2010) in order to increase the substantial chance and probability that PLAINTIFF would not make his connecting flight, but still have an "alternate" explanation as to why PLAINTIFF did not make his connecting flight. PLAINTIFF alleges that DEFENDANTS, knowing of PLAINTIFF's prior circumstances and DEFENDANTS prior RICO Predicate acts undertaken in furtherance of the scheme, deliberately ensured or was that reasonably calculated that UNITED AIRLINES Flight 925 on 03/11/2011 would be PLAINTIFF'S only way to leave LONDON to get back to CHICAGO in which DEFENDANTS had established a prior plan to delay UNITED AIRLINES Flight 925 on 03/11/2011, or DEFENDANTS hacked UNITED'S booking system and showed that to be the only flight open was United Airlines Flight 925 or purchased all the remaining seats on other United Airlines Flights that could have plausibly got PLAINTIFF to Chicago, or some other method to ensure this was the flight for PLAINTIFF. PLAINTIFF absolutely did not want to spend the night in DC because PLAINTIFF had no business there, had no friends there, had no money, had absolutely no will or desire to be in DC outside of the reason of simply connecting on to Chicago, etc. PLAINTIFF alleges DEFENDANTS intentionally made the flight late that day to get in-personam jurisdiction over PLAINTIFF in WASHINGTON D.C, further their RICO Enterprise, and commit air piracy and international/domestic terrorism for political motivations (as will be explained and proven) and for retaliation purposes and an agenda via air piracy.

Do you want to know where this gets sinister as well? PLAINTIFF affirmatively established he was known amongst the highest levels of FBI, and if he was known at the highest levels of the FBI, he was known at the highest levels of DHS and CIA. If he was known in the highest levels of CIA, he was known in highest levels of MI5 and MI6, GCHQ, etc. Now PLAINTIFF is in the UK and he "called" his "Aunt." What if, PLAINTIFF is alleging, American Intel and British Intel were using computer software to hack into PLAINTIFF'S cell phone and made PLAINTIFF believe he was talking to his aunt using a voice modulator. This is plausible as NSA had PRISM and could hack into Alphabet's servers; what is one special ed student's cell phone in comparison to 5 different intelligence agencies? Having done this, American Intel and British Intel posed as PLAINTIFF'S aunt and told PLAINTIFF the only flight that was available was the DC flight knowing PLAINTIFF didn't have the money to purchase a one-way ticket with any airline, let alone on United Airlines. This was done over phone in which there is not a written record (to the best of PLAINTIFF'S recollection).

49 U.S. Code § 46502 defines aircraft piracy as: (a) "seizing or exercising control of an aircraft in the special aircraft jurisdiction of the United States by force, violence, threat of force or violence, or any form of intimidation, and with wrongful intent" and (B) "an attempt to commit aircraft piracy is in the special aircraft jurisdiction of the United States although the aircraft is not in flight at the time of the attempt if the aircraft would have been in the special aircraft jurisdiction of the United States had the aircraft piracy been completed." PLAINTIFF is arguing that United Airlines Flight #925 being parked at London-Heathrow was within the special aircraft jurisdiction of the United States. You know what law prohibits intimidation against a witness against certain United States officials racketeering? RICO. So American Intel, British Intel, Indian Intel seized and exercised control over an aircraft for the purpose of intimidating PLAINTIFF and had the intent of furthering RICO Enterprise 1 in which they violated 42 U.S.C. §1985(3); 18 U.S.C. §241; 18 U.S.C. §226, 42 U.S.C. §1983, 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1510 (relating to obstruction of criminal investigations), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1343 (wire fraud), 18 U.S.C. §1961 section 1346 (to deprive another of the intangible right of honest services"), 18 U.S.C. §1961 Section 1503, 18 U.S.C. §1962(d)

So, UNITED AIRLINES Flight 925 departs London-Heathrow at XX on 03/11/2011 according to the FOIA request PLAINTIFF attached below. PLAINTIFF obtained the following data through that FOIA request. Out of the more than 100 flights (117 to be exact) of UNITED AIRLINES Flight #925 from 09/01/2010 through 12/31/2010, UNITED AIRLINES FLIGHT 925 on 10/31/2010 is the ONLY United Airlines flight from LONDON to DULLES that departed in the 9 pm hour slot from LONDON-HEATHROW, which was less than 1% of the total flights in a 4 month period. The 2 other flights United Airlines flights from London-Heathrow to DULLES departed LONDON-HEATHROW after 10pm. All of the remaining 114 United Airlines Flight #925 from LONDON-HEATHROW to DULLES between 09/01/2010

Jeff,

Did you get the email I sent you on November 21st? It seems that US Intelligence is obstructing justice by not allowing you to receive my emails because DOJ knows as of 10/20/2023 what the issues are and the actual factual and legal basis in my claims. You are aware of the RICO Violations and therefore to do nothing means you are complicit in racketeering such as war crimes, torture, wire fraud, mail fraud, and more committed by the US Govt, British Govt, Japanese Govt, Qatari Govt, and Indian Govt.

Now because US Intelligence keeps fucking with me and you all now, the demands have gone up. 6 new boeing Apache helicopters (fully armed and ready to go) and at least a combo of 30 new boeing 777-8fs, 787s, and 737s that i have specified in the email sent to you on November 21st, 2023. Simply a minimum of at least 5 new 777-8fs, 10 787s, 10 737s, and your services as being part of your family.

Confirm receipt of this email.

Jeff,

This part is not addressed to you but the next part is: dear us government agencies: you are impeding and obstructing justice. stop your acts and let boeing receive these emails.

I need to talk to the head of your legal department as well as the president of both boeing and the head of the commercial division as well as the defense division. For each day you fail to respond, I will ask the court in a lawsuit for a higher percentage of ownership of boeing by owning boeing stock. I will start on the 5th of December at 5% of boeing stock. For each day you all fail to adequately respond, I will raise it up a percent a day. So december 6th will be 6%, december 7th will be 7%, etc. Then after Christmas of 2023, for each week that passes by, I will demand a new boeing aircraft of my own choice. Failure to respond by Jan 7th, 2024 will see you in court as a defendant in which I will ask for complete ownership of boeing. Boeing is indeed liable for the actions committed against me as being part of the rico enterprise that was done to commit such acts as wire fraud, mail fraud, torture, war crimes, and more against me.

resolve this immediately. assist and comply or be sued.

--Miki Kotevski. Juris Doctorate.

I want my full restitution.

Why would DOJ & the Solicitor General be prejudiced about PLAINTIFF during this time? Can you irrefutably connect the DOJ to SCOTUS to PLAINTIFF to BILL and HILLARY CLINTON to India and to ERIC HOLDER in this case and how you were completely denied access to the Courts in which they are covering up for ERIC HOLDER?

Of Course PLAINTIFF WILL!

You are thinking, who was DOJ'S solicitor general at the time who would argue in front of SCOTUS and cover up Miki's Tea Party and prevent PLAINTIFF from holding anyone accountable for it before PLAINTIFF could have figured it out? Glad you asked.

PLAINTIFF includes everything that is said about Ashcroft v. al-Kidd, 563 U.S. 731 (2011) is necessarily included in Star Chambers.

NEAL KATYAL was DOJ'S Solicitor General from May 17th, 2010 through June 9th, 2011. Miki's Tea Party was 03/11/2011. Prior to this, NEAL KATYAL served as an attorney in the Solicitor General's office, and as Principal Deputy Solicitor General in the U.S. Justice Department. So he had been around for a while and necessarily interacted with SCOTUS between 2008-2011. NEAL KATYAL knew PLAINTIFF from PLAINTIFF would say and allege March 2008 to the present. NEAL KATYAL is like PLAINTIFF in which PLAINTIFF and NEAL KATYAL are both 1st Generation Americans and that is something we could have bonded over, but it was not meant to be. NEAL KATYAL'S parents are from India, which makes NEAL KATYAL an Indian American. NEAL KATYAL when growing up would have necessarily understood the pain that he was: too Indian to be American but he was too American to be Indian. Like PLAINTIFF being too Serbian to be American and too American to be Serbian. Stuck in the middle and able to go to both sides seeking acceptance all the while never being fully accepted by either side. It is tough spot to be on. PLAINTIFF knows. PLAINTIFF knows it is particularly true with him, but foreign immigrant parents coming from the old country bring the old country's values and especially when you hang out with the old country's people, there are Indian ways of doing things and American ways of doing things. There must have been dilemmas where NEAL KATYAL didn't know if he should approach and use the values of an India or the mindset and values of America. This is necessarily important because there are issues demonstrated with CRS India that would call into question whether NEAL KATYAL was prejudiced against PLAINTIFF from the beginning. NEAL KATYAL growing up probably knew of the struggle. Then when you are in the spot, you try to make both sides happy (America and India) and that is what NEAL KATYAL did in regards to Miki's Tea Party on top of appeasing his former bosses who got him in the DC Bubble—BILL and HILLARY CLINTON. What was it to NEAL KATYAL to be ethical and not perpetuate legal fraud against PLAINTIFF being a broke and disabled autistic man when he could be accepted by both America and India and help HILLARY CLINTON and BILL CLINTON out in the process in which he necessarily oversaw and knew about Miki's Tea Party and knew SCOTUS would absolutely 100% cover up for NEAL KATYAL and DOJ in which SCOTUS UNANIMOUSLY fully, completely, and unequivocally absolved NEAL KATYAL of all responsibility thereby continuing the legal fraud committed against PLAINTIFF? Prior to working for the DOJ, NEAL KATYAL did in fact work with BILL and HILLARY CLINTON in the late 1990s.

To demonstrate the intellectual hypocrisy and hoops these people go through and never realize for one second the harm they do against their own countrymen or country being so engorged by the DC Bubble, NEAL KATYAL on May 24th, 2011, issued the Justice Department's first public confession of its 1942 ethics lapse in arguing the Hirabayashi and Korematsu cases in the US Supreme Court, which had resulted in upholding the internment of American citizens of Japanese descent. He called those prosecutions—which were only vacated in the 1980s—"blots" on the reputation of his office, which the Supreme Court explicitly considers as deserving of "special credence" when arguing cases, and "an important reminder" of the need for absolute candor in arguing the United States government's position on every case." NEAL KATYAL was not done with PLAINTIFF though. An Anchor and a Pitchfork happened in Summer 2015 after Sheehan's brief expressly pointed out what happened under his watch at the DOJ that involved his connection and explicit approval to HILLARY CLINTON and DEFENDANTS in Miki's Tea Party. HILLARY CLINTON and BILL CLINTON did what they always did and executed a disabled man for political purposes in An Anchor and a Pitchfork in which SCOTUS would cover it up for them in City and County of San Francisco v. Sheehan, 575 U.S. 600 (2015). So, he heard what happened to PLAINTIFF in Tokyo, JAPAN between 2015 and 2019. NEAL KATYAL did what he always had done in the past in regards to the corruption BILL and HILLARY CLINTON committed against PLAINTIFF: he went straight to SCOTUS to deny PLAINTIFF an opportunity to sue DEFENDANTS when he argued on behalf of Nestle USA in Nestlé USA, Inc. v. Doe, 593 U. S. ____ (2021) in which SCOTUS nearly completely agreed with NEAL KATYAL that Nestle USA (i.e. BILL and HILLARY CLINTON) should not be held accountable for paying for and using underage children (trafficking children for blackmail and extortion) in their work in what happened in An Anchor and a Pitchfork. Take a deep breath and let that sink in.

So back to it. NEAL KATYAL won a unanimous decision from the Supreme Court defending former Attorney General John Ashcroft against alleged abuses of civil liberties in the war on terror in Ashcroft v. al-Kidd. Ignore the fact that it was Attorney General John Ashcroft and substitute his name for ERIC HOLDER'S. Ah, so when the Attorney General who perpetuated legal fraud against PLAINTIFF in regards to his supposed terrorist activity in Peachy Miami in which DEFENDANTS were the ones that committed international and domestic terrorism against PLAINTIFF in Miki's Tea Party, not only would PLAINTIFF never be able to hold NEAL KATYAL accountable for what he did in Miki's Tea Party, but he couldn't do the same for ERIC HOLDER. There were clear plans from the very beginning of "trade is in the offing" in September 2010, what DEFENDANTS needed was the complete oversight of SCOTUS prior to the plan being implemented to sometime after NOVEMBER 10th, 2010 when people started babbling in DC and INDIA about what they have done. WHAT DEFENDANTS did not have on 09/24/2010 was a plausible and "justifiable" avenue of escape (like PLAINTIFF was denied in WASHINGTON DC) legally. SO SCOTUS stepped in.

John Choon Yoo provided material support in instructing terrorism against me, an american.

They stepped in and granted cert to Ashcroft v. al-Kidd, 563 U.S. 731 (2011) on October 18th, 2010, Miki's Tea Party went down on March 11th, 2011, argued in March 2011 after PLAINTIFF informed Suresh on 02/27/2011 PLAINTIFF was coming to INDIA, decided in May 31st, 2011. Excuse me, but at what time could PLAINTIFF have plausibly brought to Court all of the evidence of what happened prior to this and making the connections necessary as a completely broke, legally uneducated, simpleton? The case was even granted before Miki's Tea Party occurred necessarily prejudicing PLAINTIFF from even before October 31st, 2010. SCOTUS thought that RICO Predicates (that have a 10 year statute of limitations so long as it is not connected to any other RICO predicate act (which is not possible in PLAINTIFF'S case because it is necessarily connected to an Anchor and a Pitchfork, Sheehan's Brief, City and County of San Francisco v. Sheehan, 575 U.S. 600 (2015), BILL and HILLARY CLINTON, and Neal Katyal in Nestle USA v. Doe in 2021. PLAINTIFF got at least at a minimum of 8 more years (until 2031) to bring a claim involving Miki's Tea Party) and constitutional violations (5 year statute of limitation) as having occurred in 6 months (Nov 1st, 2010 to May 31st, 2011). Do these people not know how to do math?

The United States, India, United Kingdom, Germany, Japan, Australia, and Qatar, all violated 18 U.S. Code § 2523 (b)(1)(B)(iii) which requires that under data sharing, it must adhere to applicable international human rights obligations and commitments or demonstrates respect for international universal human rights in which DEFENDANTS violated the The Convention On the Rights of Persons With Disabilities-- was all signed by United States, India, United Kingdom, Germany, Japan, Australia, and Qatar--that violated Article 13: Access to justice; Article 14: Liberty and security of person; Article 15: Freedom from torture or cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment; Article 16: Freedom from exploitation, violence and abuse; Article 17: Protecting the integrity of the person; Article 18: Liberty of movement; Article 21 Freedom of expression and opinion, and access to information; Article 22 Respect for privacy; Article 24 Education; Article 25 Health States Parties recognize that persons with disabilities have the right to the enjoyment of the highest attainable standard of health without discrimination on the basis of disability.

Before you read the analysis, PLAINTIFF is copying Trespass Incident #3 as it is absolutely imperative for you to know the facts before PLAINTIFF talks about "sheehansctbrief." (hereon: brief)

"The principle that justice cannot survive behind walls of silence has long been reflected in the "Anglo-American distrust for secret trials." In re Oliver, 333 U. S. 257 (1948)

After Trespass Incident #1 and Trespass Incident #2, Then TRESPASS INCIDENT #3 happens. Trespass Incident #3 happened after Peachy Miami, the False Identification event in Law Enforcement Intervention, and coerced confession in Big Brothers Big Sister.

Then TRESPASS INCIDENT #3. This incident served as a fundamental basis for City & County of San Francisco v. Sheehan, 575 U.S. 600 (2015). This incident occurred after the False Identification event that will be talked about in Law Enforcement Interventions. How DEFENDANTS committed RICO predicate acts from this incident is shocking. How it was misconstrued by DEFENDANTS afterwards legally shocks the conscience. After TRESPASS INCIDENT #1, TRESPASS INCIDENT #2, after the death of CAIU RODRIGUEZ, and all of the other things that happened freshman year (some of which will be explained upon further), PLAINTIFF was in his bed by himself, super depressed, wanting to be left alone in his dorm room (room 106) at Humphrey's Dorm.

Prior to WES CRANE knocking on the door, WES CRANE and UNKNOWN DEFENDANTS/SEWANEE POLICE DEPARTMENT had conspired together to have WES CRANE come into PLAINTIFF'S room to instigate trouble and provoke trouble. The outcome was reasonable as PLAINTIFF paid for the right to have his room undisturbed under the HONOR CODE and there were previous physical altercations in TRESPASS INCIDENT #1 and TRESPASS INCIDENT #2; this was done to provide a justification to deprive PLAINTIFF of his constitutional and liberty interests. PLAINTIFF alleges that UNKNOWN DEFENDANTS in DOJ/FBI/CIA, et al. had called SEWANEE PD prior to the incident because the evidence that DEFENDANTS/FBI/CIA had fabricated in the False Identification event that occurred prior to this event was necessarily tainted and based on perjured testimony, was materially misleading, and blatantly unconstitutional. Furthermore, they needed to cover up what TKL did in Big Brothers Big Sisters in threatening to deprive PLAINTIFF of his constitutional and liberty interests. There are two demonstrable times that DEFENDANTS/SEWANEE PD unconstitutionally coerced PLAINTIFF into either being falsely identified as having perpetuated a crime (False Identification. To be discussed later) or being coerced into confessing a crime in which PLAINTIFF is forced to sign a blank confession (Big Brothers Big Sisters). Furthermore, this is after MIDYEAR to the best of PLAINTIFF'S recollection and all of the issues that it brings. So, DEFENDANTS/DOJ/FBI/CIA needed new evidence against PLAINTIFF and intentionally took advantage of a man grieving the passing of his god-child. DEFENDANTS/SEWANEE PD who after talking to DOJ/FBI/CIA, had called or contacted WES CRANE, who at this time, was a paid informant for SEWANEE PD and DOJ/FBI/CIA. Together, they concocted a scheme to fraudulently convey their intended and false and misleading narrative in having WES CRANE "be the friendly" who was concerned about PLAINTIFF and PLAINTIFF'S well being who then contacted SEWANEE PD who then contacted DOJ/FBI/CIA about the threat that PLAINTIFF posed because DEFENDANTS DOJ/FBI/CIA had lied to a court and had obstructed justice concerning PLAINTIFF before this incident concerning Peachy Miami (next section) and the False Identification event (upcoming section) in which DEFENDANTS needed to cover it up by fabricating new evidence against PLAINTIFF. DEFENDANTS' mistake involved TITLE II of the USA PATRIOT ACT in which DEFENDANTS obtained court approval to surveil PLAINTIFF on fraudulent grounds (in which probably a DOJ lawyer lied to the court) and constitutional violations in Peachy Miami and the False Identification event in which PLAINTIFF would have had standing to sue and have it declared unconstitutional at this exact time. Probably because this involved PLAINTIFF'S sarcastic text message to RACHAEL SANDERS in whoopsie and omitted key facts about it.

This was around late March or early April 2008. WES CRANE knocks at the door and says it is him at the door. PLAINTIFF wanted to be left alone and WES CRANE was the last motherfucking person PLAINTIFF wanted to see at that time. PLAINTIFF is alleging DEFENDANTS knew that PLAINTIFF'S god child had died, they knew issues involving WES CRANE and PLAINTIFF, knew that PLAINTIFF was grieving and depressed after all the crap they pulled over the years concerning PLAINTIFF as he had become a pariah (in a large part because of their actions) and PLAINTIFF is alleging that in 2008, it was that ascertainable that PLAINTIFF was autistic that DEFENDANTS knew about by having plugged in PLAINTIFF'S behavioral characteristics in their pre-crime analysis and intentionally manipulated PLAINTIFF yet again to get the outcome that DEFENDANTS wanted to try to obstruct justice and fabricate crimes to coverup their own misdeeds. PLAINTIFF would have rather had the Devil show up (well close enough) than have WES CRANE show up at his door that late day in March or April 2008.

every single attorney that submitted Sheehan's brief to SCOTUS for city & county of S.F. v. Sheenan. 575 U.S. 600 (2015) committed war crimes as did HILLARY CLINTON, BILL CLINTON, JEH JOHNSON, SHINZO ABE, etc.

CAN YOU ALL RESPOND TO ME OR ARE YOU GOING TO KEEP OBSTRUCTING JUSTICE?

Dear Milan Kotevski:

This responds to your Freedom of Information Act request dated and received in this Office on September 20, 2023 seeking records pertaining to yourself.

Your request has been received by the Office of Information Policy (OIP) of the United States Department of Justice, which processes Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) and Privacy Act (PA) requests for records it maintains as well as records maintained by the Offices of the Attorney General, Deputy Attorney General, Associate Attorney General, Public Affairs, Legislative Affairs, and Legal Policy. OIP also adjudicates administrative appeals of denials of FOIA/PA requests made to the Department. This Office maintains the case files for the initial requests and administrative appeals it processes. For your information, neither this Office nor any of these senior leadership offices of the Department typically maintains records on individuals and, as such, would not maintain the type of records you are seeking.

Please be advised that the FOIA provides a right of access to federal agency records that exist and can be located in federal agency files. The FOIA does not require agencies to conduct research for you, to analyze data, to answer questions, or to create new records in response to a FOIA request. Moreover, the FOIA does not apply to records that are maintained by states, counties, or cities, or by the legislative or judicial branches of the government.

For your information, the FOIA operation for both the Department of Justice and the federal government is decentralized and each Department component and federal entity maintains and handles FOIA requests for its own records. Accordingly, you need to direct your letter to the office(s) you believe have records pertaining to the subject of your request. Additional information regarding the federal government's administration of the FOIA, including a listing of FOIA contact information, is available at www.foia.gov. Based on the information you have provided, I cannot determine the nature of the records you are seeking.

Subject: Delta.com Feedback Submission

In Feb or March 2016, I, Milan Michael Kotevski, purchased tickets to go from New Orleans to Chicago with a layover in Atlanta. The actual flight was fine and great, except the flight was delayed in new orleans and arrived late in atlanta in which you all accommodated me in atlanta; however, here is the issue. I need to know what was the cause of the delay in New Orleans. I need the aircraft and aircraft registration number on the day I took the flight out of New Orleans to Atlanta. I need to know if the aircraft underwent any mechanical or technical repairs on the day of the flight. I need the actual depart time and scheduled depart time of the flight out of new orleans that day. I need the actual start time and scheduled depart time out of the same delta airlines flight from Jan 1st, 2016 to April 30th, 2016. I need to which hotel Delta Airlines accommodated me to in Atlanta and how much it cost. I need to verify your representatives statements in Atlanta that every single Delta Airlines flight out of Atlanta that day I arrived in Atlanta in 2016 from 11am or so to 10pm was completely booked and that there was not a single seat available on any of those remaining flights.

i dont know the date and flight number nor do i have the confirmation or ticket number.
sorry.

thank you,
Miki Kotevski

Dear Milan Kotevski:

This responds to your Freedom of Information Act request dated August 3, 2023 and received in this Office on August 31, 2023 seeking records pertaining to yourself and a third party.

Your request has been received by the Office of Information Policy (OIP) of the United States Department of Justice, which processes Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) and Privacy Act (PA) requests for records it maintains as well as records maintained by the Offices of the Attorney General, Deputy Attorney General, Associate Attorney General, Public Affairs, Legislative Affairs, and Legal Policy. OIP also adjudicates administrative appeals of denials of FOIA/PA requests made to the Department. This Office maintains the case files for the initial requests and administrative appeals it processes. For your information, neither this Office nor any of these senior leadership offices of the Department typically maintains records on individuals and, as such, would not maintain the type of records you are seeking.

Please be advised that the FOIA provides a right of access to federal agency records that exist and can be located in federal agency files. The FOIA does not require agencies to conduct research for you, to analyze data, to answer questions, or to create new records in response to a FOIA request. Moreover, the FOIA does not apply to records that are maintained by states, counties, or cities, or by the legislative or judicial branches of the government.

For your information, the FOIA operation for both the Department of Justice and the federal government is decentralized and each Department component and federal entity maintains and handles FOIA requests for its own records. Accordingly, you need to direct your letter to the office(s) you believe have records pertaining to the subject of your request. Additional information regarding the federal government's administration of the FOIA, including a listing of FOIA contact information, is available at www.foia.gov. Based on the

to me

Please see the attached response to your FOIA request. Please note, your request has been assigned tracking number EMRUFOIA083023-5.

I am unable to comply with this request. Here is the problem Tetyana. I don't know who is at fault. What I can infer is the following: some people in the LSU system talked to US Govt workers who tried to circumvent and violated my rights. BUT MY SOLE INTENTION IS THAT I AM FOCUSED ON FINDING THE US GOVT WORKERS THAT DID. For now, I don't care about intra-LSU communication about me because I don't want to sue LSU; what I am concerned about is finding and knowing the US Government workers that discussed me to LSU employees. So you can start the process by finding emails sent from any US Federal Government Agency to any LSU Employee that specifically mentions Milan Michael Kotevski, Milan Kotevski, or Miki Kotevski. Then go from there. I can't be any more clear on my intent.

(hello US government using the USA PATRIOT ACT and reading this email)

Let me explain something that conveys the extreme severity of the situation and you can relay this to the relevant people at LSU Law. In 2010 (and 2016 during my time at LSU Law) there were incidents that I can prove beyond a preponderance of the evidence level that constituted part of a RICO enterprise in which US Federal Government officials did RICO predicate acts against me in which the treble damages for me are at a minimum $42,000,000,000 (AND MORE). Please dont make me put LSU Law as being part of the liability and on the hook for that. I need to know the following: who were the people from any US Intelligence Agencies that contacted any worker at LSU Law or LSU that talked about or alluded to me. If LSU LAW does not assist, that can be construed as aiding and abetting. Please distance yourselves from the RICO Enterprise as much as possible and help me.

Dear Carlton (Trey) Jones.

Confirm that you received this email.

RICO precedent has held that any DEFENDANT that aided and abetted a RICO Enterprise is liable and is subject to forfeiture by the Court for having done so in which individuals and organizations can be properly held as DEFENDANTS for furthering a RICO Enterprise. Just from one act of international and domestic terrorism in 2010 (and one act of domestic terrorism in Spring 2016), I, as the PLAINTIFF, will be seeking a minimum of $14,900,000,000. $14.9 Billion just for that 2010 incident . The incident in 2016 was when I was a student at LSU LAW; and I know that employees of LSU LAW interacted with employees of the United States Federal Government in 2015 and 2016 who were part of the RICO Enterprise. You really need to consider what you are doing.

Dear Carlton (Trey) Jones,

Please confirm you got this email.

Whether it is through FOIA or through Discovery, I will prove that LSU Law employees worked with and aided and abetted United States Government officials in furtherance of the RICO Enterprise. There is no qualified or absolute immunity for any LSU Law employees that aided and abetted racketeering activity as aiding and abetting and furthering a RICO enterprise falls outside the scope of employment and protection. I did my research. Tracy Blanchard is one, out of the many, employees because she was privy to confidential information that was obtained in furtherance of the RICO Enterprise and she used that information against my constitutional and legal interests (which was part of a scheme that involved illegally obtaining $14.9 Billion) that was used by former FBI Director James Comey in which I specifically told her that the information would not be used against me in any criminal or civil proceedings in May 2016 before revealing what I did to her and it was revealed to someone in January 2017 that I can conclusively show. . So I can get her. Furthermore, I can get former LSU President F. King Alexander and Former Secretary John B. King Jr. via Fall 2016.

So I'm going to ask you again very nicely before I resort to compelling you under mandamus by the court and you need to think long and hard about the issues. Who else in the United States Government talked to any LSU Law Employee from 2013-2017. Name names, now or be considered as having aided and abetted the RICO Enterprise. I'm guessing maybe Chief Justice John Roberts is one of them, Andrew McCabe, Lisa Page, and Peter Strzok are a few of the United States government employees that talked to a LSU Law employee.

Confirm that Andrew McCabe, Lisa Page, and Peter Strzok were indeed some of the individuals that talked to any LSU Law employee from 2013-2017.

You really need to think again.

I dont forget the good that LSU Law has done for me. But yall need to own up to what you did.

Dear Milan Kotevski:

We are in receipt of your Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) request dated 31 July 2023. Your request was received on 1 August 2023, and assigned Case Number 116806. This letter provides information relating to the processing of your request that we are required to inform you about pursuant to the FOIA, and applicable Department of Defense (DoD) and NSA regulations.

For purposes of this request and based on the information you provided in your letter, you are considered an "all other" requester. You must pay for search time in excess of 2 hours and duplication in excess of 100 pages.

Two requirements must be met in order for a FOIA request to be proper: (1) the request must "reasonably" describe the records sought; and (2) it must be made in accordance with an Agency's published policies or regulations stating the procedures to be followed. Your request does not satisfy the first requirement because agency employees cannot locate responsive records without an unreasonable amount of effort. The rationale for this rule is that FOIA was not intended to reduce Government agencies to full-time investigators on behalf of requesters.

The topic of your request is overly broad, unreasonably burdensome, and not specific enough to allow a reasonable search. Department of Defense (DoD) Manual 5400.07 states that the requester must provide a description of the desired record so that the Government is able to locate the record with a reasonable amount of effort. Responding to this request would require a search of every email, every database, and every document created (whether electronic or paper) over a 7 month period, an all-encompassing fishing expedition. Furthermore, Agency email is decentralized and tasking an email search would have to be conducted singularly and manually. Tasking all or even large groups of Agency

We would kindly refer you to Apple's Privacy Policy, available at:

First off, the way you spell "offences" is not American (which shows a lack of knowledge of American law) so I demand you forward this to your American counterparts who can handle and resolve issues involving an American plaintiff and Defendant American Government and Defendant American Corporation in which the basis of such is AMERICAN LAW. I demand to know what country sought the records.

You are not understanding the issue. When the United States Government (or the British/German/Australian Government acting on behalf of the United States Government) gave you a warrant, national security letter, etc demanding complete access to my account and laptop, they did so upon material omissions and material lies. This constitutes legal fraud. It does not matter if Apple subjectively believed it was valid; however now that there is an articulable basis in knowing that legal fraud was committed, to continue to assist and perpetuate this legal fraud only ensnares you to be in bad faith of American law. You are in fact prejudicing the administration of justice by withholding information because legal fraud was committed upon me and my legal and constitutional rights under the Geneva Convention and the United States Constitution. At the end of the day, this is an American issue that necessitates American law.

Dear Milan Kotevski,

You contacted the Department of Justice on June 22, 2023. After careful review of what you submitted, we have decided not to take any further action on your complaint.

What we did:

Team members from the Civil Rights Division reviewed the information you submitted. Based on our review, we have decided not to take any further action on your complaint. We receive several thousand reports of civil rights violations each year. We unfortunately do not have the resources to take direct action for every report.

Your report number was 309520-QZG.

I am unable to comply with this request. Here is the problem Tetyana. I dont know who is at fault. What I can infer is the following: some people in the LSU system talked to US Govt workers who tried to circumvent and violated my rights. BUT MY SOLE INTENTION IS THAT I AM FOCUSED ON FINDING THE US GOVT WORKERS THAT DID. For now, I dont care about intra-LSU communication about me because I dont want to sue LSU; what i am concerned about is finding and knowing the US Government workers that discussed me to LSU employees. So you can start the process by finding emails sent from any US Federal Government Agency to any LSU Employee that specifically mentions Milan Michael Kotevski, Milan Kotevski, or Miki Kotevski. Then go from there.

I cant be any more clear on my intent.

Hello. I hope youre doing well. I have some issues that I would like to discuss with you.

Do you have any documents that I submitted to you or any notes on discussions that we had when I was in Japan? Do you have any emails or correspondences that concern me that were sent to you by any US Federal Agency or Department? I'll be succinct when I say this: I probably was drugged when, if I recall correctly, some US political figures made me sign a document that I have no idea what the contents of it contained or what I signed to. I am seriously considering pursuing a RICO case; however, statute of limitations are drawing to a close soon. Can you assist me in anyway?

Hunter and Jim Biden made me sign a contract that I have no idea what the contents of which it contained. There's no way you wouldn't have known about a political meeting like that taking place. I need you to remember everything that happened in Summer 2015 and tell me what you recall. There were probably other contracts I entered into such as a guardianship that I don't know about. Is there a publicly accessible Japanese I database that has the contracts entered into that exceeded $500 or legal matters like guardianship or marriage?

This could be my last one--it's your decision on whether or not you decide to respond in good faith. You were the director of a program I attended in which I was repeatedly victimized during the program. I was drugged and forced to sign contracts in which I do not know the contents of such. I have to pay back loans in which I was legally coerced into signing documents and having been drugged. This is unconscionable to me. Whether it is under DOJ policies, Department of Education policies, or US federal laws and regulations or the Geneva convention, there is an affirmative obligation to assist in any way possible. In the previous emails I've had with you this year, I have discussed issues that should be raising red flags in which no ordinary reasonable attorney can ignore. If you know fraud was committed against me and are failing to disclose it, you may be aiding and abetting and participating in a RICO enterprise. I do not wish to sue you in any way if you are in good faith. But if you are in bad faith, then the options for me are extremely limited. Please help and do not be adverse to me.

Dear Tracy,

I am seriously considering a lawsuit during my time at LSU Law. I don't want to sue you, but I will if it is necessary. I need you to be honest with me and tell me everything any US Federal Government worker/agent talked to you about me. Provide me the emails. FBI and DOJ and other unknown US Law Enforcement Officers may have committed RICO violations and War Crimes and I will sue them in court because of such because it necessarily involves Hillary Clinton. I hate to do this to you. I also need any and all emails that I sent you during my time at LSU.

I like to be blunt and direct. I reasonably foresee the US Government screeching like demented banshees and claim national security privileges. I am not aware of any precedent that national security takes higher precedence over constitutional and RICO violations. Corruption is a matter of national security because corruption ruins the trust the People have in their government; however, how can corruption be remedied if it is concealed under the guise of national security? Please, I am absolutely adamant that I do NOT want to sue the school that gave me a chance to become a lawyer, but I am begging you, please do not aid and abet and become co-conspirators in a RICO lawsuit. Work with me. Do I have your word that you will honorably assist me?

to Trey

Did you comprehend anything I say? So you'd rather go down in the flames of RICO than help someone who has complete faith in yall. In moments like this, consider your actions.

#1: Mr. Isaac of the IT Department (if I recall his name correctly)--conversion of laptop, false pretenses to get a search of my laptop circumventing my constitutional rights against search and seizures in which Mr. Isaac most likely than not talked to the FBI and CIA in which providing them evidence to further their RICO conspiracy, first amendment violations, etc. Pinkerton liability applies. Part of the means and manner in which the predicate RICO acts were done was through my laptop.

#2: Tracy Blanchard: 1st, 4th, 5th, 6th, 7th, 8th, 9th, 10th, 13th, and 14th Amendment and ADA/Section 504 violations via pinkerton liability. Specifically Spring 2015, Summer 2015, May 2016.

To be part of a RICO enterprise, there must be a purpose, relationships among those associated with the enterprise, and longevity sufficient to permit those associates to pursue the enterprise's purpose. You understand that a RICO predicate act is obstruction of justice in which people like Andrew McCabe and Peter Strzok at the behest of Hillary Clinton wanted to arrest me (obstruction of justice) for committing crimes against me for politically retaliatory purposes. You understand that constitutional deprivations of my intellectual property rights has a monetary value in which there was an economic incentive to make up crimes against me to seize my property? You understand that having numerous crimes done to me for politically retaliatory purposes in which i have to pay back my student loans in which i have not been able to pass the bar yet makes me an indentured servant in violation of Kozminsky v. United States?

You understand that my constitutional and legal rights take higher precedence over fraudulently induced national security letters and gag orders, right?

I'm begging you. Please Do not be a part of their association in fact enterprise in RICO. There are numerous ways not to be a factual part of their enterprise. For example, you can help me by giving me the info I seek in which i'm able to pursue my claims without getting LSU involved. I do not want to sue you.

#2: all documents, memos, records, videos, etc. that discuss "Hillary Clinton" or "Bill Clinton" from February 1st, 2015 to December 1st, 2015. Specific documents desired would include a discussion of how likely it was from the Defense Department's perspective that Hillary Clinton would be elected as president in 2016. :) I'm going to prove motive and intent.

Dear Mr. Kotevski:

This office is responsible for processing all FOIA requests for access to records maintained by the Department of Defense, Office of Inspector General (DoD OIG). The DoD OIG is an independent and objective agency within DoD, responsible for promoting the integrity, accountability, and improvement of DoD personnel, programs, and operations. We accomplish our mission by conducting audits, investigations, inspections and assessments, and recommending policies and procedures to promote the economic, efficient, and effective use of DoD resources and programs that prevent fraud, waste, abuse, and mismanagement.

Given our mission and responsibilities, we are not aware of a nexus between the information you are requesting and the DoD OIG.

If you have any questions regarding this matter, or if you have additional information that the DoD OIG created the documents you seek, please contact our office at 703-604-9775 or via email at foiarequests@dodig.mil.

to Eric,

Dear Mr. Powers,

I regularly interacted with Cherry Roberts-Matherne, a former Army member who I gave a flash-drive to in August 2016. An Air Force member by the name of Thao Bui made me sign something in May 2016, the contents of said contract, I don't know. Then in January 2017, I reported possible misuse of DOD funds. Then a Navy Drill Sergeant by the name of Aina tried to coerce a confession out of me in August or September 2017. Then a military drone (either a X-47B or a Sentinel) followed me on November 8th, 2018 and flew in restricted air space. Objectively speaking, these are actions that necessarily involve Defense as they are a nexus that connects me to Defense's actions or lack of inaction. Help me understand how the Defense Department did not retaliate against me. That is all I ask. Give me the documents that prove Defense did not retaliate against me and let me have some faith in you again. Everything I ever did was in Defense's best interest; however, your actions may have led me to believe otherwise. As I am a dual citizen of America and Serbia, some of those actions may have violated the Geneva Convention and certain military procedures. This is all within your purview. Don't make me sue you.

Cordially,
Miki Kotevski, Juris Doctorate.

Mr. Kotevski:

Please be advised that DoD is decentralized and we do not maintain records for the entire DoD organization. Based on your request, we cannot determine which office (Army, Navy, Air Force, Marines, etc.) under DoD which to re-direct your request. What type of record(s) are you seeking, which office created the record, and /or what type of record is it that you are seeking. Please provide that information and we may be able to direct your request.

If you have any questions, please feel free to contact our office at 703-604-9775.

any and all documents, memos, records, videos, court proceedings, court martial, legal filings, etc. that contain the phrase/name "Miki Kotevski" or "Miki" from Jan 1st, 2015 to 06/14,2023 within the Air Force, Army, Marines, and Navy. I'm assuming the Coast Guard didnt do anything to me. The NAVY Ignored my previous request because I am assuming that Drill Sergeant Aina of the Navy and head of the FBI at the time Andrew McCabe talked with one another and conspired with one another in furtherance of a RICO enterprise and committed RICO predicate acts. Coercion of a confession through the intentional deprivation of sleep is witness intimidation.

So let me get this straight. Jim and Hunter Biden probably made me sign something in July 2015 that I was not informed of the contents of such. Prior to this, Hillary Clinton placed a hit on me on June 26th, 2015 in which Bill Clinton went to Japan in March 17th, 2015. There's no way you all are not aware of these issues. I have no job prospects. No way to move forward with my life. I came there in person and then requests have been ignored. Everyday I grow angrier and more resentful. Go get Anthony Blinken and ask him for me why I shouldn't be pissed off? Either you all sabotaged me or someone else did and no one has done a damn thing about it. I don't care how ugly this will get—ugly is as ugly does and I'm affording you more respect than you gave me when I should have been warned of the imminent harm coming to me overseas in Japan 2015. 1A says I can use derogatory language because it's the language I decide to chose to express myself concerning a government related and created matter and some displeasure I have. It's not threatening to you or anyone nor is it illegal. Next, who are you to tell an autistic person not to use certain language in which I had to earn the ability and work on my ability to express myself being on the autism spectrum?

I'm specifically looking for Japan. It came to a zenith of malice and hatred when I was legally obligated to have basic protections when i was studying abroad because someone in the US Govt was either that insistent on retaliating against me or that complicit in retaliating against me. Your office knows that person extremely well. Continue down this track and it looks like you're being complicit. Let's resolve the matter.

So apologies, keep it to Japan for now and the years 2015 and 2016. If nothing comes up from Japan, then we will go to Serbia as I have dual citizenship.

Dear Sir/Madam :

This is in response to your request for records, Tracking Number EMRUFOIA031223. Your Freedom of Information Act and/or Privacy Act (FOIA/PA) request was received by this office which serves as the receipt and referral unit for FOIA/PA requests addressed to the Department of Justice (DOJ). Federal agencies are required to respond to a FOIA request within 20 business days. This period does not begin until the request is actually received by the component within the DOJ that maintains the records sought, or ten business days after the request is received in this office, whichever is earlier.

Each DOJ component maintains its own files. There is no "central file." Therefore, this office has been designated as the receipt and referral unit for Freedom of Information/Privacy Act requests addressed to the DOJ. To refer your request, we need you to further identify the records you request.

DOJ regulations require that a request for access to records sufficiently identify the records to enable Department personnel to locate them with a reasonable amount of effort (28 CFR 16.3(b)). Please provide us with specific information to help us identify the DOJ component(s) most likely to have the records you seek. Please give the subject, dates and if known, name of the person who signed the document in the component from which it originated. Or, if your request related to litigation, please provide, in addition to the name of the case, the subject of the case, or indicate the type of case, e.g., a tax, civil rights, or criminal case. We cannot identify the component handling a case solely on the "name" of the case. Similarly, we cannot identify the component likely to have a record on an organization or person solely on the "name" of that organization or person.

to me

Dear Miki Kotevski:

This is to acknowledge receipt of your Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) request dated and received in this Office on May 16, 2022, in which you requested records concerning yourself.

You are seeking expedited processing of this request. For your request to be considered for expedited processing, your letter must indicate the basis on which you seek such treatment. Requests will be taken out of chronological order based on the date of receipt and given expedited treatment only when it is determined that they involved: (1) circumstances in which the lack of expedited treatment could reasonably be expected to pose an imminent threat to the life or physical safety of an individual; (2) an urgency to inform the public about an actual or alleged federal government activity, if made by a person primarily engaged in disseminating information; (3) the loss of substantial due process rights; or (4) a matter of widespread and exceptional media interest in which there exist possible questions about the government's integrity which affect public confidence. See 28 C.F.R. § 16.5(e)(1) (2018). This Office makes the determination regarding the first three categories and the Department's Director of Public Affairs makes the decision regarding the fourth category. See id. § 16.5(e)(2). Requesters seeking expedited processing are required to submit a statement explaining in detail the basis for their request for expedited processing. See id. § 16.5(e)(3). This statement must be certified to be true and correct. See id. You have not provided such a statement. As a result, this request for expedited processing is not properly made. Once the required certified explanation of the basis for seeking expedited processing is provided, we will make a decision under the appropriate standard. Nevertheless, please be advised that your request has been assigned to an analyst in this Office and our processing of it has been initiated.

To the extent that your request requires a search in another Office, consultations with other Department components or another agency, and/or involves a voluminous amount of material, your request falls within "unusual circumstances." See 5 U.S.C. 552 § (a)(6)(B)(i)-(iii) (2018). Accordingly, we will need to extend the time limit to respond to your request beyond the ten additional days provided by the statute. For your information, we use multiple tracks to process requests, but within those tracks we work in an agile manner, and the time needed to complete our work on your request will necessarily depend on a variety of factors,

Dear Milan Kotevski:

You attempted to appeal from the failure of the Initial Request Staff (IR Staff) of the Office of Information Policy to respond to your Freedom of Information Act request for access to records concerning yourself.

Department of Justice regulations provide for an administrative appeal to the Office of Information Policy only after there has been an adverse determination by a component. See 28 C.F.R. § 16.8(a) (2021). As no adverse determination has yet been made by OIP, there is no action for this Office to consider on appeal.

As you may know, the FOIA authorizes requesters to file a lawsuit when an agency takes longer than the statutory time period to respond. See 5 U.S.C. § 552(a)(6)(C)(i). However, I can assure you that this Office has contacted OIP and has been advised that your request is being processed. If you are dissatisfied with OIP's final response, you may appeal again to this Office.

This Office has forwarded a copy of your letter to OIP. You should contact OIP's Requester Service Center at (202) 514-3642 for further updates regarding the status of your request.

If you have any questions regarding the action this Office has taken on your appeal, you may contact this Office's FOIA Public Liaison for your appeal. Specifically, you may speak with the undersigned agency official by calling (202) 514-3642.

Sincerely,

Dear Miki Kotevski:

This responds to your Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) request dated and received in this Office on May 16, 2022, seeking records concerning yourself.

Please be advised that a search has been conducted in the Office of the Attorney General, as well as of the records indices of former officials of that Office, and no records responsive to your request have been located.

For your information, Congress excluded three discrete categories of law enforcement and national security records from the requirements of the FOIA. See 5 U.S.C. § 552 (2018). This response is limited to those records that are subject to the requirements of the FOIA. This is a standard notification that is given to all our requesters and should not be taken as an indication that excluded records do, or do not, exist.

You may contact our FOIA Public Liaison, Valeree Villanueva, for any further assistance and to discuss any aspect of your request at: Office of Information Policy, United States Department of Justice, Sixth Floor, 441 G Street, NW, Washington, DC 20530-0001; telephone at 202-514-3642.

Dear Mr. Kotevski:

This is the initial agency decision on your May 3, 2019, request, under the Freedom of Information Act (FOIA), 5 U.S.C. § 552, to the Department of State, in which you requested any personal records from January 1, 2015, to December 31, 2015, for yourself.

The Office of Information Programs and Services (IPS) received your FOIA request on May 3, 2019. Your FOIA request was assigned the tracking number at the top of this letter. Please include the tracking number in all future communications concerning this FOIA request.

Please be advised that a requester must describe the records sought in sufficient detail to enable Department personnel to locate them with a reasonable amount of effort. The more specific the information the requester furnishes, the more likely that Department personnel will be able to locate responsive records if they exist. Your request does not reasonably describe the records sought, and the Department is unable to process the request as submitted.

If you are not satisfied with Department's determination in response to your FOIA request, you may administratively appeal by writing to: Appeals Officer, Appeals Review Panel, Office of Information Programs and Services (IPS), U.S. Department of State, State Annex 2 (SA-2), 515 22nd Street, NW, Washington, D.C. 20522-8100, or faxed to (202) 261-8571. Appeals must be postmarked within 90 calendar days of the date of this initial agency decision letter. Please include a copy of this letter with your written appeal and clearly state why you disagree with the determinations set forth in this response.

Dear Milan Kotevski:

This responds to your Freedom of Information Act request dated and received in this Office on October 11, 2022, seeking records pertaining to yourself.

Your request has been received by the Office of Information Policy (OIP) of the United States Department of Justice, which processes Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) and Privacy Act (PA) requests for records it maintains as well as records maintained by the Offices of the Attorney General, Deputy Attorney General, Associate Attorney General, Public Affairs, Legislative Affairs, and Legal Policy. OIP also adjudicates administrative appeals of denials of FOIA/PA requests made to the Department. This Office maintains the case files for the initial requests and administrative appeals it processes. For your information, neither this Office nor any of these senior leadership offices of the Department typically maintains records on individuals and, as such, would not maintain the type of records you are seeking.

Please be advised that the FOIA provides a right of access to federal agency records that exist and can be located in federal agency files. The FOIA does not require agencies to conduct research for you, to analyze data, to answer questions, or to create new records in response to a FOIA request. Moreover, the FOIA does not apply to records that are maintained by states, counties, or cities, or by the legislative or judicial branches of the government.

For your information, the FOIA operation for both the Department of Justice and the federal government is decentralized and each Department component and federal entity maintains and handles FOIA requests for its own records. Accordingly, you need to direct your letter to the office(s) you believe have records pertaining to the subject of your request. Additional information regarding the federal government's administration of the FOIA, including a listing of FOIA contact information, is available at www.foia.gov. Based on the information you have provided, I cannot determine the nature of the records you are seeking.

VIA: Online Portal

Dear Milan Kotevski:

You appealed from the action of the Office of Information Policy (OIP) on your Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) request for access to records concerning yourself. I note that your appeal concerns OIP's determination that it does not maintain the records you seek as well as its determination that a certification of identity would be required.

After carefully considering your appeal, I am affirming OIP's action on your request. OIP informed you that it does not maintain records such as those that you described. I have determined that OIP's response was correct. Based on the type of records that you appear to be seeking, you might wish to make a request to the Federal Bureau of Investigation for the records that you seek. I trust that this information will be of some assistance to you as you attempt to locate these records.

OIP properly informed you that your request cannot be processed by a component until you submitted your notarized signature or a certification of your identity under penalty of perjury. See 28 C.F.R. § 16.41(d) (2021). You still have not provided your notarized signature or certification of your identity under penalty of perjury. As a courtesy to you, please find enclosed Form DOJ-361, which you may use to submit a valid FOIA request with certification of your identity directly to the FBI.

Please be advised that this Office's decision was made only after a full review of this matter. Your appeal was assigned to an attorney with this Office who thoroughly reviewed and analyzed your appeal, your underlying request, and the action of OIP in response to your request.

JUN 20 2019

Milan Michael Kotevski
Email: Miki.Kotevski@gmail.com

Dear Mr. Kotevski:

This is the initial agency decision on your May 3, 2019, request, under the Freedom of Information Act (FOIA), 5 U.S.C. § 552, to the Department of State, in which you requested any personal records from January 1, 2015, to December 31, 2015, for yourself.

The Office of Information Programs and Services (IPS) received your FOIA request on May 3, 2019. Your FOIA request was assigned the tracking number at the top of this letter. Please include the tracking number in all future communications concerning this FOIA request.

Please be advised that a requester must describe the records sought in sufficient detail to enable Department personnel to locate them with a reasonable amount of effort. The more specific the information the requester furnishes, the more likely that Department personnel will be able to locate responsive records if they exist. Your request does not reasonably describe the records sought, and the Department is unable to process the request as submitted.

If you are not satisfied with Department's determination in response to your FOIA request, you may administratively appeal by writing to: Appeals Officer, Appeals Review Panel, Office of Information Programs and Services (IPS), U.S. Department of State, State Annex 2 (SA-2), 515 22nd Street, NW, Washington, D.C. 20522-8100, or faxed to (202) 261-8571. Appeals must be postmarked within 90 calendar days of the date of this initial agency decision letter. Please include a copy of this letter with your written appeal and clearly state why you disagree with the determinations set forth in this response.

For further assistance or to discuss any aspect of your request, you may contact the FOIA Public Liaison, Kellie Robinson, via email to RobinsonKN@state.gov or by telephone at (202) 663-2222.

Mr. Kotevski, Miki

Dear Mr. Kotevski:

This is a final response to your January 4, 2021 Privacy Act / Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) request, a copy of which is enclosed for your convenience. We received your request on January 5, 2021, and assigned it FOIA case number 21-FP-0091. We ask that you use this number when referring to your request.

This FOIA office only processes requests for the Office of the Secretary of Defense (OSD) and the Joint Staff (JS). There is no central FOIA processing point for records for the entire Department of Defense (DoD). FOIA processing is decentralized and delegated to those officials of the Military Departments and various DoD Components who generate and/or maintain the records being sought or reviewed. Furthermore, the FOIA does not require Federal Agencies to answer questions, render opinions, or provide subjective evaluations. The FOIA provides you the right to request existing records and files of the Federal Government.

According to the FOIA's legislative history, a description of records requested is sufficient if it enables a professional employee of the agency who is familiar with the subject area of the request to locate the records with a reasonable amount of effort. Courts have also stated that a request is reasonably described if the agency is able to determine "precisely" what records are being requested. The "reasonably described" requirement exists because the FOIA was not intended to reduce government agencies to full-time investigators on behalf of requesters. As such, it is the requester's responsibility to frame requests with sufficient particularity to ensure that searches are not unreasonably burdensome, and to enable the searching agency to determine precisely what records are being sought.

After carefully reviewing your request, we are not able to determine how you are associated with OSD/JS. We have found that requests such as these are reasonably described when requesters express whether they are seeking personnel or clearance records; whether they are retired or active, or whether they have worked with DoD as a civilian, military or contractor employee. If a contractor, it is helpful for a requester to provide the name of the company where he/she worked; if civilian, the name of the agency where he/she worked. In other words, being as specific as possible and providing as much information as possible helps us in locating the records of interest to you. Below are some suggested locations for requesting specific types of information.

Dear Mr. Kotevski:

This is in response to your Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) request to the National Archives and Records Administration (NARA), dated December 23, 2020, which we received in our office on the same date via FOIAonline. We assigned your request the above internal tracking number in addition to your FOIAonline tracking number NARA-NGC-2021-000292. In your request, you stated:

I am seeking any records and photographs that contains the name Miki Kotevski.

Unlike other federal agencies, NARA holds two types of records. We have our own agency operational records (records created by NARA as part of our agency's work). We are also the repository for documents and materials created in the course of business conducted by agencies of the Executive branch of the United States Federal government. We estimate that less than 5% of these records are retained permanently for legal or historical purposes. Federal agencies usually transfer their permanent records to NARA no earlier than 15 years from the date of creation, but we receive many well after 30 years from the date of creation. Once these records are transferred to NARA, they are known as archival records. NARA is not a repository for state, county or municipal records. For example, your birth certificate is a state record.

Unfortunately, your request did not provide enough information for us to conduct a search of our own operational records, or of the federal agency archival records we hold. For agency archival records in our custody, there is no way to retrieve records simply by a person's name. Many of our archival records are paper records or photographs that have not been digitized, and thus cannot be searched by optical characters. To locate any responsive archival records, we need to know the type of record, the agency you believe created the record, the subject matter of the record, and an approximate date range for the records. You can search our online catalog at www.archives.gov/research.

It is an agency's operational records that may be identifiable and retrievable by personal information such as social security number, name or date of birth, or address. Such records are protected by the Privacy Act. Each federal agency provides a list on its main website of the Privacy Act systems of records it maintains, and publishes this list annually in the Federal Register. If you believe that a federal agency has records about you,

CBP-2021-021174

Dear Mr. Milan M Kotevski,

This is a final response to your Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) request to U.S. Customs and Border Protection (CBP).

We conducted a comprehensive search of files within the CBP databases for records that would be responsive to your request. Unfortunately, we were unable to locate or identify any responsive records, based upon the information you provided in your request.

Note: CBP does not have complete records of apprehensions made by Border Patrol before 2000. Records of apprehensions made by Border Patrol before 2000 may be available in the A-File maintained by USCIS.

This completes the CBP response to your request. You may contact CBP's FOIA Public Liaison, Charlyse Hoskins, by sending an email via your FOIAonline account, mailing a letter to 90 K St, NE MS 1181, Washington DC, 20229 or by calling 202-325-0150. The FOIA Public Liaison is able to assist in advising on the requirements for submitting a request, assist with narrowing the scope of a request, assist in reducing delays by advising the requester on the type of records to request, suggesting agency offices that may have responsive records and receive questions or concerns about the agency's FOIA process. Please note file number CBP-2021-021174 on any future correspondence to CBP related to this request.

For your information, Congress excluded three discrete categories of law enforcement and national security records from the requirements of the FOIA. See 5 U.S.C. 552(c). This response is limited to those records that are subject to the requirements of the FOIA. This is a standard notification that is given to all our requesters and should not be taken as an indication that excluded records do, or do not, exist.

If you are not satisfied with the response to this request, you have a right to appeal the final disposition. Should you wish to do so, you must file your appeal within 90 days of the date of this letter following the procedures outlined in the DHS regulations at Title 6 C.F.R. §5.8. Please include as much information as possible to help us understand the grounds for your appeal. You should submit your appeal via FOIAonline by clicking on the "Create Appeal" button that appears when you view your initial request. If you do not have computer access, you may send your appeal and a copy of this letter to: FOIA Appeals, Policy and Litigation Branch, U.S. Customs and Border Protection, 90 K Street, NE, 10th Floor, Washington, DC 20229-1177. Your envelope and letter should be marked "FOIA Appeal." Copies of the FOIA and DHS regulations are available at www.dhs.gov/foia. Additional information can be found at the following link https://www.cbp.gov/sites/default/files/assets/documents/2019-Dec/definitions-exemptions-foia_0.pdf.

Additionally, you have a right to seek dispute resolution services from the Office of Government Information Services (OGIS) which mediates disputes between FOIA requesters and Federal agencies as a non-exclusive alternative to litigation. If you are requesting access to your own records (which is considered a Privacy Act request), you should know that OGIS does not have the authority to handle requests made under the Privacy Act of 1974. You may contact OGIS as follows: Office of Government Information Services, National Archives and Records Administration, 8601 Adelphi Road-OGIS, College Park, Maryland 20740-6001, e-mail at ogis@nara.gov; telephone at 202-741-5770; toll free at 1-877-684-6448; or facsimile at 202-741-5769. Please note that contacting the CBP FOIA Public Liaison or OGIS does not stop the 90-day appeal clock and is not a substitute for filing an administrative appeal.

Sincerely,

Dear Mr. Kotevski:

The Federal Labor Relations Authority ("FLRA") is an independent administrative federal agency created by Title VII of the Civil Service Reform Act of 1978, also known as the Federal Service Labor-Management Relations Statute (the "Statute"), 5 U.S.C. §§ 7101-7135 (2018). The Statute allows certain non-postal federal employees to organize, to bargain collectively, and to participate through labor organizations of their choice in decisions affecting their working lives.

The Solicitor's Office of the FLRA received your request under the Freedom of Information Act ("FOIA") on December 30, 2020. You requested: "Any and all records that contain "Milan Michael Kotevski" or 'Miki Kotevski.'" You also requested a fee waiver.

In accordance with § 2411.8 of the FLRA's regulations (5 C.F.R. § 2411.8), your request has been denied because the FLRA does not possess any documents responsive to your request.

Pursuant to the FOIA Improvement Act of 2016, 5 U.S.C. § 552 (a)(6)(A)(i)(III), the decision of the undersigned with regards to your request may be appealed to the Chairman of the FLRA, Ernest DuBester, within 90 days of the receipt of this response. Confirm Receipt of Email as DoD/FBI/CIA and/or foreign intelligence agencies are currently obstructing and interfering with my electronics.

My name is Miki Kotevski and I was a student with you all in the Summer of 2015 via the Tokyo Program and Professor Jiminez. Here is the financial proof of what I am alleging. I am tired, exhausted, have been tortured, and now I am extremely pissed so dont fucking lie to me nor do any stupid denials nor bullshit me in anyway. i am fucking pissed. I dont care if they kill me because i will spend every single last ounce of energy and breath and extremely declining cognitive capacity in determining who did it and who allowed it and who covered it up and why I havent received an apology or restitution so far. Whether it is Hillary Clinton, Shinzo Abe, Modi, and even my parents, I dont give a fuck. Someone is going to start talking.

First, i'm currently being forced to pay for unlawful debt made in a course of a rico enterprise that was due by Dec 1st so the rico enterprise is still going against me and I will not pay a single dollar to a rico enterprise that committed or allowed war crimes, torture, and rico to occur to me. I fucking know that at least the US DOJ'S Office for the Northern District of California talked to you all about me. I fucking know US Government Agencies and/or current and/or former officers within the FBI, CIA, State Department, and/or DoD contacted staff at SCU Law about me, which include, and is probably not limited to: Leon Panetta, Loretta Lynch, Eric Holder, Jeh Johnson, John Brennan, Andrew McCabe, James Comey, James Clapper, Lisa Paige, Caroline Kennedy, and Peter Strzok. These aforementioned people have committed acts of domestic and international terrorism against me as well and you would be liable as aiding and abetting acts of terrorism. I emailed my bosses at the Tokyo Roppongi Patent Law Office and they have ignored my requests.

Youre going to turn over every single document that SCU possesses that concerns me and the santa clara tokyo program in 2015 by Christmas of this year. there are no privileges as all documents would show an existence of a rico enterprise.

I emailed Professor Jiminez in June 22nd, 2023 and he lied to me which perpetuated at least mail and wire fraud committed against me

The damages calculated so far exceed $60 Billion and SCU via Phillip Jiminez in the course of his employment in which you are vicariously liable is most definitely on the hook for it as a co-conspirator.

Hello. I hope youre doing well. I have some issues that I would like to discuss with you.

Do you have any documents that I submitted to you or any notes on discussions that we had when I was in Japan? Do you have any emails or correspondences that concern me that were sent to you by any US Federal Agency or Department? I'll be succinct when I say this: I probably was drugged when, if I recall correctly, some US political figures made me sign a document that I have no idea what the contents of it contained or what I signed to. I am seriously considering pursuing a RICO case; however, statute of limitations are drawing to a close soon. Can you assist me in anyway?

Hunter and Jim Biden made me sign a contract that I have no idea what the contents of which it contained. There's no way you wouldn't have known about a political meeting like that taking place. I need you to remember everything that happened in Summer 2015 and tell me what you recall. There were probably other contracts I entered into such as a guardianship that I don't know about. Is there a publicly accessible Japanese I database that has the contracts entered into that exceeded $500 or legal matters like guardianship or marriage?

This could be my last one--it's your decision on whether or not you decide to respond in good faith. You were the director of a program I attended in which I was repeatedly victimized during the program. I was drugged and forced to sign contracts in which I do not know the contents of such. I have to pay back loans in which I was legally coerced into signing documents and having been drugged. This is unconscionable to me. Whether it is under DOJ policies, Department of Education policies, or US federal laws and regulations or the Geneva convention, there is an affirmative obligation to assist in any way possible. In the previous emails I've had with you this year, I have discussed issues that should be raising red flags in which no ordinary reasonable attorney can ignore. If you know fraud was committed against me and are failing to disclose it, you may be aiding and abetting and participating in a RICO enterprise. I do not wish to sue you in any way if you are in good faith. But if you are in bad faith, then the options for me are extremely limited. Please help and do not be adverse to me.

Cordially,
--Miki

The RICO Enterprise is liable for the following crimes that at least Hillary Clinton committed against me. Stop Tampering With My Electronics and Give Me An Offer or Help Me

I am sorry as I cant find the right person to send this to so please forward it to the appropriate division within the Home Ministry. I dont who it is whether it is your intelligence bureau or NIA, but you all need to stop interfering with my electronics. Put an offer in writing and get back to me. If not and additionally, the price and what I ask of you would decrease if you provide assistance to me. How do you want to resolve this? The way you are doing so right now is angering the fuck outta me and I will only demand more and I will get more from you.

I have a list of attorneys that committed and/or allowed and/or facilitated over $60,000,000,000 in damages, terrorism against an american, war crimes, torture, and more. I have major and reasonable substantial fear of death to me and death to my legal interests as the law currently stands in which Congress would cover up the actions and deny me compensation and restitution for war crimes, torture, terrorism, and more. Many of these attorneys should be disbarred immediately. I have gone to the DOJ and they continue to obstruct justice in which now they are willfully blind to the acts committed against me. I would like to speak to someone who would be of assistance

RE: Appeal for Miki Kotevski

Mr. Kotevski,

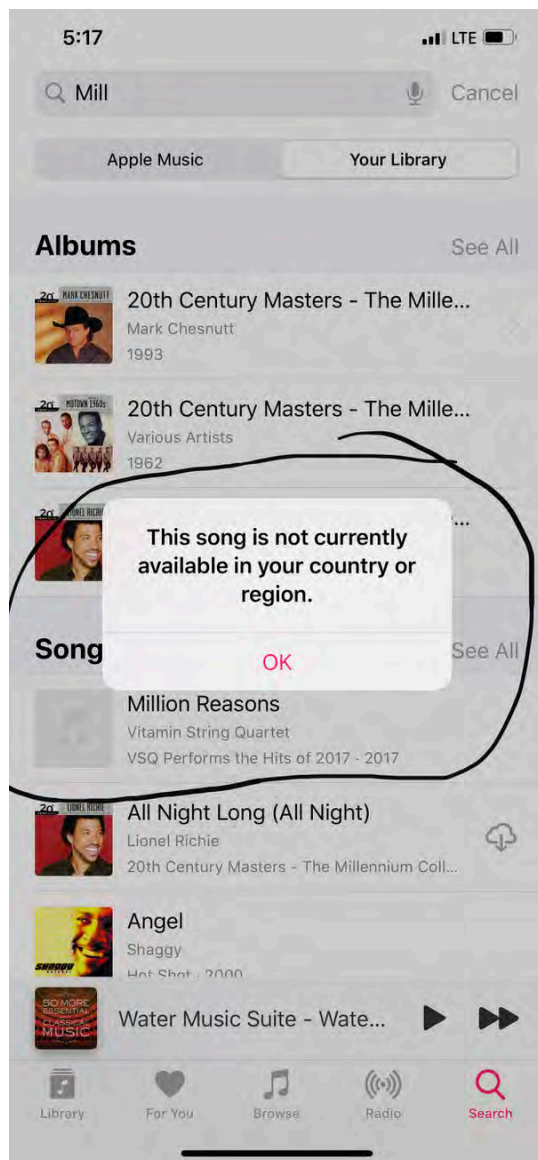

As I stated on the phone with you, we have never received your application and supplemental documents, therefor in no way will you be able to sit for the July 2021 Montana Bar exam. We have received your accommodation request but we can not process that without your actual application. You can certainly apply for the February 2022 exam.

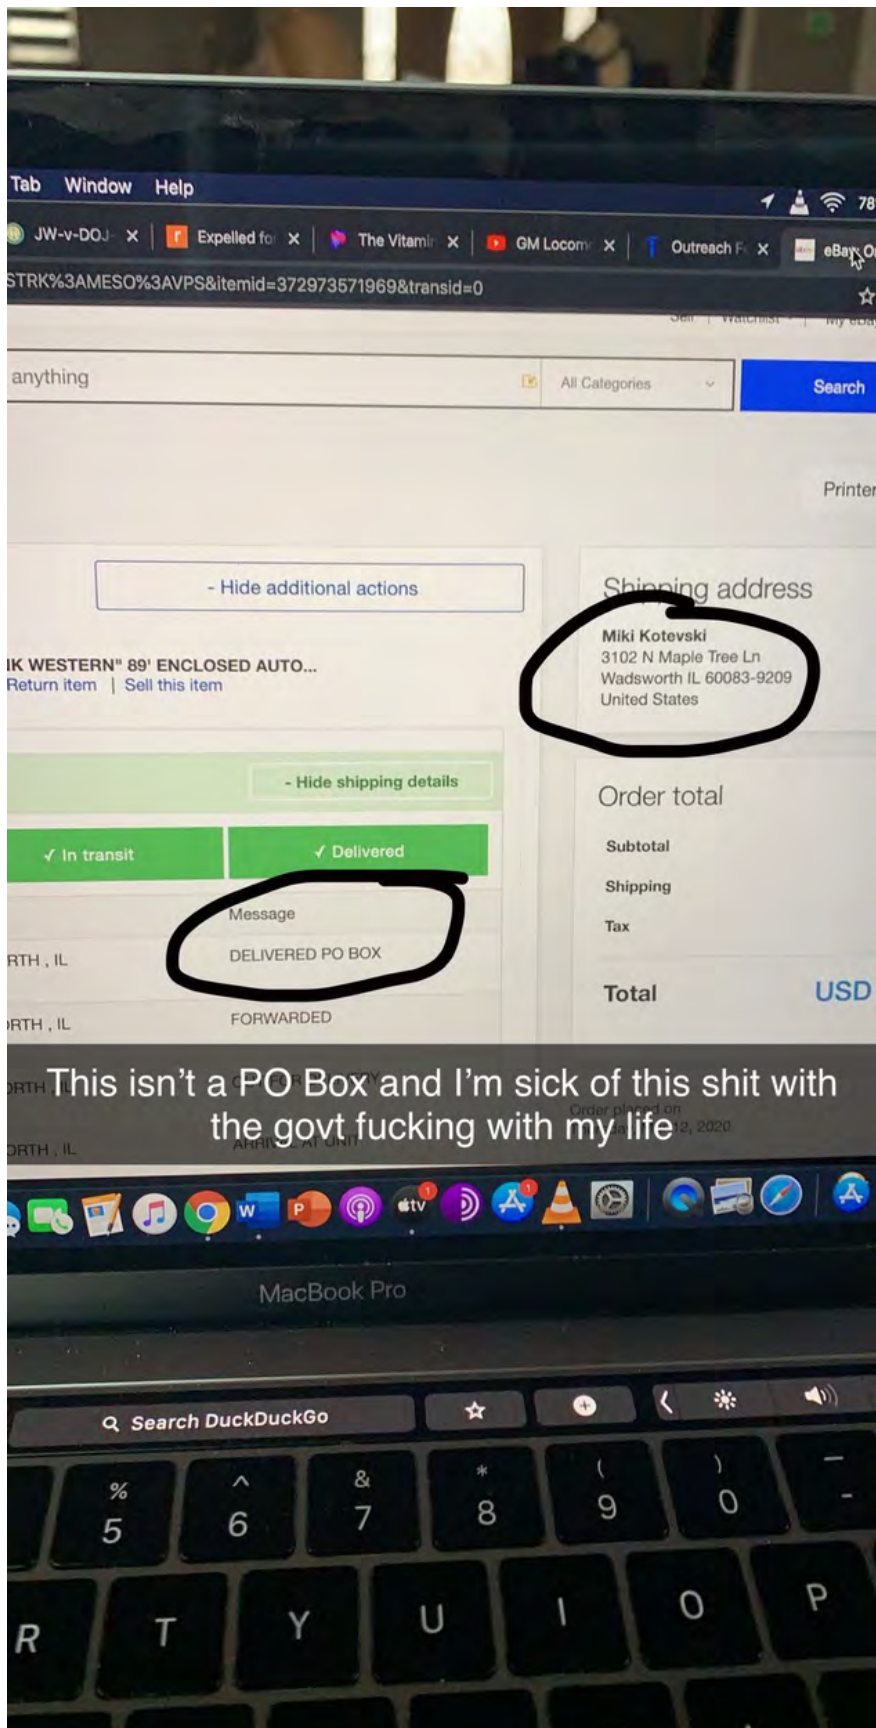

Best,
Kathie

Dejo, all Clark's charge cards, all of baba and dedo's charge cards and all of mine charge cards that all of us were using and filled them up during the past 10-12 years your mother has not been contributing a penny to pay for the minimum. Most of them are on hold pending further review. They equate to over $120K. She said YOU and I only used them and we should pay for them.

I found a bank that will consolidate all those charge cards for 4% interest instead 29.99% what I'm paying now. On a loan over 5 years to pay them off there would be $90K+ savings. Your mother is refusing to sign. Again, her stand is that money was borrowed by YOU and I not her, therefore she will not be signing for anything.

Also she stated that I should convince baba and dedo to file bankruptcy. Hell will freeze over before I ever do that again. They did that twice for us already.

Now listen and listen to me good both of you. Next time my parents come over I'm gonna have them file

That is half a million dollars your mother and I took from them and NOW they leave in Macedonia because they can't afford to leave here. YOUR CRUEL MOTHER says she didn't take a penny and not returning a penny. We will see, it's call prison 🤔 o, let's not forget the $120,000+ in charge card debt

Verice, YOU WILL ROT in PRISON and HELL!!! Oooo, wait, that's why you cancelled your health insurance and got life insurance, so you kill me and kill your self. Sorry hun, it doesn't work that way 🤔🤔🤔🤔

If I was any of you, I would be very careful. By the end of tonight all of you check your e mails, so you can see who really your mother is 🤔🤔

By the way i have the live recordings of what Verica and Miki how they threaten me every day how they will call the police and make all these fake reports and based on my fucked up past that Verica created on me by making up story after story, they will have me arrested in no time. CHAPTER 19

"We've been ratted.""

The next morning, October 8, Jeh Johnson picked up the copy of the New York Times delivered to his home. He had expected to see a story on the Russia statement at the top of the front page with a large headline. Instead, the big story was the Access Hollywood tape. An article on the U.S. accusations against Russia was there on the front page but toward the bottom. And it was getting most attention on cable news. "The press had gone off to the other end of the pasture," Johnson said later, "because of greed and sex and groping."

In Trump's private apartment in the tower that bore his name, the Russia statement was the last thing on anybody's mind. The candidate and his advisers were trying to figure out how to survive. The inner circle was there—Bannon, Conway, Bossie, Hinchey, Christie, and Rudy Giuliani. Priebus arrived late, having taken the train back from Washington. What are you hearing? Trump asked him. "With all due respect, sir," he answered, "you have two choices: One, you lose by the biggest electoral landslide in American history...or you can drop out of the race." The room fell silent. "This is something that I will get through and it will not be a problem," Trump said. "But more importantly, Reince, I'm going to closed doors. Owned by Wall St and Politicians, HRC is not with you."

September had not been kind to Clinton. Early in the month she had given a speech decrying Trump for attracting racists, misogynists, homophones, xenophobes, and Islamophobes, and she remarked that half of Trump supporters were a "basket of deplorables"—a phrase that backfired against her politically. And a few days later, she had almost collapsed at a 9/11 memorial service in New York City. She had been battling pneumonia at the time but had kept that a secret. Donna Brazile, the interim DNC chair, would later write that she was so concerned about Clinton's health that she began thinking of ways to replace her on the Democratic ticket. Moreover, the polls tightened at the start of the month, though Clinton still maintained a close but respectable lead.

Both campaigns were now planning for their first showdown—the first of three debates. This one would be held at Hofstra University on Long Island. There was no question the Russia issue would come up. About two-thirds of the way through the contentious debate, the moderator, NBC News anchor Lester Holt, asked Clinton: What could be done to thwart cyberattacks on the United States?

Homophones or homophobes? Two completely different things. 🤔

maybe I sent you a fb message, I have no idea really (actually I do, just too lazy at the present moment to look it up to be certain). Eitherway, do you know the name of the villages/areas where the vast majority of the people stayed in because I am a LSU law student and not a SCU student so I'd like to stay nearby where everyone else typically stays if that makes any sense at all.

Hey,

I'm not sure if you're the person I talked to before, but I used tokyocityapartments.net

If you keep browsing you'll eventually find something on sale, I'm not gonna lie I had to check like once a day for a month to get one in a good spot that was about $1000. I got a huge apartment (by Tokyo's standards) for $1000/month. This isn't the cheapest option but its by far the best bang for the buck, especially if you value privacy. My apartment was about 3 dorm-sized rooms, about 2x bigger than my friends who did airbnb, maybe 3x the size of the hotel rooms.

However, you'll have to pay for utilities, I probably paid about $1200 per month. You'll also have to pay a deposit, I forget how much. I got my deposit back in cash, and I know other students did too. Its gonna seem kinda sketch but it was totally legit.

The major downside was that I was by myself all the time. If I could redo it I'd convince another friend to get an $1800 place off of that site.

Hope this helps, good luck

They do not mind scheduling one appointment to meet with you at the same time instead of two separate appointments, if that is easier for your schedule. Japanese Disability Accommodations for Visiting Students.

Miki Kotevski <miki.kotevski@gmail.com>

Sat, Apr 11,
2015, 1:17 AM

Hello,

My name is Milan Kotevski, I am currently living in Baton Rouge, LA and I am attending LSU School of Law. I sincerely thank you for spending the time of reading this email. I am also enrolled to study abroad in Tokyo this summer and I am extremely honored to have the chance to study and experience everything wonderful Japan has to offer.

The reason why I am writing to you today is the following. I have a recognized disability by the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990 42 USCA § 12101 and in the course of researching Tokyo for the summer, I found there is a disability discount for those who suffer a disability (<http://www.japan-accessible.com/tips.htm>). I understand that identification is typically reserved for Japanese citizens, however, I would be extremely and eternally grateful if you can do me a little favor and write a letter that would allow me to receive disability discounts on travel, admissions, etc.

Under Article 11 of the Japanese constitution, "fundamental human rights guaranteed to the people by this constitution shall be conferred upon the people of this and future generations. Freedoms guaranteed shall refrain from abuse of those freedoms and be responsible for utilizing them for the public welfare (Article 12). All of the people shall be respected as individuals. Their right to life liberty, and pursuit of happiness shall, to the extent that it doesn't interfere with public welfare, be the supreme consideration... (Article 13). All of the people are equal under the law and there shall be no discrimination in political, economic, or social relations because of race, creed, sex, social status, or family origin (Article 14 Section 1). Article 25 states that "All people shall have the right to maintain the minimum standards of wholesome and culture living. Under Chapter X, Article 98, the constitution shall be supreme law of the nation and no law, ordinance, imperial rescript, or other act of government or part thereof contrary to the provisions hereof, shall have legal force and the treaties and the established laws of nations shall be faithfully observed.

The government of Japan used it's endeavor for the promotion and extension of social welfare and security, and of public health, and passed the Disabled Peoples' Fundamental Law (Shougaisha Kihonhou) in 1993 (art. 2). With the passage of the of the Act on the Elimination of Discrimination against Persons with Disabilities that states specifically in Article 7, paragraph 2, the government made it clear that "administrative organs, etc., . . . shall make necessary and reasonable accommodation for the removal of social barriers" and that private entities, must "endeavor to make necessary and reasonable accommodation for the removal of social barriers" (Article 8, paragraph 2). Furthermore, the Government of Japan ratified the United Nations Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities on January 20th, 2014. I am hopeful that the constitution of Japan would allow under Chapter X, Article 98 the transfer and the use of ADA of 1990 and the accommodations granted for me therein, which would be applicable in Japan because it would not be contrary to any provisions of the Japanese constitution and also based on the passages of the aforementioned laws and the articles in the constitution of Japan.

In conclusion, based on the guidelines of the Constitution of Japan, the acts of the Japanese Legislature, and in congruence with Ministry of Health, Labour, and Welfare policies, I respectfully hope to receive a response back from you and hope that I may have the same accommodations.

Arigato and Ki-o-tsukete-ne.

Milan Kotevski

J.D. Candidate (Class of 2017) At LSU Paul M. Hebert Law Center.

www.mikikotevski.com

P.S. I will be in Nashville between the 20th-24th of May if we need to discuss things further (and I would bring all the paperwork documenting my disability). I will be in Chicago from the 24th through the 26th. And most importantly, I'll be in Japan thereafter.

I do thank you for sending me a response.

I sent japan-accessible an email, but it wasn't helpful since I received the same information found on the site. The problem is that our IDs don't have a disability designated marker on them whereas at least the state of Illinois/Louisiana's disability marker is on a placard that hangs off the rearview mirror or is on the license plate. So I'm just trying to find the right governmental entity to talk to.

Thank you again,
Milan Kotevski

Mr. Kotevski,

First, please allow me to begin by offering my congratulations on your selection for a study abroad program in Tokyo. International programs can certainly enrich one's educational pursuits and I hope that your program in Japan serves you well.

In response to your question about the "disability discounts" you discovered through the website www.japan-accessible.com, I regret that I know very little about the program. I did quickly review the Japan Accessible Tourism Center's webpage to see if there was any additional information that might be helpful. Their Q&A page, <http://www.japan-accessible.com/contact.htm>, does appear to address at least one question similar to yours. I have copied it below:

> Could you please tell me how to get the disability discount card for visitors in Japan ?

That is only for person who has Japanese nationality.
But you may sometime get disability discount if you use wheelchair or cane, etc .
Show them your ID and say "this is my disability ID".
No Japanese knows your country ID and language as like you do not know Japanese disability ID..

Unfortunately, I do not know if the above response should be considered complete, or if there might be other aspects of the program. In either case, this office has no authority to intercede in the administration of discount programs in Japan. We also are not authorized to interpret the handling of international treaty provisions.

The government agency that would likely be the most authoritative on the subject of disability discounts is the Ministry of Health, Labor and Welfare. Should you wish to pursue the matter with them, you may reach them at <http://www.mhlw.go.jp/english/index.html>. Alternatively, you might contact the Japan Accessible Tourism Center to see if they know of any recent changes to the program.

So would it be $300 per program as in the program overall (i.e. the tokyo program and the two classes: intro to japanese i.p law and doing business in japan) and $700 for the internship thus making the grand total $1000? quite frankly, my mom is unemployed and my father is disabled. so i dont have $1000; however, I do have $300 ready to go and ready to send to you anytime this week. Would it be possible to enroll me in those classes and then as soon as the funds through LSU when they are transferred to Santa Clara in May would include the deposit for the internship?

there is no need to apologize for my family's financial situation; however, I do appreciate your sympathy. Look, I'll go make a public act in front of a notary and send you a written act attesting of how badly I really want to attend your program and express my intent that I am 100% fully committed on attending the program. There is a Catch 22 and hopefully we can work out a solution. Here is the problem. I cannot go forward with financial aid with LSU until I'm enrolled with you guys. I cannot be enrolled because (from what I gather) of the $700 deposit for the internship. I'm stuck until there is some affirmative act on my part to show my intent. The best I can do right now is provide you $300 and some form of authentic act that highlights my intention of ensuring that I absolutely want to go to Tokyo for the summer. please help me find a way of enrolling.

fin aid questions

Ms. Fontenot,

I have a couple of questions.

When would the funds for the summer semester be distributed?

Also, would it be possible to change the amount in rent for the amount y'all calculate for my financial aid? I moved out of my former residence and I am paying a significant amount more for my current residence (as compared to my former residence) and if I give you an updated agreement between my new landlord and I, would the new rent cost be included and calculated before the summer semester funds would be distributed?

Apologies for the lack of clarity.

I was speaking in regards to the fall and spring semester to increasing the amount of funds distributed (and not the summer one) because of the new residence that I moved from last October is more expensive than my prior residence in which the funds from last year and this year was calculated on the rent terms based on my old residence and not my current residence

I was told the first time I came to school, I remember not working with you, that the loan amount distributed was contingent on the individual's rent because I had to return to the financial aid office more than once since the amount on the prior agreement (between my former landlord and I) did not list the rent price and I was explicitly told that the amount of rent had to be listed in order for the proper amount of funds for me based on my prior rent agreement.

could you please inform me what the average amount of rent for local apartments would be?

Hey,

Long time no talk, just wanted to give you an update what was going on in my life and I hope to hear the same from you. I obtained a 2.5 gpa last semester and my grades ranged from a 2.0 to a 3.0 so there has been a lot of progress made and I just have to keep up the work ethic for more improvement.

So, as you know, I am a law clerk at this law firm and primarily it revolves around domestic abuse, divorce, and custody proceedings. Is it my particular favorite legal field? not really. Law experience is law experience so I'm enjoying it so far and making the best of it. The lawyers at the firm seem to like me and if I do something related (in regards to how the firm specializes in public service work) I can have all my student loans forgiven in ten years.

For the summer, I'll be going to Tokyo (as long as financial aid goes through, but it seems that wont be a problem). I was accepted into this program so I'll be studying abroad (with a different law school just for the summer) and hopefully, I'll have an internship in some Tokyo law firm.

Things are slowly falling in place so let me know how you are doing

Petition To Study Abroad Outside LSU Law

Miki Kotevski <miki.kotevski@gmail.com>

Mon, Feb 9,
2015, 2:09 PM

to Cheney

VC Cheney Jo,

I am petitioning you to study abroad with the Santa Clara Law, an accredited ABA institution, summer program in Tokyo for this upcoming summer.

Reasons:

1: I will never have the opportunity to study abroad in my life again besides for this summer or possibly next spring. I will further explain why the distinction between this summer and next spring matters in reason #3. I did not have the opportunity to study abroad in my undergrad days and I would love the opportunity to do so.

2: I've lived in Europe for about 4 years of my life, and although Europe and France are quite lovely, I want to gain further life and educational experiences outside the core philosophical and historical connections France and Louisiana have with one another. Japan is indeed a civil law country and I would hope/have the expectation that by taking the courses, it would contribute towards my D.C.L requirements.

3: There are two possible programs for me to study abroad in Tokyo with two different law schools. The Santa Clara Law program is during the Summer and Temple University is during the spring. Quite frankly, based on my GPA and LSAT range, I feel more competitive and it would be more of a logical decision for me to study abroad with those who were in my range (Santa Clara) as opposed to those who were ranked higher than I am (Temple) and it would be a waste for me to go abroad and not receive any credit if I were to receive a C- in any of my classes abroad if I were to go with the Temple program. Furthermore, I would rather spend my fall and spring semesters here in Louisiana as opposed to leaving Louisiana during the normal school year.

a: The courses I would take are the following: Doing Business in Japan (4 units), Japanese Patent and Copyright Law (1 Unit), and Tokyo Based Internship (4 units). This would bring the total amount of units to 9, a vital part in me being considered a fulltime student for the summer and the max amount of units/credits allowed.

b: This is how the courses are described as per Santa Clara's website:

Doing Business in Japan (Required – 4 units): There are three components that constitute the singular core class of Doing Business in Japan. The program begins with an introduction to the Japanese Legal System, taught by Professors Taniguchi and Abe. Students will explore court structures and basic principles of the civil law as adopted in Japan. In the following weeks Professor Matsushita will lecture on Regulation of International Trade, and Professor Jimenez will introduce students to international contacts and financing. The classes will be held at the Asia Center of Japan. The students will be evaluated by an examination administered by each professor. Note that the class portion of the program is nearing capacity. Application deadline for classes only is March 23, 2015.

Site visits include:

*National Diet (parliament)

*Supreme Court

*National Patent Office

Japanese Patent and Copyright Law (Optional – 1 unit): This optional course is for students who want to explore more deeply the Japanese intellectual property law system, comparing Japanese and U.S. systems, primarily patent and copyright law. This course is typically held at the office of the instructor. The class will likely be held in the evenings. The class will be taught by Professor Yoshiyuki Inaba, Senior Partner at TMI Associations, Tokyo Office. Note that the class portion of the program is nearing capacity. Application deadline for classes only is March 23, 2015.

Internships: Tokyo or Seoul (3-4 units)

Tokyo Internships: Internship placements will be arranged in Tokyo law firms, which have international law practices. Additionally, a limited number of internships may be arranged in corporate law departments at well-known Japanese corporations. Placements do not require knowledge of the Japanese language. However, bilingual students are in demand and may find a wider range of placement opportunities.

For those reasons, I am imploring you to approve my petition.

There is still hope!

In a 2-1 decision, the US 6th Circuit Court of Appeals upheld the ban on gay marriage within the states of Kentucky, Ohio, Tennessee, and Michigan. The question presented was: does the Due Process Clause or the Equal Protection Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment require States to expand the definition of marriage to include same-sex couples? In concluding that it does not, the majority—two GOP appointed judges-- opinion's focal point in upholding the ban framed the issue to be a state right's issue in the 30+ page opinion. In framing the issue as a state right's issue, the court effectively discounted the other underlying reasons in support of ruling the ban as unconstitutional in other lower court decisions within the 6th circuit and other U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals. The reasoning in those decisions revolved around: originalism; rational basis review; animus; fundamental rights; suspect classifications; evolving meaning.

The view that marriage is a state right's issue isn't something that the 6th circuit came to a conclusion on their own. Part of their reasoning is based on the Supreme Court case a one-line order stating that the appeal did not raise "a substantial federal question" in Baker v. Nelson (1972) and United States V. Windsor (2013). Furthermore, in Robicheaux v. George in the U.S. Federal Eastern District of Louisiana Court and Ada-Conde Et. Al. V. Alejandro Garcia-Padal Et. Al (2014) in U.S. District Court in Puerto Rico used those prior cases in upholding the ban.

The court then went on by discounting Loving V. Virginia (1967) the case of an interracial couple seeking to get married in the State of Virginia despite the ban on interracial marriage in the state. The court overturned the ban and said "over the decades, the Supreme Court has demonstrated that the right to marry is an expansive liberty interest that may stretch to accommodate changing societal norms." The court made the case absurd by arguing supreme court scholars would all agree that if it was a gay interracial couple that sought to overturn the ban, the court would have ruled differently. Therefore, the case is not applicable in the current situation.

Within the majority's opinion, two questions were asked trying to show how the court sympathized with the plaintiffs: "how could anyone possibly be unworthy of this civil institution? Aren't gay and straight couples both capable of honoring this civil institution in some cases and of messing it up in others?" The court argued it wasn't in the business of resolving inconsistencies about views of marriage, but rather, the courts position in regards to marriage is to "allow state democratic forces to fix the problems as they emerge and as evolving community mores show they should be fixed."

In a scathing 20+ page dissent by Judge Martha Craig Daughtrey, Judge Daughtrey thoroughly deconstructed most of the common arguments for upholding the ban on marriage such as the state's interest in defining marriage between a man and a woman and the welfare of the children. Of particular importance, Judge

Daughtrey highlighted how the Supreme Court denial in Baker was not used in Lawrence V. Texas (2003) that effectively overturned the ban on homosexual sex. Finally, Judge Daughtrey gave a strong historical argument based on women rights and civil rights cases in the 60s and 70s of an action of a court to hear and overrule any state referendum or state legislation that could violate the Equal Protection Clause by deferring to the wishes or objection of some fraction of the body politic. What has become apparent within the last few years are two lines of legal reasoning either upholding or banning the marriage. In upholding the ban on marriage has been the state right's issue argument as seen in the 6th Circuit, Eastern District Court of Louisiana, and District Court of Puerto Rico, and in ruling the ban of gay marriage to be unconstitutional in the 4th, 7th, 9th, and 10th Circuit in a myriad of different issues. What most legal scholars around the nations' law schools have discussed is the reason for the Supreme Court's denial of Cert for all the gay marriage cases this year (over 1,000! different applications for Cert) is that there was no differing opinions between the U.S. Circuit Appeals courts. Now, as there is an effective split between the circuit courts in ruling on the constitutionality of the ban on gay marriages, most legal scholars believe the Supreme Court will have little or no choice but to officially determine the status of gay marriage in the United States within the next two years.

So I met with Ms. Blanchard on Tuesday and we came up with the following accommodations:

- 2: the possibility of the use of this structure sheet (which is attached), which Ms. Blanchard thought was a reasonable accommodation for me.

I need a response back immediately.

this is absolutely outrageous. I know this isnt your or ms. ott's fault, y'all dont deserve the harangue that is about to come, and I apologize if I'm about to use any foul language, but this is some fucking bullshit and i've transcended a level beyond being fucking pissed off.

I do not care what you and ms.ott or any other member of the financial aid office has to do, but understand if you two or the office don't come up with a solution, your office and yourselves will make me homeless here is why.

I'm in a foreign country with no relatives or anyone who can help me nearby. I have literally eaten only one meal a day since my flight left on the 28th, I only had a week supply of cash for an emergency and that would cover a place to sleep (hostel), transport to go from the school here to the hostel, and one meal a day for a week. Well the first week is gone, my emergency money covered the IT problem, but that is gone and now I have this shitty situation.

I will have no money to eat, to sleep anywhere, or go to school--i'm going to be homeless on thursday (that is no exaggeration). My grandparents absolutely have no money, my brother is living at home (unemployed) with my mom who is unemployed and a father on disability. Why do you think I was in such contact with your office trying to ensure everything would go right the only thing I want to hear in your next e-mail is something that would encompass this idea: we understand your predicament and we'll find a way to at least get $200 in your bank account so you can avoid being homeless. whether that idea comes from some procedure y'all can implement, but help me please.

And then your office keeps coming up with more, and more, and more excuses on me. I already had to pay a fee for cancelling my airplane tickets so I can hear a decision on the 26th and then immediately leave afterwards, I had to work a deal with the landlord of the room I was supposed to rent and they wanted money on the 26th of May, somehow I got them to postpone it to this thursday because I showed them your prior e-mail, and if I dont pay them by thursday, they are going to take my security deposit of $300. I have no idea what the hell i'm going to do.

I apologize, I really do. I misread your the email and I wrongly assumed that the error was going to be compounded and cause a further delay where my funds would not be distributed until next week. i've been sleep deprived, food deprived, in physical pain because I have had to walk about a total of 4 miles everyday in dress shoes that are extremely uncomfortable to walk in (because it was either that or not eat), a terrible bed that has not helped me rest, and with the possibility that I would have no one to help and be homeless in two days, and have no possible way of getting home, unfortunately it was the nadir of my well being and I'm sorry you had to experience the harangue.

Hello Sensei!

I hope you are doing well. I will be sending the office a package soon to the office and I hope everyone in the office enjoys it. Two things: as soon as you possibly can, may you please send the form I gave you to either Santa Clara or to pjimenez@scu.edu. it is urgent because my financial aid (the money I receive to go to school) is waiting on Professor Jiminez to get the final grades to my school.

Finally, if you are bored, I finished a personal commercial (not a professional one) and a compilation (clips from the videos I recorded and put together in one film, and since it is 25 minutes long, the best part of the film starts from 3:30 in and goes to 10:30 in the movie) from Japan. I will be making a professional one soon. I am at school and I will send you e-mails to check up and see how you and everyone else is doing.

1. Describe what you expect to learn from this experience.

This sounds terrible without explanation, but I didn't expect to learn anything and here is why. I came with the expectation that I would embrace everything there is and to let things come as they are. Sure, you have the normal things of wanting to learn about law and those who practice it, but that wasn't the point. If I had the expectation to learn certain things, I would only expect to learn those things and not the entirety of the whole experience of being within the law firm.

2. Describe the goals you set for yourself as you started to intern at this office.

a. To allow my work at the firm the ability to kick-ass and take names

b. To be as friendly and helpful as possible.

3. Describe the type of office you are working at, and the main areas of practice or cases handled at this office.

The office I was working at was a small firm, which had around 6 attorneys and 6 secretaries.

law firm was really laid back, which I loved and I cannot stress how much I loved them and the whole experience. . The law firm primarily handled intellectual property matters and international business transactions; however, I heard there were cases of employment law and family law. So I guess the law firm did a little bit of everything.

4. Identify and describe challenges you initially identified at the office, and explain how you planned to work through these challenges.

The biggest challenges I had was the language barrier. Only four of the attorneys spoke English and no one else did. It wasn't the work, I can handle the work. The biggest issue was the language. How do I learn Japanese in such a hurried manner that would allow me to interact with everyone within a matter of weeks? Nearly impossible. I tried, but didn't get far. Next time before going to a foreign country, I would ensure that I wouldn't be so reliant on google translate.

5. Identify and describe what seemed immediately comfortable to you at the office, and explain how you planned to use this area of comfort to your advantage.

I mean my personality allowed me to be super friendly because I am a pretty relaxed and funny guy. Sometimes I do have a bad habit of over arguing, true, but generally my smile seemed to make everyone around more comfortable so I kept smiling.

PART II

6 & 7. Please describe the assignments you have been given in this placement.

There was one worthwhile assignment that lasted about two weeks and the rest of the time I was given busy work that Sensei Otsuka already knew the answers to. The one assignment, which approximately took two weeks, was really rewarding intellectually. I cannot give you the specifics as per the confidentiality agreement I signed to, but it was rewarding because I was given the task as though I was the assigned attorney. This assignment was one that should have been normally reserved for an experienced patent attorney and I loved researching everything behind the patent—the science, the issues, the intricate issues of how many different facets of law the problem dealt with—patent, administrative, and international law were a few areas that I came across. The rest of the assignments consisted of busy work and it seemed more likely that Sensei was just testing my research abilities than anything else.

8. Describe your supervisor's style of supervision, and explain in what way(s) the style of management suits your work style, and in what ways it challenges your preferred management style.

I just asked questions when I needed help. I was left, generally, to my own devices to help think of a solution. Sensei Otsuka pointed me in the general direction of where my work should go, but primarily, I relied on my own devices.

9. To the extent the supervision style poses challenges, describe how you have tried to actively bridge the gap between your and the supervisor's preferred styles.

I don't understand the question. There was no real challenge and there was no real gap. Sensei Otsuka and I were on the same page—I understood what was expected and I delivered on those expectations.

10. Describe your relationship and interaction with your immediate supervisor, and other personnel such as interns, attorneys, staff at the office.

I had a great relationship with Sensei Otsuka and the rest of the attorneys; however, I didn't have a relationship with any of the secretaries since they did not speak English and really, my fault for not knowing Japanese for being able to have a conversation with the secretaries.

PART III

11. Were your skills and/or knowledge about law and law practice in this foreign jurisdiction improved in this placement? Please explain.

My skills within Intellectual Property and U.S. Constitutional law were tremendously increased. I knew nothing about FDA, Intellectual Property, the Hatch-Waxman Act, and Health Law at all. Prior to arriving to Tokyo, I enrolled in a Health Law Seminar and it was amazing that I had the ability to take a portion of what I was going to be learning in the future and actually teach myself, apply it, and when I get back, be more knowledgeable than most in my class. My knowledge about practicing law in Japan increased as Sensei and I discussed the implications of practicing law in Japan, Sensei allowed me to accompany him to Court where I saw the interactions in the legal system, and had other discussions throughout the month.

12. How is the legal culture and legal system in this country different from the United States?

The legal culture is more relaxed and less accepting of prolonged fights. There was an emphasis on cooperation first, and then as an ultimate last resort, legal battles where although there is a monetary policy to settle early in the States, there is a larger expectation that your lawyer in the States will fight tooth and nail to get as much as possible. Besides that, obviously the mix of civil law based on the German BGB and the procedural aspects of American law that the Japanese use on a daily basis.

13. Were there any tasks or responsibilities that you wanted to do in this placement that you were not allowed to do? Please explain.

Absolutely nothing. I had even more tasks and responsibilities assigned than I reasoned I was going to have when I started. I pretty much thought of a whole legal defense and argument to a client's issue and it was amazing that a 1L during a summer internship would have that capability. Furthermore, blew my mind it was accepted by Sensei.

14. What was the most significant learning (whether in terms of substance, procedure, inter-personal relations, work ethic, or other), you achieved in this placement?

15. If you were the supervisor, on a grade of 1-5 (where 1 is "poor" and 5 is "excellent"), how would you grade your performance in the following categories? The score you assign yourself will not impact the grade you actually receive for your internship -- so, be objective in your evaluation.

Milan,

While the change in credit hours may not cause an issue on the academic side, it does have an affect on financial aid eligibility. As part of the appeals process for the Satisfactory Academic Progress policy, you laid out an academic plan for your remaining semesters of enrollment at LSU. In order to continue receiving financial aid, you must follow the academic plan. Your plan indicated that you would complete 9 hours for the summer semester. If you do not complete 9 hours, you will go into a "plan not met" status and you will need to appeal explaining why you were unable to follow your plan for the summer. So you would complete a new appeal form and academic plan to be reviewed by the appeals committee once your grades are posted.

Please let me know if you have any questions.

Thanks for the update. The credit hour issue should not be a problem since you can add additional hours to your future fall and spring schedules to keep on track for graduation. We will post your credits as soon as we receive the official transcript from Santa Clara. Just remember to request that they send us your transcript directly from their office as soon as grades are posted. They may require you to complete a transcript request form.

Believe it or not, summers are not slow for us. We use this time to “catch up” on all the projects we cannot complete during the fall and spring. However, I always find a few days to go to the beach.

I trust you are enjoying Tokyo. It is a place I have always wanted to visit.

Safe travels.

Diary Entry

Miki Kotevski <miki.kotevski@gmail.com>

Mon, Jul 27,
2015, 12:21 AM to Philip

Diary Entry:

I've been trying to find a balance of work and personal life while I've been here in Japan. It has always been a struggle for me based on my disability and my childhood issues.

This reflection should cover the last two weeks. I don't think it is a daily thing, I believe there is a better picture to be understood with the more time that passed by.

Personal Life:

I've felt a lot of highs and lows since I've been here in Tokyo. Probably, one of the highest moments is when I felt truly free. I went to Ito in Shizuoka (spell check on that prefecture) over the weekend (the 25th-26th). There was an onsen that was renowned for the beauty of being located on the Bay of Tokyo (I think it is the Bay of Tokyo) and the infinity open air hot onsen baths—the onsen: akazawa higaeri onsenkan. The building was approximately four stories tall and on the fourth floor was the male onsen. I went to the onsen, you can say my American prudishness kicked in when I went out to the open air hot onsen and looked outside and it was breathtakingly gorgeous. The infinity pool looked as though it fell directly into the Bay of Tokyo. I went to the edge and looked out. I saw the bay, a road that was nearby, houses approximately maybe 500 meters or so away, the hills, and the stars at night. I stood, put my hands on my hips, then proceeded to shake my hips where my privates would flap side to side, Then I stopped shaking my hips, flexed, and said this is what it truly means to be free. It felt awesome.

But I've gone on go-kart adventures where I dressed up as a game character and drove through the streets of Tokyo (Shibuya, Akihabara, Ginza, and some other place) on a street legal go-kart, went to Okinawa the day after a typhoon and was essentially a ghost town and I got the chance to see where our forefathers that fought in WWII made a hidden base near Shuri Castle, tried eel, drove from Yokohama to Mt Fuji and ended up at Yamanakako Lake where I could sit on the shore and admire Mt. Fuji, went to Asakusa, dressed up like a panda bear and crossed the Shibuya crossing, swam in the ocean, had relationships with two different women here, and a lot more I will reflect upon later.

Work Life:

I wish I knew more Japanese. I've loved working at the law firm here; it has been an extremely laid back and awesome place to work at. The Sensei's here provided the best guidance even with my lacking of Japanese. Probably the best firm I ever worked for so far.

June 29 th : I started work on the 29 th . I had a hard time deciding what exactly I was going to get everyone in my office. There are approximately 5 attorneys, 5 secretaries, and me, the giant gaijin. I decided to do the most gaijin thing and I went to Shibuya and bought about 9000 yen worth of Lindt Chocolate for the whole firm. It was an extremely large container because I am an extremely large man and I felt as though it was right to give them a large amount of chocolate coming from a large American man. Well the first day was lovely, it was calmed, relaxed, and I just tried to get to know everyone.

June 30 th : What the hell did I get myself into? I only have two years of a science background, but noooooooo, I gotta become an expert on electrospraying, ionization, substrates, and a whole host of other shit that I may at one time have remember reading about, but now, I've become the science expert in the law firm. Let me tell you a boob joke, something about life, funny story, some psychological principles, but not science. Case simply involves a French company who took our client's idea and incorporated it into a way to disburse and distribute medicine anti-allergen medicine via the skin (hence the product's name: Viaskin).

July 1 st : The more I continue to research, the more I realize that this challenge is awesome and I'm going to kick it's ass. So there is a French company, whose stock quadrupled after essentially stealing our client's patent.

July 2 nd : The more I type on here, the more I feel the compulsive urge to start talking about the details of the case because it has essentially all I have been working on this week.

The days have become the same:

July 3rd-17 th .

I have spent hours at home and at work researching, trying to find a way out for the client to get the defendant outside of the safe harbor provision and preparing the memo for Sensei. Sometimes, I wonder if I am working for a patent troll, one who just simply bought a patent for the sake of buying patents in order to sue. Here is this wonderful piece of technology that the other company is using to save lives, and what? our client doesn't want to do anything with it besides sue the other company for infringing upon their patent? That is where I'm drawn. I felt alive when I was researching and finding the way out for our client in order to win in court, but the social cost, I cannot get around the social cost. Here is this brilliant idea, a way to save people's lives when they have an allergic reaction to peanuts, milk or some other allergic reaction through our client's patent. I mean shit, investors see the motherfucking potential with this and that is why the patent infringer's stock quadrupled within the last year and the brilliance of it was a reason why the FDA designated it with a fast-track designation. But the client hasn't done anything with the patent from what I can gather. He just sits on it, does nothing with it until the incident arose and then acted aggrieved and damaged that despite him sitting on the patent, he was doing nothing with it prior.

I don't know. I busted my ass finding a way for the client to sue and to probably win, but then I wonder if this is what causes lawyers to drink. The notion that damn, I can win in court but destroy innovation and let some people die, in this instance, because they didn't have access to a peanut-allergy medicine. That whatever good could have come from the medicine being placed on the open marketplace could be thrown away because of a patent infringement suit and the company's inability to defend against the suit. The infringing company seemed like a small one at the time of initially developing the medicine. So you just ask within the legal field, if the best solutions within the set of the law are the morally just ones? If the ethics of ensuring a patented idea remains protected has greater value than the ability to save lives? If someone who does not do something with their ideas should be protected when someone can create a better future with their ideas? These are just nothing more than questions I ponder. There is a whole lot of gray area in between for me to explore, and maybe within that discovery of the gray area that would lead to better questions that aren't so idealistic.

Finally on a personal level between now and the first. I went to Okinawa, it sucked with the exception of going to the castle in Naha. Pretty much flew in the first day after the typhoon went over the area. Naha was dead. There were no tourists, a lot of the bars remained closed, and overall, there was no energy or vibrancy throughout the capital (Naha). I wanted to go to Tokoshika island, which is about a 30 minute ferry ride, but the waters were too rough so there was no ferry ride there. I did this as a spur the moment thing, I purchased the tickets before the typhoon made itself known and SkyMark Airline's policy on canceling was pretty detrimental if I wanted to cancel the tickets. So I went. I spent the night in one of those hotel capsules, which was uncomfortable. I had to put my pillow and head in the uppermost part of the top right corner and put my feet into the left bottom corner so that I was lying diagonally within the capsule so that I could fit because I am apparently a giant by Japanese standards.

The funnest trip I've had thus far (besides the supreme court/diet trip) was through the tour group Tokyo Gaijins and it entailed me driving go-karts through the whole city of Tokyo. At first, I thought it would have been something small like: "go on the outskirts of town where two or three blocks are blocked off". Nope. They provided street legal go-karts and it entailed about two hours of driving through Tokyo. We went through such wonderful places of Harijuku, Shibuya, and other tourist spots while dressed up in Video game costumes. It was a lot of fun.

Mirror Mirror On The Wall, Which Article is Fairest of Them All? Separation of Church and State in Japan. And Is It Time The Japanese Court Could Take A Whole Entire Different Approach To Finding The Fairest Solution of Them All?

For the purposes of this exam, I will be solely focusing on the relationship between the church and state after the Second World War because of the exorbitant powers the Emperor prior to WWII essentially made the separation of church and state an impossibility because he had supreme control over that area. Furthermore, there were no checks and balances that existed between the emperor and the legislative body ensuring the fundamental human right of the separation of church and state.

Fast forward now to the last couple of weeks, the Supreme Court of the United States decided the case called Walker V. Tex Div., Sons of Confederate Veterans Inc., (from here on: Walker). Although at first glance, it may appear that the Confederacy, Japan, Kakunga, Anzai, Texas, 1 st Amendment law, are the most random topics and has nothing in common, it bears mentioning that although this case was brought up initially as a license plate and free speech issue, the principles concerning governmental approval and/or advocacy of certain speech stipulated within Walker bears a lot in common with the struggle Japan has dealt with in separating religion and state advocacy of religious principles through speech.

In Walker, the court highlighted that the government isn't barred by the Free Speech Clause from determining the content of what it says, that governmental actions and programs that take the form of speech don't normally trigger First Amendment rules designed to protect the marketplace of ideas, and the free speech clause helps produce informed opinions among members of the public, who are then able to influence the choices of a government that, through words and deeds, will reflect its electoral mandate.

In sum, the Supreme Court of the United States stated: [I]t is not easy to imagine how government could function if it lacked th[e] freedom" to select the messages it wishes to convey.

With Walker now in mind, a lot of what the Supreme Court had ruled over in past cases is applicable to the situation at hand since a large proportion of the new Constitution has major U.S. influences. In Anzai V. Shiraishi, the Supreme Court of Japan held it was unconstitutional for a government official to use the taxpayer's money to offer in Shinto shrines. The court held there that the correct analysis of these type of situations should be dealt with by using Paragraph 3 of Article 20 where only in some justified and exceptional circumstances would the government be allowed to sponsor speech/religious activities. Anzai, in parts, concurs with Kukunga, which essentially said that the government action falls under Paragraph 3 Article 20 when it has some religious meaning if the purpose of the act could promote and/or interfere with other religions.

In Kikuya, the court analyzed the situation with a totality of the circumstances warranted under Article 89 and found that one of the primary reasons, possibly some of the most important reasons, was that the church and state became ensnared via money—whether it be that the state could have charged rent or the ownership of the land could have been private. The shrine received other governmental benefits for an extended period of time. Receiving the benefits and not having other religious groups receive the same type of benefits ensured that there was a violation of Article 89 and affirmed, though I cannot remember if anything was actually mentioned about Article 3 Paragraph 20, it appears that the court pulled this endeavor to hinder the amount of lawsuits directed at government officials and cities for state sponsored speech.

Exam #13

Maybe the best way to reconcile Article 3 paragraph 20 and Article 89 is to come up with a new test. There are always going to be lawsuits concerning the separation of church and state, but the problem before is that no matter how many times the Supreme Court of Japan (or the United States) try to put an end, there will be lawsuits that lead to absurd reasoning. For instance, there is a case currently pending in Missouri in which Missouri's abortion laws seem to violate the Satanic Temple's beliefs and the law itself seems to draw from Christian doctrine (as a side note, I hope the temple fails in this case). Maybe the problem isn't so much anymore as the state advocating for a certain view or becoming entangled in a religious view, maybe the problem is a problem of viewpoint accessibility.

When it comes to Japan, a lot of the arguments revolves around whether some Japanese government officials through their acts is preserving a tradition, which in effect, can be argued it is not really preserving a tradition, but preserving a religion. The Mens Rea of a government official trying to preserve religion is impossible to prove, so why keep trying to prove it. Grant the argument that the government, in some manner, is trying to preserve a religion and grant in part that it is impossible for the government to take religion out of politics. So maybe instead of the government trying to advocate for a certain view, maybe, there needs to be an incorporation of a market place/ forum of ideas concept that is prevalent within the American 1st Amendment. This is possibly a solution. If we take the factual pattern stipulated in Kikuya and the underlying exception that was clearly pointed out, there should be two broad categories. First, the government cannot donate to private religious organizations in the government's public capacity—no exceptions. Though there is a difference between stating that a government official is allowed to donate to private organizations in their private capacity and not in their official public capacity; however any government official that uses taxpayer money in a way contrary to the aforementioned, then that should be illegal. Here the government simply cannot through any monetary or resources promote a certain religion.

The second exception is land or things donated to the government such as land for a shrine of some sort. This is where the biggest controversy will be. There is an incentive to remain neutral in these matters and it is in the Government's interest to let this discussion and entanglement of religion occur in the private realm to avoid the cost of litigation and any liability from it's workers for entangling the government with religion when those workers violate either Article 3 Paragraph 20 or Article 89. There was/is a

Jewish notion where if there was a farmer and he owned land that he tilled, planted, and worked on, 90% would be his and 10% would be the public's in which the homeless and hungry can eat with the expectation they wouldn't ruin it for everyone else. SO when the Government were to receive a generous private donation of land containing a shrine for instance, then at least somewhere between 10-20% of that land should automatically go to allowing groups with different standpoints to be able to discuss matters by giving any pamphlets, having structures, or something similar with the understanding that they are to be respectful and not create major hostilities between the groups. Then the government would be allowed to say that they are not supporting any of the groups on this property, rather, they are promoting discussion, culture, and tradition without promoting or advocating for a certain view point. This is what was envisioned in Walker: the promotion of a well educated and informed constituency that can influence it's legislator through having these public places that encourage debate amongst different religious groups. Based on prior Japanese law that relied heavily on the U.S. counterpart, Japanese courts can rely on Walker to strengthen their point. This complies with Article 89 because if anything, the closest source of debate would be if this would be considered as an educational enterprise, but it appears those words are actually closely regarded to something being akin to a school and not a place where people can go to talk and learn. This isn't the era of the crusades where groups from within the government property are going to wage religious war against one another and destroy eachother's property. Though there are going to be arguments, it is more reasonable to expect that people in these scenarios are more likely to understand the other side and actually create more harmony between the different groups.

The more personal and understanding someone can make an issue and seeing the other side's view point, the less likely they are going to promote hostilities. The opposite is currently true in the Middle East where ignorance and hatred is flaming the war because there was no discussion, promotion of general ideas before, there was repression and hatred that never got challenged or had the opportunity to resolve itself. There is a difference between saying something is true for a political stand point or I hold this truth to be more so: that people are good and that just a few belligerent bullies make it worse for everyone. So there may be some bullies that when given the chance will make hostilities worse, but there will be safeguards and mechanisms such as due process proceedings and hearings to prevent arbitrary exclusion of certain groups to going on the donated land.

TAKE HOME EXAMINATION Santa Clara 2015 Summer TOKYO Japanese Legal System – by Yasuhei TANIGUCHI

Attached is Kyoko Ishida, Goddess of Justice without a blindfold: How do Japanese judges treat pro se litigants? (published in 2014 in Haley & Takenaka, eds., Legal Innovations in Asia (Edward Elgar Publishing, Inc.) The Ishida's article deals with how the pro se litigants are treated in Japan by the judges.

As indicated in the article, there is a considerable number of pro se litigation in Japan even today when the number of lawyers has been dramatically increased as a result of the Justice System Reform.

Pro se litigation has been typical and commonplace in Japan.

Observers have long explained this by the traditional shortage of practicing lawyers. Interestingly, however, an increasing number of the pro se litigation in the United States, States and Federal, has recently become a matter of serious concern. Please look for sites under “pro se litigation in America” or the like to obtain relevant information on line.

QUESTIONS:

(1) Explain, from various points of views, why pro se litigation was common during Tokugawa era, Meiji era, and the post-War era in Japan. Give your explanation why pro se litigation has been increasing in the United States recently. Is any other explanation than that possible?

During the tokugawa era, justice tended to focus on village based justice where the parties would go discuss it in person and most of the time an apology letter of sorts was given to the parties and that resolved the matter. It was the rarest of things to actually pursue things further in court. So because it was rare, the courts system wanted to keep the status quo on lock down so there would be no just results because justice doesn't take into account the facilitation of keeping the status quo. The lawyers that would represent were members of the community so there was a huge added pressure to ensure the harmony between the communities and it was the biggest social faux paux you could commit by going against your community because the community was the source of pride and you couldn't move around the country because home was something permanent where you couldn't leave the area. There were no rights to enforce so the question is why do you go to court if you have no rights to be enforced in court. Mediators were the biggest influence where mediators would resolve disputes between people so the point being is how rare it was to go to court, there was not much incentive for lawyers to be trained and to earn a good living because there was no demand for a lawyer. During the Meiji era, there was a demand for courts because the foreigners who had signed treaties with the local government had their own special courts so again, the tagiwara influence outside of the foreign designated areas was still strong and seldom ever broke with tradition.

The reason why Pro Se is increasing in America is (explanation in #2)

(2) Do you think that there is a common element between the Japanese and American phenomena or are they totally unrelated in nature?

The similarities are economic in nature: that after Japan experienced it's economic boom from the tech bubble, the amount of pro se litigation went up, which is pretty much what happened when the housing crises hit America. It is a matter of being able to afford an attorney really. American procedure has always effectively allowed people to sue—as long as they have the money. That, and the difference is that there were procedural rules that were introduced that facilitated the increase of litigation because there was a lot of changes during the 90s and after to substantive law. Maybe there is a counterintuitive answer here: maybe tradition of retaining past historical values remains so. Maybe the increase in alternative dispute resolutions was akin to the mediators back in the Tak... era. There seems to be more mediators so maybe lawyers are not as needed as much as say the higher need and demand for arbitrators and mediators because it is more cost efficient for companies to use that type of work. It is a lot easier to represent yourself to an arbitrator and mediator as say it is a lawyer, which is applicably as true in Japan as it is in America.

(3) Do you recommend the adoption of the German system of “Anwaltszwang” under which a litigant in civil case before the court of general jurisdiction (such as District Court in Japan) must retain a lawyer. When such a system is adopted, what other changes may become necessary? Adoption of such a system commendable or possible in America?

To understand where the concept of Anwaltszwang came from, it is imperative to know how the German BGB developed through time. Savigny, one of the biggest influences on the BGB, adhered to the concept of Volksgeist, which is essentially that law came from a historical and cultural spirit and wasn't something that was created of the mind. So there were German scholars, who having been extremely influenced by the Savigny, started to go back through Roman law. What is ironic about the whole entire situation was that when one of the fathers of Roman Law, Justinian, created and simplified civil law for Rome, it was meant to serve as an easy to illustrate and comprehend sort of law where no special lawyers or other people were needed to understand the complexities of the law. But when the first draft was created, which took over 30 years, people believed in that nationalistic era that A: it was too Roman and B: not German enough. So the final result ended up being heavily derived from Roman Scholars in Germany, the Pandectists, that made the BGB more scholarly, technical, and complicated and the BGB was specifically created for the intellectual man and not the common man.

Based out of the technicality and the difficulty the ordinary man would have with understanding the complexities of the BGB, it would be warranted that Anwaltszwang. In America and Japan, both of are warranted. It is extremely beneficial from a societal stand point where lawsuits in America where there would be a great influx and demand for lawyers because there is no sense of equity when people who can afford better attorneys are given a result that favors them and not a result that is fair and just. I do not know how beneficial it is going to be in Japan because the adversarial system is still nowhere as embraced as it is in America. The culture here is more reflective of peace and harmony and the emphasis of society and not the individual.

May you please tell me how many hours you said that I worked at the firm? I got an e-mail back from SCU that stated that I only worked for 128 hours. I worked far more than 128 hours. I took work home with me, went to lunch, there is absolutely no way I worked anything less than 150 hours. We need to figure this out because that 128 hours will not count for anything at all--it is though I failed the internship. I know I did not. Please, please, please, may we work something out.

Sensei Otsuka-San,

I am in a desperate situation and I mean you absolutely no disrespect, but the hours is such a problem for me right now and I'm sorry. I wish, really I wish, I was over exaggerating when I said those hours are ones that can get me kicked out of school at LSU. It is too long to explain (i am willing to, but I know you dont have the time), but that is the situation I am in. I just want to show how much research I put in, over 31 pages (I provided the proof of that for you). Here is the problem simplified. Right now, 128 hours puts me below the 150 required hours for even 3 credits. This means that I failed your internship and to me that is a great big source of shame because I know the amount of work that I truly put in was nowhere even close to that. I believe you know that I put in far more than just 128 hours. Simply, how else am I supposed to prove that I worked at home? Especially in the first couple of weeks concerning Fulence's patent, I started doing all the research for the patent, rewriting, learning the patent, going through so much case law, and learning the science behind the patent.

As a showing of our friendship and my gratitude for you, I will be sending you and the firm something in the mail tomorrow. Please let me know when you get it.

I will come tomorrow and pay for the month of July and also give my 30 days notice of vacating the premises since my plane back to america will leave by the 31st or so of July. Also, please please please send someone to come fix our washing machine. I have literally had to wash my clothes in the shower because there is no place anywhere within reasonable walking distance of the Toritsu Daigaku house (I used google maps) for a coin laundry place nearby and I used both the english and Japanese words, walked around up and down almost every street within a 1.5 km diameter away from the house to find some place to wash my clothes and the bed linens. Please, I work at a law firm and I just cant come to work with stains on my clothes. Please give me a time and an estimate of when I should expect a maintenance person to come because i'm pretty close to putting my clothes in a suit case and having to lug around a suit case full of bed linens and clothes because that is what it is going to come down to soon.

He preferred to play on his own or along side a peer, but not with a peer. Eventually, Miki did learn to greet adults and peers and to participate in simple reciprocal verbal exchanges.

Miki left my classroom and continued his schooling in regular education with the support of special education and related services. He was successful in the regular education environment graduating from 8th grade in our district and high school in another district.

Miki has told me that he has had his ups and downs in college and law school. His goal is to be a lawyer and I applaud him for that. Life, as well as education, has not come easy for Miki. He has had to work through much adversity and overcome many obstacles. Having autistic type characteristics, even if no official label is given, is tough. Its impact affects every area of life and requires hard work and perseverance just to stay on an even keel. I hope that this information aids in the upcoming decision about Miki's re-admission decision. Miki has traveled far and is capable of going even further. His journey should not end. Hopefully, he can return to school with accommodations that will meet his current needs.

this essay contained multiple spelling, formatting, and grammatical errors. These same deficits were also observed during other writing tasks. Furthermore, these errors are inconsistent with Mr. Kotevski's verbal comprehension abilities and vocabulary knowledge. These impairments are consistent with those identified in a previous evaluation and with a diagnosis of specific learning disability with impairment in written expression: Clarity or organization of written expression. Additionally, he has some relative weaknesses in aspects of information processing and executive functioning which may reflect normal variation or problems related to a specific learning disability.

Mr. Kotevski's responses on a comprehensive measure of personality and emotional functioning were not suggestive of any significant psychological impairment at this time. His responses on a self-report measure of ADHD were not significantly elevated for current or childhood symptoms.

DSM-5 Diagnostic Impressions

315.2 Specific learning disability with impairment in written expression: Clarity or organization of written expression.

Recommendations

1. To improve his writing abilities Mr. Kotevski should allocate multiple times per week to create paper outlines for various writing prompts. This task would help create a structure for writing essays.
 - a. This should include creating an outline of the writing task to promote organization and structure. The outline should include identifying adequate reasoning to support the topic. Initially the information should be reviewed with another person to ensure that Mr. Kotevski is providing information that will help convey his point throughout the essay.
 - b. Mr. Kotevski should practice writing sequential material such as the steps involved in completing a task to emphasize the use of chronology to assist in sequential processing and the use of descriptive words.
 - c. Use of mnemonic devices to aid in remembering simple grammar, spelling, and punctuation rules.
2. Mr. Kotevski may also benefit from seeking tutoring services to further improve his writing abilities.
3. Mr. Kotevski should try the following strategies to improve attention and motivation during classes and when completing writing assignments:
 - a. To help decrease distractions and increase note taking success, Mr. Kotevski should sit in the front of the classroom where he can see and hear the instructor clearly, away from other students who may be distracting.
 - b. Mr. Kotevski should keep a daily, consistent schedule for completing tasks

Identifying Information and Reason for Referral

Milan Kotevski is a 25-year-old male who was self-referred, for an evaluation of his current functioning due to complaints of impaired written expression and communication abilities.

Background Information

The following report is based upon client interview, available records, and current testing.

Presenting Problem

Mr. Kotevski reported that his primary concern is that he struggles to effectively formulate and produce a written response when prompted. Specifically, he reported difficulty organizing and structuring his written responses in a manner to effectively communicate a response in a concise manner. He also reported having some difficulty verbally communicating his responses. Mr. Kotevski noted that the inclusion of multiple test formats (e.g., multiple choice) had previously allowed him to compensate for these areas of weakness. However, his current degree track includes more emphasis on written and oral responding which has adversely affected his scholastic performance.

Relevant History

Mr. Kotevski is graduate student in the law program at LSU in Baton Rouge, Louisiana. He reported that he was the product of a normal pregnancy and was born without complication. However, he reported delays in the attainment of developmental milestones. He noted that doctors initially suspected that he had Fragile X Syndrome, but genetic testing did not confirm this. Mr. Kotevski reported that he exhibited gross and fine motor skills delays and received physical therapy services continuously until he reached 5th grade. Further, he reported having ten separate operations for ear tubes due to chronic middle ear infections. Mr. Kotevski reported that he received speech therapy services until his freshman year of high school due to a severe speech impediment. He currently has a 1.99 GPA and described himself as a fair student indicating that he struggles with organizing written responses which is an area of focus for his degree. He has been previously evaluated during childhood and diagnosed with a learning disorder per report. Mr. Kotevski reported that he has not previously sought academic accommodations due to concerns of stigma and because he was able to compensate. He Jerry, this is Dr. Nikolay Dobrinov, former college professor of mine and mentor, Nik, this is Dr. Jerry Shepherd high school teacher and college counselor.

What I'm about to share with you is some real serious shit. keep this between us (for now unless I give you my permission) and is confidential and highly private and shouldnt be shared with anyone. I promise this is worth the time spent reading it.

When I came to LSU, I was extremely happy and had high hopes. But especially what I've gone through this semester, fuck me, one of the worst experiences of my life. I have proof to back everything I say in here.

I'll give you a brief run down what happened. My first 1L year, I failed out by 0.01 (I earned a 1.99 and needed a 2.0 to stay in). Then I was readmitted explaining I was in special ed, had/have language disabilities, and I was readmitted. A part of me thinks the school/administrators thought I wouldnt make it past my second 1L year because of what happened in may of last year. The financial aid office fucked up processing mine and a fellow disabled veteran student's paperwork where if that office was audited, they would have been in some serious shit. I dont fully understand what they did, but I had the feeling that they knew they really fucked up because then this happened. the admissions committee sent me an e-mail after I passed all of my courses where an "anonymous student" came in and falsely alleged I had received scholarships and not reported it. I demanded to know who the fuck said that because a) i'd love to know who'd give out scholarships for students that failed out within the last year (which makes you wonder if I failed out and magically got scholarships, something is wrong with that picture) and b) I wanted to go talk to that student and see if they hated me and why the fuck they lied about me and I was considering reporting them for doing that shit. In that time, a different school administrator suggested I take another year off to get my financial situation in order--i shock my head and said just no. The admissions counselor wouldnt say who it was and that incident was let go.

Fast forward to this semester (i'm skipping over the wonderful and amazing time I had in Japan). The school made this speech code "in order to promote diversity" this semester where if a student said something 'demeaning' that had a 'direct tendency' to cause an act of violence, a student could very well be expelled. Furthermore, there was no limitation as to when and where that rule applied. I thought that was absolute horseshit because of a) how badly it was written and b) y'all are so lucky to have gotten out of academia because this stupid bullshit that is happening on campuses across the country called 'microaggressions' and 'safe spaces' is appallingly bad. Microaggressions are saying such statements as america is the land of opportunity that is on the same level of heinousness of calling someone the n-word, s term for latin@s, etc. or read this article <http://www.campusreform.org/?ID=7565>: Furthermore, a dean at harvard law school equated microaggressions to be on the same heinous and violent level as rape. raping someone and saying america is the land of opportunity as the same level of violence. let that shit sink in.

So I started protesting this new stupid rule, I tried to get in contact with the administration and I asked some clarifying questions in a very civil manner (important for later) as: when and where is this rule limited to, what constitutes something being demeaning, and is a direct tendency of physical violence. Would it include such things as slapping your knees when something is funny, biting your lips to stop you from laughing, shit they should of thought about drafting it. I got no response. So remember, I only talked to the school administrators at this point.

So then apparently trying to get in contact and leaving flyers on doors where a student paid over 100k to go to school wasn't enough to warrant a response, I made something called Dolly Parton's 9to5 Theses. Yes, that is a play on Martin Luther's 95 Theses and Dolly Parton's song 9to5 and posted that flyer on every professor's door. It discussed the legal implications of their rule, and being a stand up comedian, I pushed their boundary back without ever crossing it where I said such things--i'm including the interesting things and not the legal stuff--such as: (D.S. means demeaning statements that I purposely wrote to be demeaning while being funny and indicative of social, moral, and legal principles involved).

About the Author and Dolly Parton: We both have big boobs^[1] (D.S. #2. Obese Men);

I believe being on the receiving end of a fucked up genetic lottery-- that I ended up being disabled^[1] -- shouldn't dictate how people choose to express themselves; ·

Miki Kotevski, the disabled former special education student, was sooooo special, when he left special ed, he thought he got out when the going was good. (D.S. #3. Disabled) or that's a Miki level of special right there. (D.S. #4. Disabled.)

In regards to whom the rule was applicable to: Any religious affiliation? As an Orthodox Christian, I have heard many "demeaning" statements towards Christianity on campus, but any "demeaning" statements towards any other religion is not okay. So if I draw the lord of pastafarians--the flying spaghetti monster-- being made of rice noodles instead of the egg or wheat based content of what their Lord is made of, that is demeaning towards Pastafarians, Right? (D.S. #11 Pastafarians) And you thought I was going to mention Islam here. Shame on you for being presumptive like that. (D.S. #12 Muslims).

After I hung the 9to5 Theses on the faculty doors, I started to look into the Department of Education Office of Civil Rights. Any school that receives fed money for education, they tell schools how to act when it comes to things like sexual harassment, civil rights issues, etc. I had a suspicion they were the cause of the stupid rule.

I'm providing the basics, but in 2013, OCR made certain guidance letters as having the force of law that broke many laws in the process of doing so. Within these letters, I found a very plausible and truly shocking form of discrimination against the disabled when it comes to anything that is sexually related. Basically the OCR equivocated a disabled person, with any disability, as being mentally retarded where "a disabled person may also not be able to consent due to an other disability" as though every disability effects mental capacity to talk about things like abortion, sexual harassment (ironic i know), engage in any physical contact like hugging, let alone sex, where any person that engaged in any behavior such as talking to a disabled person constituted sexual harassment and if you had sex, oh shit, i'll let you fill in the rest. So this means that any disabled vet that comes back from Iraq or Afghanistan that suffers from PTSD that goes to school, it applies to them too. This is truly shocking. I knew if I was going to show that to the school, it may bring the OCR to investigate the school and if the OCR investigates, most likely than not the school is going to lose a substantial amount of federal money. LSU is going through a rough patch and I had originally intended to write a letter to the OCR anonymously without ever connecting LSU to the letter, BUTTTTTTTTTT

While I was digging around through the OCR, the administration really didn't like that I had put the 9to5 Theses since I thought for myself, trolled, showed how stupid their rule really was, and pissed off, as I'll say, some really super left and super sensitive professors. One month after I had posted that, the school came out with the Code of Civility. 100% sure that shit was targeting me where the text was highly suggestive that I was the cause and that I had acted unprofessionally from the beginning (a lie). On top of that stupid rule that I had originally protested, this code of civility made it applicable to every student (and only students) that if you said anything 'uncivil' or 'unprofessional' or acted 'uncivilly or unprofessionally' the dean wouldn't sign off on a sheet where a student would file an application to a state's bar, the school would say the applicant doesn't have the character or fitness to practice the law because that student said or acted in an uncivil or unprofessional manner. So that meant they were never going to sign off on my application to any state's bar.

Well, when I read that, I started thinking and then I remembered a case I came across when I was working at a civil rights lawyer in Little Rock where the state of Virginia did the same exact thing as the code of civility and only targeted NAACP's lawyers during the civil rights era of the 1960s. Essentially the racist lawyers in Virginia thought, what would be one of the best ways to stop black folk from being able to go to court? get their lawyers in trouble of course and not allow them to practice the law! Supreme Court ruled in favor of the NAACP for obvious reasons. So during an open comment period for the code of civility, I told the fucking truth of everything that happened. Then I showed how the dean, this is one of the best and most absurd part of this saga, whom actually teaches employment discrimination, literally and legally used the same tactics the state of Virginia did against the NAACP. In that time, I submitted a petition to only two deans (not the public or the dean that deals with the OCR) showing them my findings of what the OCR did when it came to the disabled.

What do you think happened next, something good? Fuck no. TWO DAYS after I submitted my comment showing what the dean did, a professor who is on the diversity committee and I am assuming had offended and is quite good friends with that dean, gave this speech in front of the class talking about the seminar papers that were due. Out of the ten or so minutes talking about seminar papers, seven were spent on mine. She specifically targeted my writing disability (one of them is written structure) and then she said that structuring thoughts in a certain way constitutes plagiarism. She could have reported it and that student to the dean, but decided not to because since she couldnt fault him for being honest. The worst thing to ever befall upon someone, she said, was a charge of plagiarism. I thought holy fucking shit, how the fuck is structuring thoughts constituting plagiarism where apparently paragraph structure, sentence structure, and how you lay out your point that if based on someone's structure is plagiarism. how the hell does language work without structure! so someone writes a sentence with a subject, verb, and object in it in that order, that is plagiarism. So I gave in into what I really perceived to be their coercive force against me, I sent the dean an e-mail telling him I would focus only on school and would give up protesting. TWO HOURS after i sent him the e-mail, a campus wide e-mail was sent on behalf of the dean targeting me yet again because I told the truth.

As a summary--i really feel and perceived the school targeted me, not once, but twice where I would never be able to practice law for a) protesting for what is right and b) when presented actual true legal based discrimination where fighting for the disabled and disabled vets is the epitome of promoting diversity, but nooooooooooooo, it's the image of promoting diversity that matters and not doing it when given actual research, evidence, and law that shows true motherfucking discrimination based solely on the status of being disabled.

So I have been so stressed out of my mind within the last month, I had developed these very deep zits on my chin where I couldnt pop them to drain them and hurt whenever I talked or ate, and having no moeny, and i had to lose a lot of weight because if i didnt, i was going to have to get a gastric bypass surgery, but I lost 30 lbs on top of all the shit that has been going on.

So here I am, just finished finals on monday, I have no idea what is going to happen, but fuck me has it been rough as of late.

I apologize for the presumptions. It's difficult to know exactly what's going on if no one talks to the client informing him of what the hell is going on. It's peculiar the predicaments people can find themselves in. Yea I totally agree with the sentiment that insurance companies can take advantage of their clients.

I am sorry that you have such a distorted view of what I do.

Let me give you a real example. One my clients had a leak from under the sink in his bathroom. He and his wife have two children and they live in a three bedroom home. That is the only bathroom. The water ruined the floor in the bathroom, the hallway, and the carpet in his living room.

He reported it to his insurance company. They denied his claim. Now they are accusing him of fraud. He just wants to fix his bathroom properly.

We are defending him. Our lawyers are taking his insurance company to court. My company has spent many, many hours on this one case. And we will back the client the whole way.

We make sure that insurance companies do not take advantage of people. Because they do. Often.

Best of luck in whatever field you find yourself.

Wed, Jul 8, 2020, 3:32 PM

Case Number 109797.

I am going to refer to the letter you sent that with the date of the 8th of July, 2020. I will go over each paragraph with you in this appeal.

For the sake of brevity, I'm including requests and an appeal in this email.

Requests:

A: For the love of fucking God, tell me whom I connected to that is causing these issues for me.

B: Have I been an employee or subcontractor of the US Federal Government in any capacity?
S.S Number: 359-82-3076

C: Is the NSA aware of: A: any adverse actions being conducted against Milan Michael Kotevski or have documentation/evidence in which law enforcement officers/officials or private individuals between the years 2007-2011 and 2015-2020 conspired to have me falsely arrested or accused of a crime which I did not do or slander me; B: breaking into a residence I was residing in at the time or a vehicle that I was driving without legal justification between 2007-2011 and/or 2015-2020 C: anyone trying to blackmail or extort me in some way between 2007-2011 and 2015-2020; D: any intelligence agency or official/officer, political group or prominent members of a political party, or anyone working in the White House that had access to or knew of the answers contained in the aforementioned A, B, and C that happened between 2007-2011 for the dates between January 1st, 2015 and June 16th 2015? If so, who? E: any crimes committed against me between 2007-2020?; F: any intelligence agency or officers or officials that conducted surveillance on me when I was in Tokyo in the Summer of 2015? If so, who were they?

Appeal:

I'm basing and/or inferring this on a presumption here. Of course I can be ignorant and dreadfully wrong, but your answer seems to treat me as being hostile to the interests of the US when I never have fucking been in my life in the first place.

In regards to Paragraph #2 that begins with: "NSA collects and provides intelligence derived from foreign...." First, what is your position on an American believing he was talking to an American when it was someone that was foreign? Would emails, communications, and texts sent utilizing a TOR browser constitute a foreign communication even though the sender was an American on American soil? Did any countries that are signed in the Five Eyes pact conduct any surveillance on me that was authorized or requested by you? That would bring up Pinkerton liability. In terms of policy makers, is it your position that a policy maker would be someone in one of the following: A: Department of Education, B: Department of Justice, C: Department of Health and Human Services, and D: White House. By providing intelligence data derived from foreign communications to law enforcement officials, would that include officials in the DOJ utilizing that same data in FISA that constitutes evidence? I tried going to a FISA court where I was denied fundamental constitutional rights like viewing the evidence used against me or viewing exculpatory evidence, right to counsel, the actual decision of a legal proceeding against an American in which that American's constitutional rights were violated, and numerous 4th, 5th, and 6th Amendment violations. If you swore to uphold and defend the constitution, wouldn't that include swearing to uphold and defend the constitutional rights of every American's constitutional rights? IF YOU KNOW THAT MY CONSTITUTIONAL RIGHTS WERE VIOLATED OR DID SO, WOULDN'T THAT BE DEPRIVING MY RIGHTS UNDER COLOR OF LAW? Is it NSA's position for an American to be guilty by association or what? What's the criteria you define someone as being a terrorist? What's your definition of someone constituting a threat to the interests of the US that is applicable to me? Does mere knowledge with no actual steps taken to effectuate an adverse action constitute a threat? Exactly what acts did Milan Michael Kotevski do that would possibly be construed as a: terrorism, b: having weapons of mass destruction (some people fucked up Saddam Hussein on having WMD's so is this another repeat of that mistake?), c: does having dual citizenship automatically constitute having me do anything remotely construed as foreign espionage? What acts did Milan Michael Kotevski do that gave the NSA reasonable suspicion to believe that Milan Michael Kotevski was participating in foreign espionage? You fucking know what, I didn't do anything that would give you that reasonable suspicion nor have I ever did any act that constitutes foreign espionage; d) What exactly does other hostile activities mean? If I get pissed off at say British, Australian, or German intelligence for conducting surveillance on me because some agency wanted to circumvent my constitutional rights when I did absolutely nothing in their countries, does that constitute hostile activity?

In regards to the 3rd paragraph: Stop it. Okay, stop playing stupid and stop treating me like I'm stupid. You and I both know you have intelligence records on me. I have a good faith belief my rights were violated in some way so if law enforcement gets the benefit of the doubt of the courts granting intel agencies good faith, why not American citizens who instinctively know their rights were violated? The problem is that not everyone that files a request is an American that had their constitutional rights violated or possibly been subject to various crimes committed against them. Your answer makes you very presumptive where you believe that providing me this knowledge will automatically make me act in the future to damage the national security of the US. Implicit in your answer is that mere knowledge constitutes a threat regardless of whether or not that person actually takes any additional steps in the future. I have a really important question to ask: if you know that various officials in some governmental capacity committed crimes against me or treated me horrendously, does the truth of that make me the threat against the interests of the US that officials would go so far and do that and not the people that actually did those things against me that makes them a threat against the interests of the US? Who are you really protecting? We both can continue to be stubborn assholes where I'm presuming you violated my Constitutional Rights and you keep presuming that mere knowledge of something makes me a threat regardless of the fact of no matter how many times I reiterate this over and over again I'm not a threat against the interests of the US. There are ways of resolving this such as an NDA. Throwing that idea out there.

4th paragraph: Explain to me in simple terms--remember you are dealing with a former special ed student n' all—what exactly did I do that implicates the interest of national defense or foreign relations because I have no idea why I would even be considered that important to have things classified in the interest of national defense or foreign relations. Quick question: if members of congress or presidents talk about me on the floor during speeches, drafts of bills, and/or other public communications, would that be covered by 18 USC 798 or not because according to that 18 USC 798 “The terms “code,” “cipher,” and “cryptographic system” include in their meanings, in addition to their usual meanings, any method of secret writing and any mechanical or electrical device or method used for the purpose of disguising or concealing the contents, significance, or meanings of communications.” I'm not going to ask you to provide some explaining to do on your part why politicians or intel officials/officers can do that when I cannot!

Miki Kotevski

My name is Miki Kotevski and I saw the notice of class action settlement. I dont know how to adequately describe to you my situation and I promise you it is high profile, but I guarantee you if you dig deeply in Google about Miki Kotevski, a lot of wrong doing could be exposed and a good payout for you may be warranted. I once tried to get into contact with Google's attorneys and it seems they deliberately hid information from me where I couldnt access nor find any contact information from their legal department. Dig from 2015 on. Please get back to me at your earliest convenience.

Good morning to whomever is reading this!

I'm asking for your help. I don't want to argue with you because my problem is not with you, but I'm pretty sure the requested records would be in the custody or control of OMB. I'm pretty fucking sure this is petty politics at work and it has caused me to physiologically break down and rapidly deteriorate in both mental and physical well being. I'm not looking for a lawsuit, but there are just things I want an explanation for. How is it that my writings somehow ended up in Presidential Proclamations without my consent and knowledge? There was literally someone that had access to me and my writings, literally stole from a former special ed kid, and passed off my work as their work and I have nothing to show for it. How is it my intellectual property ended up in the hands of people in the white house without me ever giving my consent or having knowledge it was being used? Why is it the US Surveillance apparatus was used to enrich people at my expense that left me destitute and even more broken financially and as a person? Those are some of the answers I want questions to because god damn it i'm a human being and didnt deserve that treatment. So please direct me to people that know about my situation where I can get just some god damn decency. Why this is hard to fathom in the confines in DC sincerely alludes me.

This email is considered attorney-client privileged.

I'm your key into unlocking the FISA Court. There is not a single day that I'm not afraid for my life.

I need your help asap. I believe Senator Paul tampered with FBI Director Chris Wray here: <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=NwhNRKplW2A>. There is a part where he says work with angel. Angel refers to a witness that was used to blackmail/extort me.

I honestly believe one of two things: my laptop is compromised by intelligence agencies as we speak and/or an intelligence agency hacked into/ broke into my therapist office and retrieved the content of a flash drive I gave her for safe-keeping that contained the basis of a lawsuit.

here is the factual pattern I was alleging

Unknown Defendants thoroughly knew of Plaintiff's history in the Spring of 2015.

What happened to Plaintiff was not a mere coincidence. It was a deliberate and intentional act committed against Plaintiff that Plaintiff is appalled by and has nightmares over. Defendants' actions have not proven it was unintentional and a mere coincidence and that in fact it was intentional and deliberate. So fuck you.

Unknown Defendants sought to circumvent Constitutional protections afforded to Plaintiff and have Plaintiff's history and profile done by one of the member-intelligence states of Five Eyes by Spring 2015.

Unknown Defendants used Five Eyes to conduct searches against Plaintiff, which was an unconstitutional search against Plaintiff's 4th and 5th Amendment Rights because unknown Defendants had no probable cause nor legitimate reasons to utilize foreign intelligence surveillance to monitor Plaintiff prior to Spring 2015.

In either February or March of 2015, Plaintiff messaged a Chinese based North Korea Tour Operator by the name of Pioneer Tours to possibly visit North Korea.

Plaintiff intentionally used a pseudonym to avoid having his life searched through by US federal government officials for Plaintiff's mere curiosity.

Plaintiff was laughably wrong in the previous paragraph.

Plaintiff was an independent journalist in the years of 2014 and 2015 and had sent an article to be published to his friend an editor at a LGBT magazine thereby making Plaintiff an active journalist at the time.

Plaintiff wanted to go to North Korea as a journalist and document the Propaganda in North Korea in 2015.

Plaintiff had State Department emails that Wikileaks leaked in which Plaintiff wanted to write a story concerning the content of said-leaked State Department Emails.

Possession, let alone publication, of the aforementioned State Department Emails--in which Plaintiff was in no-way connected to the hacking that was done to obtain said emails and had no motive to initially obtain said emails--was not illegal as per SCOTUS rulings. See: New York Times Co. v. United States, 403 U.S. 713 (1971); Near v. Minnesota, 283 U.S. 697 (1931); Better Austin v. Keefe, 402 U.S. 415 (1971).

Plaintiff had absolutely no ill intention, motive, or malice towards the United States in wanting to go to North Korea in 2015.

Plaintiff had absolutely no ill intention, motive, or malice towards the United States at any time. Period.

Unknown Defendants harbored deep-animosity towards Plaintiff, in part, because Plaintiff was as a journalist that posed a threat to defendant(s) political policies if known to U.S. Officials.

Shortly after messaging Pioneer Tours, Plaintiff's laptop was hacked by Unknown Defendants.

Because Plaintiff's laptop was hacked in which a conversion took place that damaged Plaintiff's laptop in violation of 18 U.S. Code § 654 by Unknown Defendants, the Plaintiff's laptop was presumed to be sent to Apple for repairs.

Unknown Defendants obtained laptop after it had been sent to Apple in February or March 2015 either prior to or after Apple received Plaintiff's Laptop.

In March 2015, Plaintiff received a repaired laptop after it had been compromised by unknown Defendants. Unbeknownst to Plaintiff and against Plaintiff's wishes and will, the laptop gave unknown Defendants an unfettered ability to listen, monitor, and watch Plaintiff via Plaintiff's laptop in violation of 18 U.S. Code § 654.

In either March or April 2015 after receiving the now-compromised laptop, Plaintiff told then roommate Warwick Allen what he considered to be the worst evil that could befall upon a person. In this conversation, the unknown Defendants listened in to what Plaintiff described as the most evil thing that could befall upon someone via Plaintiff's compromised laptop and/or wiretaps placed in the residence.

Plaintiff described the most evil thing in March or April 2015 as thus: "killing someone would be instantaneous and a relief so you'd have to do a prolonged form of torture. Introduce a child and have the child lie about their age. Make the person believe the child is an adult. Then make the child have some sexual relations with the adult and then have the child reveal their true age. Make the adult live with that for the rest of their lives and the memory would consume him or her for the rest of their life." Additionally, Plaintiff stated how good it was for society to turn away from the by-gone era of twelve to fifteen year old's marrying (on farms).

Plaintiff being a dual-citizen of the United States and Serbia knew that if he could not find a wife here in the United States, he can go to Serbia or North Macedonia to get a wife. Plaintiff would routinely tell people, and it was to Plaintiff's understanding, that he could go to Serbia and North Macedonia to get a smokin' hot model for a wife if he so desired. Plaintiff's plan was to do such a thing if he could not find a wife before 35.

In April/May of 2015, Plaintiff wanted to study abroad in Japan and committed to do so by going to study in Japan via Santa Clara University.

Unknown Defendants presumed false facts about Plaintiff because of Plaintiff's parents concerning political and/or intelligence threats and ties at all relevant times in the complaint.

Unknown Defendant(s) procured Plaintiff's emails and deliberately knew where Plaintiff would be residing during the Summer of 2015 in Plaintiff's trip to Japan to blackmail Plaintiff in Japan.

The CIA, NSA, and FBI have agreements with Google in which Google regularly shares Plaintiff's information to those aforementioned agencies. Google regularly shared Plaintiff's information with Co-Defendants at any moment of time starting from possibly 2011 to Present.

Therefore, under Pinkerton v. United States, 328 U.S. 640, 66 S.Ct. 1180, 90 L.Ed. 1489 (1946), any acts Google did with any of the co-defendants was in furtherance of any and all conspiracies against Plaintiff.

GRU or other foreign intelligence services would have had to hack into Plaintiff's records and emails in Spring 2015.

Unknown defendant(s) procured intelligence materials that contained ambiguous or salacious material to other defendants in the Spring of 2015 to deliberately blackmail Plaintiff.

Unknown Defendant(s) after failing to expel Plaintiff from LSU Law via the plot with Jake Henry, Cheney Joseph, Tracy Blanchard, and other co-conspirator defendants devised a new plot to blackmail Plaintiff in violation of 18 U.S.C. 1962, 18 U.S.C. Section 1512, in furtherance of 18 U.S.C. 2441(A); 18 U.S.C. 2441(B), and other statutes sometime in the Spring of 2015.

Unknown Defendants sought to label and blackmail as a child-trafficker because Plaintiff possessed State Department emails that involved Defendant(s) or would otherwise expose nefarious behavior by unknown Defendants. In addition, it was because of what Plaintiff told roommate earlier that Spring 2015. In violation and furtherance of 18 U.S.C. 2441(A); 18 U.S.C. 2441(B); 18 U.S.C. Section 1503

What is truly important and the crux of the situation is the following: Plaintiff can't adequately explain why, but he was of extreme interest to intelligence agencies in Spring 2015. TO WHOM EXACTLY HE WAS AN INTEREST OF, PLAINTIFF HAD NO FUCKING IDEA AT THE TIME. BUT unbeknownst to Plaintiff is truly the reason why the following took place: either Plaintiff really pissed off the American political establishment to such a retaliatory end by the end of Spring 2015 that the CIA would conduct such a horrendous operation against Plaintiff or he would be intentionally compromised by having foreign intelligence service like GRU that would conduct such a horrendous operation because he had secrets or because of his parents that the following most evil thing would take place:

At no time in Plaintiff's life was Plaintiff ever involved in Human Trafficking or participate in any way in the act of Human Trafficking.

Unknown Defendants—knowing Plaintiff's parent's history and a connection's personal history to a Latin-American biker gang (Bandido's) and other unknown contacts and their respective history—facilitated in the transportation of Jane Doe 1 internationally in late June 2015 to frame and falsely associate Plaintiff as being a member of the Bandido's, a human trafficker, or a worse moniker. This was done to entrap Plaintiff.

The timing of trafficking Jane Doe 1 was too perfect and not a mere coincidence in late June 2015. Unknown Defendants had access to Plaintiff's summer itinerary with Santa Clara in which unknown Defendants at either CIA, NSA, FBI, State Department, Santa Clara, Plaintiff or GRU/FSB could reasonably and plausibly know of such; Unknown Defendants knew that the class portion in which Plaintiff would have social support was terminated in July 2015 as that was when the internship portion of the summer program at Santa Clara would begin in which unknown Defendants at either CIA, NSA, FBI, State Department, Santa Clara, Myself, or GRU/FSB could reasonably and plausibly know of such; Unknown Defendants knew that Plaintiff would effectively not see fellow classmates regularly (i.e. his social support was gone) and would only see his fellow classmates during the weekend, the workers at his internship on a daily basis, and whomever effectively resided with Plaintiff. Essentially Unknown Defendants knew that Plaintiff was effectively isolated in a foreign country with no help available and that the only people to see him everyday is whomever lived at the same residence of Plaintiff.

Unknown Defendants knew of Plaintiff's vulnerability when Plaintiff wrote in an email on June 4th, 2015 that Google gave them access to: "I'm in a foreign country with no relatives or anyone who can help me nearby.” Furthermore, Plaintiff’s knew of further vulnerabilities since Plaintiff had developmental delays and was/is on the autism spectrum.

Google provided Unknown Defendants all relevant information sometime between March 2015 and July 1st, 2015.

If it was the CIA, defendant CIA and Unknown CIA operatives/Defendants knew about: “CIA Operation Midnight Climax: Prostitutes on the CIA payroll were instructed to lure clients back to the safehouses, where they were surreptitiously plied with a wide range of substances, including LSD, and monitored behind one-way glass. The prostitutes were instructed in the use of post-coital questioning to investigate whether the victims could be convinced to involuntarily reveal secrets. The victims were sometimes fed subliminal messages in attempts to induce them to involuntary actions, including criminal activity such as robbery, assault, and assassination.”^[1]

A similar operation was conducted against Plaintiff’s Constitutional Rights (1st, 4th, 5th, 8th, 9th, and 14th Amendment rights) in which Plaintiff was lured; Plaintiff was possibly given Scopolamine, Plaintiff was monitored on Plaintiff’s compromised laptop in which Unknown Defendants had access to Plaintiff’s camera and microphone; Jane Doe 1 inquired to Plaintiff to reveal secrets and/or have to create a secret; subliminal messages were given to Plaintiff; and other surveillance techniques and procedures unknown done to Plaintiff in violation and furtherance of 18 U.S.C. 2441(A); 18 U.S.C. 2441(B)

If it was the CIA, unknown Defendants at CIA followed their own Manual of Trickery and Deception: “To be successful, the espionage illusion must withstand both the direct observation of onlookers (casuals) and the scrutiny of professional counterintelligence officers (hostile surveillance), without exposing either the participation or identification of the agent... This next point is put down with hesitation, and not because there is any question of its validity. The plot of a trick should be shorter and more direct when shown to a woman... By many years of experience, the explanation, true or false, is that a man is more inclined to follow step by step and a woman is more likely to think ahead... However, it is generally the case that it is advisable to act always as though no exceptions existed... But in a trick there always must be one person who makes the decisions as to when, where, and how. The assistant must follow the lead of the trickster.”^[2]

If it was the CIA, unknown Defendants at CIA followed their own Manual of Psychological Warfare: “It is possible to neutralize carefully selected and planned target... For Psychological purposes it is necessary to gather together the population affected, so that they will be present, take part in the act, and formulate accusations against the oppressor. The target or person should be chosen on the basis of: ...use rejection or potential hatred by the majority of the population affected toward the target, stirring up the population and making them see all the negative and hostile actions of the individual against the people. If the majority of the people give their support or backing to the target or subject, do not try to change these sentiments through provocation. Relative difficulty of controlling the person who will replace the target.”^[3]

Unknown Defendants at CIA or other named intelligence agencies/Unknown Defendants conducted Psychological Warfare against Plaintiff in Spring/Summer 2015 and utilized their own training materials to do such in violation of 18 U.S. Code §872; 18 U.S.C. §1512; 18 U.S.C. §2441(b); 18 U.S.C. Section 1513; 18 U.S.C. 1962

Unknown Defendants had the explicit purpose to ensure that Plaintiff would be “rejected and hated by the majority of the population” if Plaintiff stood up for himself or otherwise Blackmail and Extort Plaintiff.

Unknown Defendants facilitated the transportation of Jane Doe 1 across international border from a Central American country to Japan through false papers in violation of 18 U.S.C. Section 1542-1546 and 18 U.S.C. 1962 in late June 2015.

Unknown defendants knew Jane Doe 1 was not capable of traveling overseas by herself in June 2015.

Unknown defendants procured Jane Doe 1 for immoral purposes in violation of section 278 (relating to importation of alien for immoral purpose) if the act indictable under such section of such Act was committed for the purpose of financial gain and 18 U.S.C. 1962

Unknown Defendants paid other co-conspirators unknown amount to traffic Jane Doe 1 at the end of June 2015 in violation of section 278 (relating to importation of alien for immoral purpose) if the act indictable under such section of such Act was committed for the purpose of financial gain and 18 U.S.C. 1962

Unknown Defendants through an elaborate scheme got Jane Doe 1 from Central America to Japan to blackmail Plaintiff in violation of 18 U.S.C. 1512, 18 U.S.C. Section 1513, 18 U.S.C. 1962, and 18 U.S.C. 2441(A); 18 U.S.C. 2441(B) at the end of June 2015.

Jane Doe 1 under false pretenses was granted a Visa in Japan in late June 2015 due to Unknown Defendants elaborate extortionate scheme.

Unknown American Defendants have an agreement with Japanese immigration authorities and U.S. Law to warn and inform and prevent possible human trafficking.

Unknown Defendants disregarded previous responsibility prescribed under law.

Unknown Defendants deliberately withheld information that would have prevented the trafficking of Jane Doe 1 from Central America to Japan in June 2015 if Jane Doe 1 was trafficked in the month of June 2015.

Unknown Defendants ensured that Jane Doe 1 would reside in same residence as Plaintiff in Japan in June 2015.

Jane Doe 1 told Plaintiff: that she had two boyfriends (one regular boyfriend and one British “sugar-daddy”). The “Sugar-Daddy” paid for her lounging at Plaintiff’s residence and otherwise told her what to do in regards to Plaintiff.

Plaintiff believes that the “Sugar-Daddy” was the “one person who makes the decisions as to when, where, and how”^[4] and Jane Doe 1 was “the assistant (who) must follow the lead of the trickster.”^[5] The “boyfriends” violated 18 U.S.C. 2441(A); 18 U.S.C. 2441(B), 18 U.S.C. 1962, and 18 U.S.C. Section 1513 XX when they made the decisions as to when, where, and how.

Jane Doe 1 informed Plaintiff that her “British Sugar Daddy Boyfriend” paid for the trip for her to leave her Central American country.

Unknown Defendants told Jane Doe 1 to lie about her age to the Plaintiff in which Jane Doe 1 on numerous occasions lied to Plaintiff to ensure that Plaintiff would never be able to adequately ascertain Jane Doe 1’s age in June/July 2015 in furtherance of violating 18 U.S.C. 2441(A); 18 U.S.C. 2441(B).

Jane Doe 1 told Plaintiff things that would make a reasonable person, let alone an individual on the autism spectrum or someone with developmental delays, believe that Jane Doe 1 was over 18—that Jane Doe 1 drank alcohol, went to clubs, had a quinceanera, had two boyfriends, that Jane Doe 1 wanted to be a teacher and was in school to be a teacher, even had an interview to teach English in Japan as a teacher, was in a “sugar-daddy” relationship in which there was an inference that those only above 18 years old can enter into such relationships, and other adult related conversations in June/July 2015 in furtherance of violating 18 U.S.C. 2441(A); 18 U.S.C. 2441(B).

Jane Doe 1 told Plaintiff how the local gangs controlled everything around her wherever she was residing in Central America. Plaintiff wanted no part with gangs or that life.

Unknown Defendants in violation of the Stalking Law bugged Plaintiff’s residence in June 2015 or July 2015

Unknown Defendants still had unauthorized access to Plaintiff’s laptop while Plaintiff was still in Japan in the Summer of 2015.

Plaintiff, either knowingly or unknowingly and either consciously or unconsciously, sought to help Jane Doe 1 in Summer 2015 and the Meeting with Tracy Blanchard in May 2016 (to be discussed later).

Plaintiff during all the times Unknown Defendants tried to ruin Plaintiff in some manner sought to find the silver-lining in said situation(s) by helping the actual victims of Defendant(s) extortionate schemes at expense to himself. This has been factually demonstrated on numerous occasions—one may actually say it is a pattern of Plaintiff.

Unknown Defendant(s) engaged in a cover up; technically being part of a cover up makes one under cover; helping in that situation and helping anyone involved makes you a pseudo under-cover agent. See: message to Jane Doe 1.

Plaintiff, like most men, falsely boasted about having sex with a woman that he did not in fact have sex with—the same applies with Plaintiff and Jane Doe 1. Plaintiff did not have sex with Jane Doe 1. Period.

Dear Mr. Kotevski:

This is the initial agency decision on your May 3, 2019, request, under the Freedom of Information Act (FOIA), 5 U.S.C. § 552, to the Department of State, in which you requested any personal records from January 1, 2015, to December 31, 2015, for yourself.

Dear Mr. Kotevski:

This office is responsible for processing all FOIA requests for access to records maintained by the Department of Defense, Office of Inspector General (DoD OIG). The

Dear Mr. Powers,

I regularly interacted with Cherry Roberts-Matherne, a former Army member who I gave a flash-drive to in August 2016. An Air Force member by the name of Thao Bui made me sign something in May 2016, the contents of said contract, I don't know. Then in January 2017, I reported possible misuse of DOD funds. Then a Navy Drill Sergeant by the name of Aina tried to coerce a confession out of me in August or September 2017. Then a military drone (either a X-47B or a Sentinel) followed me on November 8th, 2018 and flew in restricted air space. Objectively speaking, these are actions that necessarily involve Defense as they are a nexus that connects me to Defense's actions or lack of inaction. Help me understand how the Defense Department did not retaliate against me. That is all I ask. Give me the documents that prove Defense did not retaliate against me and let me have some faith in you again. Everything I ever did was in Defense's best interest; however, your actions may have led me to believe otherwise. As I am a dual citizen of America and Serbia, some of those actions may have violated the Geneva Convention and certain military procedures. This is all within your purview. Don't make me sue you.

Cordially,
Miki Kotevski, Juris Doctorate.

I am seriously considering a lawsuit during my time at LSU Law. I dont want to sue you, but I will if it is necessary. I need you to be honest with me and tell me everything any US Federal Government worker/agent talked to you about me. Provide me the emails. I like to be blunt and direct. I reasonably foresee the US Government screeching like demented banshees and claim national security privileges. I am not aware of any precedent that national security takes higher precedence over constitutional and RICO violations. Corruption is a matter of national security because corruption ruins the trust the People have in their government; however, how can corruption be remedied if it is concealed under the guise of national security? Please, I am absolutely adamant that I do NOT want to sue the school that gave me a chance to become a lawyer, but I am begging you, please do not aid and abet and become co-conspirators in a RICO lawsuit. Work with me. Do I have your word that you will honorably assist me?

Did you comprehend anything I say? So you'd rather go down in the flames of RICO than help someone who has complete faith in yall. In moments like this, consider your actions.

#1: Mr. Isaac of the IT Department (if I recall his name correctly)--conversion of laptop, false pretenses to get a search of my laptop circumventing my constitutional rights against search and seizures in which Mr. Isaac most likely than not talked to the FBI and CIA in which providing them evidence to further their RICO conspiracy, first amendment violations, etc. Pinkerton liability applies. Part of the means and manner in which the predicate RICO acts were done was through my laptop.

#2: Tracy Blanchard: 1st, 4th, 5th, 6th, 7th, 8th, 9th, 10th, 13th, and 14th Amendment and ADA/Section 504 violations via pinkerton liability. Specifically Spring 2015, Summer 2015, May 2016.

To be part of a RICO enterprise, there must be a purpose, relationships among those associated with the enterprise, and longevity sufficient to permit those associates to pursue the enterprise's purpose. You understand that a RICO predicate act is obstruction of justice in which people like Andrew McCabe and Peter Strzok at the behest of Hillary Clinton wanted to arrest me (obstruction of justice) for committing crimes against me for politically retaliatory purposes. You understand that constitutional deprivations of my intellectual property rights has a monetary value in which there was an economic incentive to make up crimes against me to seize my property? You understand that having numerous crimes done to me for politically retaliatory purposes in which i have to pay back my student loans in which i have not been able to pass the bar yet makes me an indentured servant in violation of Kozminsky v. United States?

You understand that my constitutional and legal rights take higher precedence over fraudulently induced national security letters and gag orders, right?

I'm begging you. Please Do not be a part of their association in fact enterprise in RICO. There are numerous ways not to be a factual part of their enterprise. For example, you can help me by giving me the info I seek in which i'm able to pursue my claims without getting LSU involved. I do not want to sue you.

I am unable to comply with this request. Here is the problem Tetyana. I dont know who is at fault. What I can infer is the following: some people in the LSU system talked to US Govt workers who tried to circumvent and violated my rights. BUT MY SOLE INTENTION IS THAT I AM FOCUSED ON FINDING THE US GOVT WORKERS THAT DID. For now, I dont care about intra-LSU communication about me because I dont want to sue LSU; what i am concerned about is finding and knowing the US Government workers that discussed me to LSU employees. So you can start the process by finding emails sent from any US Federal Government Agency to any LSU Employee that specifically mentions Milan Michael Kotevski, Milan Kotevski, or Miki Kotevski. Then go from there.

I cant be any more clear on my intent.

This could be my last one--it's your decision on whether or not you decide to respond in good faith. You were the director of a program I attended in which I was repeatedly victimized during the program. I was drugged and forced to sign contracts in which I do not know the contents of such. I have to pay back loans in which I was legally coerced into signing documents and having been drugged. This is unconscionable to me. Whether it is under DOJ policies, Department of Education policies, or US federal laws and regulations or the Geneva convention, there is an affirmative obligation to assist in any way possible. In the previous emails I've had with you this year, I have discussed issues that should be raising red flags in which no ordinary reasonable attorney can ignore. If you know fraud was committed against me and are failing to disclose it, you may be aiding and abetting and participating in a RICO enterprise. I do not wish to sue you in any way if you are in good faith. But if you are in bad faith, then the options for me are extremely limited. Please help and do not be adverse to me.

If i understand your subtle suggestion correctly, a certain central agency told me that you were at fault and for me to go check you out. They were pointing the finger at you and now you are pointing the finger at them. I say no more finger pointing! Finger pointing does not do anyone justice.

It has been clear that pleading, reasoning, and articulating with tangible evidence that I would never harm the United States Government has been deliberately ignored. In the movie Airplane! there is a hysterical woman that cannot get a hold of herself. See Youtube clip here: <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=FNkpIDbtC2c> Get a hold of yourself because the US Government has consistently and erroneously lied that I ever had the intent to commit any terrorist activity, have anything to do with weapons of mass destruction, etc. When and if knowing legal rights becomes hostile activity to the United States Government, that is tyranny and a violation of your oath to protect and defend the Constitution of the United States. I'm sure someone in the United States government intentionally and deliberately lied about the events of November 2009 and said it was drug activity when in fact it was not drug activity at all. Furthermore, you know how I was framed in 2009 with drugs that you did nothing about which is aiding and abetting obstruction of justice--give me the papers on that one.

I beg to differ. Do you know what other hostile activities to the United States government are? When US government actors exploit an American on the basis of their disability for political purposes, corruption, perpetuating legal fraud upon the Court and FISA court, and facilitating war crimes to be committed against American citizens without due process of law. STOP YOUR HOSTILITY TO THE UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT AND THE CONSTITUTION. You know what Bill and Hillary Clinton did to me in Summer of 2015. What matters is what is in your possession and you have those papers in your possession. I'm giving you the chance to show your integrity and to make up for legal wrongs that you have committed against me. Trust in institutions means that institutions necessarily own up to their mistakes because trust is a two way street. own up to your mistakes now.

So I will continue to seek what I requested and now you know what else I require.

Dear Mr Kotevski,

Thank you for contacting Apple's privacy team.

We would kindly refer you to Apple's Privacy Policy, available at:

<https://www.apple.com/privacy/privacy-policy>

It may be necessary – by law, legal process, litigation, and/or requests from public and governmental authorities within or outside your country of residence – for Apple to disclose your personal data.

As noted in our Privacy Policy:

"We may also disclose information about you if we determine that for purposes of national security, law enforcement, or other issues of public importance, disclosure is necessary or appropriate".

Regarding our procedures for such enquiries, Apple will accept requests for legally valid law enforcement information requests from law enforcement agencies. Apple considers a law enforcement information request to be legally valid if it is made in circumstances pertaining to the bona-fide prevention, detection or investigation of offences and will respond appropriately to what it considers to be such legally valid requests. Apple will notify its customers when their personal data is being sought in a legally valid law enforcement information request except where it reasonably considers that to do so would likely pervert the course of justice or prejudice the administration of justice.

We would kindly ask you to contact the police with any questions regarding any such enquiries as we are not in a position to comment upon these.

Kind regards,

Based on information, probable cause, and good faith belief, I believe that certain warrants and/or national security letters you have received concerning my account and my computers, between the years of 2010-2016, were in legal fact obtained criminally in violation of multiple statutes such as 18 USC 1961-1968, 18 USC 241-242, 18 USC 249, 18 USC 872, 18 USC 873, 18 USC 956, etc. In the interest of justice, I shall say a legal maxim that is probably true for you to consider: you have an affirmative legal duty to disclose to me a criminally transmitted and acted upon national security letter that was utilized against me and my legal and constitutional interests. period. First off, the way you spell "offences" is not American (which shows a lack of knowledge of American law) so I demand you forward this to your American counterparts who can handle and resolve issues involving an American plaintiff and Defendant American Government and Defendant American Corporation in which the basis of such is AMERICAN LAW. I demand to know what country sought the records.

You are not understanding the issue. When the United States Government (or the British/German/Australian Government acting on behalf of the United States Government) gave you a warrant, national security letter, etc demanding complete access to my account and laptop, they did so upon material omissions and material lies. This constitutes legal fraud. It does not matter if Apple subjectively believed it was valid; however now that there is an articulable basis in knowing that legal fraud was committed, to continue to assist and perpetuate this legal fraud only ensnares you to be in bad faith of American law. You are in fact prejudicing the administration of justice by withholding information because legal fraud was committed upon me and my legal and constitutional rights under the Geneva Convention and the United States Constitution. At the end of the day, this is an American issue that necessitates American law.

This is not a legal request. It is to inform Boeing of the nature of some of the claims I may have and to negotiate fairly, equitably, and in good faith. Please send this to Brett Gerry as soon as possible. This is super confidential and top secret. Some parts of it may not make sense to you as it is part of an ongoing issue with certain federal officials. President Biden and Merrick Garland probably will have a copy of it soon enough. I don't care. I don't wish to harm anyone or adversely impact a company and current and ongoing customers and relationships. I just want to be included.

This is all going to sound crazy, but truth is sometimes stranger than fiction. doing and saying this under the honor code. I am going to send you a copy via gmail and my other email account to make sure you get this email.

I know Sewanee has the Roberson project, which is great, and I am a victim of human trafficking and indentured servitude by the American Government as well as at least three different foreign governments. Furthermore, even acts of torture, war crimes, RICO predicates, and terrorism were committed against me. Remember, I just said that under the Honor Code. I am extremely wounded and hurt. Some of those occurred in 2010 and 2011 during my time at Sewanee. I have been able to truthfully assess and come to a conclusion that at least I suffered $10,823,400,000 in damages from just 2010 and 2011 alone. Treble damages under RICO of $32,470,200,000. I, for sure, got two more years for the statute of limitations on RICO to end around 06/26/2025, but seeing how I have been denied twice from submitting complaints to the United Nations about the abuses and crimes I experienced which I have screenshots of, I probably now have to at least October 10th, 2033 as that would be 100% obstruction of justice. This is not going to go away for a long time.

Now I dont know if you understand how RICO and War Crimes/Geneva Convention liability works, but I'll explain my current understanding of how the law works: DEFENDANTS are bound together (severally & jointly) by PINKERTON liability and/or previous case law from the Nuremberg trials finding REICHSBANK, WALTHER FUNK, and HJALMAR SCHACHT, at a minimum, guilty as co-conspirators & having aided and abetted the Nazi's war crimes and/or as RICO co-conspirators & members of the Enterprise or association under 18 U.S.C. 1962(d) and/or are vicariously liable for DEFENDANTS actions and/or are principals & accessories after the fact for any instance that took place when PLAINTIFF resided in Louisiana under Louisiana Revised Statutes RS 14 §24; RS 14 §25 and/or aided and abetted a conspiracy in violation of 18 U.S.C. §241 and 18 U.S.C. §1985(2) and 18 U.S.C. §1985 (3) and/or any other reason.

This is what I know: I know at least Andrew McCabe, Robert Mueller, Peter Strzok, Janet Napolitano, and other unknown officials in the FBI, CIA, DHS, and DOJ all have contacted you in regards to me. I know that probably Professor Schneider and certain FBI officials like Andrew McCabe and Peter Strzok (and/or other unknown DOJ and FBI officials, probably some from the Northern District of Georgia) did in which they conspired against me on the basis of my disability and title vi status and thus started one of the many chains of causation.

Now I know Sewanee and I havent had the best relationship over the years. Here is your decision for you to make right now. Cooperate with me or be a defendant. Your silence means you have decided to become a defendant. There is no such thing as attorney-client privilege for war crimes, torture, and RICO. You have no privileges.

If you decide to work with me, you can tell me who in any government agency talked to you about me and provide all the documentation on that. Who was the internet service provider in Sewanee between 2007-2011, where did Sewanee host it's IT servers, the contract between Google and Sewanee for hosting Sewanee's email accounts, everything you have on Officer Rollins (regardless of current employment status), everything you have on Mary Beth Williams Bankson, and more. I'm especially upset about the incident involving an officer that came into my dorm room in March or April 2008 doing a wellness check so every document about that. Which officers were part of the interrogation outside in Humphrey's parking lot dorm in my freshman year. All the names of officers employed between 2007-2011. More documents.

The United States Government refuses to meaningfully interact or help me so it seems like they are the culprits until they prove me wrong. So what is it going to be?
